This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

PROPERTY OF THE University of Michigan Libraries
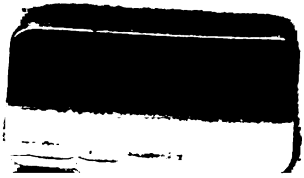
1817
ARTES SCIENTIA VERITAS



Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

2
3.6.60

§ 2 0 . 6
E13 e
no. 3, 6, 60

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Caxton's

Book of Curtesye.

Early English Text Society.
Extra Series. No. III.
1868

Digitized by Google

DUBLIN: WILLIAM McGEE, 18, NASSAU STREET.
EDINBURGH: T. G. STEVENSON, 22, SOUTH FREDERICK STREET.
GLASGOW: OGLE & CO., 1, ROYAL EXCHANGE SQUARE.
BERLIN: ASHER & CO., UNTER DEN LINDEN, 20.
NEW YORK: C. SCRIBNER & CO.; LEYPOLDT & HOLT.
PHILADELPHIA: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.
BOSTON, U.S.: DUTTON & CO.

Digitized by Google

Early English text soc.
Extra ser. nos 3, 6, 60

Caxton's

Book of Curtesye,

PRINTED AT WESTMINSTER ABOUT 1477-8 A.D.

AND NOW REPRINTED,

WITH TWO MS. COPIES OF THE SAME TREATISE, FROM THE ORIEL MS. 79, AND THE BALLIOL MS. 354.

EDITED BY

FREDERICK J. FURNIVALL, M.A.

EDITOR OF 'THE BABEES BOOK, ETC.' ('MANNERS AND MEALS IN OLDEN TIME'), ETC. ETC.

LONDON:
PUBLISHED FOR THE EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY,
BY N. TRÜBNER & CO., 60, PATERNOSTER ROW.

MDCCCLXVIII.

Digitized by Google

820.6 E13e
no.3,6,60

Extra Series,

III.

JOHN CHILDS AND SON, PRINTERS.

Digitized by Google

PREFACE.

THOUGH no excuse can be needed for including in our Extra Series a reprint of a unique Caxton on a most interesting subject, yet this Book of Curtesye from Hill's MS. was at first intended for our original series, I having forgotten lately that Caxton had written to 'lytyl Iohn,' though some months back I had entered the old printer's book for my second collection of Manners and Meals tracts for the Society. After the copy of Hill—which Mr W. W. King kindly made for his fellow-members—had gone to press, Mr Hazlitt reminded me of the Caxton, and its first and last lines in Mr Blades's admirable book showed that Hill's text was the same as the printed one. I accordingly went to Cambridge to copy it, and there, before tea, Mr Skeat showed me the copy of The Vision of Piers Plowman which the Provost and Fellows of Oriel had been good enough to lend him for his edition of 'Text B.' Having enjoyed the vellum Vision, I turned to the paper leaves at its end, and what should they contain but an earlier and better version of the Caxton that I had just copied part of?[1] I drank seven cups of tea, and eat five or six large slices of bread and butter, in honour of the event;[2] and Mr Skeat, with his never-

[1] Mr Bradshaw was kind enough to copy the rest, and to read the whole of the proof with Caxton's original.

[2] I must be excused for not having found the poem before, as it is not in the Index to Mr Coxe's Catalogue. In the body of the work it is entered as "A father's advice to his son; with instructions for his behaviour as a king's or nobleman's page. ff. 88, 89, 78. Beg.

Kepeth clene and leseth not youre gere."

Digitized by Google

failing kindness, undertook to copy and edit the Oriel text for the Society. With three texts, therefore, in hand, I could not well stick them at the end of the Postscript to the Babees Book, &c.,[1] and as I wanted Caxton's name to this Book of Curtesye to distinguish it from what has long been to me THE Book of Courtesy,—that from the Sloane MS. 1986, edited by Mr Halliwell for the Percy Society, and by me for our own E. E. T. S.—and as also Caxton's name is one 'to conjure withal,' I have, with our Committee's leave, made this little volume an Extra Series one, and called it Caxton's, though his text is not so good as that of the Oriel MS.

On this latter point Mr Skeat writes:

"The Oriel copy is evidently the best. Not only does it give better readings, but the lines, as a rule, run more smoothly; and it has an extra stanza. This stanza, which is marked 54, occurs between stanzas 53 and 54 of the other copies, and is of some interest and importance. It shows that Lidgate's pupil, put in mind of Lidgate's style by the very mention of his name, introduces a ballad of three stanzas, in which every stanza has a burden after the Lidgate manner. The recurrence of this burden no doubt caused copyists to lose their place, and so the stanza came to be omitted in other copies. Its omission, however, spoils the ballad. Both it and the curious lines in Piers Ploughmans Crede,

> For aungells and arcangells · all þei whijt vseþ
> And alle aldermen · þat ben ante tronum,

i. e. all the elders before the throne, allude to Rev. iv. 10. This Crede passage has special reference to the Carmelites or White Friars.

"The first two leaves of the Oriel copy are misplaced inside out at the end; but this is not the only misarrangement. The poem has evidently been copied into this MS. from an older copy having a leaf capable of containing six stanzas at a time; which leaves were out of order. Hence the poem in the Oriel MS. is written in the following order, as now bound up, Stanzas 11 (l. 5)—18, 25—30, 37—42, 19—24, 49—54, 31—36, 43—48, 55—76, 8—11 (l. 4), 4 (l. 5)—7, 1—4 (l. 4)."

[1] The Treatises in The Babees Book, &c., and the Index at the end, should be consulted for parallel and illustrative passages to those in Caxton's text.

Digitized by Google

As an instance of a word improved by the Oriel text, may be cited the 'brecheles feste' of Caxton's and Hill's texts, l. 66, and l. 300,

> ffor truste ye well ye shall you not excuse
> ffrom brecheles feste, & I may you espye
> Playenge at any game of rebawdrye.—Hill, l. 299—301.

Could it be 'profitless,' from A.-Sax. bréc, gain, profit; or 'breechless,' a feast of birch for the boy with his breeches off? The latter was evidently meant, but it was a forced construction. The Oriel byrcheley set matters right at once.

Another passage I cannot feel sure is set at rest by the Oriel text. Hill's and Caxton's texts, when describing the ill-mannered servant whose ways are to be avoided, say of him, as to his hair, that he is

> Absolon with disheveled heres smale,
> lyke to a prysoner of saynt Malowes,[1]
> a sonny busshe able to the galowes.—Hill, l. 462.

For the last line the Oriel MS. reads,

> a sonny bush myght cause hym to goo louse,

and Mr Skeat says,—"This is clearly the right reading, of which galowes is an unmeaning corruption. The poet is speaking of the dirty state of a bad and ill-behaved servant. He is as dirty as a man come out of St Malo's prison; a sunny bush would cause him to go and free himself from minute attendants. A 'sunny bush' probably means no more than a warm nook, inviting one to rest, or to such quiet pursuits as the one indicated. That this is really the reading is shown by the next stanza, wherein the poet apologizes for having spoken too bluntly; he ought to have spoken of such a chase by saying that he goes a-hawking or a-hunting. Such was the right euphemism required by 'norture.'"

If this is the meaning, we may compare with it the old poet's reproof to the proud man:

[1] An allusion to the strong castle built at St Malo's by Anne, Duchess of Bretayne.—Dyce.

Digitized by Google

Man, of þi schuldres and of þi side þou miȝte hunti luse and flee:
of such a park i ne hold no pride;
þe dere nis nauȝte þat þou mighte sle.

Early English Poems, ed. F. J. F., 1862, p. 1, l. 5.

and remember that one of the blessings of the early Paradisaical Land of Cokaygne is:

Nis þer flei, fle, no lowse,
In cloþ, in toune, bed, no house.

Ib., p. 157, l. 37-8.

We may also compare the following extract about Homer's death from "Pleasant and Delightfull Dialogues in Spanish and English: Profitable to the Learner, and not vnpleasant to any other Reader. By John Minsheu, Professor of Languages in London. 1623," p. 47.

"F... a foole with his foolishnesse framed in his owne imagination may giue to a hundred wise men matter to picke out.

"I, So it hapned to the Poet Homer, that as he was with age blinde, and went walking by the sea shoare, & heard certaine Fishermen talking, that at that time were a lowsing themselues, and as he asked them, what fish they caught, they vnderstanding that he had meant their lice, they answered, Those that we [1] haue, we seeke for, and those that we [2] haue not wee finde, but as the good Homer could not see what they did, and for this cause could not vnderstand the riddle, it did so grieue his vnderstanding to obtaine the secret of this matter, which was a sufficient griefe to cause his death."

But the subject is not a very pleasant one for discussion, though the occupation alluded to in the Oriel Text must have been one of the pastimes of many people in Early England.

The book itself, Lytill Johan, is by a disciple of Lydgate's—see l. 366, p. 36-7—and contains, besides, the usual directions how to dress, how to behave in church, at meals, and when serving at table, a wise man's advice on the books his little Jack should read, the best English poets,—then Gower, Chaucer, Occleve, and Lydgate,—not the Catechism and Latin Grammar. It was very pleasant to come

[1] i. Haue in their clothes, i. lice. [2] i. Haue not in haud.

Digitized by Google

off the directions not to conveye spetell over the table, or burnish one's bones with one's teeth, to the burst of enthusiasm with which the writer speaks of our old poets. He evidently believed in them with all his heart; and it would have been a good thing for England if our educators since had followed his example. If the time wasted, almost, in Latin and Greek by so many middle-class boys, had been given to Milton and Shakspere, Chaucer and Langland, with a fit amount of natural science, we should have been a nobler nation now than we are. There is no more promising sign of the times than the increased attention paid to English in education now.

But to return to our author. He gives Chaucer the poet's highest gift, Imagination, in these words, > what ever to say he toke in his entente,

> his langage was so fayer & pertynante,
> yt semeth vnto manys heryng
> not only the worde, but veryly the thyng. (l. 343.)

And though the writer has the bad taste to praise Lydgate more than Chaucer, yet we may put this down to his love for his old master, and may rest assured that though the cantankerous Ritson calls the Bury schoolmaster a 'driveling monk,' yet the larking schoolboy who robbed orchards, played truant, and generally raised the devil in his early days (Forewords to Babees Book, p. xliv.), retained in later years many of the qualities that draw to a man the boy's bright heart, the disciple's fond regret. We too will therefore hope that old Lydgate's

> sowle be gon
> (To) the sterred paleys above the dappled skye,
> Ther to syng Sanctus insessavntly
> Emonge the mvses nyne celestyall,
> Before the hyeste Iubyter of all. (l. 381-5.)

In old age the present poem was composed (st. 60, p. 42-3); 'a lytill newe Instruccion' to a lytle childe, to remove him from vice & make him follow virtue. At his riper age our author promises his boy the surplusage of the treatise (st. 74, p. 50-1); and if a copy of it exists, I hope it will soon fall in our way and get into type, for 'the more the merrier' of these peeps into old boy-life.

Digitized by Google

On one of the grammatical forms of the Oriel MS., Mr Skeat writes:

"It is curious to observe the forms of the imperative mood plural which occur so frequently throughout the poem in the Oriel copy. The forms ending in -eth are about 31 in number, of which 17 are of French, and 14 of A.S. origin. The words in which the ending -eth is dropped are 42, of which 18 are of French, and 24 of A.S. origin. The three following French words take both forms; avyse or avyseth, awayte or awayteth, wayte or wayteth; and the five following A.S. words, be or beth, kepe or kepeth, knele or knelyth, loke or loketh, make or maketh. Thus the poet makes use, on the whole, of one form almost as often as the other (that is, supposing the scribe to have copied correctly), and he no doubt consulted his convenience in taking that one which suited the line best. It is an instance of what followed in almost every case of naturalization, that A.S. inflections were added to the French words quite as freely as to those of native origin. Both the -eth and -e forms are commonly used without the word ye, though Be ye occurs in l. 58. In the phrase avise you (l. 78), you is in the accusative."

Commenting also on l. 71 of Caxton and Hill, Mr Skeat notices how they have individualised the general 'child' of the earlier Oriel text:

"71. Here we find child riming to mylde. In most other places it is Johan. The rime shows that the reading child is right, and Johan is a later adaptation. The Oriel MS. never uses the word Johan at all; it is always child."

I may remark also, that on the question lately raised by Mr Bradshaw, 'who before Hampole,[1] or after him, used you for the nominative as well as the correct ye,' Hill uses both you and ye, see l. 47, 51, 52, &c., though so far as a hasty search shows, Lydgate, in his Minor Poems at least, uses ye only, as do Lord Berners in his Arthur of Lytil Brytayne, ab. 1530, the Ormulum, Ancren Riwle, Genesis and Exodus, William of Palerne, Alliterative Poems, Early Metrical Homilies, &c.[2]

[1] Pricke of Conscience, p. 127, l. 4659; and p. xvii.

[2] Mr Skeat holds that in the various reading zow drieth from the Univ. Coll.

Digitized by Google

The final d, f, t, of Hill's MS., often have a tag to them. As they sometimes occur in places where I judge they must mean nothing, I have neglected them all. Every final ll has a line through it, which may mean e. Nearly every final n and m has a curly tail or line over it. This is printed e or ñ, though no doubt the tail and line have often no value at all. The curls to the *r*s are printed e, because ther with the curly r, in l. 521, Hill, rimes to where of l. 519.

At the end of Caxton's final d and g is occasionally a crook-backed line, something between the line of beauty and the ordinary knocker. This no doubt represents the final e of MSS., and is so printed, as Mr Childs has not the knocker in the fount of type that he uses for the Society's work. Caxton's ñ stands for un in the -aunce, -aunte, of words from the French. No stops or inverted commas have been put to Caxton's text here, but the stanzas and lines have been numbered, and side-notes added.

"The Book of Curtesye," says Mr Bradshaw, "is known from three early editions. The first, without any imprint, but printed at Westminster by Caxton ab. 1477-78,[1] the only known copy of which is here reproduced. The second (with the colophon 'Here endeth a lytyll treatyse called the booke of Curtesye or lytyll John. Emprynted atte Westmoster') is only known from a printer's proof of two pages[2] preserved among the Douce fragments in the Bodleian. It must have been printed by Wynkin de Worde in Caxton's house ab. 1492. In the third edition it was reprinted at the end of the Stans puer ad Mensam by Wynkin de Worde ab. 1501-1510. The Cambridge copy is the only one known to remain of this edition."

I have no more to say: but, readers, remember this coming New Year to do more than last for what Dr Stratmann calls "the dear Old English." Think of Chaucer when his glad spring comes, and

Oxford MS. (of the early part of the 15th century) to the Vernon MS. þou druȝest, l. 25, Passus 1, of the Vision of Piers Plowman, the ȝow is an accusative, "exactly equivalent to the Gothic in the following passage—'hwana þaursjai, gaggai du mis, i. e. whom it may thirst, let him come to me.' John vii. 37. I conclude that ȝow is accusative, not dative. The same construction occurs in German constantly, 'es dürstet mich' = it thirsts me, I thirst."

[1] In his type No. 2, Blades, ii. 63.

[2] In Caxton's type No. 5, Blades, ii. 235 (not 253 as in Index).

Digitized by Google

every day besides; forget not Langland or any of our early men;

reporte
& revyue *th*e lawde of the*m* tha*t* were famovs i*n*[1] owr*e* langage, these faders dere, whos sowles i*n* blis, god et*er*nall avaunce,
*th*at lysten so[2] owr*e* langage to enhavnce!
(Hill, l. 430-4.)

3, St George's Square, N.W.
15 Dec., 1867.

[1] Founders of, Oriel MS. [2] some, Hill; so, Oriel.

Digitized by Google

The Book of Curtesye.

Digitized by Google

[The Book of Curtesy.]

[From the Oriel MS. lxxix.]

[1]

Lytle childe, sythen youre tendre infancie
Stondeth as yett vndir yndyff[e]rence,
To vice or vertu to moven [1] or Applie,
And in suche Age ther is no prouidence,
Ne comenly no sadde intelligence,
But ryght as wax receyueth printe and figure,
So chylder ben disposed of nature,

[2]

Vice or vertu to Folowe and ympresse
In mynde; and therfore, to stere and remeve
You from vice, and to vertu thou[2] dresse,
That on to folow, and the other to eschewe,
I haue devysed you this lytill newe
Instruccion according to youre age,
Playne in sentence, but playner in langage.

[1] MS. morven.

[2] Read you.

(Richard Hill's Commonplace Book, or Balliol MS. 354, fl C lx.)

Here begynnyth lytill Iohan.

Lytell Iohan, sith your tendere enfancye [Hill's Text.]
Stondyth as yet vndere Indyfference
To vyce or vertu to mevyn or applie,
& in suche age ther [1] ys no provydence,
Ne comenly no sage Intelygence,
But as wax receyvith prynt or fygure,
So chyldren bene disposed of nature

[1] The th is the same as the y.

Digitized by Google

[The Book of Curtesye.]

[Caxton's Text.]

[1]

ytyl Iohn syth your tendre enfancye
Stondeth as yet vnder / in difference
To vice or vertu to meuyn or applye
And in suche age ther is no prouidence
Ne comenly no sade Intelligence
But as waxe resseyueth prynte or figure
So children ben disposide of nature

[Leaf 1 a.] As Infancy is indifferent whether it follows vice or virtue,

[2]

Vyce or vertue to folowe ande enpresse
In mynde / ande therfore / to styre & remeue
You from vice / ande to vertue addresse
That one to folowe / and that other teschewe
I haue deuysed you / this lytyl newe
Instruccion / acordynge vnto your age
Playne in sentence / but playner in langage

I have written this new treatise to draw you from vice, and turn you to virtue.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ Vyce or vertu to folowe, & enpresse
In mynde; & *ther*for to styre & remeve you frome vice, & to vertu addresse,
That on to folow, & that other to eschewe,
I haue devysed you this lytiłł newe
Instruccion[1] accordyng vnto your age, playn In sentence, but playnere In langage.

[1] The mark of contraction is over the n : t. i. the n has its tail curled over its back like a dog's.

Digitized by Google

[3]

Taketh hede therfore and herkyn what I say,
And yeueth therto hooly youre aduertence,
Lette not youre eye be here and youre hert away,
But yeueth herto youre besy diligence,
And ley aparte alle wantawne insolence,
Lernyth to be vertues and well thewid ;
Who wolle not lere, nedely must be lewid.

[4]

Afore all thyng, fyrst and principally,
In the morowe when ye [1] shall vppe ryse,
To wyrship god haue in youre memorie ;
Wyth cristis crosse loke ye blesse you thriese,
Youre pater-nosteir seyth in devoute wyse,
Aue maria wyth the holy crede,
Than alle the after the bettir may ye spede.

[1] MS. he.

[5]

And while ye be Abouten honestely
To dresse youre-self and don on youre aray,
Wyth youre felawe well and tretably
Oure lady matens Avyseth that you say,
And this obseruaunce vseth euery day,
Wyth prime and owris, and wythouten drede
The blyssed lady woll graunte you youre mede.

¶ Take hede *ther*for, & harken what I saye, [Hill's Text.]
& geve *ther*to yowre good advertence, lette not your ere be here, & your herte awaye,
But pute you *ther*to besy delygence,
Laying a-*par*te all wanton Insolence, lernyd to be *ver*tuvs & well thewed ;
who will not lerne, nedely he must be lewed.

¶ Afore all thyng, & pryncypally
In the mornyng wha*n* ye vp ryse,
To worship god haue in memory ;
with crysti*s* crosse loke ye blesse ye thryse,

Digitized by Google

[3]

Take hede therfore / and herkne what I saye — Attend therefore to what I say.
Ande gyue therto / your goode aduertence
Lete not your ere be here & your herte awaye 17
But put ye therto / besy diligence
Leynge aparte al wantown Insolence
Lerneth to be vertuous / and wel thewede — Learn good manners.
Who wil not lerne / nedely he must be lewed 21

[4]

Afore alle thinge / ande principally — [Leaf 1 b.]
In the morenynge / whan ye vp rise — On rising,
To worshipe gode / haue in memorie 24
With crystes crosse / loke ye blesse you thrise — cross yourself,
Your pater noster / saye in deuoute wyse — say your Pater Noster, Ave, and Creed.
Aue maria / with the holy crede
Thenne alle the day / the better shal ye spede 28

[5]

And while that ye be aboute honestly
To dresse your self / & do oñ your araye — While dressing,
With your felawe / wel and tretably 31
Oure lady matyns / loke that ye saye — say our Lady's Matins,
Ande this obseruañce / vse ye every daye
With pryme and ouris / withouten drede — Prime, and Hours.
The blesside lady / wil quyte you your mede 35

[Hill's Text.]

your patere noster say in devoute wyse,
Aue maria / with the holy crede;
28 Then all the day the better shall ye spede.

¶ And while ye dresse your selfe, honestly
To dresse your selfe & do on your araye, with your felowe well & tretably
32 Owre lady matens loke that you say;
And this observance vse ye euery day,
with pryme & owers with-owt drede.
the blessyd lady will quyte you your mede.

Digitized by Google

[6]

Kembe youre hede and loke ye kepe hit clene, Youre eris twayne suffre not foule to be;
In youre visage wayteth no spotte be sene,
Purge youre nase, let hit not combred be
Wyth foule matiers Ayenst all oneste,
But wyth bare hande no matier from hit feche,
For that is a foule and an vncurtays teche.

[7]

Youre handes wassheth, that is an holsom thyng,
Youre nayles loke they be not geet blake,
Suffre hem not to ben ouer long growyng;
To youre aray good hede I warne you take,
That manerly ye seet hit vp and make,
Youre hode, youre gowne, youre hose, and eke youre scho,
Wyth all array longyng youre body to.

[8]

Kepeth clene and leseth not youre gere,
And or ye passen oute of youre loggyng,
Euery garment that ye schulle vppon you were,
Awayteth welle that hit be so syttyng
As to youre degre semeth moost on accordyng;
Than woll men sey, 'for soth this childe is he
That is well taught and loueth honeste.'

---

36 ¶ Kembe your hede, & loke you kepe yt clene; [Hill's Text.] your eres twayn suffre not fowle to be; [ff C lx back]
In your wysage loke no spote be sene;
purge your nose; lett no man in yt se
The vile matter; yt ys none honeste;
Ne with your bare hond no fylth from yt feche,
ffor that ys fowle, & an vncurtoys teche.

¶ Your hondis wasshe; yt ys an holsom thyng;
your naylis loke they be not gety blake,
Ne suffre not them over longe growyng.

Digitized by Google

[6]

Kembe your hede / & loke ye kepe it clene — Comb your head; clean your ears
Your eres tweyne / suffre not fowl to be
In your visage / wayte no spot be sene
Purge your nose / lete noman in it see — and nose;
The vile mater / it is none honeste
Ne with your bare honde / no filth fro it fecche — don't pick it.
For that is fowl / and an vncurtoys teche

[7]

Your hondes wesshe / it is an holsom thinge — [Leaf 2 a.] Wash your hands; don't keep your nails jet-black or too long.
Your naylis loke / they be not gety blacke
Ne suffre not hem / to be ouer longe growyng
To your araye / I warne you good hede take
That manerly ye fytte it vp and make — Wear fit clothes, that fit well
Your hoode. gowne. hosyn / & eke your sho
With al your aray longyng your body to [8]

Kepe you clene / and lose not your gere
And or ye passe / out of your loggynge
Euery garment / that ye shal on were Awayte wel / that it be so syttynge — and suit your station;
As to your degre / semeth acordynge
Thenne wil men saye / forsoth this childe is he — the men will praise you.
That is wel taught / and louyth honeste

To your A-raye I warne you good hede take, — [Hill's Text.] Manerly & ffyte loke you yt make;
your hood / gowne / hosen / & eke your sho, with all your araye longyng your body to.

¶ Kepe you clene, & lose not your gere;
& or you passe owt of your lodgyng,
Euery garment that ye shall were,
Awayte well that yt be so syttyng
& to your degre semed accordyng;
Than will men say, "for sothe this child ys he that ys well tawght, & loweth honeste."

Digitized by Google

[9]

And as ye walke and passen be the strete,
Be ye not nyce of chere and countenance;
And loke, my childe, to folkys that ye mete,
Ye spekyn feyre wyth wordis of plesaunce;
To youre souerayne wyth humble obeysaunce,
To hym that is youre felowe and pere,
Yevith feyre langage wyth ryght frendly chere.

[10]

CAst not wyth stone or styke at foule ne beste,
And where ye walke be ware that ye ne rage,[1]
For and ye do, ye shall to byrcheley feest.
Terre[2] wyth no hounde in fylde nor in village,
Gothe forth in peace, demenyng youre vysage
In sobre wyse, that men may of you say,
'A goodly childe ther passith be the way.'

[1] MS. nerage.

[2] MS. There, by mistake.

[11]

Whan ye come to the chirche, my lytyll chylde,
Holy watir ye schull vppon you caste
Be-fore the crosse wyth [chere] moste meke and mylde;
Than knelyth doune and knoketh on youre breste,
Thankyng the lorde that on the crosse did rest,
And there for you suffred his hert to blede,
Seyth or ye ryse Pater, Aue, and A crede.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ And as ye walke & passe by the strete,
Be ye not Nyce of chere & covntenavnce,
but loke, my child, to folk*is that* you mete,
& loke ye speke fayere with word*is* of plesavnce,
Demvre, & curtoys of yo*ur* Demenavnce.
To hy*m that* ys yowr*e* felow & pere,
Geve you fayre langage & a ffrendly chere.

¶ Cast no styke ne stone at fowle ne beste;
& wher ye walke, be ware ye ne rage,
ffor yff ye do ye shall to brecheles feest.
Terre not with hovndis in fyld ne in vilage;

Digitized by Google

[9]

And as ye walke / and passe by the strete
Be ye not nyce of chere / and countenaunce
But loke my child / to folkes that ye mete
Ye speke fayr / with wordes of plesaunce
Demure and curtoys / of your demenaunce
To hym that is your felawe and*e* pere
Gyue ye fair langage / and a frendly chere

As you walk, look pleasantly at folk, and greet your fellows friendly;

[10]

Caste no styck ne stone at fowle ne beest
And where ye walke / bewarre ye ne rage
For yf ye doo / ye shal to brecheles feest
Terre not with hou*n*de in felde ne in vilage
Go forth your waye / demenyng your viage
In sobre wyse / that men may of you saye
A goodly chyld*e* / ther passeth by the waye

[Leaf 2 b.] don't shy stones at bird or beast, or quarrel with dogs.

[11]

And whan ye come to þ^e^ chirche my litil child
Holy water / ye shal vpon you caste
Byfore þ^e^ crosse / with chere meke & mylde
Knele adoun̄ / and knocke on your breste
Thankyng the good lord þ^t^ on it did*e* reste
And there / for you suffryd his sides to blede
Saye ye or ye rise / pat*er* noster / aue / & a crede

At church, holy-water yourself, kneel before the cross, knock on your breast, and say prayers.

---

68 Go furth yo*ur* way, Demenyng yo*ur* viage
In sober wyse, *tha*t me*n* maye of you saye,
"A goodly chyld ther passith by the way."

[Hill's Text.]

¶ And whe*n* ye cu*m* to the churche, my litiłł child, 72 holy water ye shałł vpon you caste.
be-fore the crosse wi*th* chere meke & mylde
knele a-downe, & knoke on yo*ur* brest,
Thankyng *tha*t good lord *tha*t on yt dyde reste,
76 & ther for you suffred his sydys to blede;
Saye ye, or you ryse, pater no*ster* / aue / & a crede.

Digitized by Google

[12]

Avise you well Also for eny thyng,
The schirche of prayer is the house and place;
Be ware there-fore of clappe or Ianglyng,
For in the schirche that is full gret trysspace,
And A token of hem that lacken grace;
Ther beth demure and kepeth youre sylence,
And serueth god wyth all youre deligence.

[13]

TO helpe the prest whan he shall sey the masse,
Whan hit shall happen you or be-tyde,
Remeue not ferre ne from his presence passe,
Kneleth or stondeth deuoutly hym be-syde,
And not to nyghe; youre tounge mooste be applied
To Answere hym wyth [1] v[o]ice full moderate;
Avyse you well, my lityll childe, Algate

[14]

TO mynystre wyth de-voute Reuerence,
Loke that ye do youre humble obseruaunce
Debonarly wyth [dewe] obideence,
Cyrcum-spectly, wyth euer[y] circumstaunce
Of porte, of chere, demevire of countenaunce,
Remembryng, the lord aboue is he
Whom to serue is grettest liberte.

[1] MS. wyth hym wyth.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ Avyce you well also for any thynge,
The chyrche, of prayer ys howse & place;
be ware *ther*for of clappe or Iangelynge,
ffor in the chyrche yt ys a full gret trespas,
& a token of suche as lacketh grace.
Ther be ye demvre, & kepe ye scilence,
And serve ye god w*ith* all yo*ur* delygence.

[fol. C lxj.]

To helpe the Preest whan he sayth masse, whan yt shall happen you or betyde,
Remeve not fer, ne from his presence passe;
knele or stonde you devovtly hym besyde,

[12]

Auyse you wel also / for ony thinge
The chirche of prayer / is hous and place
Beware therfore / of clappe or Iangelynge
For in þe chirche / it is a ful grete trespaas
And a token of suche / as lackyth grace
There be ye demure / and kepe ye scilence
And serue ye god / with al your diligence

Don't chatter,

but be silent, and serve God.

[13]

To helpe the preest / whan he saith masse
Whan it shal happen you or betyde
Remeue not fer / ne from his presence passe
Knele or stonde ye / deuoutly hym besyde
And not to nygh̄ your tonge muste be applide
Tanswere hym / with voys ful moderate
Auyse you wel / my lityl childe algate

[Leaf 3 a.]

When you help the priest at Mass,

kneel or stand near him,

and answer him in a moderate tone.

[14]

To mynystre / with deuoute reuerence
Loke ye do / youre humble obseruañce
Debonairly / with due obedyence
Circumspectly / with euery circumstaunce
Of poort and chere / of goodly countenañce Remembrynge wel the lorde / a boue is he
Whom to serue / is grettest liberte

Minister reverently

and circumspectly.

[Hill's Text.]

& not to nyg̃h : your tonge mvst be applyde
To answere hym with woyce moderate.
Avyce you welł, my lytiłł child, algate

¶ To mynyster with devout reverence ;
loke ye do your humble observaunce
Debonerly wyth dewe obedyence,
Circumspectly with euery circumstavnce
Of poort, & chere of goodly covntenavnce, Remembryng well the lorde a-bove ys he,
whome to serve ys grettest lyberte.

[15]

And whan ye speke, loketh men in the face [1]
Wyth sobre chere and goodly semblaunce;
Cast not youre eye asyde in odir place,
For that is a tokyn of wantowne inconstaunce,
Which wolle appeyre youre name, and disauaunce;
The wyse man seyth, 'who hathe this signes thre
Ne is not like a good man [for] to be—

[1] MS. visage.

[16]

Yn hert,' he seyth, 'who that is inconstaunte,[2]
A waveryng eye, glyddryng but sodenly
From place to place, and A fote[3] variaunte[4]
That in no place abydeth stabully—
Thes ben signes,' the wyse man seyth sekerly,
'Of suche a wyght as is vnmanerly nyce,
And is full like dissposed be to vice.'

[2] MS. inconstaunce
[3] MS. fore.
[4] MS. variaunce.

[17]

And wayte, my childe, whan ye stond at the table,
Of souereyne or maister whether hit be,
Applieth you [for] to be seruysable,
That no defaute in you may founde be;
Loke who doth best and hym envyeth ye,
And specially vseth attendaunce,
Whiche is to souereyne thyng of gret plesaunce.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ And whan ye speke, loke men in the face with sobre chere & goodly semblavnce;
Caste not eye a-side in no othere place,
ffor that ys a token of a wanton constavnce which will apayre your name, & dysavance.
The wyse man sayth, 'who hath these thyngis iij, ys not lyke a good man for to be:

¶ 'In herte,' he sayth, 'who that ys Inconstavnte,
A waverynge eye, glydyng sodenly ffro place to place, & a foote varyavnte that in no place a-bydyth stabli,

Digitized by Google

[15]

And whan ye speke / loke men in the face — When you speak to men, look 'em in the face.
With sobre chere / and*e* goodly semblaunce
Caste not your eye a syde / in other place
For that is a token of wantouñ inconsta*n*ce
Whiche wil appeyre your name & disauañce
The wise ma*n* saith who hath these thi*n*gis thre — The Wise Man says
Is not lyke a good*e* man for to be

[16]

In herte he seith / who that is inconstañte — [Leaf 3 b.]
A waueryng eye / glydyng sodeynly — an inconstant man with a wavering eye and a wandering foot
Fro place to place / & a foot variañte
That in no place / abydeth stably
These ben þ^e^ signes / the wisema*n* seith sikerly
Of suche a wight / as is vnmanerly nyce
And is ful likely disposid vnto vyce — will turn to vice.

[17]

Awayte my chylde / whan ye sta*n*de atte table — When you serve at table,
Of maister or souerayn / whether it be
Applye you for to be seruysable — be attentive and ndy,
That no defaute in you founden be
Loke / who doth best / and hym ensiewe ye
And in especyal / vse ye attendaunce — specially to well-off men.
Wherein ye shal your self best auaunce

[Hill's Text.]

Thyse bene the thyng*is*,' the wysma*n* sayth sekerly,
'Off suche a wayghte that be vnmanerly nyce,
& be full lykely dysposed vnto vyce.'

¶ Awayte, my chyld, wha*n* ye stonde at table,
Off mayster or soverayne whe*ther* yt be,
Applye you for to be servysable
That no defawte in you fownden be;
loke who dothe best, & hym folow ye,
& in especyall vse ye attendavnce wheryn ye shall your selfe best avaunce.

Digitized by Google

[18]

A[s] ye be comaundyd, so ye do algate,
Beth not wyth-oute cause from the tabul absent;
Hit is plesaunce vnto the gret astate
To se theyre saruaunt about them present;
Haunteth no halkes, for then ye woll be schent.
Lette maner and Mesure be youre guydes twey,
So shall ye best please, I dare well sey.

[19]

Rewarde all-way the loke and countenaunce
Of youre master, or of youre souereine,
Ther shall ye best preue what is plesaunce,
And what displesaunce; this is the soth serteyne,
The chere discureth often tyme both twayne,
And eke the chere may some tyme you addresse
In thyng that langage may not þan expresse.

[20]

And what ye here there, loke ye kepe hit secre,
Besy report of mystrust is cheff norice;
Mekell langage may not all fautles be;
Than doth, my childe, as teicheth you the wyse,
Whiche vnto you this wysdome dothe devise,
'Here and see, be still in euery prees,[1]
Passe forth youre way in silence and in pees.'

[1] MS. 'in euery place and in prees.' Place was to have been the last word; and in prees was careless'y added, instead of striking out place.—Sk.

---

120 ¶ As ye be comavnded, so do ye algate; [Hill's Text.] be not cavseles fro the table absente;
yt ys a grete pleasure to the high estate [1] [1 noble, lord.]
To se his servaunttes abowte hym presente.
124 havnte no halke, for then ye will be shente;
lette manere & mesure be your gydes twayne;
so shall ye best please, I dare savely sayne.

¶ Reward also thy loke & contenavnce,
128 Off your master or of your soverayne,
so shall ye best preve what ys his plesavnce or ellis his dysplesavnce: this ys sertayne,

Digitized by Google

[18]

As ye be comandede / so do ye algate
Be not causeles / fro the table absent
It is a grete plesure / to the hyghe estate
To see his seruantis aboute hym present
Haunte no halke / for thenne ye wil be shente
Lete maner & mesure / be your gydes tweyne
So shal ye best plese / I dar sauely seyne

Don't absent yourself from table, or stick yourself in a corner.
Let Manners and Moderation guide you.

[19]

Rewarde also the loke ande contenaunce
Of your maister / or of your souereyne
So shal ye best preue. what is his plesañce
Or els displesaunce / this is soth serteyne
The chere discouerith / often bothe tweyne
And eke þ^e chere / somtyme may you addresse
In thingis / þ^t langage may not them expresse

[Leaf 4 a.]
Look at your master's face; that'll show whether he's pleased or not.

[20]

Ande that ye her loke / kepe alway secree
Besy reporte / of mischief is chief noryse
Mykyl langage / may not al fawtles bee
Thenne do my childe / as techeth you the wyse
Whiche vnto you / this lesson doth deuyse
Here and see / ande be stylle in euery prees
Passe forth̃ your way in scilence & in pees

Keep secret all you hear.
Hear, see, and go your way.

The chere discovereth oftyn both[e] twayn, [Hill's Text.]
& eke the chere sumtyme may yow addresse
In thyngis the langage may not then expresse.

¶ And that ye here, loke ye kepe alway secre; [fl. C lxj, back.]
besy reporte, of myschefe ys chefe noryse;
Mykyll langage may not all fawtles be;
Then do, my chyld, as techeth you the wyse whiche vnto you this lessun doth devyce:
here & see, & be styll in euery prees, passe forthe your way in scilence & in pees.

Digitized by Google

[21]

And yit in Aventure ye, if the caase require,
Ye most speke as hit may doo percace ; [1]
Seuen condicions obserue as ye shall hire,
Avise you well what ye sey and in what place,
Of whom, and to whom, in youre mynde compace ;
Howe ye shall speke, and whan, taketh good hede,
This counsellcth the wyse man wyth-outen drede.

[1] MS. precace.

[22]

Awayte, my childe, ye haue you manerly,
Whan at youre mete ye sittyn at youre table ;
In euery pres, in euery company,
Disposeth you to be so componable,
That men may you reporte for comendable ;
For tristeth well, vppon youre bering
Men woll you blame or yeven you preysing.

[23]

And printeth chiefly in youre memorie,
For A principalle poynt of feire norture,
Ye depraue no man absent especially ;
Seint Austyn Amonishith wyth besy cure,
Howe at the table men shull them assure,
That there escapeth them no suche langage,
As myght turne other folke to disparage.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ And yet in aduenture, yf the caas requyre, ye may speke, but ye must percaas
Seven [1] condycions observe, as ye may here :
144 Avyce ye well what ye say, & in what place,
Off whom, & to whom, in your mynd compace ;
how ye shall speke, & whan, take good hede :
this cow[n]syled the wyse man withowten drede.

148 A-wayte, my chyld, ye behaue you manerly
whan at your mete ye sytte at the table ;
In euery prees & In euery cumpany

[1 Six they are at p. 358, Babees Book, of the Wise Man.]

Digitized by Google

[21]

And yet in auenture / yf the caas require
Ye may speke / but ye muste thenne *per*caas
Seue*n* co*n*dici*o*ns obserue / as ye may now hyre
Auyse you wel / what ye saye / & in what place
Of whom / & to whom in your mynde co*m*pace
How ye shal speke / & whan take good hede
This co*u*ncelith the wise man withoute drede

If you must speak, observe the seven conditions.

[22]

Awayte my chylde / ye be haue you manerly
Whan at your mete / ye sitte at the table
In euery prees and in euery company
Dispose you to be so compenable
That men may of you reporte for *com*me*n*dable
For trusteth wel / vpon your berynge
Men wil you blame or gyue preysynge

[Leaf 4 b.]

When you're at meals,

be companionable

[23]

And prynte ye trewly your memorie
For a princypal point of fair noreture
Ye depraue no man absent especyally
Saynt austyn amonessheth with besy cure
How men atte table / shold hem assure
That there escape them / no suche langage
As myght other folke hurte to disparage and don't run down absent men. St Austin

[Hill's Text.]

Dyspose you to be so cu*m*penable
*th*at me*n* may of you reporte for co*m*me*n*dable;
ffor, trustyth weⁿ, vpon yo*u*r beryng
Men wiⁿ you blame or gyve p*ra*ysyng.

¶ And prynte ye truly *th*is in yo*u*r memorye for a pryncypaⁿ poynt of fayer noretvre,
*th*at ye deprave no ma*n* absente specyally.
Saynt Austyne amonessheth w*ith* besy cure, howe me*n* att table shulde the*m* assure that ther escape the*m* no suche langage
As myglt hurte or bryng folke to disparage.

Digitized by Google

[24]

This curteise clarke writeth in ryght this wyse, Rebukyng the vice of vile detraccioun ;
'What man hit be that of custome and guise
Hurteth wyth his toung wyth foule corrosioun
The absent wight, for that abusioun
Suche detractoure [wayue] [1] from this table
As vn-worthe, not to be reprocheable.

[1] A word lost.

[25]

Whan ye sitten therfor at youre repaste,
Annoyethe no man present nor absent,
But speketh feyre, for and ye make waste
Off [large] langage, for soth ye most be schent ;
And wan ye speke, speketh wyth good entent
Of maters appendyng to myrth and plesaunce,
But nothyng that may causen men greuaunce.

[26]

Eschewe also taches of foule rauenyng,
Of gredy lust the vncurteyce appetite ;
Pres not to sone to youre viaunde, restraine
Youre handis a while wyth manerly respytte ;
Fedith for necessite, not for delite,
Demeneth you in mete and drink soo sobrely,
That ye be not infecte wyth gloteny.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ This curteys clerke wryteth *in th*is wyse, Rebukyng the vyce of vyle detracc*i*on :
what may yt be that of custu*m* & gvyse hurteth w*ith* tonge or by fowle colusyon
The absente / weyne [1] ye for that abusyon
Suche a detractowre from the table
As vnworthy & also reprocheable.

[1 or weyne]

¶ Whan ye sytte *ther*for at yo*ur* repast, Annoye ye no ma*n* present nor absente,
but speke ye fewe ; for yff ye make wast of large langage, for soth ye must be shent.

Digitized by Google

[24]

This curtoys clerk / writeth in this wise
Rebukynge the vice / of vyle detraccion — rebukes the vice of detraction,
What man it be / that of custom & guyse
Hurteth with tunge / or by foule colusiön — and bids you turn all backbiters from the table
Thabsento / weyue ye for that abusioñ
Suche a detractour / from the table
As vnworthy / and also reprochable

[25]

Whan ye sitte therfore at your repaste [Leaf 5 a.]
Annoye ye noman presente nor absente
But speke ye fewe / for yf ye make waste — Speak little,
Of large langage / for sothe ye must be shent
And whan ye speke / speke ye with good entent — and that pleasantly.
Of maters acordynge vnto plesance
But nothing / that may cause men greuañce

[26]

Eschewe also tacches of foule Raueyne — Don't be ravenous,
Of gredy luste / with vncurteys appetyte [1]
Prece not to sone / fro your viand restreyne — but keep your hands from your food for a time.
Your honde a while / with manerly respite
Fede you for necessite / & not for delite
Demene you with mete / & drynke so sobrely
That ye not ben enfecte with glotony

[1] Orig. appetyce.

& whan ye speke // speke with good Intent [Hill's Text.]
Off maters accordyng vnto plesavnce, but no thynge that may cavse men grevaunce.

¶ Eschewe also tacches of fowle ravayne,
of gredy luste; with vncurteys appetyte
prece not to sone; fro your vyande restrayne your hand a while with manerly respyte;
ffede you for necessyte, & not for delyte.
Demene you with mete & drynke so soberly
That ye not be Infecte wyth glotony.

Digitized by Google

[27]

Embrewe not youre vesselle ne youre cuppe [1]
Ouer mesure and maner, but saue them clene;
Ensoyle not youre cuppe, but kepe hit clenely,
Lete no fatte ferthyng of youre lippe be sen.
For that is foule; wotte you what I mene?
Or than ye drincke, for youre owne honeste,
Youre lippis wepe, and klenly loke they be.

[28]

Blowe not in youre drincke ne in youre potage,
Ne farsith not youre disshe to full of brede,
Ne bere not youre knyf towarde youre vysage,
For there-in is parell and mekell drede.
Clawe not youre face ne touche not youre hede
Wyth youre bare hande, sittyng at the table,
For in norture that is reprouable.

[29]

Lowse not youre gyrdyll syttyng at youre table,[2]
For that is a tache of vncurtesye,
But and ye seme ye be enbrasyde streite,
Or than ye sitte amende hit secrely,
So couertly that no wyght hit espie.
Be ware also no breth from you rebounde
Vppe ne downe, be ware that shamefull sounde.

1 Sic. Read "napery."

2 Sic. Read "mete."

[Hill's Text.] [ff C lxij.]

¶ Enbrewe not your vesselle ne your naprye over maner & mesure, but kepe th*em* clene;
Ensoyle not your cuppe, but kepe yt clenly,
lete no farsyone on your lyppis be sene,
ffor that ys fowle; ye wott what I mene.
Or than ye drynke, for your own honeste your lyppys wype, & clenly loke they be.

¶ Blowe not in your drynke ne in your pottage,
Ne ferce not your disshe to full of brede;
bere not your knyf toward your vysage,
ffor *ther*yn ys peryll & mykell drede;

Digitized by Google

[27]

Enbrewe not your vessel / ne your naprye — Don't dirty your cloth or cup.
Ouer maner & mesure / but kepe hem clene
Ensoyle not your cuppe / but kepe it clenlye 185
Lete no fat farssine / on your lippes be sene
For that is fowle / ye wote what I mene
Or than ye drynke / for your owen honeste — Wipe your lips before you drink.
Your lippes wype / and clenly loke they be 189

[28]

Blowe not in your drinke ne in your potage — [Leaf 5 b.] Don't blow on your food,
Ne farse not your dishe to ful of brede
Bere not your knyf / to warde your visage 192 — or put your knife to your face,
For therin is parelle / and mykyl drede
Clawe not your visage / touche not your hede — or scratch it or your head.
With your bare honde / sittyng atte table
For in norture / suche thing is reprouable 196

[29]

Lose not your gyrdel / sittyng at your mete — Don't undo your girdle at table;
For that is a tacche / of vncurtesye
But yf ye seme / ye be embraced streite 199 — if it's tight, let it out before you sit down.
Or then ye sytte / amende it secretly
So couertly that no wight you espye
Beware also / no breth fro you rebounde — Don't break wind up or down.
Vp ne doun / leste ye were shameful founde 203

[Hill's Text.]

Clawe not your visage, tovche not your hede with your bare honde syttyng at the table, 196 ffor in norture suche thyngis be reproveable.

¶ Lose not your gyrdyll syttyng at your mete, ffor that is a tache of vncurtesye;
but yff ye seme ye be enbrased streyte,
200 or than ye sytte, amend yt secretly
So wysely that no wyght you aspye.
be ware also no breth fro you rebownd
Vp ne downe, lest ye were shamfull fownd.

Digitized by Google

[30]

Beth huste in chambre, cilent in the halle,
Herkenyth well, yeueth good audience;
Yef vsher or marchall for eny romour calle,
Putting Ianglers to rebuke and cilence,
Beth mylde of langage, demure of eloquence;
Enforcith you to them confourmyde be,
That can most good and haue humanyte.

[31]

Touche not wyth mete salt in the saler,
Lest folke Appoynt you of vncunnyngnesse,
Dresse hit apparte vppon a clene tranchere;
Force not youre mouth to fulle for wantannesse,
Lene not vppon the table, that is but rudesse,
And yf I shall to you so playnly say,
Ouer the table ye shull not spette convey.

[32]

Yif ye be seruid wyth metis delicate,
Departith wyth youre fellowys in gentyl wyse,
The clarke seith, 'nature is content and saciate
Wyth meane diete, and lytill shall suffice.'
Departyth therfore, as I to you devise;
Engrosith not vnto youre silven all,
For gentilnesse will ay be lyberall.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ Be ye husht in chambre, scylente in hall;
herkyn well, & geve good audyence yff vsshar or marchall for any rvmowre call;
putt ye yanglers to rebuke for scilence.
Be ye myld of langage, demvre of eloquence;
Enforce you vnto hym conformed to be that can most good, & hathe humanyte.

¶ Towch not with your mete salte in the saler, leest folke apoynte you of vnconnyngnesse;
Dresse yt aparte vpon a clene trenshere.
ffarste not your movth to full for wantonesse;

Digitized by Google

[30]

Be ye husht in chambre / scylent in halle — Be silent,
Herken wel and*e* gyue good*e* audience
Yf vssher or marchal for ony Rumour calle
Put ye Ianglers to rebuke for silence — and put chatterers to rebuke.
Be ye mylde of langage / demure of eloqu*e*nce Enforce you vnto hym conformed to be — Imitate him who has humanity.
That can moste good / and*e* hath humanyte

[31]

Touche not with your mete / salt in the saler — [Leaf 6 a.] Don't dip your meat in the saltcellar,
Lest folk apoynte you of vnconnyngnesse
Dresse it aparte / vpon a clene trencher
Farse not your mouth to ful / for wa*n*tonesse
Lene not vpon the table / for that rude is — lean on the table,
And yf I shal to you playnly saye
Ouer the table / ye shal not spetel conueye — or spit over it.

[32]

Yef ye be serued / with metes delicate — Share dainties with your fellows:
Departe with your felowe / in gentil wise
The clerck saith / nature is conte*n*t & saciate
With mene diete / and litil shall suffyse
Departe therfore / as I you deuyse
Engrose not / vnto your self alle
For gentilnes / wil aye be liberalle — gentleness is liberal.

---

lene not on the table, for that rvde ys ; [Hill's Text.] & yff I shaⁿ to you playnly saye, over the table ye shaⁿ not speteⁿ co*n*veye.

¶ Yff ye be *ser*vede w*ith* met*is* delycate, Departe w*ith* yo*ur* felawe in gentiⁿ wyse ;
the clerke seyth, 'nature ys co*n*tent & sacyate
w*ith* mene dyete, & lytiⁿ shaⁿ suffyce ;'
Departe therfor, as I you devyce, Engrose not vnto yowr*e* selfe aⁿ,
ffor gentylnesse wiⁿ ay be lyberaⁿ.

Digitized by Google

[33]

And wan percace youre seruice is not large,
Grucchith not wyth frownyng countenaunce,
Ne maketh not ther-of to mekell charge,
Disposeth you to goodly sufferaunce,
And what ye haue, take hit for suffisaunce;
Holde you pleased wyth that god hath you sent,
He hath Inough [1] that can hold hym content.

[1] MS. Incught.

[34]

Burnysh no bonys wyth youre tethe, be ware,
That houndis tecche fayleth of curtesie;
But wyth youre knyff make the bonys bare;
Handell youre mete so well and so clenly,
That ye offenden not the company
Where ye be sette, as ferre-forth as ye can;
Remembre well that maner maketh man.

[35]

And whan your teeth shall cutte youre mete small,
Wyth open mouth be ware that ye not ete,
But loke youre lippis be closede as a wall,
Whan to & [2] fro ye trauers youre mete;
Kepe you so close that men haue no conceite
To seyn of you langage of vilonye,
Be cause ye ete youre mete vnma[ne]rly.

[2] MS. a.

¶ And wha*n* *per*caas yo*ur* *ser*vyce ys not large, [Hill's Text.]
Groge not with frownynge covntenavnce,
Ne make ther of not to mykyll charge;
228 Dyspose you to goodly suffravnce,
& what ye haue, take yt in suffysavnce;
be you plesid with suche as god hath you sent;
he hath ynowgh þat ca*n* hold hy*m* co*n*tente.

232 Burnysshe no bonys with yo*ur* teth, be ware, [fl. C lxij back.]
Suche howndis tacches fallen of vncurtesye, but with yo*ur* knyfe make the bonys bare.
Handle yo*ur* mete so well & so clenly

Digitized by Google

[33]

And whan percaas your seruise is not large
Gruccheth not / with frownyng contenaunce
Ne make therof / not to mykyl charge
Dispose you to goodly suffraunce
And what ye haue / take it in suffysaunce
Be ye plesid with suche as god hath you sent
He hath ynough / that can holde hym content

If your helping is not large, don't grumble,

but be content.

[34]

Burnysshe no bones / with your teth / beware
Suche houndis tacches / falle of vncurtesye
But with your knyf / make the bones bare
Handle your mete / so wel and so clenly
That ye offende not the company
Where ye be sette / as ferforth̄ as ye can Remembryng wel / that manners make man̄

[Leaf 6 b.]

Don't burnish bones with your teeth.

Handle your food cleanly,

for Manners make Man.

[35]

Ande whan that / ye ete your mete smalle
With open mouth̄ / beware ye not ete
But loke your lippes / be closed as a walle
Whan to ande fro / ye trauerse your mete
Kepe you so cloos / that men haue no conseite
To say of you / ony langage or vilonye
Bicause ye ete your mete / vnmanerly

Eat with your lips closed.

[Hill's Text.]

236 That ye offende not the company
wher ye be sette, as ferforthe as ye can,
Remembryng well̄ that maners make man.

¶ And whan that ye ete your mete smal̄t,
240 with open mowth be ware ye not ete,
but loke / your lyppes be closed as a wal̄t;
whan to & fro ye traverse your mete,
kepe you so cloos that men haue no conceyte 244 To saye of you any langage or vylonye by cavse ye ete your mete so vnmanerly.

Digitized by Google

[36]

Be ware, my child, of laughing ouer mesure,
Ye shall not Also at the borde youre naylis pare,
Ne pike not youre teth wyth youre knyff, I you ensure,
Ete at youre messe, and odir folkes spare ;
A glottoun can but make dissches bare,
And of Inough he taketh neuer hede,
He fedith for lust more than [1] he doth for nede.

[1] MS. that.

[37]

And whan the borde is then [as] of seruice,
Not replenyshide wyth gret diuercite,
Of mete and drincke good chere may than suffice,
Hit is A signe of gret humanite,
Wyth gladsom chere than fulsom for to be ;
The poet seyth howe that the poure borde
Men may encrese wyth cherefull wille and worde.

[38]

And o thing, my childe, I warne you vndirstonde,
Specially for youre owne honeste,
In the water wasschith so clene youre hande,
That youre towell neuer ensoyled be
So foule that hit be lothely vnto se ;
Wasschith wyth watire till youre handis be clene,
And in youre clothe ther shall no spotte be sene.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ Beware, my chyld, of laughynge ouer mesure ;
Ne at the borde ye shall no nayles pare,
Ne pyke your teth with knyf, I you ensure.
Ete at your messe, & othere folk*is* spare ;
A gloton can but make the bonys bare,
& of ynowgh he takyth nevere hede,
he ffedyth more for lust than for nede.

¶ And whan the borde ys thyn as of servyce,
Nowght replenysshed with gret dyversite of mete & drynke, gud chere may than suffice, with honest talkyng ; & also owght ye

[36]

Beware my childe / of laughyng ouer mesure
Ne at the borde / ye shall no naylis pare
Ne pyke your teth / with knyf / I you ensure
Ete at your messe / and other folkes spare
A gloton can but make the bones bare
Ande of ynough / he taketh neuer hede
He fedith more for lust / than for nede

Don't pare your nails at table, or pick your teeth with a knife.

[37]

And whan þe borde is thynne / as of seruyse
Nought replenesshed with grete diuersite
Of mete & drinke good chere may theñ suffise
With honest talkyng / and also ought ye
With gladsom chere / thenne fulsom for to be
The poete saith / hou that a poure borde
Men may enriche / with cheerful wil & worde

[Leaf 7 a.] When there are not many dishes, be satisfied with chatting cheerily.

[38]

And one thyng my chylde / ye vnderstonde
In especyalle / for your owne honeste
In the water / wasshe so clene your honde
That your towel / neuer enfoyled be
So fowle / that it be lothsom on to see
Wasshe with water / your hondes so cleene
That in the towel shal no spotte be sene

Wash your hands clean in the water, so as to leave no dirt on your towel.

---

with gladsum chere then fulsome for to be : [Hill's Text.]
The poete seyth how that 'a powre borde
Men may enryche with cherfull will & worde.'

¶ And on thyng, my child, ye vnderstond,
In especyall for your own honeste :
In the water wasshe so clene your hond that your towell never ensoyled be So fowle that yt be lothsome on to see ;
wasshe with water your hondis so clene that in the towell shall no spote be sene.

Digitized by Google

[39]

Leue not youre spone in youre dissche standyng,
Ne vppon the brede hit shall not lie;
Lette youre trenchoure be clene for eny thyng,
Yif ye haue no chaunge, yit as honestly
As ye can, maketh avoydie,
So that no fragment from youre trenchoure falle;
Do this, my childe, in chambre and in halle.

[40]

Whan Another speketh at the table,
Be ware ye interrupte[1] not is tale nor langage,
For that is a thing discommendable,
And hit is no signe of folkes sage
To ben of wordis besy and outrage;
For the wyse man seyth pleinly in sentence,
'He shall be wyse that yevith Audience.'

[1] MS. corruptly has nattiripte.

[41]

Vndre-stondeth ther-fore or than ye speke,
Printyng in youre mynde clerely the sentence,
He that vseth A mannes tale to breke
Lettyth vncurtesly the Audience,
And hurtyth hym-sylf for lacke of silence;
He may not yeue answere convenyent
That herith not fynally what is ment.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ lete not your spone in youre disshe stond,
Ne vpon the table yt shuld not lye;
lete your trenchowre be clene for any thyng,
& yf ye haue, change yet as honestly
As ye can; make avoyde manerly
So that no fragment fro your trenchere fall:
Do thus, my child, in chambere & in hall.

¶ And whan a-nother man spekyth at the table,
be ware ye interrupte not his langage,
for that ys a thyng on-comendable,
& yt ys not no signe of folk*is* sage

Digitized by Google

[39]

Lete not your spone / in your disshe stonding
Ne vpon the table / it shold not lye
Lete your trenchour / be clene for ony thing
And yf ye haue chañge / yet as honestly
As ye can / make a voyde manerly
So that no fragment / fro your trencher falle
Do thus my childe / in chambre & in halle

Don't leave your spoon in your dish or on the table. Keep your trencher clean.

[40]

And whan another man / spekith atte table
Beware ye enterrupte not / his langage
For that is a thinge discomendable
Ande it is no signe of folkes sage
To be of langage / besy ande outrage
For the wyse man saide / in his sentence
He sholde be wyse / that gyueth audience

[Leaf 7 b.] Don't interrupt man in his talk.

[41]

Vnderstonde therfore or than ye speke
Prynte in your mynde / clerly the sentence
Who that vsith / a mannes tale to breke
Letteth vncurteysly / alle the audyence
Ande hurteth hym self / for lack of science
He may not gyue answere conuenyente
That herith not fynally / what is mente

Before you speak, settle in your mind what you have to say.

[Hill's Text.]

To be of langage besy & owtrage ;
ffor the wyse sayd in his sentence
'he shuld be hold [& be wyse][1] that gevyth
audyence.'

[1 In a later hand, above the line.]

[ff C lxiij.]

¶ Vnd*er*stond *ther*for or than ye speke ;
prynt in yo*ur* mynde clerly *th*e sentence ;
who that vsyth a m*a*nys tale to breke,
lettyth vncurteysly all the audyence
And hurteth hy*m* self for lake of scyence ;
he maye not geve answere co*n*venyente that heryth not fynally what ys mente.

Digitized by Google

[42]

Be ware Also, my childe, of rehersaille
Of materis whiche ben at the table mevide;
Hit grevith ofte and dothe men disavaylle,
Full many a man that vice hath mysschevide,
Of evill thyng saide is wors often contrivide;
Suche reportis alway loke ye esschewe,
As may of olde frendis make enemyes newe.

[43]

Avise you well whan ye take youre disporte,
Honest games that ye haunte and vse,
And suche as ben of violente reporte,
I counsell you, my childe, that ye refuse;
For trustith well ye shall nout you excuse
From berchely fest, yef I may you aspie
Playng at [1] eny game of rebaudie.

[1] MS. or.

[44]

Itt is to A goodly childe well syttyng,
To vse disportis of myrth and plesaunce,
To harpe and lute, or lustely to syng,
And in the pres ryght manerly to daunce;
When men se A childe of suche gouernaunce,
They seyn, 'gladde may this [childes] frendis be
To haue a sone soo manerly as he.'

[Hill's Text.]

¶ But beware, my child, also of rehersayle
Off maters whiche be at the table meved;
It greweth [1] ofte, & doth men dysavayle;
ffull many a man that vyce hathe myscheved;
Off evyll thynke sayd, ys worse *con*tryved;
Suche reportes alwaye, my child, eschewe,
As may of olde frend*is* make enmyes newe.

[1] The line is over the th.

¶ Avyse you well whan ye take your dysporte, honeste games that ye hawnt & vse;
& suche as bene of vyleyns report,
I cownsell you, my child, that ye refuse;

Digitized by Google

[42]

But beware my childe / also of rehersaylle
Of maters / whiche ben atte table meuide
It greuith ofte / andé doth men disauayle
Ful many a man / þ^t vice hath myscheuide
Of euyl thingé saidé / is werse contryuidé
Suche reportis / alway my childé eschewe
As may of olde frendis / make enemyes newe

Don't repeat what you hear at table.

[43]

Aduise you wel whan ye take your disporte
Honest games / that ye haunte andé vse
And suche as ben of vylayns reporte
I counceyl you my chyld / that ye refuse
For truste ye wel / ye shal you not excuse
From brecheles feste / and I may you espye
Playngé at ony game of Rybawdrye

[Leaf 8 a.]
Play only at proper games.

[44]

It is to a godly chyld wel syttyngé
To vse disportes of myrthe & plesañce
To harpe or lute / or lustely to synge
Or in the prees right manerly to daunce
Whan men se a chyld of suche gouernance
They saye / glad may this chyldis frendis be
To haue a chylde / so manerly as is he

You should harp, lute, sing, or dance.

[Hall's Text.]

ffor truste ye well ye shall you not excuse
ffrom brecheles feste, & I may you espye
Playenge at any game of rebawdrye.

¶ Ytt ys to a goodly child well syttyng
To vse dysportes of myrth & plesavnce, to harpe, to lute, or lustyly to synge,
Or in the prees right manerly to davnce.
whan men se a child of suche governavnce, thei saye, 'glade may *th*is child*is* frendys be
To haue a child so manerly as ys he.'

Digitized by Google

[45]

Exersice ycure-selfe also in redyng
Of bokys enournede wyth eloquence;
Ther shall ye fynde both plesaunce and lernyng, 311
And so ye may in euery good presence
Some [what] fynde and see as in sentence,
That shall accorde the tyme to ocupie,
That ye not nede to stondyn idelie. 315

[46]

Itt[1] is fare to be cominycatyfe [1 MS. Hit.
In matires vnto purpoos according,
So that a wight sume not excessyfe, 318
For trusteth well, hit is tedious thyng
For to here a childe multiplie talkyng,
Yif hit be not to the purpose applied,
And also wyth goodly termys aleyde. 322

[47]

Redith Gower in his writyng moralle,
That auñcient faders memorie,
Redith his bokis clepide 'confessionalle,' 325
Wyth many anodir vertuous tretie,
Full of sentence sette so frutuously,
That them to rede shall yeue you corage,
So is he fulle of sentence and langage. 329

¶ Excersyse also your selfe in redyng [Hill's Text.]
Off bokes enorned with eloquence, ther shall ye fynde both plesyre & lernynge,
312 so that ye may in euery good presence
Some-what fynde as in sentence that shall accorde the tyme to occupye,
That ye not nede to stonde ydellye.

¶ It ys fayer to be comynycatyfe
317 In maters vnto purpose accordyng,
So that a wyghte seme exersyfe;
ffor trustyth well yt ys a tedyovs thyng

Digitized by Google

[45]

Excersise your self also in redynge
Of bookes enornede with eloquence
Ther shal ye fynde / bothe plesir & lernynge
So that ye may / in euery good presence
Somwhat fynde / as in sentence
That shal acorde / the tyme to ocupy
That ye not nede / to stonden ydelly

Practise reading of eloquent books.

[46]

It is fayr / for to be comynycatyf
In maters vnto purpose acordynge
So that a wyght seme excersyf
For trusteth wel / it is a tedyous thynge
For to here a chylde / multeplye talkyng
Yf it be not to the purpose applyede
Ande also with / goodly termys alyede

[Leaf 8 b.]
It is right to talk pertinently, but a bore if the talk is irrelevant.

[47]

Redeth gower in his wrytynge moralle
That auncyent[1] fader of memorye
Redeth his bookes / callede confessionalle
With many another vertuous trayttye
Ful of sentence / set ful fructuosly
That hym to rede / shal gyue you corage
He is so ful of fruyt. sentence and langage

Read Gower's

1 Orig. anucyent.

Confessio Amentis,

[Hill's Text.]

ffor to here a child multyply talkyng yf yt be not to the purpose applyed,
& also w*ith* goodly termes alyed.

¶ Redyth gover in his wrytyng moralt,
That Auncyente ffader of memorye,
Redyth his bookes called *con*fessyonalt,
w*ith* many a-nothere vertuvs tretye
ffult of sentence sett fult fructvously,
That hy*m* to rede shalt geve you covrage,
he ys so fult of frute, *sen*tence, & langage.

Digitized by Google

[48]

O Fader and Founder of eternate eloquence,
That eluminede all this oure britaigne;
To sone we lost his lauriate presence,
O lusty licoure of that fulsome fountaigne;
Cursed deth, why hast thou this poete slayne,
I mene Fadir chaucers, mastir Galfride?
Allas! the while, that euer he from vs diede.

[49]

Redith his bokys fulle of all plesaunce,
Clere in sentence, in longage excellent,
Brefly to wryte suche was his suffesaunce,
What-euer to sey he toke in his entent,
His longage was so feyre and pertinent,
That semed vnto mennys heryng,
Not[1] only the worde, but verrely the thing.

[1] MS. But.

[50]

Redith, my child, redith his warkys all,
Refuseth non, they ben expedient;
Sentence or langage, or both, fynde ye shall
Full delectable, for that fader ment
Of all his purpos and his hole entent
Howe to plese in euery audience,
And in oure toung was well of eloquence.

[Hill's Text.]
[ffl C lxiij back.]

¶ O fader & fownder of ornate eloquence that Illumyned hast all owre bretayne!
To sone we loste thy lavreat science,
O lusty lyqvovre of that fulsum fontayne!
O cursed deth! why hast thou that poete slayne,
I mene fader chavucer, mayster galfryde?
Alas the while that ever he from vs dyed!

¶ Redyth his werkes full of plesavnce,
Clere in sentence, In langage excellente:
Bryefly to wryte, such was his suffysavnce,
What-evere to say he toke in his entente,

Digitized by Google

[48]

O fader and founder of ornate eloquence — and the Father and Founder of Eloquence,
That enlumened hast alle our bretayne
To soone we loste / thy laureate scyence — [Leaf 163, back.]
O lusty lyquour / of that fulsom fontayne
O cursid deth / why hast thou þ^t poete slayne
I mene fader chaucer / maister galfryde — mayster Galfryde Chawcer, Alas the whyle / that euer he from vs dyde

[49]

Redith his werkis / ful of plesaunce — [Leaf 9 a.] whose works are full of pleasaunce, Clere in sentence / in langage excellent
Briefly to wryte / suche was his suffysañce
What euer to saye / he toke in his entente
His langage was so fayr and pertynente — whose language
It semeth vnto mannys heerynge — seems not only words, but truly
Not only the worde / but verely the thynge — things.

[50]

Redeth my chylde / redeth his bookes alle — Read all his books; refuse none:
Refuseth none / they ben expedyente
Sentence or langage / or bothe fynde ye shalle
Ful delectable / for that good fader mente — he is delightful.
Of al his purpose / and his hole entente
How to plese in euery audyence
And in our tunge / was welle of eloquence

[Hill's Text.]

his langage was so fayere & pertynente,
yt semeth vnto manys heryng
Not only the worde, but veryly the thyng.

¶ Redyth, my child, redyth his bookes all,
Refusith Non, they ben expedyente;
sentence or langage, both fynd ye shall;
full delectable that good fader mente, for all his purpose & his hole entente
[was] how to please in euery audyence,
& In owre tonge was well of Eloquence.

Digitized by Google

[51]

Beholde Oclyff in his translacion,
In goodly langage and sentence passing wyse,
Yevyng the prince suche exortacion
As to his highnesse he coude best devyse.
Of trouth, peace, of mercy, and of Iustice,
And odir vertuys, sparing for no slouthe
To don his devere, and quiten hym, as trouth

[52]

Required hym, anenste his souereyne,
Most dradde and louyd, whos excellent highnesse
He aduertysede by his writing playne,
To vertue perteynyng to the nobles
Of a prince, and berith wyttenesse
His trety entitlede 'of regyment,' Compyled of most entier true entent.

[53]

Loketh Also vppon dan Iohn lidgate,
My mastire, whilome clepid monke of bury,
Worthy to be renownede laureate,
I pray to gode, in blis his soule be mery,
Synging 'Rex Splendens,' the heuenly 'kery,'
Among the muses ix celestiall,
Afore the hieghest Iubiter of all.

¶ Behold Ocklyf in his transslacion,[1] [Hill's Text.] [1 translacion]
In goodly langage & sentence passyng wyse
howe he gewyth his prince such exortacion
As to the hyeste he covld best devyse
Off trowth / pees / mercy / & Iustyse,
& vertu, lettyng for no slowth
To do his devoyre & qvyte hym his trowth.

¶ Requyre hym As Agaynst his soverayne, moste Drade & loved, whose excellent hyenes
he advertysed by his wrytyng playne
To vertu aperteynyng to nobles

Digitized by Google

[51]

Beholde Ocklyf in his translacion — Read Occlevetoo,
In goodly langage / & sentence passyng wyse
How he gyueth his prynce / suche exortacion — 353 who gave his Prince such wise advice
As to the hyest / he coude best deuyse
Of trouthe. pees. mercy. and Iustise
And vertues / leetyng for no slouthe
To do his deuoir & quite him of his trouthe — 357

[52]

Requirede hym / as ayenst his souerayne — [Leaf 9 b.]
Most drade & louyde / wos excellent hyeues
He aduertysede / by his wrytynge playne — 360
To vertu / apperteynyng to nobles
Of a prynce / as bereth goode witnes
His traytye / entitlede of regymente — in his treatise De Regimine Principum.
Compylede of entyer trewe entente — 364

[53]

Loke also / vpon dan Iohn lydgate — John Lydgate, too, my master.
My maister whylome / monke of berye
Worthy to be renomede / as poete laureate — 367
I praye to gode in blysse his soule be mercy — (I pray God his soul is singing Rex splendens
Syngynge Rex splendens that heuenly kyrye
Amonge the muses nyne celestyalle
Byfore the hyest Iubyter of alle — 371

[Hill's Text.]

Off a prince, as beryth̃ god wytnes, hys treatye entytled of regemente,
364 Compyled of entyer trewe entente.

¶ Loke also than vpon Iohan lydgate,
My mayrster, whylom monke of bury,
worthy to be renomed As poete lavreate;
368 I pray to god in blysse his sowle be mery,
Syngyng / Rex splendens / that hevenly Kyrye, Amonge the mvses nyne celestyaĺt be-fore the hyghest Iubyter of aĺt,

Digitized by Google

[54]

I not why deth my mastire dide envie,
But for he shulde chaunge his habite;
Pety hit is that suche a man shulde die!
But nowe I trist he be a carmylite;
His amyse blacke is chaunged into white,
Among the muses ix celestiall,
Afore the hieghest Iubiter of all;

[55]

Passing the muses all of elicone,
Where is ynympariable of Armonye,
Thedir I trist my mastir-is soule is gone,
The sterrede palays aboue dapplede skye,
Ther to syng 'sanctus' incessantly
Among the muses ix celestiall,
Affore the highest Iubiter of all.

[56]

Redith is volumes that ben so large and wyde,
Souereynly sitte in sadnesse of sentence,
Elumynede wyth colouris fresshe on euery syde,
Hit passith my wytte, I haue no eloquence
To yeue hym lawde aftir his excellence,
For I dare say he lefte hym not on lyue,
That coude his cunnyng suffisantly discreue.

---

372 [Omitted. See Preface, p. ii.] [Hill's Text.]

376

¶ Passyng the mvses nyne of elycon,
380 Wher ys no pareyll of Armonye;
Thyder I trust my Maysters sowle be gon,
The sterred paleys above the dappled skye,

Digitized by Google

[54]

[Omitted. See Preface, p. ii.]

374

378

[55]

Passynge the muses nyne of Elycoñ
Where is non pareyl of armonye
Thider I truste my meistres soule begone
The sterride paleys / aboue the dapplyd skye
There to synge sanctus incessantly
Amonge the muses ix celestyalle
Byfore the hyest / Iubiter of alle

381 in the starred palace above the dappled sky, before the 385 highest Jupiter of all.)

[56]

Redeth his volumes / that ben large & wyde
Seueryly set / in sadnes of sentence
Enlumyned with colours fressh on euery side
Me lacketh witte / I haue none eloquence
To gyue hym lawde / after his excellence
For I dar saye / he lefte hym not a lyue
That coude his connyng / sufficiently discriue

[Leaf 10 a.] Read his large volumes

388 illuminated with fresh colours.

392

Ther to syng sanctus insessavntly Hill's Text.]
384 Emonge the mvses nyne celestyall,
Before the hyeste Iubyter of all.

¶ Redyth hys volumes that be large & wyde,
Severyly sette in sadnes of sentence,
388 Enlumined with colovres fresshe on eu*e*ry side. [ff C lxiiij.]
Me lakketh wytt, I haue non eloquence,
To geve hy*m* lawde after his excellence,
ffor I dare saye he lefte hy*m* not alyve
392 That covde his cu*n*yng ssufficiently discryve.

Digitized by Google

[57]

But his werkys his laude moste nede conquere,
He may neuer oute of remembrance die,
His werkys shall his [name[1]] conuey and bere
Aboute the world all-most eternallie;
Lette his owne werkys prayse hym and magnifie;
I dare not preyse, for fere that I offende,
My lewde langage shuld rather appeyre than amend.

[1] MS. here repeats werkys.

[58]

Lo, my childe, thes good faders Auñcient
Repide the feldis fresshe of fulsumnesse,
The floures feyre they gadderid vp and hent,
Of siluereus langage the tresoure and richesse;
Who wolle hit haue, my litle childe, doutelesse
Must of hem begge, ther is no more to say,
For of oure toung they were bothe locke and key.

[59]

There can no man there fames nowe disteyne,
Thanbawmede toung and aureate sentence,
Men gette hit nowe by cantelmele, and gleyne
Here and there wyth besy diligence,
And fayne wolde riche the crafte of eloquence;
But be the glaynes is hit often sene,
In whois feldis they glayned haue and bene.

¶ But his werkes his lavde must nede conquere; [Hill's Text.]
thei may never owt of remembravnce dye;
hys werkes shall his name conveye & bere
Abowte the world almoste eternelly.
lete his owne werk*is* pr*ay*se hym, & magnyfye;
I dare not pr*ay*se, leest for fere I offende;
My langage shuld rathere apayere than amend.

¶ Loo, my child, this faders avncyente
Repen the fyldes ffresshe of fulsomnes;
the flowres fresshe thei gadered vp, & hente.
Off syluer langage the greate ryches

Digitized by Google

[57]

But his werkis / his laude / must nede conquere — His works
They may neuer / out of remembraunce dye
His werkis shal his name conueye & bere — shall bear his name about the world almost eternally.
Aboute the worlde / almost eternely
Lete his owen werkis preyse hym & magnefie
I dar not preyse / for fere lest I offende
My langage / shold rather apeyre than amende

[58]

[Leaf 10 b.]
Loo my childe / these faders auncyente — These ancient fathers reaped the fields,
Repen the feldes fresshe of fulsomnes
The flours fresh they gadred vp & hente — and gathered the flowers.
Of siluer langage / the grete riches — He who wants silver words must beg of them.
Who wil it haue my lityl childe doutles
Muste of hem begge / ther is no more to saye
For of our tunge / they were both lok & kaye

[59]

Ther can nomañ now her werkis disteyne
The enbamed tunge / and aureate sentence
Men gete it now / by cantelmele & gleyne — Now we only glean,
Here and there by besy diligence
And fayne wold reche / her craft of eloquence — and by the gleaning one sees
And by the gleyne / it is ful oft sene — in whose fields the
In whos felde / the gleyners haue bene — gleaners have been.

---

404 who wiłł yt haue, my child, dowtles — [Hill's Text.]
Muste of them bege: there ys no more to saye, ffor of owre tonge thei were both loke & keye;

¶ Ther can no man ther werkes dysteyne:
408 The enbamed tonge & avreat sentence,
Men gete yt now by cantelmele, & glene
here & there by besy delygence,
& fayne wold reche ther crafte of eloqvence;
412 & by the gleyne ytt ys fułł ofte sene
In whose fylde the gleners haue bene.

Digitized by Google

[60]

As vnto me Age hath bede good morowe,
I am not able clenly for to gleyne,
Nature is feyne of crafte here eien to borowe,
Me fayleth clerenesse of myn eien tweyne;
Begge I may, I can no gleyn certeyn,
Ther-for that werke I wolle playnly remytte
To folke yong, more persaunt clere of wytte.

[61]

And syke also, and in case ye fynde
Suche gleynes fresch as hath some apparence
Of fayre langage, yet take them and vnbynde,
And preueth what they beth in existence,
Coloured in langage, savory in sentence,
And dou[te]th not, my childe, wythoute drede,
Hit woll profite such thyng to se and rede.

[62]

Yit eft-sonnys, my childe, let vs resorte
To the intente of oure fyrst matiere
Digresside, somwhat fulle we wolld reporte,
And reuyue the lawde of them that were
Founders of oure langage, thilke fadyrs dere,
Who-is soulis god [aboue] in b[l]esse inhaunce
That lusten so oure langage to Avaunce.

¶ And vnto my age bot good morowe [Hall's Text.]
I am not able clerly for to gleyne,
Nature ys fayne of crafte her eyen to borow;
Me lakketh clernes of myne eyen twayne;
Begge I may / gleyne I may not *cer*teyne;
*ther*fore that werke I will playnly remytte
To folk*is* yong, more passyng clere of wyte.

¶ Seche ye *ther*fore, & in caas ye fynde suche glenars fresshe as haue su*m* apparens
Off fayer lan*g*age, yet take the*m*, & vnbynde, & preve ye what *the*i be in existence

[60]

And vnto me / age hath bode good morowe
I am not able clenly / for to gleyne — I cannot glean,
Nature is fayn̄ of craft / her eyen to borowe
Me lacketh clerenes / of myn eyen tweyne
Begge I maye / gleyne I can not certeyne — I can only beg:
Therfore þ^t^ werck / I wil playnly remytte
To folkis yong / more passyng clere of witte — gleaning I give up to younger folks.

[61]

Seche ye therfore / and in caas ye fynde — If you find such gleaners,
Such gleynors fressh as haue som̄ apparence
Of fayr langage / yet take hem & vnbynde — unbind their sheaves:
And preue ye / what they be in existence
Colourd in langage / sauerly in sentence — their fair speech
And doubte not my childe / withoute drede
It wil prouffite to see suche thingis & red[e][1] — will profit you.

[62]

Yet eft sones my childe / lete vs resorte — [Leaf 11 a.] But let us return to our first subject.
To thentente of yur first matere
Degressed somwhat / for we wold reporte
And reuiue the laude of hem that were Famous in our langage / these faders dere
Whos sowles in blysse / god eternel auaunce
That lysten so our langage to enhaunce

[1] A hole in the paper.

Colovred in langage, saverly in sentence, — [Hill's Text.] & dowte not, my child, w*ith*-owt drede yt wiłł profet to se such thyng*is*, & rede.

¶ Ye, efte-soones, my child, let vs resorte
To the yntent of yo*ur* fyrst matere
Degressed somwhat, for we wolde reporte & revyue the lawde of them that were famovs in owr*e* langage, thise faders dere whos[1] sowles in blis, god et*er*nałł avaunce, — [1] The s is by a later hand.
that lysten sone owr*e* langage to enhavnce!

Digitized by Google

[63]

Than, litle childe, I councelle you that ye
Take hede vnto the norture that men vse,
Newe founden or Auncient whet[h]er hit be,
So shall no man youre curteyse refuse;
The guise and custome shall you, my childe, excuse;
Mennys werkys haue often entirchaunge,
That nowe is norture, sumtyme had ben full straunge.

[64]

Thinges whilome vside ben layde aside,
And new fetis dayly ben contryvyde,
Men[nys actes] can in no plight abyde,
They ben chaungeable and oft mevide,
Thing some-tyme alowide is nowe reprevide,
And aftir this shall thingis vppe aryse,
That men sette nowe but [at] litle a prise.

[65]

Thus mene I, my childe, that ye shull vse and haunte
The guise of them that don most manerly,
But be ware of vnthrefte ruskyn galaunte,
Counterfetoure vncunnyng of curtesie,
His tecches ben infecte wyth vilonye,
Vngerde, vnblesside, seruyng at the table,
Me semeth hym seruaunt full pendable.

¶ Then litiłł Iohñ, I consayle you that ye [Hill's Text.]
Take hede to the nortvres that men vse, [fl. C lxiiij back.]
newe fownd or avncyent, whether yt be;
So shałł no man your curtesye refuse;
the gyse & custum, my child, shałł you excuse.
Menys werkes haue oftyn enterchavnce;
that nowys norture, somtyme hath be stravnge;

¶ Thyngis whylom vsed be now layd a-syde,
& newe fetes dayly be contryved:
Menys actes can in no plyte abyde,
They be chavngable & ofte meved;

Digitized by Google

[63]

Thenne lityl Iohn / I counceyl you that ye — Little Jack, Take hede to the norture / that men vse — take heed to the Newe founde / or auncyent whether it be — manners of your time,
So shal no man / your curtoisye refuse
The guyse & custom / my child shal you excuse
Mennys werkis / haue often enterchañge — for customs change,
That nowe is norture / somtyme had be strañge

[64]

Thingis whilom vsed / ben now leyd a syde
And newe feetis / dayly ben contreuide — new ways are invented every Mennys actes / can in no plyte abyde — day,
They be changeable ande ofte meuide
Thingis somtyme alowed / is now repreuid
And after this / shal thinges vp aryse — and will be hereafter.
That men set now / but at lytyl pryse

[65]

This mene I my childe / þt ye shal haunte — [Leaf 11 b.]
The guyse of them / that do most manerly — Imitate the well-mannered, and
But beware of vnthryft Ruskyn galañte — beware of ruskyn gallants
Counterfeter of vnconnyng curtoisye
His tacchis ben enfecte with vilonye — of bad habits,
Vngyrte. vnblyssed. seruyng atte table — serving ungirt,
Me semeth hym a seruañt nothing able

---

thynges sumtyme alowed be now repreved ; — [Hill's Text.]
& after this shall thynges vp a-ryse that men sett now but at lytill pryse :

¶ This mene I, my child, that ye shall havnte the gyse of them that do most manerly ;
but be ware of onthryft [1] ruskyn gallavnte, — [1] A later hand has added y.
Conterfetter [2] of vnconnyng curtessy, — [2] The r is by a later hand.
hys taches ben enfecte with vylonye ;
Vngerte / vnblessed / servyng at table,
Me semeth hym a servavnte no thyng able ;

Digitized by Google

[66]

Wynter ne somer to his souerayne
Chappron hardy no bonet lust avale,
For euery worde yeuyng his maister tweyne,
Vaunparlere in euery mannes tale,
Absolon wyth the disculede heres smalle;
Lyke to A presener of seint Malouse,
A sonny bush myght cause hym to goo louse.

[67]

O I passe norture! fy! fy! for schame!
I shuld haue seide he myght go hauke and hunt,
For that schuld be A gentilmannys game,
To suche disportis thes gentis folkys be wounte;
I seide to ferre, my langage was to blounte,
But of this galaunte, loo! loke a while & fele,
He feccheth his compace whan he shall bowe or knele,

[68]

Braced so straytly th[at h]e [1] may not plie,
But gaderith hit in by maner of wyndlese,
And ȝif he wrenche aside or lytil wrye,
His gere stonte all in pertous [2] case,
The scho, the hose, the point, doublet, and lace;
And if ought breke, somme thinges [3] that ben badde
Shall sey anon, 'a knaue hath broke a ladde.'

[1] MS. the.

[2] Read perlous?

[3] Read tounges.

¶ Wynter & somer to his soverayne [Hill's Text.]
Capron hardy, no bonet lyst to avayle,
For euery worde geveyng his mayster twayne,
avavntparler In euery manys tale,
Absolon with disheveld heres smale,
lyke to a prysoner of saynt malowes,
A sonny busshe able to the galowes.

¶ O! I passe nortvre! fy, fy, for sham!
I myght haue said he shuld go havke & honte,
ffor that shuld be a gentylman[i]s game,
To suche dysport*is* gentill folk*is* be wonte;

Digitized by Google

[66]

Wynter and somer to his souereyne
Capron hardy / no bonet lyste to auale — not doffing his cap to his master,
For euery word / gyuing his maister tweyne
Auauntparler / in euery mannys tale — forward in speech,
Absolon with disheueld heeris smale — rough-haired,
Lyke to a prysoner of seynt malowis — and lousy-headed,
A sonny busshe / able to go to the galowis

[67]

O I passe norture fy fy for shame — (though it's hardly good manners to say so.)
I myght haue said he shold go hauke & honte
For that shold be a gentilmans game
To such disportes / gentil folkes be wonte
I sayd to ferre / my langage was to blonte
But yet sir galante whan ye shal bowe or knele — When he tries to kneel, he works
He goth by compace round as doth a whele — round like a wheel,

[68]

Braced so strayt / that he may not plye — [Leaf 12 a.]
But gaderith it / by maner of a wyndelas — being braced so tight that he can't bend.
And he ought wrenche a syde / or a litil wrie — If he twists, a
His geer stondeth thenne / in ful parlous caas — lace is like to crack.
His sho / his hose / doblet / point & laas
And yf ought breke / somme tunges þt be bade
Wil mocke & saie / a knaue hath broke a lad

[Hill's Text.]

I sayd to ferre, my langage was but blonte ;
but yet, sir gallavnt, whan ye shall bowe or knele
he goth by compasse rovnd as doth a whele.

¶ Brased so streyte þat he may not plye,
but gaderyth yt by manere of a wyndlas ;
& he awght wrench a-side, or a litill wrye,
hys gere stondyth them in full parlovs caas,
hys sho // his hose / doblet, poynt & laas ;
& yff owght breke, sum tonges that be bade will moke & say, "A knave hath broke a lade."

Digitized by Google

[69]

Lat galaunte go, I mene, recheles ruskyn ;
Take hede, my childe, to suche as ben cunnyng,
So shall ye wyrship best conquere and wynne,
Enforsith you in all youre demenyng
To sewe vertu, and[1] from foly declynyng ;
And, my childe, that ye loue of honeste,
Which is accordyng wyth humanyte.

[1] Omit and.

[70]

That is, to you to vndirstond And knowe,
That youre aray be manerly and resonable,
Not appeissh knawen[2] and to mowe,
I[n] nyse aray that is not couenable,
Fetis founde be folkys vnprofitable,
That maketh this worlde so pleynly transformate,
That men semen almost effeminate.

[2] Sic.

[71]

Pley not Iakke mAlaperte, that is to sey,
Be ware of presumpcioun, be ware of pride,
Take not the fyrst place, my childe, be no way,
Till odir be sette manerly abyde,
Presomcion is often sette asyde,
And Avalith f[r]om his highe[3] de-gre,
And he sette vppe that hath humanite.

[3] MS. hight.

¶ Lete gallant go ! I mene, recheles ruskyn : [Hill's Text.]
Take hede my child to suche as be connyng, so shall ye best worship conqvere & wynne ;
Enforce you in all your demenyng
To folowe vertu, & fro foly declynnyng ;
& weyte well that ye love honeste which ys accordyng vnto humanyte.

¶ That ys for you to vnderstond & knowe,
that your araye be manerly resonable,
Not apysshe vnto moke ne to mowe ;
To nyce araye that ys not commendable,

[Thū 1503 per Richard hill ‖ fl C lxv]

Digitized by Google

[69]

Lete galante go / I mene recheles ruskyñ
Take hede my chyld to suche as be connyng
So shal ye best worship conquere & wynne
Enforce you in al your demenynge
To folowe vertu / & fro folye declynynge
And waite wel that ye loue honeste
Whiche is acordynge [1] vnto humanyte

Let Reckless Ruskyn go! You follow skilful men, virtue and honesty.

[70]

That is for you / to vnderstonde & knowe
That your araye / be manerly resonable
Not apysshe / on to mocken ne to mowe
To nyce araye / that is not commendable
Fetis newe founden [2] by foolis vnprouffitable
That make þe world so plainly transformate
That men semen almoste enfemynate

[Leaf 12 b.]
Don't dress apishly or foppishly.

[71]

Playe not Iack malapert / that is to saye
Beware of presumpcion / beware of pryde [3]
Take not þe first place my child by the waye
Tyl other be sette / right manerly abyde
Presumptuous ben often set a syde.
Ande alleday aualyde / as men may see
And he is sette vp / that hath humylyte

Don't play Jack Malapert, that is, don't be presumptuous. Wait till others are seated.

[1] Orig. accrdynge. [2] Orig. fonuden. [3] Orig. pryte.

---

488 ffetys, newe fonden by foolis vnprofytable, that make the worlde so playnly transformate that men semen Almost enfemynate. [Hill's Text.]

¶ Playe not Iacke maleperte, that ys to say,
492 be ware of presumpcion, be ware of pryde;
take not the first place, my child, by the waye;
tiłł oder be sette, ryght manerly a-byde,
presumtvous be ofte sette a-syde
496 & alł day avaled, as men may see,
& he ys sette vp that hathñ humylyte.

Digitized by Google

[72]

To[1] cunnyng persones regarde ye take, [1] MS. The.
Where ye be sette in right atentif wyse,
Connyng folke cunnyng folke shulde make,
To theire goodnesse ye shalle make youre summise,
And as thei do, ye mosten deuyse;
For this, my childe, is as the gospell treue,
Whoo wolle be cunnyng muste the cunnyng sewe.

[73]

And o thing I charge you speciall[ie],
To womanhode good kepe you take alway,
And them to serue loke that ye haue an eie,
Ther comaundementis, my childe, loke ye obey,
Plesaunt wordis to them I warne you saye,
And in all wyse do youre dilligence,
To do them plesure, honoure, and reuerence.

[74]

As at this tyme this tretice shall suffice,
Disposeth you to kepe in youre mynde
The doctrines whiche for you I deuyse,
And douteth not, fulle welle ye shall hit fynde;
To youre honoure enrolle hit vp and bynde
Ryght in youre brest, and in youre ryper age
I shall wryten you here-of the surplusage.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ To connyng persones regarde ye take,
wher ye be sette, right in ententyf wyse;
Connyng folke connyng men shall make;
to ther connyng ye shall make your surmyse,
& as thei do, ye must your selfe devyse;
ffor this, my child, ys as the gospell trewe,
'who will be connyng, he must connyng sewe.'

¶ And on thyng I warne you specyally:
to woman*h*ede take awe alway,
& them to serve loke ye haue an eye,
& ther comavndment*is that* ye obeye;

Digitized by Google

[72]

To connynde persoñs regarde ye take
Where ye be sette / right in ententyf wyse Connyng folk / connyng men shal make
To their connyng ye shal make your surmise
And as they do / ye muste your self deuyse
For this my childe / is as the gospel trewe
Who wil be connyng / he must þe connyng sewe

Watch knowing folk, and their skill.

[73]

And one thing / I warne you specyally
To womanhede / take awe alweye
And them to serue / loke ye haue an eye
And theire commandementis that ye obeye
Plesant wordes I auyse you to them seye
And in alle wyse / do ye your diligence
To do them plesure / and reuerence

Specially attend to women, and speak pleasant words to them.

[74]

And at this tyme this tretye shal suffise
Dispose you / to kepe it in your mynde
The doctrine whiche for you I deuyse
And doubteth not / ful wel ye shal it finde
To your honour / enrolle it vp and bynde
Right in your breste / and at your riper age
I shal wryte to you / herof the surplusage

This is enough for the present. Mind you attend to it, and when you're older I'll write you the rest.

Plesaunt wordis I avyse you to them saye, [Hill's Text.]
& in all wyse do ye your delygence
To do them plesyre and reverence.

¶ And at this tyme this treatise shall suffice;
Do pose you to kepe it in your mynde,
the doctryne which for you I devyse;
& dowteth not, full well ye shall yt fynde
To your honowre; enrolle yt vp & bynde
Right in your brest, & at your ryper age
I shall write you here-of the surplusage.

Digitized by Google

[75]

Goo, litle childe, and who doth you Appose,
Seying, youre quaire kepeth non accordaunce,
Tell [hym], as yite neyther of ryme ne prose
Ye be experte; pray hym of sufferaunce;
Childer must be of childly gouernaunce,
And they must also entredet [1] be
Wyth esy thyng, [and not] of subtilte.

[1] Read entreted.

[76]

Youre lytil quaier sum*m*itteth euery where
To corecc*i*on and beneuolence,
But where enuie is, loke hit come not there,
For eny thing kepith youre trety thense;
Enuie is full of frowarde reprehense,
And howe to hurte liethe eu*e*re in awayte,
Kepeth youre quaiere, that hit be not her baite.

EXPLICIT.

DOMINE, SALUUM FAC REGEM.

[Hill's Text.]

¶ Go, litiłł Iohn̄, & who doth you oppose, sayenge yo*u*r quayre, kepeth no*n* accordavnce;
Tełł hy*m* as ȝet neythere in ryme ne p*ro*se ye ben exp*er*te; p*ra*y hy*m* of suffraunce.
Chyldren [1] muste be of childy gou*er*navnce,
& also thei muste entreted be
W*ith* easy thynge, & not w*ith* subtilte.

[1] MS. Clyldren.

Digitized by Google

[75]

Go lytyl Iohn / and who doth you appose — Whoever questions you, Sayng your quayer / kepe non accordance
Telle hym as yet / neyther in ryme ne prose — say you are not yet up in rime or prose.
Ye ben expert / praye hym of suffrañce
Chyldren muste be / of chyldly gouernañce
And also they muste entretyde be
With esy thing / and not with subtylte

[76]

Go lytil quayer / submytte you euery where — Little book, I submit you to correction:
Vnder correction of benyuolence
And where enuye is / loke ye come not there
For ony thinge / kepe your tretye thens
Enuye is ful of froward reprehens — but go not where envy is.
And how to hurte / lyeth euer in a wayte
Kepe your quayer / that it be not ther bayte

Explicit the book of curtesye.

¶ Go, lytill quayer, submyte you euery where — [Hill's Text.]
vnder correccion of benevolence; & wher envy ys, loke you cum not there,
ffor any thyng kepe your treatye thens;
Envye ys full of froward reprehens,
& how to hurte lyeth ever in a-wayte;
kepe your quayre that yt be not ther bayte.

Here endyth A lytyll treatyse called the boke of curtesy or litill Iohan.

Digitized by Google

INDEX.

H. stands for Hill's MS. at the bottom of the pages, O. for the Oriel MS. on the even pages. Cot. is for Cotgrave's Dictionary.

Absolom with dissheveled hair, l. 460.

Amyse, l. 376, amice. Fr. amict, an Amict or Amice, part of a massing priest's habit. Cot. From L. amicire, to throw round; am and jacere. Mahn.

Annoy no man, l. 170.

Apayer, l. 399 H., appeyre, O., worsen, impair.

Apish, don't let your dress be, l. 486.

Appose, l. 519, question. See Oppose.

Avale, l. 457, lower, take off.

Ave Maria, say, l. 27, 77.

Avoyde, l. 271, emptying.

Austin, St, tells men how to behave at table, l. 158.

Author is old, l. 414-18.

Authors, the right ones to read, l. 323, 335, 351, 365, 393.

Bearing, men praised or blamed for their, l. 153.

Belch not, l. 202.

Beware of ruskyn, l. 451.

Birds and beasts, don't throw stones at, l. 64.

Blow not in your drink, l. 190.

Brecheles, l. 300, without breeches, of flogging.

Breth, l. 203, wind.

Capron, H., chappron, O., l. 457. O. Fr. Chaperon, "habillement de tête." Roquefort. Provençal, capayron, from Lat. caput. Skeat. Chaperon . . any hood, bonnet . . . Vn Chaperon fait à i'en veux, A notable whipster or twigger; a good one I warrant her. Cotgrave. 'Capron hardy' must then be 'a bold or saucy young scamp.'

Cantelmele, l. 409, piecemeal: cantel, a corner, bit.

Chaucer, read his works full of pleasance, l. 335-350.

Chere, l. 131, face, expression on it.

Childly, adj. l. 523, O., childy, H., fitted for children.

Children are like wax, l. 6.

Church, how to behave at, l. 71-98.

Clappe, l. 80, noise.

Claw not your visage, l. 194.

Comb your head, l. 36.

Communicative, be, l. 316.

Digitized by Google

Compace, l. 469. Fr. compas, a compasse, a circle, a round.

Constaunce, l. 102. Fr. constance, stabilitie, firmenesse. Cot.

Couenable, l. 487. Fr. convenable, apt, fit, meet for, beseeming, seemlie, &c. Cot.

Crede, say it, l. 77.

Cross yourself on rising, l. 25.

Cumpenable, l. 151. Fr. compagnable, companable, friendlie, sociable.

Cunning, (knowing) men, take heed to them, l. 478, l. 498-504.

Cup, soil not yours, l. 186.

Dancing, right for a child, l. 305.

Deprave, l. 157, backbite, run down. Fr. despraver, spoyle, marre, make crooked, wrest, wry to bad purposes. Cot.

Detraction, the vice of, l. 163.

Disauayle, l. 290, harm, damage.

Discreue, l. 392, describe.

Disculede, l. 460, O., dissheveled.

Disteyne, l. 407, stain, spot.

Dogs, don't irritate them, l. 67.

Dress, to be manerly, l. 47, 52; to be reasonable, l. 485.

Ears, clean yours, l. 37.

Entredet, l. 524, O., entretyde, H., taught.

Envy, keep clear of, l. 528.

Estate, l. 122, lord noble.

Exercyse, excersyf, l. 318, ? practised, able to handle a subject. Fr. exercer, to handle, manage. Cot.

Eye, cast not yours aside, l. 101.

Face, have no spots on it, l. 38.

Farsyone, l. 186, H., stuffing: farse (or ferce, l. 191), to stuff; farsure, stuffing. Cp. Chaucer's ferthyng, of the Prioress, Prol. Cant. T., and the Oriel text.

Fetis, l. 443, O., fashions. Fr. faict, feat, pranke, part. Cot.

Fewe, l. 171, little, few words.

First place, don't take it, l. 493.

Follow virtue, l. 481.

Founders of our language; revive their praise, l. 431.

Fulsom, l. 257, ? full, satisfied; or helpful, A.S. fylst, help, assistance.

Fulsomnes, l. 401, fulness, plenty. 'Fulnesse or plente (fulsumnesse, K. H. P.) Habundancia, copia.' Promptorium.

Games, play only at proper ones, l. 296.

Girdle, don't loose yours at table, l. 197.

Glaynes, l. 412, O., gleynes, l. 422, O., gleanings. Fr. glane, a gleaning; also the corne thats gleaned or left for the gleaner. Cot.

Gluttonous, don't be, l. 180.

Good cheer, make it serve for a scanty table, l. 253-5.

Gower's moral writings, read them, l. 323; and his Confessio Amantis, l. 325.

Halke, l. 124, generally means corner; A.S. heal, an angle, a corner; but another heal is a hall, place of entertainment, inn, which may be the meaning here.

Hands, wash yours, l. 43; wash 'em clean at table, l. 262-5.

Hanging, the servant that deserves it, st. 65, O.

Harping recommended, l. 304.

Head, don't scratch it at table, l. 194.

Holy water, l. 72.

Digitized by Google

Humanite, l. 497, Fr. humanité, courtesie, ciuilitie, gentlenesse. Cot.

Inhaunce, l. 433, put forward, up. Lat. in antea, Prov. enansar, to advance, exalt. Wedgwood.

Interrupt no man's talk, l. 275, 283.

Is, l. 386, O., his.

Iubiter, l. 371, 378, God.

Jangelynge, l. 80, chattering.

Kery, l. 369, κυριε, Lord, [have mercy upon us!]

Knife, don't put it near your face, l. 192.

Ladde, l. 476, O., lade, H., a thong of leather, a shoe-latchet. Halliwell.

Language, silver, is to be learnt only from our old poets, st. 58, l. 400-6.

Lewed (ignorant), he must be who will not learn, l. 21.

Lips, wipe yours before drinking, l. 186, 189.

Look men, you speak to, in the face, l. 99.

Louse, l. 462, catching lice.

Luting recommended, l. 302.

Lydgate, John, my master, l. 365; read his volumes large and wide, l. 379.

Malapert, Jack, don't play, l. 491. Fr. Müiere, malapert, outrageous, ever doing one mischiefe or other. Marmiton, a saucie, malapert, or knauish fellow. Cot.

Malouse, l. 461, Malo's.

Manner & measure should guide you, l. 125.

Manners make man, l. 238.

Mass, help the priest at, l. 85.

Matins, our Lady's, l. 32.

Mouth, eat with it shut, l. 241.

Multiply talking, don't, l. 320.

Nails, clean yours, l. 44; don't pare them at table, l. 247.

Norture, l. 436, deportment, manners.

Nose, clean it, l. 39; don't pick it, l. 41.

Ocklyf; read his translation of De Regimine Principum, l, 351-64.

Oppose, l. 518, 'I oppose one, I make a tryall of his lernyng, or I laye a thyng to his charge, ie appose.' Palsgrave. See Towneley Mysteries, pp. 193-95. Way, in Promptorium. We may bi oure law examyne hym fyrst . . .
. . let me oppose hym . . .
T. Myst, p. 195.

Outrage, l. 278, outrageous, beyond bounds, too talkative. See Malapert.

Owers, l. 34, see pryme.

Pater noster, say yours, l. 26, 77.

Pendable, l. 455, O., Fr. pendable, hangable, that deserves hanging, thats fit to be hanged. Cot.

Poor table, men to be cheerful at, l. 258.

Presumption, beware of, l. 492.

Pride, beware of, l. 492.

Print your words in your mind before you speak them, l. 282.

Pryme & owers, l. 34. 'The prime and other hours are the services Ad primam horam, Ad tertiam, Ad sextam, and Ad nonam, found in the Primer, or layman's prayer-book. They are sometimes called the middle hours, as distinguished from Matins and Vespers.' H. Bradshaw.

Digitized by Google

Quaire, l. 520, 526, 532, quire, pamphlet, treatise.

Ravenous, don't be, l. 176.

Read eloquent books, l. 310.

Rehersaylle, l. 288, rehearsal, repetition.

Repeat conversations, don't, l. 288.

Report (tale-telling) is the chief nurse of mischief, l. 135.

Reward, l. 127, look at, watch.

Rising, what to do on, l. 23.

Secret, keep what you hear, l. 134.

Sewe, l. 481, follow, pursue.

Silence, keep, l. 140; in hall, l. 204.

Siluerous, l. 403, O., silvern.

Singing lustily is good for a child, l. 304.

Speak fair to folks, l. 60.

Speaking, the conditions to be observed in, l. 143.

Spoon, don't put it in your dish or on the table, l. 267.

Surplusage, l. 518, rest, remainder.

Syttyng, l. 302, fit, suitable. 'Syttyng or convenyent—m. asseant . . aduenant.' Palsgrave.

Table, how to wait at, l. 113.

Tacches, l. 176, tache, l. 198; Fr. tache, a spot, staine, blemish. Cot.

Taches, H., teches, O., l. 453, manners.

Teeth, don't pick 'em with your knife, l. 248.

Terre, l. 67; tar, to set on, provoke; O. Fr. atarier. They have terrid thee to ire. Wiclif, Psalms. Sc. tirr, to snarl; quarrelsome, crabbed. Wedgwood.

Thewed, l. 20, mannered.

Towel, don't soil it, l. 263, 266.

Traverse, l. 242, change from side to side.

Trencher; keep yours clean, l. 269.

Trety, l. 529, treatise.

True as the gospel, l. 503.

Weyne, l. 166, A.S. wanian, to diminish, take away.

Wind, break not, up or down, l. 202.

Wise man, the; his marks of a youth likely to be bad, l. 104;—his counsel as to speaking, l. 137, 147.

Women, always take good heed to them, l. 506.

Wyndlese, l. 471, windlass.

Yanglers, l. 207, chatterers.

Ydellye, l. 315, idly.

Ynympariable, l. 380, unequalled, L. par, Fr. pareil, equal, like.

Digitized by Google

JOHN CHILDS AND SON, PRINTERS.

Digitized by Google

Any member who may desire to bind with his copy of the Chevelere Assigne, the photographs of the Casket referred to in the Preface, will receive them ready mounted for binding, on sending to Mr Blanchard, No. 12, Camden Cottages, N.W., 1*s.* 9*d.* in postage stamps for demys-paper, or 2*s.* for large-paper copies.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

The Romance

of the

Cheuelere Assigne.

Early English Text Society.
Extra Series. No. VI.
1868.

Digitized by Google

DUBLIN: WILLIAM McGEE, 18, NASSAU STREET.
EDINBURGH: T. G. STEVENSON, 22, SOUTH FREDERICK STREET.
GLASGOW: OGLE & CO., 1, ROYAL EXCHANGE SQUARE.
BERLIN: ASHER & CO., UNTER DEN LINDEN, 20.
NEW YORK: C. SCRIBNER & CO.; LEYPOLDT & HOLT.
PHILADELPHIA: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.
BOSTON, U.S.: DUTTON & CO.

Digitized by Google

The Romance

of the 5-1102.

Chevelere Assigne.

RE-EDITED FROM

THE UNIQUE MANUSCRIPT IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM,

WITH A PREFACE, NOTES, AND GLOSSARIAL INDEX,

BY

HENRY H. GIBBS, ESQ., M.A.,

OF EXETER COLLEGE, OXFORD.

LONDON:

PUBLISHED FOR THE EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY,

BY N. TRÜBNER & CO., 60, PATERNOSTER ROW.

MDCCCLXVIII.

Digitized by Google

Extra Series,

VI.

JOHN CHILDS AND SON, PRINTERS.

Digitized by Google

PREFACE.

THIS short alliterative poem has already been edited by Mr Utterson, and presented by him in 1820 to the members of the Roxburghe Club; but as the few copies then printed are very rare, and as the work is a curious specimen of unrimed alliterative poetry of a comparatively late date, it has been thought worth while that it should be edited again for the Extra Series of the Early English Text Society.

A mere reprint of the former edition would not have been desirable, both because there are several mistranscriptions, and because the glossary appended to that edition is excessively meagre, and in some cases erroneous: but so much advance has been made since the date of that publication in the knowledge of our ancient tongue, that however much this edition may leave to be desired, there will be no great difficulty in correcting the errors of the former one.

Wherever the new transcript differed from the Roxburghe edition, I have with especial care compared it with the manuscript, so as to satisfy myself of the correctness of the new reading.

The poem consists of 370 lines; and is contained, with other pieces, in Caligula A. 2 of the Cotton MSS. in the British Museum. It professes to be taken from some other book (in the 7th line and elsewhere the author uses the expression, 'as þe book tellethe'), and appears to be an epitome of the first 1083 lines of the French poem, or rather 'lay' (in the sense in which Scott uses the word), which forms part of the volume marked 15 E. vj in the Royal Collection in the same library.

This French Manuscript contains many beautiful illuminations of excellent workmanship, two of which adorn the head of the first page (fo. 320) of the 'Chevalier au Signe.' The left-hand picture represents Queen Bietrix (as she is there called) sitting up in bed and looking very unhappy, while 'Matebrune' is carrying away a cot (nearly as big as the Queen's bed) with the seven children in it, clad four in green and three in purple, placed alternately. The right-hand picture represents the Knight 'Helyas,' armed, and in his ship alone; the Swan, 'ducally gorged, Or,' as a herald would say, sailing proudly before him. This picture is very like one of the compartments of the Ivory Casket, to which I shall presently refer.

Digitized by Google

Meanwhile, as this French chanson—so its author frequently calls it [1]—appears to be the original from whence our English author drew his poem, I will give an outline of the longer history told in its 6000 lines, comparing it from time to time with the very entertaining English Prose Romance, printed by Copland early in the 16th century, and edited in 1858 by Mr Thoms.

THE STORY OF THE KNIGHT OF THE SWAN.

Briefly told it is as follows:

Beatrix, Queen of King Oryens of Lilefort, after some years of childlessness, conceived seven children at one burden (as a punishment for disbelieving the possibility of twins being begotten by one man); and when she is brought to bed, in her husband's absence, his mother substitutes seven puppies for the seven children, whom she consigns to Marques, or Marcon, a serf of hers, with orders for their murder: when the King returns she shows him the whelps as the Queen's offspring, and demands her death; but the King only allows her to be imprisoned.

The children (who were miraculously born with silver chains about their necks) are of course not slain, but fed by a hind in the forest, and tended by a hermit in his cell.

They are unfortunately seen by the Forester Mauquarre, or Malquarrez, who tells the Queen; and by her desire he goes back to kill them and take away their chains. One, however, who is the hero of the tale, has gone out with the hermit to get food for the others; so that the forester finds only six of the children, and deprives them of their chains, upon which they are transformed into swans.

[1] The poem begins 'Escoutez seigneurs pour Dieu lespitable
*Que Ihus vous garisse de lamain au Dy*able;'
and every now and then the minstrel addresses his hearers to call their attention to his song. Thus when Elyas first comes to Nimaye, the next sentence begins 'Seigneurs oez chancon qui moult fait aloer.' After the battle with the friends of the prevost, comes, 'Seigneurs or escoutez chancon de grant baronaige;' and again, 'Seigneurs or escoutez bonne chancon;' and 'Seigneurs oez chancon de bonne enluminee;' and 'Seigneurs oyez chancon qui est vray.'

Digitized by Google

The old Queen questions Marcon, and revenges herself on him by putting out his eyes.

When the Queen has been 11 years in prison, Matebrune prevails on the King to condemn her to be burnt; and the day is fixed accordingly, and she is led to the stake.

Meanwhile an angel appears to the hermit and orders that the child should go to the city, be christened Helyas, and fight for his mother. He does so, meets the procession, accosts the King, obtains his consent to the battle, borrows from him horse and armour, slays Mauquarre, who is the champion on behalf of the accuser, and frees his mother.

Matebrune flees to a castle; Helyas prays to God, who restores Marques's sight. He tells his story to his newly-found father and mother, and all the court go to the water where the swans are swimming, and, their chains being restored to them, they resume their human form; all but one, who remains a swan.

Up to this time, as will be seen, the English poem faithfully accompanies the French one, excepting that as the poet means to make an end here, he summarily burns Matabryne, and says that the 6th brother continued always a swan for lack of his chain.

Moreover he makes no mention of the miracle of healing done on Marcus.

The French story proceeds with the abdication of King Oriant (on the plea that he has now lived a long time—plus que c. ans—) in favour of Helyas; with the siege of Matebrune's castle, the death of her champion Hendrys by the hand of Helyas; her capture, confession, and burning; whereafter

'Lame emportorent dyables; ce fut la destinee.'

The angel then appears to King Helyas and bids him leave his father and mother, and seek adventures under the guidance of his brother the swan, who waits for him with 'ung batel.'

He abdicates, and leaves the kingdom to Orions, and divers governments to his other brothers.

From this differs the English Prose Romance of the Knight of the Swan, which makes no mention of King Oryens' great age, but makes

Digitized by Google

King Helyas surrender the kingdom again into his hands. Neither does he mention Helyas's departure at the bidding of the angel; but makes the swan-brother summon him by 'mervaylous cries,' to come into the boat which he has brought, and which he guides, without further adventure, to the city of Nimaye.

But in the French story he arrives soon at a city of Saracens, who assault him and his swan;—but he is rescued by 30 galleys under the guidance of Saint George (qui fut bon chevalier); and the four winds also helped, raising a storm and drowning the Saracens.

It then tells how Elyas went on alone in his boat, with the swan, till they came to a castle, called Sauvage, whose master was Agolant, brother of Matebrune; how their provisions being exhausted, they sought help at the castle; how Agolant received him well, but, after hearing his story, seizes, imprisons, and promises to burn him eight days thereafter.

But a page escapes and goes to Lilefort to King Orions, who goes with a great force to succour his brother. The men arrive when Helyas is already bound at the stake, and Agolant and all his men have to go out to repel them;—a friendly hand releases Helyas, who joins his brother's men, and slays Agolant.

Oryons goes back to Lilefort, and Helyas, summoning his brother the swan, pursues his way to Nimaye.

There, in a tournament, he slays an Earl [of Francbourck, says Copland], who, in a false plea before the Emperor Otho, is trying to deprive [Clarysse] Duchess Dabullon [of Bouillon] of her lands; and wins for himself the lands of Ardennes [of Dardaigne, in Copland] belonging to the Earl; and also gets to wife Beatrice, the fair daughter and heiress of the Duchess, by whom he has a daughter Idein or Ydain, who in time becomes the mother of Godfrey of Bouillon.

He leaves Nimaye and goes to his duchy of Bouillon, conquering in the way Asselm le prevost and many partisans of the deceased Earl, who had laid an ambush for him.

Many perilous adventures then befell him in Bouillon, which are recounted at considerable length; and afterwards the story tells how that, his wife having disobeyed his commandment which he laid upon her, not to inquire concerning his kith and kin, he departs from her, and rides away to Nimaye, to take leave of the Emperor, and bespeak his protection for his wife, daughter, and lands.

Digitized by Google

Thence, amidst great lamentation of the Emperor and all his barons, he departs in his boat with his brother the swan, and no more is known of him.

Oncq ne sceurent quelle part y fu tournes.

Then it passes on to tell of Godfrey Earl of Bouillon, his birth and deeds. How with the leave of the Emperor, Eustace Earl of 'Boulogne sur mer salee' went a courting to Ydain 'a la fresce coulour' (daughter of Helyas), then aged 13 years; how he married her; and how in the three years following she had three fair sons, Godfrey, Baldwin, and Eustace; and how that the eldest after many noble deeds went to Palestine, and took the Holy City. The poem ends with the assault and capture of Jerusalem and the crowning of Godfrey as its King.

The English Prose Romance takes up the story of Helyas where the French Poem leaves him, and tells how he arrived at Lilefort and is welcomed by his father and mother after his viij years' absence.

The Queen, it tells us, had a dream, in which she dreams that if they get the two cups which had been made of the 6th son's chain, and lay them on two altars, and set the swan on a bed betwixt the altars, and cause two masses to be said by devout priests who shall consecrate in the two chalices, the swan shall return to his own form: and 'Ryght so,' says Copland, 'as the priests consacred the body of our Lorde at the masse, the swanne retourned into his propre fourme and was a man,' and he was baptized, and named Emery.

'The whiche sith was a noble knight.'

'And thus,' he says, 'the noble king Oriant and the good queene Beatrice finabli recovered all their children by the grace of God, wherfore fro than forthon they lived holyly and devoutly in our Lorde.'

Now King Oriant had 'made a Religion' at the hermitage where his son Helyas had been brought up; and thither, after recounting his adventures, the good Knight of the Swan betook himself, with a simple staff in his hand, and made himself a 'Religious.'

And close to the convent he caused to be built a castle like to

Digitized by Google

that of Bouillon, and he called it Bouillon, and the forest that was about it he called Dardayne, after the land that he had won from the Earl.

The English story here goes on to tell of the marriage of Eustace Earl of Boulogne and Ydain daughter of Helyas, and of the birth of her sons Godfrey, Baldwin, and Eustace; and how that her mother, the Duchess of Bouillon, lamenting for the loss of her husband Helyas, sent messengers all over the world to find him; and how that Ponce, one of these messengers, went to Jerusalem, and meeting there the Abbot Girarde of Saincteron, which is nigh to Bouillon, they determined as fellow-countrymen to return together. How they lose their way, and come to the castle of Bouillon le restaure, and are struck by the likeness to their own Bouillon; how they inquire of the Curate, and hear who it was who built the castle and named the forest.

And how that they make themselves known to Emery and Helyas, and also to the King and Queen, who had come to live at the castle, and how they returned to their country, bearing a token from Helyas to his wife.

Then it tells how the Duchess and the Countess Ydain, whose sons were by this time adolescent, set forth to see their husband and father Helyas, and how they found him lying sick unto death, and how shortly thereafter 'he desceased in our lorde Jesu Chryst.'

How the ladies returned to Bouillon, and how the three noble brethren prepared themselves by a knightly education for the day when it should please God to give the kingdom of Jerusalem into the hands of Godfrey of Bouillon, the eldest born. 'And thus,' says Copland, 'endeth the life and myraculous hystory of the most noble and illustryous Helyas knight of the swanne, with the birth of the excellent knyght Godfrey of Boulyon, one of the nyne worthiest, and the last of the three crysten.'

The English romance, printed by Copland, is in some parts much fuller even than the French poem, going more into detail as to the wooing of King Oryens, and the cause of the enmity of Matabryne; but here and there the French 'chanson' has details which Copland's book does not give; such as the troublous adventures of

Digitized by Google

Helyas in his journey between Lilefort and Nimaye, and the acts and prowess of Godfrey, and his conquest of his kingdom; but as to the legendary hero of the story, the Knight of the Swan, the tale of his deeds until his retirement from the world is mainly the same, in the English prose and in the French verse.

THE CASKET.

This curious work, of which I have before made mention, is an ancient ivory one, of 14th-century workmanship, now belonging to Mr William Gibbs of Tyntesfield, co. Somerset, and formerly to his wife's family, the Crawley-Boeveys, Baronets, of Flaxley Abbey, co. Gloucester. It is 8 inches long, 5⅜ deep, and 5½ inches high; and in its thirty-six compartments it gives the history of the Knight of the Swan; going no further than our poem, except that it depicts the capture of Matabryne's castle and the leave-taking and departure of Helyas. It is this last compartment that so nearly resembles the illumination at the head of the French poem.

I now proceed to describe the carvings in the several compartments, which are all of them remarkable for their accurate detail of arms and costume, and some groups, especially in Nos. 23 and 24, very spirited in their execution.

The top of the casket.

1. The King, Queen, and Matabryne on the wall. Mother and Twins below.
2. The King and the Queen in bed.
3. The King discovers that the Queen is with child.
4. The Queen asleep in bed: Matabryne carries off the children.
5. Matabryne delivers the children to Marcus.
6. Matabryne drowns the bitch in a well.
7. Matabryne presents the whelps to the King, who wrings his hands.
8. Marcus exposes the children in the forest.
9. Malkedras (?) thrusts the Queen into prison.
10. The hermit finds the children.
11. A hind suckles them; and Malkedras finds them.
12. Malkedras tells Matabryne.

Digitized by Google

The front of the casket.

13. Malkedras takes the chains from the children's necks.

14. They fly away as swans.

15. Matabryne praises and caresses Malkedras.

16. Matabryne taunts the King, and gets leave to burn the Queen.

17. A soldier is leading the Queen to execution: she has fallen on her knees and is praying. See l. 90, note.

18. The King is on his throne as if to see the burning. Matabryne and a man in armour behind him, counselling him.

19. The angel appears to the hermit and the child.

20. The hermit and the child set forth on their way.

The left side of the casket.

21. The King on his throne; the Queen presents the child as her champion, and Matabryne Malkedras as hers.

22. Combat between Helyas and Malkedras.

23. Helyas having slain Malkedras, bears away his head.

24. Flight of Matabryne.

The back of the casket.

25. Helyas presents the head of Malkedras to the King.

26. Reconciliation of King Oryens and Queen Beatrice.

27. The King and Queen embrace Helyas.

28. King Helyas with a kneeling figure before him. He seems to be giving something into his hand; and perhaps it is a commission to a captain 'to prepaire a lytle hoste,' as Copland has it.

29. His army march against Matabryne.

30. They prepare to assault

31. The castle and its defenders.

32. Capture of Matabryne.

The right side of the casket.

33. Helyas recounts his adventures to his father and mother.

34. The burning of Matabryne.

Digitized by Google

35. The King and the Queen gazing

36. At Helyas departing in his ship alone, led by his brother the Swan.

The letter from Mr Dallaway, and extract of a letter from Mr Way in the note below, give the opinion of those antiquaries on the date and artistic value of this casket.[1]

[1] 'Mr Dallaway's respectful compliments to Sir Thomas Crawley, with the cabinet he has so long detained. He should have returned it with more satisfaction had he been able to discover the whole of the history represented, which is too complicated for him to unravel.

'Upon the upper compartment is evidently shown the well-known Legend of Isenbard, Earl of Altorf, and Irmentruda his wife, with her supernatural progeny.

'The two sons, who were preserved, were called Guelfo and Ghibelino, and their descendants were leaders of the factions by which the Italian States were distracted in the 12th century.

'He is of opinion that the remainder of their legendary story is described around the sides of the cabinet, and is not without hopes that, when he can meet with a very scarce collection of German novels, entitled "Camerarii Horæ Subcesivæ," it will furnish him with the whole of the detail.

'The armour and weapons of some of the figures are decidedly those of the 14th century, when elaborate carving was in very general use, and many Greek artists were encouraged; which circumstance seems to establish the date of the specimen.

'The enclosed drawing Mr D. begs that Sir Thomas will accept, with many thanks, for the permission he has obtained to have it etched. He will take care that justice be done to it, and hopes that Sir T. will find room in his portfolio for some of the proof impressions.

'Jan. 5, 1793.

'Sir Thomas Crawley.'

'Wonham Manor,

'Reigate, Nov. 29, '60.

'Dear Sir Martin,

'Your kindness in permitting me to bring home your curious ivory casket has, as I anticipated, enabled me to ascertain the whole of the subjects represented upon it. After much fruitless research, and showing the casket to several learned friends, I have at length got the right clue, and all difficulty ceases. The subjects are all from one romance, known as the "Knight of the Swan," and not found in any of the abstracts of middle-age romances, by Ellis, Dunlop, or the Italian writer Ferrario. It has, however, been published, but the volumes containing it are of very great rarity.

'I hope to send you an account of the romance, detailing the subjects as they occur on the casket. . . . .

. . . . . .

. . . . . I should almost suggest only to repair the broken portions of the metal bands as they exist, not to renew those which have been

Digitized by Google

ORIGIN OF THE ROMANCE.

Little or nothing can be added, on this head, to what Mr Thoms has collected in his preface to the Knight of the Swan; and what I here write is chiefly drawn from that source.

Mr Utterson quotes Mr F. Cohen (Sir Francis Palgrave) for the opinion that the earliest form in which the story exists is in the Chronicle of Tongres, written by the Maitre de Guise, and incorporated in great part into the Mer des Hystoires. There is also, he says, an Icelandic Saga of Helis, the Knight of the Swan, in which he is called a son of Julius Cæsar; and a similar legend is introduced into the German romance of Lohengrin, of which an edition was printed at Heidelberg as late as 1813. The story is still popular in Flanders, where a Chap-book, entitled De Ridder Met de Zwaen, was of frequent occurrence early in this century.

The immediate parent of the English prose romances on the subject appears to be the French folio printed in 1504, and entitled LA GENEALOGIE AVECQUES LES GESTES ET NOBLES FAITZ DARMES DU TRES PREUX ET RENOMME PRINCE GODEFFROY DE BOULION ET DE SES CHEUALEREUX FRERES BAUDOUIN ET EUSTACE, YSSUS & DESCENDUS DE LA TRES NOBLE & ILLUSTRE LIGNEE DU VERTUEUX CHEVALIER AU CYNE. AVECQUES AUSSI PLUSIEURS AUTRES CRONIQUES HYSTOIRES MIRACULEUSES; TANT DU BON ROY SAINCT LOYS COMME DE PLUSIEURS AULTRES PUISSANS & VERTUEUX CHEVALIERS.

It was the first thirty-eight chapters of this work that were published in an English form by Robert Copland (which is the version edited by Mr Thoms); and Ames speaks of a translation published by Wynkyn de Worde, in 1512; but it is not now known to exist.

lost. . . . . It is to be considered that these metal bands are not original. The ivory dates from about 1380; the metal work about 1550. . . . . .

'Believe me, very sincerely yours,

'ALBERT WAY.'

'Sir Martin Crawley-Boevey.'

Mr Way says in another letter that photographs had been taken of the casket. These I have never seen, but a set has been prepared expressly for this edition.

Digitized by Google

The tradition that the great Godfrey of Bouillon was descended from the Knight of the Swan, has always been a favourite one, and one of the most interesting stories in Otmar's Volksagen is founded on it. Nicolas de Klerc, in order to set right the common opinion in Flanders,

> Om dat van Brabant die Hertoghen
> Voormaels, dicke syn beloghen
> Alse dat sy quamen metten Swane
>
> [Forasmuch as the Dukes of Brabant > have been heretofore much belied
> as that they came with a Swan], professes to tell the truth about it in his Brabandshe Yeesten, written in 1318; and Marlaent refers to the same belief in his Spiegel Historiael.

On the other hand (through Godfrey, no doubt,) Robert Copland claims it as an honour for his patron, Edward Duke of Buckingham, that from the Knight of the 'Swan 'linially is dyscended my sayde Lorde.'

As to the portentous birth, which is the basis of the story, similar tales have been not unfrequently told. Amongst others there is one in which the house of Guelph is said to take its name from a like incident.

'Irmentrudes, wife of Isenbard Earl of Altorfe, accused a woman of adultery for bringing forth three children at a birth; adding withal that she was worthy to be sown in a sack, and thrown into the sea; and urged it very earnestly. It chanced in the year following, that she herself conceived, and in the absence of her husband, was delivered of twelve male children at one birth (though very little). But she, fearing the imputation and scandal she had formerly laid on the poor woman, and the law of like for like, caused her most trusty woman to make choice of one to be tendered to the father, and to drown all the residue in a neighbouring river. It fell out that the Earl Isenbard returning home, met this woman, demanding whither she went with her pail? who answered, "to drown a few baggage whelps in the river." The Earl would see them; and notwithstanding the woman's resistance, did so, and discovering the children, pressed her to tell the matter, which she also did; and he caused them all to be secretly nursed; and, grown great, were brought home unto him, which he placed in an open hall with the son whom his wife had brought up, and soon known to be brethren by their likelihood in every respect. The Countess confessed the whole matter (moved with the sting of conscience), and was forgiven. In remembrance whereof, the illustrious race of the Welfes (whelps) got that name, and ever since hath kept it.'

Digitized by Google

Westcote (whose words I transcribe, as his book is a privately printed one (1845) from his MS. c. 1600) quotes this story from one Camerarius (he says) of Nuremberg, as a companion to a story of the wife of a peasant of Chumleigh, co. Devon, who had seven children at a birth, and whose husband, for fear of having to maintain so many mouths, resolves to drown them, and declares to the Countess of Devon, who meets him while on his errand, that they are but whelps. She rescues them and provides for them.

In French history we have a story somewhat analogous, in the efforts of the monks to separate Robert Capet and his wife, by persuading him that she had given birth to a monster.

The after part of the story of our book is the old one told with many variations from the time of the Shepherd David until now, of extreme youth, with the aid of the grace of God, vanquishing in battle the evil-doer, though a man of war from his youth.

THE VERSIFICATION OF THE POEM.

Coming now to the versification of the poem: I have thought it useful to analyse it so as to ascertain how far the author has kept himself to the rules of alliterative verse, as collected by Mr Skeat in his Essay on the subject prefixed to the 3rd volume of the Percy Folio.

The author seems to have contented himself with preserving generally the proper swing of his metre, the accentuated syllables marking it, in most cases, fairly well: but it often halts, the soft or unaccentuated syllables being awkwardly and too prodigally used, and the rime-letters very frequently falling on those syllables.

In many couplets the alliteration is utterly irregular, and in 10 couplets[1] I can discover none at all.

[1] 21, 34, 106, 225, 232, 334-6, 343, 367.

Digitized by Google

In 22 others[1] he has satisfied himself with a feeble sprinkling of the same letter through the verse without any regard to the loud syllables; as

60. at a chamber dore as she forth sowȝte sometimes also supplementing the weakness of one alliteration by adding a second in the same couplet; as

241. that *st*yked *st*yffe in her BRestes · þat wolde þe qwene BRenne
287. A *k*nyȝte *k*awȝte Hym by þe Honde · & ladde Hym of þe route.

The couplets in which there are but two rime-letters are very many; no less than 143[2] out of the whole number of 370; and there are eight couplets[3] with four rime-letters.

The other variations from the established rule are: (a.) The occurrence of the chief letter on the second instead of the first loud syllable of the second line, which is found 64 times,[4] and of these 64, 29 (5) occur in couplets with but two rime-letters.

(b.) The occurrence of two rime-letters in the second line of the couplet, and but one in the first, in 37 couplets.[6]

(c.) The absence of the chief letter in the second limb of the couplet occurs 20 times.[7]

(d.) The rime-letters occur very often indeed upon unaccentuated or 'soft' syllables; so often, as to lead one to think that the author must have deemed his task fully done, if only there was any alliteration at all. The number is 72,[8] besides three in the next class.

[1] 13-4, 32, 49, 52, 60, 81, 96, 113, 132, 145, 158, 165, 185, 199, 210-1, 218, 272, 281-2, 351.

[2] 5, 6, 8, 10-1, 16, 24, 30-1, 40-1, 45-6, 54, 58, 63, 65, 75-6, 80, 82, 88, 90, 95, 99, 101, 103-5, 108, 110, 114-5, 120-1, 127-9, 137, 139, 142, 146, 149-50, 154-5, 160-2, 166-7, 172, 174, 181, 184, 189, 191-2, 195-6, 200-1, 208, 222, 227-9, 231, 240-1, 244, 247, 250-3, 256, 258, 264-5, 268-9, 271, 273, 280, 285-6, 290, 292, 294, 296, 299, 300, 302-6, 309, 314-6, 320-1, 323, 325, 327-8, 338, 353-4, 368-70.

[3] 2, 35, 42, 91, 152, 183, 239, 360.

[4] 1, 4, 20, 25-6, 30, 42, 53, 69, 70, 112, 136, 156, 173, 179, 183, 202, 212, 217, 226, 236, 239, 248, 261, 295, 310, 313, 317, 319, 324, 329, 331, 334, 355, 359. (5) 22, 37-8, 48, 56, 64, 86, 123, 140, 144, 164, 177, 182, 187-8, 190, 194, 203, 205-6, 207, 214, 236, 238, 246, 254, 308, 312, 363.

[6] 1, 12, 17, 23, 51, 78-9, 83-4, 107, 119, 135, 138, 141, 151, 159, 169, 170, 175, 198, 209, 223, 233-5, 237, 243, 255, 291, 293, 326, 340-2, 350, 356-7.

[7] 19, 50, 59, 67, 125, 153, 157, 163, 215, 219, 257, 259, 277, 279, 289, 332, 346-7, 352, 364.

[8] 2, 7, 23, 25-6, 28, 31, 35, 39, 40, 50-1, 66, 70, 73, 77, 79, 82, 102-3, 108-9,

Digitized by Google

(e.) Where the chief letter occurs in the initial catch of the second couplet.[1]

There are also ten couplets[2] with separate alliterations in each line, and

Seven,[3] in which there are no rime-letters in the first line.

And the couplets that appear to conform strictly to the canon of alliteration which provides that there shall be three rime-letters in each couplet, viz. two (sub-letters) in the accentuated syllables of the first line or limb of it, and one (the chief letter) on the first accentuated syllable of the second line, are 48 in number;[4] such as

92. Now Leve we þis Lady · in Langour & pyne
147. They STOden alle STylle · for STere þey ne durste

But of these 48, the alliteration is not always perfect, w having to do duty with words beginning with Oo (l. 29); D being once used as a rime-letter to T (l. 27), and the G in gladness being once considered mute, so as to rime the word with 'lay in langour' (l. 57).

The former editor draws attention to the existence of some rime-endings in this poem, but they seem to me to be accidental rather than intentional.

Mr Skeat enumerates them in his essay, and I set them down here, excepting those in lines 260-1, where he has been misled by the former editor's mistaking the long second r in marre, and reading it marye; and in 28, 29, where the editor has mistaken leue for lene;

12-13, where and there

31-32, were and there

158-159, swyde and leyde. This is not a rime at all.

166-167, faste and caste

198-199, 350-351, } swannes and cheynes. A very doubtful rime.

116, 118, 120, 126-8, 141, 143, 152, 156, 159, 161, 168-9, 175-6, 178, 180, 186, 191, 195, 202, 204, 209, 217, 220-1, 234-5, 250, 256, 261-2, 267, 270, 274, 278, 280, 283-4, 287-8, 292, 294, 337, 341, 343, 347-8, 357.

[1] 55, 75, 96.

[2] 44, 72, 85, 111, 216, 249, 266, 275, 330, 365.

[3] 117, 198, 245, 318, 345, 350, 362.

[4] 8, 9, 15, 18, 27, 29, 33, 36, 39, 43, 47, 57, 61-2, 71, 74, 87, 89, 91-4, 97-8, 100, 124, 131, 133-4, 147-8, 171, 193, 197, 213, 260, 263, 276, 297-8, 301, 307, 311, 322, 339, 349, 360-1, 366.

Digitized by Google

237-238, were and mysfare;

and I may add 359-60, made and bledde.

But among these there are but three rimes which are at all perfect; and it may be observed that in the 370 lines (from 200 to 570) of William of Palerne, which I have searched cursorily, there are as many:

As, 210, þat of horne ne of hounde · ne mizt he here sowne

236-7, telle and wille

337-8, speche and riche

404, as euene as ani wiȝt · schuld attely bi siȝt

490-1, wise and nyce

563-4, newe and shewe;

so the rimes must, I think, be considered as an inadvertence on the part of the poet, and not as an intended embellishment.

CHARACTER OF THE MS.

The manuscript is neatly written in a handwriting of about 1460; and seemingly with few, if any, errors. At first sight the letter Thorn appears to be used indiscriminately for Th, but I find that it is never used at the beginning of a line, and never at the end of a word, whether it be written, for example, serveth, or servethe. The Th is used in proper names; and the few other cases where it is found are, with one exception (thykke), where the sound occurs before the vowel e. Thus Sythen, Murther, Ferther, Therefore, and Beetheth, are thus spelt whenever they are found; and Thefe is only once spelt þefe.

The ȝ is constantly used, representing gh in the middle of words and y at the beginning.

In most cases where we write er in our modern speech, and especially in word-endings, such as after, water, together, &c., the scribe uses a contraction representing ur, making the words aftur, watur, &c.

Where the double l is crossed (ll̄), a final e has been assumed.

DATE AND DIALECT OF THE POEM.

The date of our poem in its present form appears to be the latter

Digitized by Google

end of the 14th century; and the dialect in which it is written is Midland, and probably East Midland, as will be seen by the following observations.

The present indicative plurals of regular verbs end everywhere in -en. There appears to be an exception to this in l. 72, 'hem that it deservethe;' but 'hem' may either be miswritten for 'her;' or else perhaps it is used indeterminately, as 'they' and 'them' are sometimes used now-a-days.

It is not West Midland; for the 3rd sing. indic. almost universally ends in -eth; the only exceptions being 'lykes' in l. 134; 'wendes' in ll. 155 and 178; 'launces' in l. 323, and 'formerknes' in l. 362, though this last (see the note on the line) is a doubtful instance. Robert of Brunne also uses this termination in -es; but always, apparently, for the sake of the rime.

The second person sing. indic. ends in -est; excepting the word 'fyndes' in l. 305. 'Thou were' is used in lines 236-7.

In many instances the e final is omitted in the past tense of weak verbs; as, delyvered, 155 and 178; graunted, 189 and 246. See also ll. 18, 24, 28, 39, 62, 91, 107, 108, 255, 275, 281, and 339.

There are some terminations in -eth, used instead of -ed for the perfect participles of regular verbs. See ll. 78, 175, 200, 209, 310.

The plurals of nouns end almost universally in -es; the only exceptions being lond-is, l. 16, lyon-ys, l. 214, and bell-ys, l. 272 (which are perhaps only variations made by the copyist); dom-us, l. 91; and chylderen, ll. 20 and 82.

Fader is uninflected in the possessive case, l. 203. The other genitives are in -es.

Some nouns of time and measure are uninflected in the plural; as ȝere, l. 89, 243 (we say now 'a two-year-old colt'), and myle, l. 95 (we say now 'it is a two-mile course').

Of the personal pronouns—

I is always used, and not Ic.

All people alike, king and peasant, Thou and Thee one another, without the distinction of rank, such as is shown in William of Palerne, by the use of Ye and You. In one instance, l. 26, the King addresses the Queen as Ye. Hym is the objective singular, and Hem

Digitized by Google

(in one instance Ham, probably for þam—a Northern form) the plural: Them is never used.

She is the 3rd person fem. nominative, and Here or Her objective, the latter being used 8 times in the poem, and the former 9.

Hit and It are used about equally, the latter rather more frequently. They is always used in the plural.

The possessive pronoun of the 3rd person feminine, is Her or Here. In the plural of all genders it is Here, and once Her.

The negative form of the verb To Be is once used in Nere = no were, l. 3.

The imperfect participles end always in -ynge.

This is contrary to early Midland usage, and seems to show that the dialect here employed must have been spoken in the Southern part of the East Midland district, -inge being a Southern form, though it is used in another East Midland book, 'Body and Soul,' l. 396 [brennynge], and by Robert of Brunne 'Handlyng Synne;' and by Chaucer. But as the peculiarities of each dialect were no doubt always understood by the neighbours on the borders of the several districts, and by degrees became naturalized beyond their ancient limits; so probably at the time when the Cheualere Assigne was written, the Southern and Midland dialects at least were beginning to blend and form a common language.

One peculiarity in this author's style is a strange mixing of past and present tenses; i. e. in the same sentence he constantly, as does also Chaucer sometimes, uses the historical present, and the perfect. Thus in l. 229,

'The chylde stryketh hym to, & toke hym by þe brydelle.'

See also lines 63, 115-16, 151, 155, 173, 178, 190, 221, 267, 332, 341, 355, 361-2, and 365.

Mr Morris writes, 'The Dialect in its present form is East Midland. But as we do not find [other] East Midland writers adopting alliterative measure in the 14th century, I am inclined to think that the original English text was written in the N. or N.W. of England, and that the present copy is a mere modified transcript. This theory accounts for the es's in the 3rd person [sing.], which are not required for the rime, and may be forms belonging to the earlier copy, and unaltered by the later scribe.'

Digitized by Google

I have to thank Mr Morris, Mr Skeat, and Mr Furnivall for their kind suggestions during the progress of my work, and I must make also my acknowledgments to Mr Brock for his faultless transcript.

Although, therefore, I suppose that, from their uncertain character, the dialect or grammatical peculiarities of this poem are not of any particular value in the history of the language, yet as it is at any rate a contribution to that history, and as I think that whatever is worth doing at all, is worth doing thoroughly, I have made the Glossary as copious and accurate as I could. Besides, there is some spirit and vigour in the Poem itself; and I hope the reading of the little book may be as entertaining to the members of the Early English Text Society, as the editing of it has been to me.

H. H. G.

Digitized by Google

POSTSCRIPT TO THE PREFACE

OF THE

Chevelere Assigne.

In the foregoing Preface I have given a short account of the story told in the cycle of Lays, of which the "Chevalier Assigne" (Helyas) forms a part, and to which it gives a name, but it may be well that I should describe more precisely the component parts of the Cycle in question, and fix the place which it holds in the list of Rhapsodies commemorating the deeds of the ancient heroes of romance.

These songs of the Troubadours—the Homers of the Middle Ages—were called Chansons de Geste (historic songs), and told of the exploits of Charlemagne and his mighty men, of William of Orange (otherwise called William with the Short Nose), of the four sons of Aymon; of Arthur and his knights; of Jerusalem and its fortunes, and of the heroes who fought in the Crusades for its recovery from the enemies of the Faith.

The Lives or Acts of the various heroes commemorated form severally branches of the principal epic cycle under which they are ranged, whether of Charlemagne, of the Round Table, or of that with which we are here concerned, and which was called "the Cycle of the knight of the Swan," or else "the Cycle of Godfrey of Boulogne." Under this latter cycle are grouped five lays, properly belonging to it, forming what we may call a Godofrediad, since it is all, or almost all, written to Godfrey's glory, beginning with the miraculous birth of his ancestor Helyas, and ending with his crowning deed, the capture of Jerusalem.

These five lays are,

Digitized by Google

I. The Chanson d'Antioche, treating of the Voyage of Peter the hermit, the entry of the Crusaders into Palestine, and the conquest of Antioch. It is the earliest in point of composition, and appears to have been the germ and nucleus of the other members of the cycle, as well as a model for the songs of other Troubadours. From their writings we gather that it was current early in the 12th century. To the Chevalier William of Bechada, who wrote before 1137, to William, Count of Poitiers, and to Richard the pilgrim, himself present at the first Crusade, has the honour of its composition been attributed; but we know it only in the more modern form given to it by the Troubadour Graindor of Douai in 1268. It was edited in 1848, by M. Paulin Paris.

II. The Chanson de Jerusalem, describing the conquest of the Holy City, was founded on the lay of Richard the pilgrim; but has come down to us only in the revision of Graindor (published by M. Hippeau in 1868), who in arranging anew this and the preceding Geste, incorporated with them

III. The Lay of the Captives (Chetifs), a work of a later period in the same century, but founded, so M. Paulin Paris thinks, on a Chanson of William IX, Count of Poitiers, who returned to his country in 1102, one of the few survivors of a disastrous expedition to the East, of which he was the leader after the entry of the crusaders into Jerusalem.

IV. The Lay of Helyas, being the story of the Knight of the Swan himself; the beginning of which, as quoted below, shows that this branch at least of the cycle was of later date than the cycle of Arthur. It appears to have been written about 1190.

V. Les Enfances de Godeffroy, the earlier form of which seems to have been written by a nameless Troubadour in the first part of the 12th century; and the later version by one Renaud or Renax, in the later years of the same, or early in the succeeding, century.

The French poem to which I referred in the Preface, as contained in the "Shrewsbury book" (Royal. 15 E vj in the British Museum), appears to be an amalgamation into one Chanson of all the five branches of this cycle.

Digitized by Google

It differs very considerably from the version of the Chanson extant in the MSS. consulted by M. Paris, as is evident from a comparison of the British Museum MS. with the extracts given by him in the 22nd volume of the Histoire Litteraire de la France. Many lines are the same, many slightly altered, and many lines, and even long passages, are omitted in one and find a place in the other. These variations no doubt arise from the handing down the lays from bard to bard, by oral tradition in a great measure; each singer drawing from his imagination to supply any lack in his memory; and each probably, by dictation to some scribe, perpetuating his variations, whether of matter or dialect, in his own province or neighbourhood.

Take, for example, the first five lines of the poem (after the two quoted on p. ii. in the note), which in the Paris MS. stand as

> Teus i a qui vous cantent de la Reonde Table,
> Des manteaux anjoulés, de samis et de sable;
> Mais jou ne vous voel dire ne mensonge ne fable.
> En escrist la fist la bone dame Orable > Dedens les murs d'Orange la fort cité mirable;

and in the London MS. as

> Telȝ y a qui nous chantent de la Ronde table,
> Des manteaulx angolés, de samin et de sable;
> Mais je ne vous diray ne menco*u*ge ne flabe; [sic]
> Quer il est en ystoire, cest chose veritable,
> En escript le fist mettre la bonne dame orable.

Again, the description of the birth of the children occupies but four lines in the MS. quoted by M. Paris:

> Au naistre des enfans set fées y avoit
> Qui les enfans faerent, si com lor avenroit
> Et quant l'uns des enfans après l'autre nascoit
> Au col une caïne de blanc argent avoit;

but the Shrewsbury book gives eight to them and Matabrune:

> Au naistre des enfans nulle femme ny avoit
> Fors une vielle dame qui eu Dieu pou creoit
> Mere estoit au Se*igneur*, la royne fort hayoit,
> A amasser avoir tout son penser estoit.
> La dame se delivre a paine et a destroit;
> L'un enfant à pres lautre si com dieu le voulloit,

Digitized by Google

Si com l'un enfant à pres lautre naissoit,
Au col une chaine de fin argent avoit.

The account of the sorrowful leavetaking of Helyas and his Beatrice is thus ended in the Paris and London MS. respectively—

Là plorent vavassor et prince et castelain,
Oncques n'en ot à Blaives si grant duel por Audain,
Quant fut morte de duel por son cousin germain.

Lors pleurent prevost et chastelain,
Dames et pucelle, noblez et vilain;
Plus de c se pasmerent sur le terrain.

The name Helyas (in its various forms of Helias, Helius, Helis or Elis, Elias, and Salvius) is derived by Mr Baring-Gould from the Keltic Ala, Eala, Ealadh, a Swan. See his "Curious Myths of the Middle Ages" (2nd Series, 1868), which contains an interesting treatise on the Legend of the Knight of the Swan.

In further illustration of my subject I will mention that the museum of the Maison de Cluny at Paris contains an ivory casket, the carvings on which represent a part of the story of our book. According to M. Francisque Michel, its date is of the end of the 13th or beginning of the 14th century. It is not nearly so full in its details as the Tyntesfield casket, but is interesting as giving additional evidence of the popularity of the legend of the CHEVALIER AU CYGNE.

H. H. GIBBS.

2 Sept., 1870.

Digitized by Google

.;. CHEUELERE .;. ASSIGNE .;.

[Cotton MS. Caligula A. ii., fol. 125 b.]

¶ Alle weldynge god · whenne it is his wylle, — God Almighty guards us,
Wele he wereth his · werke with his owne honde:
For ofte harmes were hente · þat helpe we ne myȝte;
Nere þe hyȝnes of hym · þat lengeth in heuene.
For this I saye by a lorde · was lente in an yle, — as we see by the story of King Oryens,
That was kalled lyor · a londe by hym selfe.
The kynge hette oryens · as þe book tellethe;
And his qwene bewtrys · þat bryȝt was & shene: — and Beatrice his queen, and his mother Matabryne.
¶ His moder hyȝte Matabryne · þat made moche sorwe;
For she sette her affye · in Sathanas of helle.
This was chefe of þe kynde · of cheualere assygne;
And whenne þey sholde in-to a place · it seyth fulle wele where,
Sythen aftur his lykynge · dwellede he þere,
Withe his owne qwene · þat he loue myȝte:
But alle in langour he laye · for lofe of here one,
That he hadde no chylde · to cheuenne his londis; — He had no child to succeed him,
¶ But to be lordeles of his · whenne he þe lyf lafte: — which was a grief.
And þat honged in his herte · I heete þe for sothe.

Line 5. See note on l. 23.

6. lyor. In the French poem it is Lilefort, and in Copland also.

7—9. The King is called Oriant in the French version, and the Queen Bietrix, and the King's mother Matebrune.

11. 'This' must mean 'this King.'

12. I cannot make sense of this line. 'Sholde' = should go, and 'it' means the book.

18. honged in his herte = weighed upon his mind.

Digitized by Google

The King and the Queen, talking on the wall, see beneath them a woman with her twins,

As þey wente vp-on a walle · pleynge hem one,
Bothe þe kynge & þe qwene · hem selfen to-gedere:
The kynge loked a-downe · & by-helde vnder,
And seyȝ a pore wo*m*man · at þe ȝate Sytte,
With*e* two chylderen her by-fore · were borne at a byrthe;

whereat he weeps.

And he t*ur*ned hym þe*n*ne · & teres lette he falle.
¶ Sythen sykede he on-hyȝe · & to þe qwene sayde,
'Se ȝe þe ȝonder pore wo*m*man · how þ*at* she is pyned
With*e* twynlenges two · & þ*at* dare I my hedde wedde.'

The Queen says she disbelieves in twins. Each must have a father.

The qwene nykked hym w*ith* nay · & seyde 'it is not to leue:
Oon ma*n*ne for oon chylde · & two wy*m*men for tweyne;
Or ellis hit were vnsemelye þynge · as me wolde þenke,
But eche chylde hadde a fader · how manye so þer were.'

The King rebukes her,

The kynge rebukede here for her worþes ryȝte þere;
¶ And whe*n*ne it drowȝ towarde þe nyȝte · þey we*n*ten to bedde;

and at night begets on her reasonably many children,

He gette on here þ*at* same nyȝte · resonabullye manye.
The kynge was witty · whe*n*ne he wysste her w*ith* chylde,
And þankede lowely our lorde · of his loue & his sonde.

19. walle. The French has 'tour.'

23. Chaucer frequently omits the relative, as is done here.

26. 'is pyned' must mean 'has travailed,' or been in pain.

28. it is not to leue. The edition of 1820 has lene. In the French it is vous parlez de neant.

29. This means, 'One man can beget but one child, nor can one woman have more than one at a time by the same man. Two honestly-begotten children must needs have two mothers.' Twins were once thought to reflect on the mother's chastity.

The French poem has

Sa deux hommes ne sest livree charnellement.

31. how manye so = howso[ever] many.

32. ryȝte there = On the spot.

33 & 37. drowȝ and drowȝe. 'The correct form is drow.'—R. Morris.

34. He gette, &c. It is printed gotte in the Roxb. ed., but the word is plainly gette in the MS. The French has

Engendra le seigneur en la dame vaillant vij enfans celle nuit en ung engendrement.

Digitized by Google

But whenne it drowȝe to þe tyme · she shulde be delyuered,
Ther moste no womman come her nere · but she þat was cursed,
His moder matabryne · þat cawsed moche sorowe;
For she thowȝte to do þat byrthe · to a fowle ende.
¶ Whenne god wolde þey were borne · þenne browȝte she to honde
Sex semelye sonnes · & a dowȝter þe seueneth, to wit, six sons and a daughter,

.;. MATABRYNE. .;. [Fol. 126.]

Alle safe & alle sounde · & a seluer cheyne
Eche on of hem hadde · a-bowte his swete swyre.
And she lefte hem out · & leyde hem in a cowche;

with silver chains about their necks.

And þenne she sente after a man · þat markus was called,
That hadde serued her-seluen · skylfully longe:
He was trewe of his feyth · & loth for to tryfulle;
¶ She knewe hym for swych · & triste hym þe better;
And seyde, 'þou moste kepe counselle · & helpe what þou may:
The fyrste grymme water · þat þou to comeste,
Looke þou caste hem þer-In · & lete hym forthe slyppe:
Sythen seche to þe courte · as þou nowȝte hadde sene,
And þou shalt lyke fulle wele · yf þou may lyfe after.'

But Matabryne sends for her man Marcus, and bids him drown the children.

39. 'þat cawsed moche sorowe.' These words, and 'the cursede man in his feyth,' are, like the Homeric ποδας ωκυς and ποιμενα λαων, applied as a sort of verse-tag to fill up the line, and serve as constant epithets respectively to Matabryne and Malkedras.

40. do.. to a fowle ende. See l. 188. As in Shakespere, Much Ado about Nothing, V. 3: 'Done to death with slanderous tongues.'

45. lefte = lifted.

46. Markus, called Marques and Maroon in the French poem.

49. knewe, should be knew; the e is superfluous; but it is so in the MS.

49. swych. Wrongly printed swyth in the Roxb. ed.

triste. Wrongly printed tristed, in the same, moste; the e is superfluous.

50. kepe counselle = be secret.

52. hym for hem.

53. seche = betake thyself. Comp. Ezekiel xiv. 10, 'him that seeketh unto him.'

54. lyke full wele = be well-liking = prosper. Comp. 'fat and well-liking,' Ps. xcii. 13; 'worse-liking,' Daniel i. 10. 'I believe the original construction was, "And it shal like þe ful wel" = and it shall please thee full well. See l. 134.'—R. Morris.

Digitized by Google

Marcus grieves, but dares not disobey.

Whenne he herde þat tale · hym rewede þe tyme;
But he durste not werne · what þe qwene wolde.
¶ The kynge lay in langour · sum gladdenes to here;
But þe fyrste tale þat he herde · were tydynges febulle,
Whenne his moder matabryne · browȝte hym tydynge.
At a chamber dore · as she forthe sowȝte,

She takes seven whelps,

Seuenne whelpes she sawe · sowkynge þe dammc,
And she kawȝte out a knyfe · & kylled þe bycche;
She caste her þenne in a pytte · & takethe þe welpes,
And sythen come byfore þe kynge · & vp on-hyȝe she seyde, and shows 'em to the King as the Queen's offspring, and bids him have her burnt.

¶ 'Sone paye þe with þy qwene · & se of her berthe.'
Thenne syketh þe kynge · & gynnythe to morne,
And wente wele it were sothe · alle þat she seyde.
Thenne she seyde, 'lette brenne her a-none · for þat is þe beste.'

He refuses.

'Dame, she is my wedded wyfe · fulle trewe as I wene,
As I haue holde her er þis · our lorde so me helpe!'

She vituperates.

'A, kowarde of kynde,' quod she · '& combred wrecche!
Wolt þou werne wrake · to hem þat hit deseruethe?'

He says, 'Stow her where thou wilt, so that I see it not.'

¶ 'Dame, þanne take here þy selfe · & sette her wher þe lykethe,
So þat I se hit noȝte · what may I seye elles?'
Thenne she wente her forthe · þat god shalle confounde,

She falls foul of the Queen,

To þat febulle per she laye · & felly she bygynnethe,
And seyde, 'a-ryse wrecched qwene · & reste þe her no lengur;
Thow hast by-gylethe my sone · it shalle þe werke sorowe:
Bothe howndes & men · haue hadde þe a wylle:
Thow shalt to prisoun fyrste · & be brente aftur.'

60. sowȝte. See note on l. 53.
64. come. The correct form is com.
on-hyȝe = aloud.
68. lette brenne her = have her burnt.
72. deserueth. As to this termination in -eth, see Preface, p. xvi.
75. See note on l. 190.
78. by-gylethe. The final e is unnecessary; but there is a contraction representing it in the MS.

Digitized by Google

¶ Thenne shrykede þe ȝonge qwene · & vp on hyȝ cryethe, — and, in spite of her moans,
'A, lady,' she seyde · 'where ar my lefe chylderen?'
Whenne she myssede hem þer · grete mone she made.
By þat come tytlye · tyrauntes tweyne,
And by þe byddynge of matabryne · a-non þey her hente,
And in a dymme prysoun · þey slongen here deepe, [Fol. 126 b.]
And leyde a lokke on þe dore · & leuen here þere: — has her thrown into prison,
Mete þey caste here a-downe · & more god sendethe. — where she lies eleven years.
¶ And þus þe lady lyuede þere · elleuen ȝere,
And mony a fayre orysoun · vn-to þe fader made,
That saued Susanne fro sorowefulle domus · [her] to saue als. — But God, who saved Susanna, hears her prayer also.
Now leue we þis lady in langour & pyne,
And turne aȝeyne to our tale · towarde þese chylderen,
And to þe man markus · þat murther hem sholde;
How he wente þorow a foreste · fowre longe myle, — Marcus takes the children to drown them.
Thylle he come to a watur · þer he hem shulde in drowne;
¶ And þer he keste vp þe clothe · to knowe hem bettur,
And þey ley & lowȝe on hym · louelye alle at ones: — But they look on him in lovely wise,
'He þat lendethe wit,' quod he · 'leyne me wyth sorowe, — and he won't,
If I drowne ȝou to day · thowghe my deth be nyȝe.'
Thenne he leyde hem adowne · lappedde in þe mantelle, — but leaves them all wrapped in a mantle, and commends them to Christ.
And lappede hem, & hylyde hem · & hadde moche rewthe,
That swyche a barmeteme as þat · shulde so be-tyde.
Thenne he takethe hem to criste · & aȝeyne turnethe.

81. See note on l. 64.

84. By þat = by that time, then.

tyrauntes. The French poem has Sers (serfs).

86. slongen. Roxb. ed. has flongen, which is an error of transcription.

90. This particular orison, with Susanna for its example, finds a place in the French poem, not at this point, but during the procession from the city to the place of burning, Matabryne's remark thereon being 'ça ne vault ung bouton.'

91. domus. This might be a miswriting for 'dom (= doom) us,' as the former edition reads it; but it is, no doubt, a plural in us, the word her having slipped out.

99. wit. Wrongly printed wth in the former edition.

103. swyche. See note on l. 49.

Digitized by Google

¶ But sone þe mantelle was vn-do · with mengynge of her legges ;
They cryedde vp on-hyȝe · with a dolefulle steuenne,
They chyuered for colde · as cheuerynge chyldreñ,
A hermit hears them sob, They ȝoskened, & cryde out · & þat a man herde,
An holy hermyte was by · & towarde hem comethe :
Whenne he come by-tore hem · on knees þenne he felle, and cries to Christ for succour; And cryede ofte vpon cryste · for somme sokour hym to sende,
If any lyfe were hem lente · in þis worlde lengur.
a hind comes and suckles them; ¶ Thenne an hynde kome fro þe woode · rennynge fulle swyfte,
And felle be-fore hem adowñe · þey drowȝe to þe pappes ;
The heremyte prowde was þer-of · & putte hem to sowke :
and the hermit takes them home and tends them. Sethen taketh he hem vp · & þe hynde folowethe,
And she kepte hem þere · whylle our lorde wolde.
Thus he noryscheth hem vp · & criste hem helpe sendethe.
Of sadde leues of þe wode · wrowȝte he hem wedes.
Malkedras the Forester passes and sees them, Malkedras þe fostere · þe fende mote hym haue,
¶ That cursedde man for his feythe · he come þer þey wereñ,
And was ware in his syȝte · syker of þe chyldren ;
He turnede aȝeyn to þe courte · & tolde of þe chaunce, tells Matabryne, And menede byfore matabryne · how mony þer were.
'And more merueyle þenne þat · Dame, a seluere cheyne
Eche on of hem hath · abowte here swyre.'
She seyde, 'holde þy wordes in chaste · þat none skape ferther ;
I wylle soone aske hym · þat hath me betrayed.'

119. sadde leues of þe wode. Fr. feuilles de loriers.

120. Malkedras is called in the French MS. Malquarrez and Mauquarro.

124. menede. Wrongly printed meuede in the Roxb. ed.

127. holde thy wordes in chaste = be silent.

Digitized by Google

¶ Thenne she sente aftur markus · þat murther hem sholde; — who questions Marcus,
And askede hym, in good feythe · what felle of þe chyldren:
Whenne she hym asked hadde · he seyde, 'here þe sothe;
Dame, on a ryueres banke · lapped in my mantelle, 132 — and, hearing the truth, has his eyes put out;
I lafte hem lyynge there · leue þou for sothe:
I myȝte not drowne hem for dole · do what þe lykes.'
Thenne she made here alle preste · & (putt) out bothe hys yen.
Moche mone was therfore · but no man wyte moste. 136
¶ 'Wende þou aȝeyne malkedras · & gete me þe cheynes, — sends Malkedras to take the chains,
And withe þe dynte of þy swerde · do hem to dethe; — and slay the children.
And I shalle do þe swych a turne · & þou þe tyte hyȝe,
That þe shalle lyke ryȝte wele · þe terme of þy lyue.' 140
Thenne þe hatefulle thefe · hyed hym fulle faste,
The cursede man in his feythe · come þer þey were.
By þenne was þe hermyte go in-to þe wode · & on of — He finds but six, one being away with the hermit.
þe childreñ,
For to seke mete · for þe other sex, 144
¶ Whyles þe cursed man · asseylde þe other:
And he out withe his swerde · & smote of þe cheynes. — He smites off the chains; and the children change into swans.
They stoden alle stylle · for stere þey ne durste;
And whenne þe cheynes felle hem fro · þey floweñ vp swannes 148
To þe ryuere by-syde · withe a rewfulle steuenne.
And he takethe vp þe cheynes · & to þe cowrte turnethe,
And come by-fore þe qwene · & here hem bytakethe:
Thenne she toke hem in honde · & heelde ham fulle stylle; 152
¶ She sente aftur a golde-smyȝte · to forge here a cowpe;

133. leue. Wrongly printed lene in the edition of 1820.
135. The Roxb. ed. omits putt, which has been added in the margin of the MS. by the original scribe.
138. do. See note on l. 40.
140. See note on l. 54.

Digitized by Google

The old Queen gives the chains to a goldsmith to make a cup of.

And whenne þe man was comen · þenne was þe qwene blythe,
And delyuered hym his weyȝtes · & he from cowrte wendes :
She badde þe wesselle were made · vpoñ alle wyse :
The goldesmyȝth goothe & beetheth hym a fyre · & brekethe a cheyne,

One chain multiplies so in the melting-pot, that half of one suffices.

And it wexeth in hys honde · & multyplyethe swyde :
He toke þat oþur fyue · & fro þe fyer hem leyde,
And made hollye þe cuppe · of haluendelle þe sixte.
¶ And whenne it drowȝe to þe nyȝte · he wendethe to bedde,

The goldsmith tells his wife, and asks her counsel.

And thus he seythe to his wyfe · in sawe as I telle.
'The olde qwene at þe courte · hathe me bytaken
Six cheynes in honde · & wolde haue a cowpe ;
And I breke me a cheyne · & halfe leyde in þe fyer,
And it wexedde in my honde · & wellede so faste,
That I toke þe oþur fyve · & fro þe fyer caste,
And haue made hollye þe cuppe · of haluendele þe sixte.'

She says, 'Keep the rest! The Queen has full weight. What would she have more?' [Fol. 127 b.]

¶ 'I rede þe,' quod his wyfe · 'to holden hem stylle ;
Hit is þorowe þe werke of god · or þey be wronge wonneñ ;
For whenne here mesure is made · what may she aske more?'

He gives the old Queen the cup and the half chain.

And he dedde as she badde · & buskede hym at morwe ;
He come by-fore þe qwene · & bytaketh here þe cowpe,
And she toke it in honde · & kepte hit fulle clene.
'Nowe lefte ther ony ouur vn-werkethe · by þe better trowthe?'
And he recheth her forth · haluendele a cheyne :

162. The conversation between the goldsmith and his wife is much longer and more dramatic in our poem than in the French.

170. þorowe. Wrongly printed Thowe in the Roxb. ed.

170. wronge wonnen = wrongly (i. e. wrongfully) acquired.

176. recheth. Misprinted recketh. forth. Misprinted ferth in the Roxb. ed.

Digitized by Google

¶ And she rawȝte hit hym aȝeyne · & seyde she ne rowȝte; — She gives him the half chain and his pay.
But delyuered hym his seruyse · & he out of cowrte wendes.
'The curteynesse of criste,' quod she · 'be with þese oþur cheynes! 179
They be delyuered out of þis worlde · were þe moder eke,
Thenne hadde I þis londe · hollye to myne wylle:
Now alle wyles shalle fayle · but I here dethe werke.'
At morn she come byfore þe kynge · & by ganne fulle keene; 183 — She scolds the King for leaving his Queen so long unburnt,
'Moche of þis worlde sonne · wondrethe on þe allone,
¶ That thy qwene is vnbrente · so meruelows longe,
That hath serued þe dethe · if þou here dome wyste:
Lette sommene þy folke · vpon eche a syde, — and bids him summon his folk.
That þey bene at þy syȝte · þe .xj. day assygned.' 188
And he here graunted þat · withe a grymme herte; — He grieves; but grants it.
And she wendeth here adowñ · & lette hem a-none warne.
The nyȝte byfore þe day · þat þe lady shulde brenne, — The night before the burning comes an angel to the hermit.
An Angelle come to þe hermyte · & askede if he slepte:
¶ The angelle seyde, 'criste sendeth þe worde · of þese six chyldreñ; 193
And for þe sauynge of hem · þanke þou haste seruethe:
They were þe kynges Oriens · wytte þou for sothe,

179. 'Puis dist entre ses dens assez bassetement
Bien suis de ceulx delivre alez sont voirement
Se leur mere estoit arse ne me chauldroit neant.
And then,' she continues, 'by my enchantments I will cause that my son never marries again, and so I shall have all the land at my command.'

186. serued. In the Roxb. ed. this is erroneously printed dyserved.

if thou here dome wyste = if thou knewest what her sentence ought to be.

190. wendeth here. 'wend' is here used reflexively as 'went' is in l. 75, and 'hyȝe' in l. 141, after the French s'en alla. Comp. Shaksp. 2 Gent. of Ver. IV. 4: 'I . . goes me to the fellow.' The phrase in the text seems to make it more probable that this me is the personal, and not the indeterminate pronoun.

194. þanke þou haste seruethe = thou hast deserved thanks. The final e is too much. See note on l. 78.

195. They were the kynges Oriens = Thèy were [the children] of the King Oriens. This expression is not unlike that in Wm. of Palerne, l. 5437: þemperours moder Wil*l*iam.

Digitized by Google

Tells him that the six swan-children are sons of Oryens and Beatrice.

By his wyfe Betryce · she bere hem at ones,
For a worde on þe walle · þat she wronge seyde;
And ȝonder in þe ryuer · swymmen þey swannes;
Sythen Malkedras þe forsworn þefe · byrafte hem her cheynes:

But that Christ formed the other child to fight for his mother.

And criste hath formeth þis chylde · to fyȝte for his moder.'

¶ 'Oo-lyuynge god þat dwellest in heuene' · quod þe hermyte þanne,

'How can this be?'

'How sholde he serue for suche a þynge · þat neuur none syȝe?'

'Take him to Court and have him christened Enyas.'

'Go brynge hym to his fader courte · & loke þat he be cristened;
And kalle hym Enyas to name · for awȝte þat may be-falle,
Ryȝte by þe mydday · to redresse his moder;
For goddes wylle moste be fulfylde · & þou most forthe wende.'

The heremyte wakynge lay · & thowȝte on his wordes:
Soone whenne þe day come · to þe chylde he seyde,

The hermit tells the child what he is to do, what a mother is, [Fol. 128.]

¶ 'Criste hath formeth þe sone · to fyȝte for þy moder.'
He asskede hymm þanne · what was a moder.
'A wommman þat bare þe to man · sonne, & of her reredde:'
'Ȝe, kanste þou, fader, enforme me · how þat I shalle fyȝte?'
'Vpon a hors,' seyde þe heremyte · 'as I haue herde seye.'

201. Oo. Wrongly printed To in the former edition. Oo-lyuynge = ever-living.

202. þynge. Wrongly printed ȝnge in the former edition.

204. Enyas; not Ænyas, as in the old edition. The French poem has Elyas or Helyas, which latter is the name given him in the English prose Romance.

A line seems to be omitted between 204 and 205, such as

'Let hym cair to þe court · þer þe kynge dwellethe.'

210. The conversation between the hermit and the child is more full in the English than in the French poem.

211. A very cramped line. 'A woman that bare thee to man, [my] son; and [thou wast] by her reared.'

'It means, "bare thee so that thou becamest a man." Such is the regular idiom; [God] wrouȝt me to man = formed thee so that thou becamest a man, fashioned thee in man's shape; occurs in Piers Plowman, A. Pass. i. l. 80.'—W. W. S.

'Beau filz cest une femme quen ses flans te porta.'

Digitized by Google

'What beste is þat?' quod þe chylde · 'lyonys wylde? and what a horse, on which he is to fight.
Or elles wode? or watur' · quod þe chylde þanne.
'I seyȝe neuur none,' quod þe hermyte · 'but by þe mater of bokes:
¶ They seyn he hath a feyre hedde · & fowre lymes hye;
And also he is a frely beeste · for-thy he man seruethe.'
'Go we forthe, fader,' quod þe childe 'vpon goddes halfe!' The child is willing, and they go forth on their way.
The grypte eyþur a staffe in here honde · & on here wey strawȝte.
Whenne þe heremyte hym lafte · an angelle hym suwethe, The hermit leaves the child, and an angel goes with him and counsels him.
Euur to rede þe chylde · vpon his ryȝte sholder.
Thenne he seeth in a felde · folke gaderynge faste, The child sees a great crowd and a fire kindled in a field,
And a hyȝ fyre was þer bette · þat þe qwene sholde in brenne,
¶ And noyse was in þe cyte · felly lowde, and a great troop bringing the Queen from the city.
With trumpes & tabers · whenne þey here vp token;
The olde qwene at here bakke · betynge fulle faste;
The kynge come rydynge a-fore · a forlonge & more; The King rides in front.
The chylde stryketh hym to · & toke hym by þe brydelle:
'What man arte þou?' quod þe chylde · '& who is þat þe svethe?' 'Who art thou? and who are these?' quoth the child.

215. Or else [a] wood[-beast], or [a] water[-beast]?

219. Comp. William of Palerne, l. 2803, 'Go we now on goddes halve.'

220. The grypte eyþur = They each seized.

221. suwethe. The Roxb. editor has mistaken this for seemeth.

221-2. rede. Here we find ride in the former edition; but besides that it is not so written, the French original shows that it must be as in the text. This incident of the angel does not find its place here, in the French poem. There, it is when the child accosts the King that the author says,—

Homme fol et sauvaige a merveilles sembloit
Lange a dieu le pere sur lespaule seoit
Que ce quil devoit dire trop bien lui enseignoit.

224. brenne. The final e is illegible, being obliterated by a blot of ink.

bette. Comp. Sir Aldingar, l. 53 (Percy folio, vol. i. p. 168), 'And fayre fyer there shalbe bette.'

227. A tant est Matebrune qui a-maine a grant cris
Batant la bonne dame qui eust nom Bietrix.

230. Here in the French poem follows,

'Le roy . . .
Voulentiers en eust ris mais trop dolent estoit.'

He then asks the child what his own name is; and he answers that he has no name, except that with the hermit his name has been always Beau filz. Comp. Libius Disconius, ll. 25—30 and 62—66. Percy folio, vol. ii. p. 416 and 418.

Digitized by Google

'I am þe kynge of þis londe · & oryens am kalled,
The King answers, and tells the story. And þe 3ondur is my qwene · betryce she hette,
¶ In þe 3ondere balowe fyre · is buskedde to brenne;
She was sklawnndered on-hy3e · þat she hadde takeñ howndes;
And 3yf she hadde so doñ · here harm were not to charge.'
'Thou dost ill to be led by Matabryne. 'Thenne were þou no3t ry3[t]lye sworne,' quod þe chylde · 'vpon ry3te Iuge, Whenne þou tokest þe þy crowne · kynge whenne þou made were,
To done aftur matabryne · for þenne þou shalt mysfare,
She is fell and false, and shall go to the fiend. For she is fowle felle & fals · & so she shalle be fowndeñ,
And bylefte with þe fend · at here laste ende,
¶ That styked styffe in here brestes · þat wolde þe qwene brenne:
I am but 12 years old, but I will fight for the Queen.' I am but lytulle & 3onge,' quod þe chylde · 'leeue þou forsothe,
Not but twelfe 3ere olde · eueñ at þis tyme,
And I wolle putte my body · to better & to worse,
To fy3te for þe qwene · with whome þat wronge seythe.'
The King is content. Thenne graunted þe kynge · & Ioye he bygynnethe,
If any helpe were þer-Inne · þat here clensen my3te.
The old Queen rebukes him. By þat come þe olde qwene · & badde hym com þenne:

233. 3ondere. Misprinted 3onders in the Roxb. ed.

235. hadde is erroneously printed shadde in the Roxb. ed.

here harm were not to charge = her death would not be a matter of concern to any one. 'Charge, in Chaucer, = a matter of difficulty, a matter of consideration.'—R. M.

236-7. The French corresponding to this passage is,

Arse! Dieu dist lenfant, fait as folle iugement
Nas pas a droit iuge comme roy loyaument.

vpon ry3te Iuge = [hast not] rightly judged. These words are evidence that the French poem was the original of the English one; our poet having apparently taken the word Iuge into his text without translating it.

243. Not but = only. In modern Lancashire, no but, or not but.

245. with whom [soever it be] that wrong saith [of her].

248. þenne = thence.

Digitized by Google

¶ 'To speke with suche on as he · þou mayste ryȝth lothe thenke.'

'A, dame,' q*uod* þe kynge : 'thowȝte ȝe none synne?
Thow haste for-sette þe ȝonge qwene · þou knoweste welle þe sothe:
This chylde þ*at* I here speke withe · seyth þ*at* he wolle preue
That þou nother þy sawes · certeyne be neyther.'
And þenne she lepte to hym · & kawȝte hym by þe
lokke;
That þer leued in here honde · heres an hondredde.
'A, by lyuynge god,' q*uod* þe childe · 'þ*at* bydeste in heuene,

¶ Thy hedde shalle lye on þy lappe · for þy false t*ur*nes.
I aske a felawe anone · a freshe knyȝte aft*ur*,
For to fyȝte with me · to dryue owte þe ryȝte.'
'A, boy,' q*uod* she, 'wylt þou so · þou shalt sone
myskarye;

He speaks up for his Queen, and [Fol. 128 b.] tells what the child says.

Matabryne rushes at the child and tears his hair.

'Thy head shall lie in thy lap!' quoth he. 'Give me a man to fight with!'

254. hym, sc. the child. The passage in the French poem is curious, the writer exhibiting the rage of the contending parties by a furious succession of rimes in -aige, the Norman pronunciation of -age.

Mere ce dist le roy vous nestes mie saige
Veez a ung enfant qui bien semble sauvaige
Qui dit que peche faictes et ennuy et hontaige
Que vous la dame a tort vous mettez sur putaige
Quant la vielle lentent a pou quelle nenrage
Aux cheveulx prent lenfant plus de c. en arrache
Dieu aide dist lenfant ci a mal a comtaige
Ceste vielle hideuse a en son corps la raige
Plus fait a redoubter que mil lyon sauvaige.
La glorieuse dame en qui dieu print umbraige
Menroye en cor vengence de ce villain hontaige;
Ce ne me faisoit mie mon pere en lermitaige.
Tous ceulx qui lont oy huchent en leur langaige
Ha: roy de orient ne souffrez tel hontaige;
Li enfant dit assez par les sains de cartaige.
Roy tien a lenfant droit bien pert de hault paraige,
Nulz homs ne puet mieulx dire tant soit de grant langaige,
Dieu te la envoye pour dire cest messaige.

256. bydeste. Sic in MS. 'It is probably thrown in parenthetically, and addressed to God. So in Havelok,

"Ihesu crist, þat made mone,
Þine dremes turne to ioye [sone]
Þat wite þw that sittes in trone."

It is very abrupt, certainly.'—W. W. S. In Havelok also, there is a Thou in the former part of the sentence, but here there is none.

Digitized by Google

'Ha! boy! I'll get me a man that shall mar thee.'

I wylle gete me a man · þat shalle þe sone marre.'
She turneth her þenne to malkedras · & byddyth hym take armes,

She sends Malkedras.

And badde hym bathe his spere · in þe boyes herte:
And he of suche one · gret skorne he þowȝte.

An Abbot christens the child Enyas.

¶ An holy abbot was þer-by · & he hym þeder bowethe,
For to cristen þe chylde · frely & feyre;
The abbot maketh hym a fonte · & was his godfader,
The erle of auñthepas · he was another,
The countes of salamere · was his godmoder;
They kallede hym Enyas to name · as þe book tellethe:
Mony was þe ryche ȝyfte · þat þey ȝafe hym aftur:

The bells ring of themselves all the fight through, betokening that Christ was well pleased.

Alle þe bellys of þe close · rongen at ones
¶ Withe-oute ony mannes helpe · whyle þe fyȝte lasted;
Wherefore þe wyste welle · þat criste was plesed with here dede.
Whenne he was cristened · frely & feyre,

The King dubs Enyas knight.

Aftur, þe kynge dubbede hym knyȝte · as his kynde wolde:
Thenne prestly he prayeth þe kynge · þat he hym lene wolde

The King lends him his good steed Feraunce, and armour, and a shield with a cross on it.

An hors with his harnes · & blethelye he hym graunte-ethe:
Thenne was feraunce fette forthe · þe kynges price stede,
And out of an hyȝe towre · armour þey halenne;
¶ And a whyte shelde with a crosse · vpon þe posse honged,
And hit was wryten þer-vpon · þat to enyas hit sholde:

261. marre. This is written in the MS. with a long r in the second place; and the former editor mistook it for a y, and wrote the word marye. The word 'miscarrye' in the line above might have undeceived him, for it also has the long r, followed by a real y.

262. þenne. Printed thence in the Roxb. ed.

265. An holy abbot. 'L'Abbe Gautier,' says the French book.

271. ȝyfte. This is misprinted ȝyste in the 1820 edition.

274. welle. Misprinted welt in the other edition.

279. Feraunce is Ferrant in the French poem.

281. posse. Perhaps miswritten for poste, as Utterson has printed it: it is, however, so written in the MS. Ayenbyte of Inwyt.

282. hit sholde [belong].

Digitized by Google

And whenne he was armed · to alle his ryȝtes,
Thenne prayde he þe kynge · þat he hym lene wolde
Oon of his beste menne · þat he moste truste,
To speke with hym but · a speche whyle.
A knyȝte kawȝte hym by þe honde · & ladde hym of þe rowte :
'What beeste is þis,' quod þe childe · 'þat I shalle on houe ?'
¶ 'Hit is called an hors,' quod þe knyȝte · 'a good & an abulle.'
'Why etethe he yren ?' quod þe chylde · 'wylle he ete noȝthe elles ?
And what is þat on his bakke · of byrthe, or on boundeñ ?'
'Nay, þat in his mowthe · men kallen a brydelle,
And that a sadelle on his bakke · þat þou shalt in sytte.'
'And what heuy kyrtelle is þis · withe holes so thykke ?
And þis holowe [on] on my hede · I may noȝt wele here.'
'An helme men kallen þat on · & an hawberke þat other.'
¶ 'But what broode on is þis on my breste · hit bereth adowñ my nekke.'
'A bryȝte shelde & a sheene · to shylde þe fro strokes.'
'And what longe on is þis · that I shalle vp lyfte ?'
'Take þat launce vp in þyn honde · & loke þou hym hytte ;

Enyas takes counsel with a Knight whom the King lends him, and learns what is a horse,

a saddle, a bridle, a hawberk, a helm, a shield, a lance, and a [Fol. 129.] sword ; and how to use them.

'See thou hit him.'

285. truste, pf. of trust ; it is triste in l. 49.

286. a speche whyle. Comp. Shaksp. Two Gent. of Verona, IV. 3.

287. of = from out of.

288. houe. The Roxb. editor reads hone, and takes it to be the O.E. Hon = to hang, but it is doubtless Hove = abide, be.

290. The child puts this question to the King, in the French poem.

291. of byrthe = congenital, born with him, natural.

295. wele. This word is added in the margin in a later hand. It is omitted in the edition of 1820.

holowe = hollow one : the on has dropped out, because of the preposition following. See ll. 297, 299.

296. þat other. Misprinted þe other in the 1820 edition.

Digitized by Google

And whenne þat shafte is schyuered · take scharpelye another.'

'and if we come to ground?' '3e, what yf grace be · we to grownde wenden?'

'A-ryse vp ly3tly on þe fete · & reste þe no leng*ur*;

'Get up again. Draw thy sword, smite him with the edge, smred him in pieces.' And þe*n*ne plukke out þy swerde · & pele on hym faste, ¶ Alle-wey eggelynges dowñ · on alle þat þou fyndes;
His ryche helm nor his swerde · rekke þou of neyþ*ur*;
Lete þe sharpe of þy swerde · schreden hym smalle.'

'But won't he smite again?' 'But wolle not he smyte a3eyne · whe*n*ne he feleth smerte?'

'That will he! never mind! smite off his head!' '3ys, I knowe hym fulle wele · bothe kenely & faste:
Eu*ur* folowe þou on þe flesh · tylle þou haste hym fallethe;
And sythen smyte of his heede · I kan sey þe no furre.'
'Now þou haste taw3te me,' q*uod* þe childe · 'god I þe beteche:
¶ For now I kan of þe crafte · more þe*n*ne I kowthe.'

They run together, shiver their spears, The*n*ne þey maden Raunges · & roññen to-gedere,
That þe speres in here hondes · shyuereden̄ to peces;
And for [to] renñene a3eyn · men raw3ten hem other,
Of balowe tymbere & bygge · þat wolde not breste;
And eyther of hem · so smer[t]lye smote other, smash their armour, and upset each other. That alle fleye in þe felde · þat on hem was fastened,

And eyther of hem topseyle · tumbledde to þe erthe;

The horses run round the lists. ¶ The*n*ne here horses ro*n*nen forth · aft*ur* þe raunges,
Eu*ur* ferauñce by-forne · & þat other aft*ur*;

302. 3e. Misprinted Se in the edition of 1820.

303. ly3tly. Misprinted ly3t in 1820.

305. eggelynges = edgewise. With the edge. The contrary of 'flatlings.'

307. sharpe = sharp edge.

309. 3ys = yes. Its use here instead of 3e, as in l. 302, is due to the negative in the question.

310. fallethe = felled.

316. rennene may be rennenge, sb.; but more probably the line should be as above, the to having been accidentally omitted by the scribe.

320. topseyle. Sic in MS. Top = head,—as we say, 'from top to toe.' Should it be perhaps 'topteyle'? Comp. Wm. of Palerne, l. 2776:

'Set hire a sad strok so sore in þe necke
þat sche top ouer tail tombled ouer þe hacches.'

321. ro*n*nen. Misprinted rennen in the Roxb. ed.

322. Le destrier Elyas va, lautre poursuivant.

Digitized by Google

Feraunce launces vp his fete · & lasschethe out his yeñ :

The fyrste happe, other hele · was þat · þat þe chylde hadde, 324

Feraunce lashes out and blinds the other horse.

Whenne þat þe chylde þat hym bare · blente hadde his fere :

Thenne thei styrte vp on hy · with staloworth shankes,
Pulledde out her swerdes · & smoten to-gedur.
'Kepe þy swerde fro my croyse' · quod cheuelrye assygne : 328

Enyas and Malkedras start up and draw their swords. 'Beware my cross!'

¶ 'I charde not þy croyse,' quod malkedras · 'þe valwe of a cherye ;

'I don't care a cherry for your cross!'

For I shalle choppe it fulle smalle · ere þenne þis werke ende.'

An edder sprongo out of his shelde · & in his body spynnethe ;
A fyre fruscheth out of his croys · & [f]rapte out his yen : 332

An adder strikes him from out the cross; and a fire thereout blinds him.

Thenne he stryketh a stroke · Cheualere assygne,
Eueñ his sholder in twoo · & dowñ in-to þe herte ;
And he bowethe hym dowñ · & ȝeldethe vp þe lyfe.
'I shalle þe ȝelde,' quod þe chylde · 'ryȝte as þe knyȝte me tawȝte.' 336

Enyas cuts him down and takes [Fol. 129 b.] off his head.

323. yeñ. The transcriber for the Roxb. ed. mistook the curl over the n (n)) for a d, as if it was rd, and wrote yerd, making nonsense of the line.

324. hele. The Roxb. ed. has fele ; which is wrong.

325. chylde. This word seems to have crept in by mistake. The sense and alliteration would require 'blonk' = steed.

326. Thenne thei. The Roxb. ed. has Thenne ether ; the transcriber having mistaken the last e in then for the beginning of the word ether.

staloworth. Miswritten for stalworth.

328. cheuelrye. Sic in MS.

330. benne = the time when.

331. Ung serpent a deux testes,
*oncques tel ne vit hom*me
. . . . saillit . . . . .
Tout droit a Mauquarre a sa veue se lance
Les deux testes lui crevent les deux yeulx sans doubtance.

332. rapte, in MS.; frapte, which is a common word enough, would suit the alliteration better.

333. Thenne. Sic in MS. The Roxb. ed. has whenne.

334. 'Schreding,' or some such word, is wanted instead of, or after, Even.

336. I shall þe ȝelde = I shall render unto thee = I shall serve thee, I shall requite thee.

Digitized by Google

¶ He trussethe his harneys fro þe nekke · & þe hede wynnethe;
Sythen he toke hit by þe lokkes · & in þe helm leyde;
Thoo thanked he our lorde lowely · þat lente hym þat grace.

Matabryne flees, but the child overtakes her and has her burnt to brown ashes.

Thenne sawe þe qwene matabryne · her man so murdered;
Turned her brydelle · & towarde þe towne rydethe;
The chylde folowethe here aftur · fersly & faste,
Sythen browȝte here aȝeyne · wo for to drye,
And brente here in þe balowe fyer · alle to browne askes.

The young Queen is unbound. Enyas tells his story to the King and Queen.

¶ The ȝonge qwene at þe fyre · by þat was vnbouñdeñ;
The childe kome byfore þe kynge · & on-hyȝe he seyde,
And tolde hym how he was his sone · '& opur sex childereñ,
By þe qwene betryce · she bare hem at ones,
For a worde on þe walle · þat she wronge seyde;
And ȝonder in a ryuere · swymmen þey swañnes;
Sythen þe forsworne thefe Malkadras · byrafte hem her cheynes.'

The goldsmith says he has five of the chains at home.

'By god,' quod þe goldsmythe · 'I knowe þat ryȝth wele;
¶ Fyve cheynes I haue · & þey ben fysh hole.'

They all go to the river and give the chains to the swans.

Nowe withe·þe goldsmyȝthe · gon alle þese knyȝtes,
Toke þey þe cheynes · & to þe watur turneñ,
And shoken vp þe cheynes · þer sterten vp þe swannes;

Each choosing his own, turns to his human form.

Eche on chese to his · & turneñ to her kynde:

All but one. He, for want of his chain, remained always a swan.

But on was alwaye a swanne · for losse of his cheyne.
Hit was doole for to se · þe sorowe þat he made;
He bote hym self with his bylle · þat alle his breste bledde,

345. by þat = by that time.

353. fysh hole = 'as sound as a roach,' as we say.

356. shoken. Sic in MS. The former edition has stroken.

357. turneñ. The former edition has turneden in this place; but not in l. 355.

chese to his = chose his own.

358. alwaye. Sic in MS. Edition of 1820 has always.

Digitized by Google

¶ And alle his feyre federes · fomede vpon blode,
And alle formerknes þe wat*ur* · þer þe swanne swymmethe :
There was ryche ne pore · þat myȝte for rewthe, — 'Twas sad to see his sorrow.
Lengere loke on hym · but to þe courte wendeñ. 364
Thenne þey formed a fonte · & cristene þe childreñ ; — They christen the children.
And callen Vryens þat on · and Oryens another,
Assakarye þe thrydde · & gadyfere þe fowrthe ;
The fyfte hette rose · for she was a maydeñ ; 368
The sixte was fulwedde · cheuelere assygne.
And þus þe botenynge of god · browȝte hem to honde.;. — So by God's help they were restored.

.;. EXPLICIT .;.

362. formerknes. If this is v. intr., and governed by the sb. water, it should have been by rights formerkeneth ; but if it is pl. and tr. governed by federes, it has borrowed the Northern -es termination instead of the Midland -en.

366. The names of the children in the French poem are Orions, Orient, Zacharias, Jehan, and Rosette.

369. was fulwedde = had been baptized already.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

ABBREVIATIONS.

Adj.	= Adjective.	Obj.	= Objective.
Adv.	= Adverb.	O.E.	= Old English, A. D. 500 —1200.
Allit.	= Early Engl. Alliterative Poems.	Pf.	= Perfect.
Art.	= Article.	Pl.	= Plural.
Comp.	= Comparative.	P. pt.	= Past Participle.
Conj.	= Conjunction.	Pers.	= Personal.
Cp.	= Compare.	Poss.	= Possessive.
Dem.	= Demonstrative.	Prep.	= Preposition.
Fem.	= Feminine.	Pron.	= Pronoun.
Fr.	= French.	Refl.	= Reflexive.
Gen.	= Genesis and Exodus.	Rel.	= Relative.
Germ.	= German.	Sb.	= Substantive.
Imp.	= Imperative.	Sc.	= Scottish.
Imp. pt.	= Imperfect Participle.	Sing.	= Singular.
Int.	= Interjection.	Tr.	= Transitive.
Intr.	= Intransitive.	V.	= Verb.

Wm. = William of Palerne.

A, interj. = Ah, 71, 82, 250, 255, 260.

A, art. 5, 6, &c. Perhaps as a numeral = one, 157, 165.

A, prep. = in, or on; O.E. & O. Sc. An. In l. 79 it means at.

Abbot, sb. 265.

Abowte, prep. 44, 126.

Abulle, adj. = fit, proper, able, 289.

Adowne, adv. = down, 21, 88, 101, 114; adown, 190, 297.

Affye, sb. = trust, 10.

Afore, adv. = in front, 228.

Aftur, prep. = along, 321; for, or in quest of, 46, 129, 153, 342; in accordance with, 13, 238; adv. = afterwards, 54, 80, 258, 271, 276; behind, 322.

Alle, adj. 43, 67, 98, &c.; adv. 15.

Alle-weldinge, adj. = Almighty, 1. O.E. Eal-wealdende.

Allewey. See Alwaye.

Allone, adj. = alone, 184.

Digitized by Google

Als, conj. = also, 91.

Also, conj. 218.

Alwaye, adv. 358; allewey, 305.

An, art. 5, 331, &c.

And, conj. 8, 18, &c. = an, if, 139.

Angelle, sb. 192, 193, 221.

Anon, adv. 85; anone, 68, 190, 258.

Another, adj. 268, 301, 366.

Ar, 3*d pl. pres. ind.* of v. Be, 82.

Armed, p. pt. of arm, v. tr. 283.

Armes, sb. pl. 262.

Armour, sb. 280.

Aryse, v. intr. 2*d sing. imper.* 77, 303.

As, conj. 7, 19, &c. = as though, 53.

Aske, v. tr. 128, 171; 3*d sing. pf.* askede, 130, 192; asskede, 210; p. pt. asked, 131.

Askes, sb. pl. = ashes, 344.

Asseylde, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of asseyle, v. tr. 145.

Assygne = Fr. an cygne, 11, &c.

Assygyned, p. pt. of assign, v. tr. 188.

At, prep. 23, 60, 98.

Awȝte, sb. = aught, 204.

Aȝeyne, adv. = again, 93, 104, 137, 177, 343; aȝeyn, 123.

Badde. See Bid.

Bakke, sb. = back, 291, 293.

Balowe, adj. O.E. Bealu, or Bealo; Balo or Balu = deadly, 233, 344, strong (?) 317.

Banke, sb. 132.

Barmeteme, sb. 103. This is the O.E. Bearnteme, and is miswritten for barnteme = brood, progeny, from barne = child, bairn; and teme, or teem (O.E. teman) = to produce, bring forth. See Gen. 954 and 3903. In Chalmers's Life of James I. (prefixed to his 'Poetic Remains of the Scottish kings,' 1824), p. 15, he writes, "The Act of the former session was renewed in this; requiring the clergy to pray for the king, for the queen, and their Bairntime, which is now explained to mean, 'the children produced between them.'"

Bathe, v. tr. 263.

Bare, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of bear, v. tr. 325, 348.

Be, v. intr. 17, 37, 80; 3*d pl. pres. subj.* bene (O.E. beon), 188; 3*d sing. subj.* 100, 302.

Bedde, sb. 33, 161.

Beetheth. See Bete.

Befalle, v. intr. 204.

Bene. See Be, v. intr.

Bere, v. tr. 3*d sing. ind.* bereth, 297; 3*d sing. pf.* 196. See also Bare, p. pt. borne, 23, 41.

Berthe. See Byrthe.

Beste, sb. = beast, 214; beeste, 218, 288.

Beste, adj. 68, 285.

Bete, v. tr. O.E. betan = to prepare, to kindle (said of fire); 3*d sing. pres. ind.* beetheth, 157; p. pt. bette, 224.

Bete, v. tr. = beat; imp. pt. betynge, 227.

Beteche, v. tr. See Bytake, 312.

Bette. See Bete.

Better, adj. 49, 175; bettur, adv. 97.

Betyde, v. intr. 103.

Betynge. See Bete.

Bid, v. tr. 3*d sing. pf.* badde, 156, 172, 248, 263; 3*d sing. pres.* byddyth, 262.

Bledde, 3*d sing. pf.* of bleed, v. intr. 360.

Digitized by Google

Blente, p. pt. of blind, v. tr. O.E. blendian, 325.

Blethely, adv. = blithely, cheerfully, 278.

Blode, sb. = blood, 361.

Blythe, adj. 154.

Body, sb. 244.

Book, sb. 7, 270.

Borne. See Bere, v. tr.

Bote, 3*d sing. pf.* of bite, v. tr. 360.

Botenning, sb. = remedy, succour, 370; from boten, v. tr. formed from bote = remedy, from O.E. gebetan = to mend.

Bothe, conj. 20, 79; adj. 135.

Bounden, p. pt. of bind, v. tr. 291.

Boy, sb. 260; poss. boyes, 263.

Bowethe, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of bow, v. tr. 335; bowethe hym, 265 = turneth him, goeth.

Breke, v. tr. O.E. brecan; 3*d sing. pres.* brekethe, 157; 1*st sing. pf. ind.* breke (now brake, or broke), 165.

Brenne, v. tr. = burn, 68, 241; pf brente, 344; p. pt. brente, 80; intransitively, 191, 224.

Breste, sb. 297, 360; pl. brestes, 241.

Breste, v. inter. = burst, 317.

Broode, adj. = broad, 297.

Browne, adj. 344.

Brow3te, 3*d sing. pf.* of bring, v. tr. 41, 49, 343, 370.

Brydelle, sb. 229, 292, 341.

Brynge, v. tr. 2*d sing. imp.* 203.

Bry3t, adj. = bright, 8; bry3te, 298.

Busk, v. tr. = prepare, make ready; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* buskede, 172; p. pt. buskedde, 233.

But, conj. 15, 17, &c. = except, 38; only, 242.

By, prep. 196, 348; = of, concerning, 5; at, about, 84, 143, 205; through, 85, 216, adv. = near, 109.

Bycche, sb. = bitch, 62.

Bydeste = abidest, 256, 2*d sing. ind.* of byde, v. intr.

Byddynge, sb. = command, 85.

Byddyth. See Bid.

Byfore, prep. = before, 23, 64, 110, 124, &c., before, 114.

Byforne, adv. = before, 322 (Wm. biforn. Gen. biforen).

Bygyleth, p. pt. of beguile, v. tr. (for beguiled), 78.

Byginne, v. tr. 3*d sing. pres. ina.* bygynnethe, 76, 246; 3*d sing. pf.* byganne, 183.

Byhelde, 3*d sing. pf.* of byhold = behold, 21.

Bylefte, p. pt. of byleve, or beleave = abandon, 240.

Bylle, sb. = bill, 360.

Byrafte, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of byreave or bereave. O.E. bereafian; 199, 351.

Byrthe, sb. = birth, 23, 40, 291; berthe, 65.

Byside, adv. = beside, 149.

Bytake (or bitake) = betake, commit, deliver. O.E. betæcan; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* bytakethe, 151; bytaketh, 173; p. pt. bytaken, 163; cp. Gen. 212.

Call, v. tr. 3*d pl. pres. indic.* callen, 366; kallen, 292, 296; 3*d pl. pf.* called, 46; kallede, 270; 2*d sing. imp.* kalle, 204; p. pt. called, 289; kalled, 6, 231.

Caste, v. tr. 52; 3*d pl. pres. ind.* caste, 88; 1*st sing. pf.* caste, 167; 3*d sing.* caste, 63.

Cawsed, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of cause, v. tr. 39

Digitized by Google

Certeyne, adj. = certain, 253.

Charde, v. intr. = care, 329.

Charge, sb. concern, 235.

Chaste, sb. = chest, 127. See Note.

Chaunce, sb. 123.

Chefe, sb. = chief, 11.

Cherye, sb. = cherry, 329.

Chese, 3*d sing. pf.* of choose. Used with the prep. to, 357.

Cheualere, sb. 11, 333; cheuelere, 369.

Cheuelrye, sb. miswritten for cheuelere, 328.

Cheuene, v. tr. quasi chiefen = to rule over, 16.

Cheuerynge, imp. pt. of cheuer or chyuer, q. v.

Cheyne, sb. 43, 125, 137, 146, 148, 150, 157, 164, 165, 176, 179, 199, 351.

Choppe, v. tr. 330.

Chylde, sb. = child, 16, 29, &c. With chylde, 35; pl. chylderen, 23, 82, 93; chyldren, 107, 122, 130, &c.; childrcn, 143; childeren, 347.

Chyuer, v. intr. = shiver, 3*d pl. pf.* chyuered, 107; imp. pt. cheuerynge, 107. Cp. Morte Arthur (Linc.) l. 3392.

Clene, adj. 174.

Clensen, v. tr. = to cleanse, 247.

Close, sb. = an enclosed field, or space of ground. 272.

Clothe, sb. = cloth, 97.

Colde, sb. 107.

Combred (p. pt. of combre (cumber) = to trouble) = miserable, 71.

Come, v. intr. 38; com, 248; 2*d sing. pres. indic.* comeste, 51; 3*d sing.* comethe, 109; pf. come, 64, 110, 142, 151, 173, 183, 208, 228, 248; Kome, 113, 346; p. pt. comen, 154.

Confounde, v. tr. 75.

Countes, sb. = countess, 269.

Counselle, sb. 50.

Courte, sb. 53, 123, 163, 203; cowrte, 150, 155, &c.

Cowche, sb. = bed, 45.

Cowpe, sb. = cup, 153, 164, 173, &c.

Crafte, sb. = business, 313.

Criste, 104; Cryste, 111.

Cristen, v. tr. = christen, 266; 3*d pl. pres. ind.* cristene, 365; p. pt. cristened, 203, 275.

Crosse, sb. 281.

Crowne, sb. 237.

Croyse, sb. = cross, 328-9; croys, 332.

Cry, v. intr. 3*d sing. pres. ind.* cryethe, 81; 3*d pl. pf.* cryedde, 106; cryde, 108; cryede, 111.

Cuppe, sb. 160, 168.

Cursed, p. pt. of curse, v. tr. 38, 145; used adjectively, cursede, 142; cursedde, 121.

Curteynesse, sb. = courteousness, 179.

Dame, sb. 69, 73, 125, 132, 250.

Damme, sb. = mother, 61.

Dare, v. intr. 1*st sing. pres. ind.* 27; 3*d sing. pf.* durste, 56; pl. 147.

Day, sb. 188, 191, 208.

Dedde. See Done.

Dede, sb. = deed, 274.

Deepe, adv. 86.

Delyuered, p. pt. of delyuer, v. tr. 37, 180; 3*d sing. pf.* 155, 178.

Deseruethe, 3*d sing. pres.* of deserve, v. tr. 72.

Deth, sb. 100; dethe, 138, 182, 186.

Do, v. tr. 139; done, 238; 3*d sing. pf.* 172; 2*d sing. imper.* do, 138 p. pt. don, 235.

Digitized by Google

Dole, sb. = sorrow, compassion, 134; doole, 359.

Dolefulle, adj. 106.

Dome, sb. = doom, 186; pl. domus, 91.

Dore, sb. 60, 87.

Down, adv. 305, 334, 335.

Dowȝter, sb. = daughter, 42.

Draw, v. tr. O.E. dragan (intransitively used, as in the phrase 'Draw near'); 3*d sing.* and pl. drowȝ, 33; and drowȝe, 37, 114, 161.

Drowȝe = drew (Gen. l. 2360, dragen. O.E. drog). See Draw.

Drye, v. tr. (O.E. dreogan. Gen. dregen; Allit. dryȝe) = to dree, to suffer, 343.

Dryue, v. tr. dryue out = bring out, ascertain, 259.

Dubbede, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* 276.

Durste. See Dare.

Dwellest, 2*d sing. pres. ind.* of dwell, v. intr. 201; 3*d sing. pf.* dwellede, 13.

Dymme, adj. = dim, dark, 86.

Dynte, sb. 138.

Eche, adj. = each, 31, 44, 126; each a, O.E. ilka = each, every, 187.

Edder, sb. = adder, 331.

Eggelynges, adv. = edgelings, edgewise, with the edge (O.E. Ecg. = edge), 305.

Eke, adv. = also, 180.

Elles, adv. = else (Allit. elleȝ), 74, 215, 290; ellis, 30.

Elleven, adj. 89.

Ende, sb. 40, 240; v. tr. 330.

Enforme, v. tr. 212.

Er, prep. = ere, before, 70.

Erle, sb. 268.

Erthe, sb. 320.

Etethe, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of ete (eat), 290.

Euen, 243, 334.

Euur = ever, 222, 322.

Eyther = each, 220, 318, 320.

Fader, sb. = father, 90, 212, 219; poss. fader, 203.

Fallethe, p. pt. of fall = falled, 310. Perhaps miswritten for felled; which is the more likely, as the p. pt. of fall ought to be fallen; while fell would make felled. We say, however, sometimes, 'To fall timber.'

False, adj. 257; fals, 239.

Faste, adv. 141, 223, 227, 304, 309, 342.

Fastened, p. pt. of fasten, v. tr. 319.

Fayre, adj. 90; feyre, 217, 266, 275, 361.

Febull, adj. = sad, bad, 58; used substantively, 76.

Feder, sb. = feather; pl. federes, 361.

Felawe, sb. = fellow, 258.

Felde, sb. = field, 223, 319.

Felle, adj. = severe, stern, cruel, 239.

Felle, pf. of fall, v. intr. 110, 114; 3*d pl.* 148; = befell, 130.

Felly, adv. = sternly, cruelly, fiercely, 76, 225. The word is used by Spenser.

Fende, sb. = fiend, devil, 120; fend, 240.

Fere, sb. = companion, 325.

Fersly, adv. = fiercely, 342.

Ferther, adv. (comp.) = further, 127.

Fete, sb. (pl. of foot) 303, 323.

Fette, p. pt. of fette, v. tr. = fetch, 279.

Digitized by Google

Feyth, sb. 48; feythe, 121, 130, 142.

Find, v. ir. p. pt. fownden, 239; 2d sing. indic. fyndes, 305.

Flesh, sb. 310.

Fleye, 3d pl. pf. of fly, v. intr. 319.

Flowen, 3d pl. pf. of the same, 148 (Allit. flowen; Gen. flogen).

Folke, sb. 187, 223.

Folowe, v. tr. 2d sing. imper. 310; 3d sing. pres. ind. foloweth, 116, 342.

Fomede, 3d pl. pf. ind. of fome (foam), v. intr. 361.

Fonte, sb. 267, 365.

For, conj. 3, 5, &c.; prep. 15, 29, 49, &c.

Foreste, sb. 95.

Forge, v. tr. 153.

Forlonge, sb. = furlong, 228.

Formed, 3d pl. pf. of form, v. tr. 365; p. pt. formeth = formed, 200, 209.

Formerken, v. intr. = darken; 3d sing. indic. formerknes, 362. See Note.

Forsette, v. tr. = beset, entrap, betray, 251. O.E. forsettan. Cp. Allit. B. 78.

Forsothe, adv. 18, 195, 242.

Forsworn, p. pt. of forswear, v. tr. 199; forsworne, 351.

Forthe, adv. 52, 60, 75, &c. Forth, 176.

Forthy, adv. = wherefore, 218 (O.E.).

Fostere, sb. = forester, 120.

Fowle, adj. 40, 239.

Fownden. See Find.

Fowre, numeral adj. = four, 95.

Fowrth, adj. = fourth, 367.

Frapte, pf. of frap = strike, 332.

Frely, adj. = lordly, noble, 218, 266, 275. Cp. Allit. B. 162; Wm. 124.

Freshe, adj. 258.

Fro, prep. 113, 148, 159, 298, 328.

Frusch, v. intr. (properly tr. = strike. Fr. froisser) but here = rush; 3d sing. ind. fruscheth, 332.

Fulfylde, p. pt. of fulfylle (fulfil), 206.

Fulle, adv. 12, 54, 69, 113, 141, &c.

Fulwen, v. tr. = baptize. O.E. fulwian; p. pt. fulwedde, 369.

Furre, comp. of fur = further, 311.

Fyfte, adj. = fifth, 368.

Fyndes. See Find, v. tr.

Fyre, sb. 224, 233, 332, 345; fyer, 159, 165, 167, 344.

Fyrste, adj. 51; 58; adv. 80.

Fysh, sb. = fish, 353.

Fyue, numeral adj. 159; fyve, 167.

Fyȝte, v. intr. = fight, 200, 209, 212, 245, 259; sb. 273.

Gader, v. intr. = gather; imp. pt. gaderynge, 223.

Gete, v. tr. = get, 261; 3d sing. pf. ind. gette (properly ȝet or ȝat), 34; 2d sing. imper. gete, 137.

Gladdenes, sb. 57.

Go, v. intr. 3d sing. pres. ind. goothe, 157; 3d pl. gon, 354; p. pt. go, 143.

God, sb. 1, 40, &c.; poss. goddes, 206, 219.

Godfader, sb. 267.

Godmoder, sb. 269.

Goldsmyȝte, sb. 153, 157, 354; goldsmythe, 352.

Good, adj. 130, 289.

Grace, sb. 302, 339.

Digitized by Google

Graunt, v. tr. = grant; 2d sing. pf. ind. grauntethe, 278; 3d sing. graunted, 189, 246.

Grete, adj. = great, 83; gret, 264.

Grownde, sb. 302.

Grymme, adj. black, dark, 51; sad, 189. Cp. Allit. A. 1069.

Grypte, 3d sing. pf. of gryp, v. tr. 220.

Gynnyth, 3d sing. pres. ind. of gynne, v. (begin), 66.

Hadde. See Haue.

Halen, v. tr. = to haul; 3d pl. indic. halenne, 280.

Halfe, sb. 165; = side, behalf, 219.

Halueñdele = half-deal = half, 176; halvendelle, 160.

Ham, pers. pron. obj. = them, 152.

Happe, sb. = hap (good), 324.

Harm, sb. 235; harme, 3.

Harnes, sb. = armour, 278; harneys, 337.

Hast. See Haue.

Hatefulle, adj. 141.

Hath. See Haue.

Haue, v. tr. 120; 1st sing. pres. ind. 70, 353; 2d sing. hast, 78; haste, 194, 251, 310; 3d sing. hath, 128; 3d pl. haue, 79; 3d sing. pf. hadde, 16, 44, 47; 1st sing. pf. subj. 181; 2d sing. 53; p. pt. hadde, 79.

Hawberke, sb. 296.

He, pers. pron. 2, 13, &c.

Hedde, sb. = head, 27, 217, 257; hede, 295; heede, 311.

Heelde. See Holden, v. tr.

Heete (or Hete), v. tr. = tell; 1st sing. pres. indic. 18.

Hele, sb. = pleasure, advantage, 324. O.E. Hel = health.

Helle, sb. 10.

Helme = helmet, sb. 296, 306, 338.

Helpe, sb. 118, 247, 273.

Helpe, v. tr. 50; 3d sing. pres. subj. 70.

Hem, pron. = 'em, them; 19, 20, 44, 45, 52, 83, 96, 97, 101, 102, 104, 109, 110, 112, 114—119, 126, 129, 133, 134, 138, 148, 151, 152, 159, 169, 190, 194, 196, 199, 316, 318—320, 348, 351.

Hemselfen = themselves, 20.

Hente, v. tr. = seize, take; 3d pl. pf. ind. hente, 85; p. pt. hente, 3.

Her, poss. pron. fem. 10, 32, 340, 341.

Her, pers. pron. fem. obj. 23, 35, 38, 47, 68, 70, 73, 85, 176, 262.

Her, adv. = here, in this place, 77.

Her = their. See Here.

Here, poss. pron. fem. = her, 171, 182, 240, 255.

Here, pers. pron. fem. obj. = her, 15, 32, 34, 86—88, 126, 131, 135, 151, 153, 189, 190, 226, 342—344.

Here, poss. pron. pl. = their, 126, 220, 235, 274, 315, 321; her, 105, 199, 327.

Here, v. tr. = hear, 57; 1st sing. pf. ind. herde, 213; 3d sing. 55, 58, 108; 2d sing. imper. 131.

Here, sb. = hair; pl. heres, 255.

Heremyte, sb. 115, 221; hermyte, 109, 192, 201.

Herseluen = herself, 47.

Herte, sb. (Germ. herz) = heart, 18, 189, 263, 334.

Hette, 3d sing. pres. indic. = is called, 232; 3d sing. pf. hette, 7; hyȝte, 9. (O.E. hatan = to be called.)

His, poss. pron. masc. 2, 8, 36, &c.; hys, 135.

Hit, pers. pron. neut. 30, 72, 74, &c.

Digitized by Google

Holden, v. tr. = to hold, 169; 3d sing. pf. ind. hcelde, 152; 2d sing. imper. holde, 127; p. pt. holde = accounted, 70.

Hole, sb. 294.

Hole, adj. = whole, 353.

Hollye, adv. = wholly, 160, 168, 181.

Holy, adj. 109, 265.

Honde, sb. = hand, 2, 41, 152, 158, 164, 166, 174, 220, 255, 287, 300, 315, 370.

Hondredde = hundred, 255.

Honged, 3d sing. pf. of hongen, or hangen = hang, 18.

Hors, sb. = horse, 213, 289; pl. horses, 321.

Houe, v. intr. = to abide still, to hover, to wait, 288. Cp. Allit. B. 927; and Lancelot, 996.

How, adv. 26, 31, &c.

Hownde, sb. pl. hownde, 79, 234.

Hy, adj. = high, 326; hye, 217; hyȝ, 224; hyȝe, 280; on hyȝe = aloud.

Hylyde, 3d sing. pf. of hylen = hele = cover, 102.

Hym, pers. pron. masc. obj. = him, 4, 24, &c.

Hym for Hem = them, 52.

Hynde, sb. 113, 116.

Hytte, v. tr. 300.

Hyȝe, adj. See Hy.

Hyȝe, v. intr. = hie, go, 139; refl. 3d sing. pf. hyed hym, 141.

Hyȝnes, sb. = highness, 4.

Hyȝte = was called. See Hette.

I, pers. pron. 5, 18, &c.

If, conj. 192.

In, prep. 4, 5, &c.

Is, 3d sing. pres. ind. of Be, v. intr. 1, 26, &c.

It, pers. pron. neut. 1, 12, &c.

Joye, sb. 246.

Juge = judge, 236. See Note.

Kalled, &c. See Call.

Kan, v. tr. = can, i. e. know; 1st sing. pres. ind. kan, 311, 313; 2d sing. kanste, 212; 1st sing. pf. kowthe = knew, 313.

Kawȝte, 3d sing. pf. ind. of catch, 287; in l. 62 it = snatched. Cp. 'caught up.'

Keene, adj. 183; used adverbially.

Kenely, adv. 309.

Kepe, v. tr. = keep, 50; 3d sing. pf. ind. kepte, 117, 174; 2d sing. imper. kepe, 328.

Keste, 3d sing. pf. indic. of cast, 97.

Knee, sb. pl. knees, 110.

Knowe, v. tr. 97; 1st sing. pres. ind. 309, 352; 2d sing. knoweste, 251; 3d sing. pf. knewe, 49.

Knyfe, sb. 62.

Knyȝte, sb. = knight, 258, 276, 287, 289; pl. knyȝtes, 354.

Kome. See Come.

Kowarde, sb. 71.

Kowth. See Kan.

Kylled, 3d sing. pf. of kylle (kill); v. tr. 62.

Kynde, sb. (kind) = nature, condition, 71, 276; kin, family. 11. Cp. Gen. 650.

Kynge, sb. 7, 20, &c.; poss. kynges, 195.

Kyrtelle, sb. 294.

Ladde. See Lead, v. tr. Spenser uses this inflection, F. Q., I. i. 4: 'a milke white lamb she lad.'

Lady, sb. 82, 89, 92, 191.

Lafte. See Leve, v. tr.

Langour, sb. = languor, 15, 57, 92.

Lappe, sb. 257.

Digitized by Google

Lappe, v. tr. = wrap; 3*d sing. pf.* lappede, 102; p. pt. lapped, 132; lappedde, 101.

Lassche, v. tr. = strike (lash out = kick); 3*d sing pres. ind.* lasscheth, 323.

Laste, adj. 240.

Launce, sb. 300.

Launce, v. tr. = launce, dart, throw; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* launces, 323.

Laye. See Lye, v. intr.

Lead, v. tr. 3*d sing. pf. ind.* ladde, 287.

Lefe, adj. = dear, 82.

Lefte, pf. of leve, q. v.

Lefte, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of lift (O.E. Lefan), 45.

Lende, v. intr. a form of leng = tarry, abide; p. pt. lente, 'was lente,' l. 5 = dwelt. Cp. Allit. B. 1084, 'waȝt lent.'

Lendeth, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of lend, v. tr. 99.

Lene, v. tr. = lend, grant, 277, 284; p. pt. lente, 112, 339.

Leng, v. intr. = tarry, dwell; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* lengeth, 4.

Lengur, adv., comp. of long, 77, 112, 303; lengere, 364.

Lente. See Lende, v. intr.; and Lene, v. tr.

Lepte, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of lepe (leap), v. intr. 254.

Let, v. tr. = allow, cause; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* lette, 24, 190; 2*d sing. imper.* lette, 187; lete, 307; 2*d sing. subj.* lete, 52.

Leue, v. tr. = believe, allow, 28, 133; leeue, 242.

Leue, v. tr. = leave; 1*st sing. pf. ind.* lafte, 133; 3*d sing.* 17, 221; 1*st pl. imper.* leue, 92; 3*d pl. pres. ind.* leuen, 87. Also intransitively = remain; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* lefte, 175; leued, 255.

Leues, sb. pl. of lefe (leaf), 119.

Ley. See Lye, v. intr.

Leyde, 1*st sing. pf. ind.* of lay; v. tr. 165; 3*d sing.* 87, 101, 159, 338.

Leyne, v. tr. = grant, requite, reward, 99.

Lofe, sb. = love, 15.

Loke, v. intr. = look, 364; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* loked, 21; 3*d sing. imper.* looke, 52; loke, 203, 300.

Lokke, sb. of a door, 87; of hair, 254; pl. lokkes, 338.

Londe, sb. = land, 6, 181, 231; pl. londis, 16.

Longe, adj. 95, 299; adv. 47, 185.

Lorde, sb. 5, 36, 70, &c.

Lordeles, adj. = having no lord, or sovereign, 17.

Losse, sb. 358.

Lothe, adj. 249; loth, 48.

Loue, sb. 36.

Loue, v. tr. 14.

Louely, adv. 98.

Lowde, adj. 225.

Lowely, adv. = meekly, humbly, 36, 339.

Lowȝe, 3*d pl. pf. indic.* of laȝe, v. intr. = laugh, 93.

Lye, v. intr. 257; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* lay, 57, 207; laye, 76; 3*d pl.* ley, 98; imp. pt. lyyinge, 133.

Lyf, sb. = life, 17; lyfe, 112, 335.

Lyfe, v. intr. = live, 54.

Lyfte, v. tr. 299.

Lyke, v. = like, 54 (see Note), 140; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* lykes, 134; lyketh, 73.

Lykynge, sb. = liking, 13.

Lyme, sb. = limb; pl. lymes, 217.

Lyonys, pl. of lyon; sb. 214.

Digitized by Google

Lytulle, adj. 242.

Lyue, v. intr. = live; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* lyuede, 89.

Lyue, sb. = life, 140.

Lyuinge, adj. = living, 256.

Ly3tly, adv. = lightly, 303.

Made. Maden. } See Make.

Make, v. tr. 3*d sing. pres. ind.* maketh, 267; 3*d sing. pf.* made, 9, 83, 90, 135, 359; 3*d pl.* maden, 314.

Man, sb. 46, 108, &c.; manne, 29; poss. mannes, 273; pl. men, 79, 94; menne, 285.

Mantelle, sb. 101, 105, 132.

Many, adj. 31, 34, &c.

Marre, sb. = mar, v. tr. 261.

Mater, sb. = matter, 216.

May, 1*st sing. pres. ind.* of mowe = to be able = can, 74, 295; 2*d sing.* 50, 54; also mayste, 249.

Mayden, sb. 368.

Me, indeterm. pron. (Germ. man; Fr. on) 30.

Me, pers. pron. obj. 70, 261.

Mene, v. tr. mention; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* menede, 124.

Mengynge, sb. = mingling, twisting, 125. From menge, v. tr. = mix.

Meruelows, adj. (used adverbially) 185.

Merueyle, sb. 125.

Mesure, sb. 171.

Mete, sb. = meat, 88, 144.

Moche, adj. = much, 9, 39, 102, 136; substantively, 184.

Moder, sb. = mother, 9, 39, 59, 180, 200, 205, 209, 210.

Mone, sb. = moan, 83, 136.

Mony, adj. 90, 124, 271.

More, adj. 88, 125, 171.

Morn, sb. = morning, 183.

Morne, v. intr. = mourn, 66.

Morwe, sb. = morrow, 172.

Most, v. = must, 2*d sing. ind.* of mot, 50, 206; 3*d sing.* 136, 206. See Mote.

Moste, adv. 285.

Mote, 3*d sing. pres. subj.* of mot, 120. The word has in this phrase an optative force. See Most.

Mowthe, sb. = mouth, 292.

Multiplyeth, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of multiply; v. intr. 158.

Murdered, p. pt. of murder, v. tr. 340.

Murther, v. tr. 94, 129.

My, poss. pron. 27, 78, 82, 100, &c

Mydday, sb. 205.

Myle, sb. 95.

Myne, poss. pron. 181.

Mysfare, v. intr. = go wrong, 238.

Myskarye, v. intr. = miscarry, 260.

Myssede, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of mysse (miss), v. tr. 83.

My3te = might, 1*st sing. pf. ind.* of mowe, or mowen, v. 134; 3*d sing.* 14, 247, 363; 1*st pl.* 3.

Name, sb. 204, 270.

Nay, interj. 28.

Ne = not, 3, 147.

Nekke, sb. 297, 337.

Nere, prep. = near, 38.

Nere, v. = ne were, 4.

Neuur, adv. = never, 202, 216.

Neythur, adv. 253; sb. 306.

No, adj. 16, 38, 77.

None = ne one, 127, 216: adj. 250.

Digitized by Google

Noryscheth, 3d sing. pres. ind. of norysch (nourish); v. tr. 118.

Not, adv. 28.

Nother, conj. = nor, 253.

Nowe, adv. 354.

Nowȝte, sb. = nought, 53.

Noyse, sb. 225.

Noȝt, adv. = not, 236, 295; noȝte, 74.

Noȝthe, sb. = nought, 290; nowȝte, 53.

Nykke, v. tr. = refuse, contradict; = ne (not), ikke (say); cognate with Latin Negare. With ikke compare Gothic Aikan; Sanskrit Ah = to say, to speak; Latin Ajo (agjo). Cp. also the Sanskrit Aham = I, with the O.E. Ic.

Nyȝe, adj. = nigh, 100.

Nyȝte, sb. = night, 33, 34, 161, 191.

Of, prep. 4, 10, &c. = from, out of, 287; = adv. off, 146, 311.

Ofte, adv. 3, 111.

Olde, adj. 163, 227, 243, &c.

On, prep. 34, 207.

On, num. = one, 44, 126, 143, 249, 295, 297, 299, 357, 358; oon, 29, 285.

One, num. 264.

One, adj. = alone, 15, 19.

Ones, adv. = at ones = at once, 98, 196, 272, 348.

On-hyȝe, adv. = aloud, 25, 64, 106, 234, 346; on hyȝ, 81; on-hy = up, 326.

Ony, adj. = any, 175, 273.

Oo-lyuynge, adj. = everliving, eternal, 201.

Oon. See On.

Orysoun, sb. = prayer, 90.

Other, adj. 144, 145, 296, &c.; othur, 159, 167, 347.

Other, conj. = or (Germ. oder), 324.

Our, poss. pron. 36, 70, 93, 117.

Out, for drew, or pulled out, 146.

Ouur, adv. = over, 175.

Owne, 2, 14, &c.

Pappe, sb. = breast, 114.

Paye, v. tr. = please, 65.

Peces, pl. of pece (piece), 315.

Pele, v. intr. smite, 'let drive,' 304. Cp. peal (of bells), sb.; also pelt, v. Mr Skeat writes, "Perhaps this is an instance of the word Pelle, which occurs in Havelok, and nowhere else, unless it is here. In Havelok it = drive forth, go; and seems to be the Lat. pellere.

The line in Havelok is,

'Shal ich neuere lenger dwelle,
To morwen shall ich forth pelle.'
ll. 809-10.

['I shall stay here no longer,
I shall start off to-morrow!

It answers to our expression, 'go full drive.'"

Place, sb. 12.

Plesed, p. pt. of plese (please); v. tr. 274.

Plukke, v. tr. 2d sing. imper. 304.

Pore, adj. = poor, 22, 26, 363.

Posse, sb. Perhaps miswritten for Poste, 281.

Prayde, 3d sing. pf. ind. of pray; v. tr. 284; 2d sing. pres. prayeth, 277.

Preste, adj. = ready, 135.

Prestly, adv. = readily, quickly, 277.

Preve, v. tr. = prove, 252.

Price, adj. = worthy, noble, 279. Comp. Wm. l. 411.

Prisoun, sb. 80; prysoun, 86.

Digitized by Google

Prowde, adj. 115.

Pulledde, 3*d pl. pf.* of pulle; v. tr. 327.

Putte, v. tr., 3*d sing. pf. ind.* putte, 115; putt, 135.

Pyne, sb. = suffering, 92. O.E. pin; v. tr. = to make to suffer, to torment, 26. O.E. pinan.

Pytte, sb. = pit, 63.

Quod or quoth, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* = said, 71, 99, 169, 214–216, 219, 230, 236, 242, 250, 256, 260, 288, 289, 290, 312, 328-29, 336, 352. O.E. cwæð, of Cweðan = to say.

Qwene, sb. = queen, 8, 14, &c.

Raunges, sb. pl. = lists, 314, 321. Cp. 'ringes' in Sir Eglamore, l. 1121, Percy folio, p. 382, vol. 2.

Raw3te (Raught). See Reche.

Reasonabullye, adv. = reasonably, 34.

Rebukede, 3*d sing. pf.* of rebuke, 32.

Reche, v. tr. = reach; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* recheth, 176; 3*d pl. pf.* raw3ten, 316.

Recke, v. intr. = reck, care; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* row3te, 177; 2*d sing. imper.* rekke, 306.

Rede, v. tr. = advise, 222; 1*st sing. pres. ind.* rede, 169.

Redresse, v. tr. 205.

Rekke. See Recke.

Rennen, v. intr. = run, 316 (?); imp. pl. rennynge, 113; 3*d pl. pf.* ronnen, 314, 321. Rennene, 316, may be sb. = rennenge or running, but is more likely the verb above.

Reredde, p. pt. of rere (rear); v. tr. 211.

Reste, v. tr. 77; 2*d sing. imper.* reste, 303.

Rewede, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of rewe (rue); v. tr. = repent, be sorry for; used impersonally, 55; hym rewede = he was sorry.

Rewfulle, adj. 149.

Rewthe, sb. = ruth, sorrow, 102, 363.

Ring, v. intr., 3*d pl. pf. ind.* rongen, 272.

Rongen. See Ring.

Rowte, sb. = crowd, 287.

Row3te. See Rekke, v. intr.

Ryche, adj. 271, 306, 363.

Rydethe, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of ryde (ride); v. intr. 341; rydinge, p. pt. 228.

Ryuer, sb. 198; ryuere, 149, 350; poss. ryueres, 132.

Ry3te, adj. = right, 222, 236, 336, 352; sb. 259; pl. 'his ry3tes,' 283; adv. 32, 198, 205, 249.

Ry3[t]lye, adv. = rightly, 236.

Sadde, adj. 119. Perhaps = solid, massive (Cp. Wm. 1072); or else, and more probably = shed (O.E. scaden, from scadan, v. tr. Germ. scheiden). Cp. Gen. l. 58.

Sadelle, sb. 293.

Safe, adj. 43.

Same, adj. 34.

Saue, v. tr. 91; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* saued, 91.

Sauinge, sb. 194.

Sawe, sb. = that which is said, tale, 162, 253. See also Se, v. tr.

Sayde. See Seye.

Saye. See Se, v. tr.

Scharpelye, adv. 301.

Schreden, v. tr. = shred, 307.

Schyuered. See Shyuer.

Se, v. tr. = see, 359; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* seeth, 223; 1*st sing. pf.* saye, 5; seye, 216; 3*d sing.* sey3, 22; sy3e, 202; sawe, 61 340; 3*d sing. imper.* se, 26; used with prep.

Digitized by Google

of, 65; 1*st sing. pres. subj.* 74; p. pl. sene, 53.

Seche, v. tr. = seek; 2*d sing. imper.* seche, 53; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* sowȝte, 60. Used intransitively in both places, in the sense of To betake oneself, go.

Seke, v. tr. = seek, 144.

Selfe, 73.

Selfen or Selven = self, and selves, 20, 47.

Seluer = silver, 43; seluere, 125.

Semelye, adj. = seemly, 42.

Sende, v. tr. 111; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* sendethe, 88, 118; sendeth, 193; 3*d sing. pf.* sente, 46, 129, 153.

Serue, v. tr., intransitively = be of use, 202; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* seruethe, 218; p. pl. serued, 47; = deserve, p. pl. serued, 186· seruethe, 194.

Seruyse, sb. = pay for service, 178.

Sethen. See Sythen.

Sette, v. tr. = set, 73.

Seueneth, adj. = seventh, 42.

Seuenne, numeral adj. = seven, 61.

Sex, numeral adj. = six, 42, 144, 347. See also Six.

Sexte, adj. = sixth, 160; sixte, 168, 369.

Seyde. See Seye, v. tr.

Seye, v. tr. = say, 74; sey, 213; 3*d sing. ind. pres.* seyth, 252; seythe, 162, 245; 3*d pl.* seyn, 217; 3*d sing. pf.* sayde, 25; seyde, 28, 50, 64, 67-8, 77, 82, 127, 131, 177, 193, 197, 208, 213, 346, 349.

Seyȝ and Seyȝe. See Se, v. tr.

Shafte, sb. 301.

Shake, v. tr. 3*d pl. pf. ind.* shoken, 356.

Shalle, v. 1*st sing. pres. ind.* 75, 78, 139, 212, 239, 261, 288, 299, 330; 2*d sing.* shalt, 54, 80, 238, 260; 3*d sing. pf.* sholde, 94, 129, 202, 224, 282; shulde, 37, 96, 103, 191; 3*d pl.* sholde, 12.

Shanke, sb., pl. shankes, 326.

She, pers. pron. 10; 26, &c.

Shelde, sb. = shield, 281, 298, 331.

Shene, adj. = shining, beautiful, 8; sheene, 298.

Shoken. See Shake, v. tr.

Sholde = should. See Shalle.

Sholder, sb. 222, 334.

Shrykede, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of shryke (shriek), 81.

Shulde = should. See Shalle.

Shylde, v. tr. = shield, 298.

Shyuer, v. tr. = smash, splinter; 3*d pl. pf. ind.* shyuereden, 315; p. pl. schyuered, 301.

Shyuereden. See Shyuer.

Six, numeral adj. 164, 193. See Sex.

Sixte, adj. = sixth, 369. See also Sexte.

Skape, v. intr. = escape, 127.

Sklawndered, p. pl. of sklawnder (slander); v. tr. = defame, accuse, 234.

Skorne, sb. 264.

Skylfully, adv. 47.

Slepte, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of sleep; v. intr. 192.

Slongen, 3*d pl. pf. ind.* of sling; v. tr. = to throw, 86; perhaps involving the idea of letting down by ropes; as we sling horses in a transport-ship, or as we suspend an arm in a sling.

Slyppe, v. intr. = slip, 52.

Small, adj. 307, 330.

Smerte, sb. = smart, 308.

Smertlye, adv. = smartly, sharply, 318. It is miswritten smerlye in the MS.

Digitized by Google

Smyte, v. tr., 3*d sing. pf. ind.* smote, 146, 318; 3*d pl.* smoten, 327; 2*d sing. imper.* smyte, 311.

So, adv. 31, 70, 74, 103.

Sokour, sb. = succour, 111.

Sŏmme, adj. = some, 111.

Sommene, v. tr. = summon, 187.

Sonde, sb. that which is sent, gift, 36.

Sone, sb. = son, 65, 78, 209, 347; sonne, 184, 211.

Soone, adv. 128, 208; sone, 105, 260-61.

Sorowefulle, adj. 91.

Sorwe, sb. = sorrow, 9; sorowe, 39, 78, 99, 359.

Sothe, sb. = truth, 18, 67, 131, 133, &c.

Sounde, adj. 43.

Sowke, v. tr. = suck, 115; imp. pl. sowkynge, 61.

Sowȝte. See Seche, v.

Speche, sb. 286.

Speke, v. intr. 249; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* 252.

Spere, sb. = spear, 263, 315.

Spin, v. intr. = rush quickly; 3*d sing. pres. indic.* spynnethe, 331. It is still used colloquially.

Spring, v. intr., 3*d sing. pf. ind.* spronge, 331.

Spronge. See Spring.

Spynnethe. See Spin.

Staffe, sb. 220.

Stalworth, adj. = stalwart, strong, 326.

Stand, v. intr., 3*d pl. pf. ind.* stoden, 147.

Stere, v. intr. = stir, move, 147.

Sterte, v. intr. = start; 3*d pl. pres. indic.* sterten, 356; 3*d pl. pf.* styrte, 326.

Steuenne, sb. = voice, 106, 149.

Stoden. See Stand.

Strawȝte. See Stretch.

Stretch, v. intr., 3*d pl. pf. ind.* strawȝte, 220.

Strike, v. tr., 3*d sing. pres. ind.* stryketh, 333; also intransitively = go; as we say, 'to strike across a field,' 229.

Stroke, sb. 333; pl. strokes, 298.

Stryketh. See Strike.

Styffe, adj. 241.

Styked, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of stick; v. intr. 241.

Stylle, adj. 147, 169.

Styrte. See Sterte.

Suche, adj. 202, 249, 264.

Sue, v. tr. = follow; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* suwethe, 221; sueth, 230.

Sum, adj. = some, 57.

Swanne, sb. 148, 198, 350, 356, 358, 362.

Swerde, sb. = sword, 138, 146, 304, 306-7, 327-8.

Swete, adj. 44.

Sworn, p. pt. of swear; v. tr. 236.

Swyche, adj. = such, 49, 103, 139.

Swyde for Swythe, adv. = quickly, 158.

Swyfte, adv. 113.

Swymmen, 3*d pl. pf. ind.* of swym (swim), 198, 350; 2*d sing. pres.* swymmethe, 362.

Swyre, sb. = neck (O.E. swēora), 44, 126.

Syde, sb. 187.

Syken, v. intr. = to sigh; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* syketh, 66; 3*d sing. pf.* sykede, 25.

Syker, adj., used adverbially = surely, 122.

Synne, sb. = sin, 250.

Digitized by Google

Sythen (Sithen) = since, then, 13, 25, 53, 64, 199; sethen, 116.

Sytte, v. intr. 22, 293.

Syȝe. See Se, v. tr.

Syȝte, sb. = sight, 122, 188.

Taber, sb. = tabor, 226.

Take, v. tr. = betake, commend, 104; also in its usual sense, 262; 2d sing. imper. 300; 3d sing. pres. ind. taketh, 116; takethe, 63, 150; 1st sing. pf. toke, 167; 2d sing. tokest, 237; 3d sing. toke, 159, 173, 229; 3d pl. 355; token, 226; p. pt. taken, 234.

Talc, sb. 55.

Tawȝte, p. pt. of teche (teach), 312, 336.

Telle, v. tr., 1st sing. pres. ind. 162; 3d sing. tellethe, 7, 270; 3d sing. pf. tolde, 123, 347.

Tere, sb. = tear; pl. teres, 24.

Terme, sb. 140.

þanke, sb. = 194.

Thanke, v. tr., 3d sing. pf. ind. thanked, 339; þankede, 36.

þanne, adv. = then, at that time, 73, 210.

þat, art. = the, 159, 296, 322, 366; rel. pron. 3, 4; dem. pron. 18, 27, &c.; by þat, 248, 345 = by that time; conj. 16, 26, &c.

The, art. 7, 11, 17, &c.

The, pers. pron. obj. = thee, 18, 65, 73, 77—79, 134, 139-40, 169, 184, 230, 237, 261, 311, 312, 336.

The, pers. pron. = they, 220, 274.

þeder, adv. = thither, 265.

Thefe, sb. 141, 199, 351.

Thei, pers. pron. See They.

Thenke, v. = think, 30, 249 (Cp. Wm. 4908); Germ. denken; 2d sing. pf. ind. thowȝte, 40, 207, 250, 264.

þenne, conj. = than, 125; adv. = when, 143; = at that time, 24, 41, 63, 67, &c.; ere thenne, 330 = before the time when; by thenne, 143 = by that time; = thence, 248.

þerby, adv. = near there, 265.

þere, adv. 13, 31, 87; = where, 76, 96, 121, 142, 362.

Therfore, adv. = on that account, 136.

þerin, adv. 52, 247.

þerof, adv. 115.

þerupon, adv. 282.

þese, dem. pron. pl. 93, 179, &c.

þey, pers. pron. pl. 12, 19, &c.; thei, 326. See also The.

This, dem. pron. 5, 92; er þis, 70 = before now.

Thoo, adv. = then, at that time, 339.

þorow, prep. = through, 95, 170.

þou, pers. pron. 50—54, &c.; thow, 80, 251.

þowghe, conj. = though, 100.

Thowȝte. See Thenke.

Thrydde, adj. = third, 367.

þus, adv. 89, 118.

þy, poss. pron. 65, 73.

Thykke, adj. = thick (closely covered), 294.

Thylle, conj. = till, 96.

Thynge, sb. 30, 202.

To, prep. 16, 17, &c.

Togedere, adv. = together, 20, 314; togedur, 327.

Toke, Token } See Take.

Topseyle, adv. = headlong, 320. See Note.

Towarde, prep. 33, 93, 109, 341.

Towre, sb. 280.

Trewe, adj. = true, 48, 69.

Trist, v. tr. = trust; 3d sing. pf. ind. triste, 49; truste, 285.

Digitized by Google

Trowthe, sb. = truth, 175.

Trumpe, sb. = trumpet, 226.

Truss, v. tr. to remove (Cotgrave, trousser, to trusse, tuck, packe, bind, or gird in, pluck, or twitch up); 3*d sing. pres. ind.* trussethe, 327.

Truste, v. tr. 3*d sing. pf. ind.* 285.

Tryfulle, v. intr. = trifle, 48.

Tumbledde, 3*d pl. pf. ind.* of tumble; v. intr. 320.

Turne, sb. in a good sense (as we say, 'to do one a good turn'), 139; in a bad sense, trick, wile, 257.

Turne, v. tr., 3*d sing. pres. ind.* turneth, 262; 3*d sing. pf.* turned, 24, 341; intr. 3*d pres. ind.* 104, 150; 3*d pl.* turnen, 355, 357; 3*d sing. pf.* turnede, 123; 1*st pl. imper.* turne, 93.

Twelfe, numeral adj. 243.

Tweyne, numeral adj. = two, twain, 29, 84.

Two, numeral adj. 23, 27, &c.; in two, 334.

Twynleng, sb. = a little twin, 27.

Tydynge, sb. 59; pl. tydynges, 58.

Tylle, conj. 310.

Tymber, sb. 317.

Tyme, sb. = time, 37, 55, 243.

Tyraunte, sb. = wicked, or evil man, 84. In Allit. the people of Sodom are called tyrants, B. 943.

Tyte, adj. = quick, 139. It is used here adverbially.

Tytlye, adv. = quickly, 84.

Unbounden, p. pt. of unbind; v. tr. 345.

Unbrente, adj. = unburnt, 185.

Under, adv. 21.

Undo = undone, p. pt. of undone, v. tr. = undo, 105.

Unsemelye, adj. 30.

Unto, prep. 90.

Unwerkethe, adj. = unworked, 175.

Up, prep. 64, 81, 97, &c.

Upon, prep. 19, 213, 222, 236, 281; = with, 361.

Valwe, sb. = value, 329.

Wakynge, inp. pt. of wake; v. intr. 207.

Walle, sb. 19, 349.

Ware, adj. 122.

Warne, v. tr. 190.

Was, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of be, 5, 6, &c.

Water, sb. 355, 362 = a piece of water, 51, 96.

We, pers. pron. pl. 3, 92, 302.

Wedde, v. tr. = bet, pledge, 27; p. pt. wedded = married, 69.

Wede, sb. = dress, clothing, 119; pl. wedes.

Wele, adv. = well, 2, 54, 67, 140, 309, 352; welle, 251.

Well, v. intr. = to bubble, pour forth copiously (O.E. welan = to boil); 3*d sing. pf. indic.* wellede, 166.

Welle, adv. 251.

Wende, v. intr. = go, 206; 3*d sing. pres. indic.* wendes, 155. 178; wendethe, 161; wendeth, 190 (see Note); 3*d pl. pres. indic.* wenden, 302, 364; 2*d sing imper.* wende, 137.

Wene, v. intr. = ween, thinke (O.E. wenan); 1*st sing pres. ind.* wene, 69; 3*d sing. pf. indic.* wente, 67.

Wenten, 3*d pl. pf. ind.*, serving as past tense of go; v. intr. 33; wente, 19; 3*d sing.* (reflexively used) 75.

Were, 3*d pl. pf. ind.* of be, 41, 58, 142; 3*d sing. pf. subj.* 30, 67,

Digitized by Google

156; 3*d pl.* 31; used for wast, 2*d sing. pf. ind.* 237; 3*d pl. pf. ind.* weren, 121.

Weren, v. tr. = defend (O.E. werian; Germ. wehren); 3*d sing. pres. ind.* wereth, 2.

Werke, sb. = work, 2, 170, 330 (Germ. werke).

Werke, v. tr. = work, 78, 182 (O. Germ. werken).

Werue, v. tr. = deny, refuse (O.E. wyrkan), 56, 72.

Wesselle, sb. = vessel; or else silver plate. Fr. vaisselle, 156.

Wex, v. intr. = to wax, to grow; 3*d sing. pres. indic.* wexeth, 158; pf. wexedde, 166.

Wey, sb. = way, 220.

Weyȝte, sb. = weight, 155.

What, rel. pron. 56; interrog. 74.

Whelpe, sb. 61; welpe, 63.

Whenne, adv. = when, 1, 12, &c.

Where, adv. 12; interrog. 82.

Whyle, adv. 273; whyles, 145; whylle, 117; sb. 286.

Whyte, adj. 281.

With, prep. 2, 28, &c.; withe, 14, 23, &c.; wyth, 99.

Witty, adj. = cheerful (?), 35.

Wo, sb. 343.

Wolle, v.; 1*st sing. pres. ind.* 244; 3*d sing.* 252; 2*d sing.* wolt, 72; 3*d sing. pf. ind.* wolde, 30, 41, 56, 117, 164, 276. See Wylle.

Womman, sb. = woman, 22, 26, 38; pl. wymmen, 29.

Wondrethe, 3*d sing. pres. ind.* of wonder; v. intr. 184.

Wonnen. See Wynne, v. tr.

Woode, sb. 113; wode, 119, 143, 215.

Worde, sb. 193, 207, 349; pl. worthes, 32.

Worlde, sb. 112, 180, 184.

Worse, adj. 244.

Worthes. See Word.

Wrake, sb. = punishment, 72. It is coupled with wrech = vengeance, in Gen. 552.

Wrecche, sb. = wretch, 71.

Wrecched, adj. = wretched, 77.

Wronge, sb. 245; adj. used adverbially = wrongly, 170, 197, 349.

Wrowȝte = wrought, 3*d sing. pf. ind.* of work, 119.

Wryten, p. pt. of wryte; v. tr. 282.

Wyfe, sb. = wife, 69, 162, 169, 196.

Wylde, adj. 214.

Wyle, sb. = wile, 182.

Wylle, sb. = will, 1, 79, 181, &c.

Wylle, v.; 1*st sing. pres. ind.* 128, 261; 2*d sing.* 290; 2*d sing.* wylt, 260. See Wolle.

Wynne, v. tr. = win; p. pt. wonnen, 170; 3*d sing. pres. ind.* wynnethe = getteth, taketh, 337; thus miners speak of winning or getting out ores, or coals.

Wyse, sb. = wise, manner, 156.

Wyste. See Wytte.

Wyte, v. tr. = blame, 136.

Wytte, v. tr. = know; 2*d sing. imper.* 195; 2*d sing. pf. ind.* wysste, 35; 3*d pl. pf.* wyste, 274; 2*d sing. pf. subj.* 186.

Yen, sb. = eyen, eyne or eyes, 135, 323, 332.

Yf, conj. = if, 54.

Yle, sb. = isle, 5.

Yren, sb. = iron, 290.

ȝafe, 3*d pl. pf. ind.* of give, 271.

ȝate, sb. = gate, 22.

ȝe = yea, 212, 302.

ȝelde, v. tr. = yield, 335, 336. See Note.

Digitized by Google

ȝere, sb. = year, 89, 243.

ȝonder, adj. (preceded by an article) = yonder, 26; ȝondur, 232; ȝondere, 233; adv. 198, 350.

ȝonge, adj. = young, 81, 242, 251, 345.

ȝosken, v. intr. = to hiccough, to sob; 3d pl. pf. ind. ȝoskened, 108.

ȝou, pers. pron. obj. = you, 100.

ȝyf, conj. = if, 235.

ȝyfte, sb. = gift, 271.

ȝys = yes, 309.

JOHN CHILDS AND SON, PRINTERS.

Digitized by Google

Lydgate's Temple of Glas.

Early English Text Society.

Extra Series, No. LX.

1891.

Digitized by Google

BERLIN: ASHER & CO., 5, UNTER DEN LINDEN.
NEW YORK: C. SCRIBNER & CO.; LEYPOLDT & HOLT.
PHILADELPHIA: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.

Digitized by Google

Lydgate's

Temple of Glas.

EDITED

WITH INTRODUCTION AND NOTES

BY

J. SCHICK, PH.D.

LONDON:
PUBLISHED FOR THE EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY
BY KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH, TRÜBNER & CO.,
57 AND 59, LUDGATE HILL, E.C.
1891.

Digitized by Google

Extra Series, LX.

R. CLAY & SONS, LIMITED, LONDON & BUNGAY.

Digitized by Google

DEDICATED

TO

PROFESSOR JULIUS ZUPITZA.

Digitized by Google

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

PREFACE ... ... pp. vii—ix

INTRODUCTION.

PART I.

CHAPTER I. PRELIMINARY REMARKS ... ... pp. xi—xvi
„ II. DESCRIPTION OF THE MSS. AND PRINTS pp. xvi—xxx
„ III. GENEALOGY OF THE TEXTS ... pp. xxx—xlix
„ IV. CRITICISM OF THE TEXTS ... pp. xlix—liv

PART II.

CHAPTER V. LYDGATE'S METRE ... ... pp. liv—lxiii
„ VI. LYDGATE'S LANGUAGE ... ... pp. lxiii—lxxv
„ VII. THE AUTHORSHIP OF THE T. OF GLAS pp. lxxv—lxxxv
„ VIII. CHRONOLOGY ... ... pp. lxxxv—cxv
„ IX. THE SOURCES OF THE T. OF GLAS pp. cxv—cxxxiii
„ X. STYLE OF THE T. OF GLAS ... pp. cxxxiv—cxlii
„ XI. CONCLUDING REMARKS ... ... pp. cxlii—clvii
„ XII. THE APPENDICES ... ... pp. clvii—clx

TEXT OF THE T. OF GLAS ... ... pp. 1—57
APPENDIX I. THE COMPLEYNT ... ... pp. 59—67
„ II. DUODECIM ABUSIONES ... p. 68
NOTES ... ... pp. 69—126
GLOSSARY ... ... pp. 127—132
LIST OF PROPER NAMES ... ... p. 133
ADDENDA ... ... pp. 135, 136

Digitized by Google

PREFACE.

THE arrangement of the Introduction will, I hope, allow me to dispense with much explanation by way of preface. It will be seen at once that, with the exception of some preliminary remarks in Chapter I, the first half of the Introduction, as far as Chapter IV, is devoted to a description of the various MSS. and Prints of the Temple of Glas, and the critical discussion of the text. The second half contains investigations with respect to the metre, the language, the authorship, the date, the sources, and the style of the poem. Chapter XI gives a synopsis of Lydgate's principal works, and attempts to draw up a programme for further investigations of the monk's productions; Chapter XII says a few words about the Appendices.

But with respect to one or two points an explanation may be due. It may perhaps be thought that some questions might have been more fully entered into, others less. I might have given a complete grammar of the Temple of Glas, and, in particular, a full and detailed synopsis of the whole sound-system; I might also have added, in the Chapter on metrics, a full analysis of all the minor metrical phenomena of the poem. But I have refrained from doing so, principally because I thought the instances in which Lydgate differs from his great master Chaucer in points of language and metre, had better be collected systematically in special treatises, which would deal exhaustively with the monk's peculiarities on these points. Thus I have contented myself with setting forth the principal characteristics of Lydgate's metrical system, and entering carefully into certain vexed questions of language, the elucidation of which was necessary for the construction of the text.

On the other hand I must perhaps apologize for having gone somewhat beyond my immediate task in the working out of the later chapters of the Introduction. So many inadequate or erroneous ideas having gained ground with respect to Lydgate, I was tempted to overstep the boundaries of my immediate province, and to endeavour to elucidate certain questions which have an indirect bearing only on our subject. This I have been led to do particularly in the eighth Chapter, on Chronology, and in the survey of Lydgate's works, in Chapter XI. If, in the assignment of some of the dates, there has of necessity been a certain amount of guesswork, yet I hope on the other hand to have given some reliable data which will enable us to gain a better insight into the sequence, and to gauge more accurately the extent of the monk's productions. Special researches into certain of Lydgate's works may prove more than one of my conjectural dates to be wrong; but no one will be more glad than myself if some of the dates can be made out for certain, even were they to prove my conjectures in those cases to be erroneous.

Digitized by Google

The notes are meant to answer a double purpose: first, to illustrate the usage of words and idioms in the poem by comparison with contemporary writings, whilst showing to what extent Lydgate was influenced by ideas current at the time. Secondly, I have collected in them a great many stock-phrases of Lydgate's with numerous quotations, which, with the monk's peculiarities of metre and language, will, I hope, do good service in the discussion of the genuineness of doubtful works. Of critical notes there are but few, as this side of the question has been dealt with at great length in Chapters II—IV.

If Chapter III, and in particular some of the lists of mistakes in the MSS., seem of undue length, it must not be forgotten that we have to do with Chaucer-MSS.; and thus it seemed to me desirable to derive as much information from our present text as it could afford us, towards establishing the respective value of some of these MSS. with more certainty. From this point of view, a list, for instance, like that in Chapter III, § 2, of the numerous mistakes in MS. G, will tell its own story without further comment.

In conclusion, the agreeable task devolves upon me of expressing my sincere thanks for much kind help which I have received in my work. In the first place, I have gratefully to acknowledge my deep indebtedness to the Duke of Devonshire and the Marquis of Bath, for their courtesy in placing two valuable copies of the poem at my disposal. In the same way I would also tender my hearty thanks to the Principal Librarian and the Trustees of the Advocates' Library at Edinburgh, for the most kindly accorded loan of the print in their Library. Canon Jackson I must thank for having so courteously enlightened me on several points connected with the Longleat MS. Further, I am indebted to Mr. Peskett, of Magdalene College, Cambridge, for giving me access to the Pepys-MS. For the use of the other old copies of the text I must thank the authorities of the British Museum, the Bodleian and the Cambridge University Library; for personal help of various kinds I have especially to thank Dr. Bullen, Mr. Graves, Mr. Bickley, and Dr. Macray. To Mr. Jenkinson and Mr. Gordon Duff I am much indebted for information with respect to Caxton's and Wynken de Worde's prints, as also to Prof. Tietjen, of the Berlin University, for some astronomical calculations. To Professor Skeat I would acknowledge my indebtedness, not only for the help derived from his many valuable works connected with this period of English literature, but also for much personal kindness in the matter. It goes without saying that I am greatly indebted to Dr. Furnivall's publications; but I beg also to express my acknowledgment of many a valuable hint which I have received from him in the course of my work. Last, but not least, I have to thank the scholar of whose teaching and influence this edition is a direct outcome—Professor Julius Zupitza.

Digitized by Google

J. Schick.

Berlin, January 1891.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

INTRODUCTION.

PART I.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

Of all Chaucer's successors in the field of English Poetry, none has been more prolific than John Lydgate, Benedictine monk of the Abbey of Bury St. Edmunds. Nor has any one enjoyed a greater popularity in his day, a popularity which, even more than a century after his death, had not yet died out. 'Daun John' was certainly considered the greatest poet amongst his contemporaries.[1] None less than the Victor of Agincourt and Duke Humphrey of Gloucester have been his patrons, and in compliance with their commands, his two or three most lengthy works were produced. The Earl of Salisbury, King Henry VI., and the Earl of Warwick—father-in-law of the proud "setter-up and plucker-down of kings"—were also among those who commanded the monk's pen. The great number of MSS. still extant, some exquisitely illuminated, and many a ponderous folio and curious quarto from the press of the earliest English printers, still testify, in the most tangible manner, to his past popularity. Many of his less comprehensive poems were not unfrequently assigned a position of honour beside those of his admired and revered master Chaucer,[2] and the voice of his contemporaries proclaimed that Chaucer, Gower, and Lydgate formed the poetical triumvirate of the period.

Naturally, in the present day, our opinion of the poetical value of the monk's long-winded larger productions must differ widely from the verdict of the 15th and 16th centuries; but even in more recent times, poets and critics of such prominent position as Thomas

[1] This opinion is particularly strongly expressed by Bale: "omnium sui temporis in Anglia poetarum, absit inuidia dicto, facilè primus floruit." Catalogus 1557, p. 586.

[2] And, vice versâ, two of Chaucer's poems—namely, Truth and Fortune—are contained amongst The prouerbes of Lydgate, printed by Wynken de Worde; see J. P. Collier, Bibliographical Account (1865), I. 501; Lowndes, ed. Bohn III. 1419 (inaccurate); Bibliotheca Heberiana IV. 178; Brunet III. 1249.

Digitized by Google

Gray, Warton, and ten Brink have passed an indulgent, nay even a friendly judgment upon his poetical efforts.

But whatever the æsthetic value of Lydgate's productions may be, they afford a rich hunting-ground to the Chaucer-scholar, the archæologist, and the student of language or early typography. His works constitute, by their number and extensiveness, important documents of the English language in the first half of the 15th century, with notable differences from the language of Chaucer, both as regards phonology and vocabulary. Furthermore, they form a vast storehouse of mediæval lore, many of the most popular sources of the knowledge of the Middle Ages being, in a greater or lesser degree, incorporated in them; and as they are mainly translations or compilations made evidently for the best-educated of his nation, they furnish ample illustration of what was then considered as the highest literary culture. It is from this standpoint that an active energy has of late years been displayed in the editing, or in the careful investigation of some of Lydgate's works. In some cases, indeed, it was but a felicitous chance which brought our monk to the fore; thus his Guy of Warwick was published by Prof. Zupitza, in the first instance, certainly, as presenting one of the various treatments of this story; and when Dr. Horstmann had some of his legends printed, it was merely because they were legends. C. E. Tame also, and Hill-Cust, in their Lydgate-publications, did not make the study of Lydgate their primary object, the first having evidently religious aims in view, the two latter endeavouring to trace the sources used by Bunyan for the Pilgrim's Progress. But with these exceptions, the publications in question all have a direct bearing on Lydgate alone. There is, to mention the editions first, the well-known one of his Minor Poems, by Halliwell, for the Percy Society —of somewhat older date;—then, an edition of his Æsop has been brought out by Sauerstein in Anglia IX. (the Prolegomena forming a Leipzig Inaugural Dissertation), and several minor pieces, some of doubtful authenticity, are to be found in various books or periodicals. But, before all, it is Dr. Erdmann's forthcoming edition of the Story of Thebes, for the E. E. T. S., to which all students of this period of English literature must look forward with interest. For this poem is one of the triad of works usually associated with Lydgate's name, and a critical edition of it from the MSS. would settle many points of language and of versification, which latter has been especially censured in this poem.

Digitized by Google

The greatest merit, however, in furthering the study of Lydgate seems to me to be due to Prof. Zupitza. Not only has he himself edited Guy of Warwick, published an important notice concerning Lydgate's life, and is now bringing out the interesting story de duobus mercatoribus; but it was he also who first drew Dr. Koeppel's attention to the then "brach liegende Lydgate-Forschung." Through Zupitza's suggestions, strengthened by those of Prof. Breymann, Koeppel was instigated to write his two admirable treatises on the sources of the Story of Thebes and the Falls of Princes, two most valuable and thorough contributions to the Lydgate-literature, reflecting—the latter especially—great credit on the extensive and varied learning of their author. It is, similarly, through Zupitza's influence that Dr. Borsdorf is preparing for us an edition of the Court of Sapience, not one of Lydgate's least interesting works; and if the present edition of his Temple of Glas should be found to contribute, in a slight degree, to a better knowledge of Lydgate, the merit, again, would be due to Prof. Zupitza.

This poem suggested itself as being particularly suitable for a republication. For the Temple of Glas was, without doubt, one of Lydgate's most popular works,[1] a fact amply certified by the numerous MSS. in which it always occurs with and amongst poems of Chaucer, and the successive prints by Caxton, Wynken de Worde, Pynson, and Berthelet, the second of whom printed it not less than three times in the course of a few years. In modern times, especial attention has been drawn to it by Warton, and high praise bestowed upon it. "The pathos of this poem, which is indeed exquisite, chiefly consists in invention of incidents, and the contrivance of the story, which cannot conveniently be developed in this place: and it will be impossible to give any idea of it's essential excellence by exhibiting detached parts." So the passage stands in Warton, in the first edition, page 418, a passage which would render superfluous any excessive praise to which I might be led away through the proverbial zeal of an editor for his own ware. In consequence of this high commendation by Warton, the poem has not unfrequently been noticed, and its intrinsic value dwelt upon—in most cases, I am afraid, upon the authority of Warton alone, as the poem was not easily accessible. Such a decided popularity for more than a century might be quite

[1] In spite of an assertion to the contrary by Blades (Caxton II. 59), who seems to have had difficulty in finding copies of it other than the prints by Caxton and Wynken de Worde, and MS. Add. 16165 in the British Museum.

Digitized by Google

sufficient to induce the analyst of literary currents to look with some interest upon a re-edition of the poem, even if the verdict passed upon its poetical value, when measured by an absolute standard, should be: "Very small, almost nil." For if nothing else, we must at least find a good illustration of the taste prevalent for more than a century, in a poem which found eager readers in the days of Henry Bolingbroke, and the time when Agincourt was fought, as well as through all the turmoil of the Wars of the Roses; which was among the first deemed worthy by Caxton of being printed, and which was still highly applauded immediately before the dawn of a new era. If, then, the interest in the "bryght temple of glasse," as Stephen Hawes, in 1506, called the poem, faded away before productions of another stamp, it will only the better help to set off the glory of the morning that was destined to follow the dullest period of English literature.

But, even apart from these considerations, there were several questions which would invitingly challenge solution from the editor. First, the point of authorship presented itself. For, although Warton's criticism did great honour to the poem, this honour was not reflected upon the true author, as Warton had curiously assigned it to Stephen Hawes. This error had, by many, been copied for a whole century, and had, combined with typographical disputes, given rise to some entangled discussions. These difficulties will, I hope, once and for all be done away with by the investigations in chapter VII.

The point of authorship once settled, other questions confront us which demand a solution. Up to a quite recent date the opinion has prevailed amongst scholars that Lydgate's metre is exceedingly irregular, jerky, and halting. The question of his treatment of the final e—a question closely interwoven with the preceding—has also been a vexed one, and was difficult to decide from the materials available. Fortunately, not less than thirteen texts of the Temple of Glas have been found, thus forming sufficient material for a critical construction of the text, which cannot now, I think, differ much from the original. This preliminary criticism of the text furnishes us, on the one hand, with a firm basis on which to stand while grappling with the above questions; on the other hand, I hope, it will further our knowledge of a number of Chaucer-MSS., both with respect to their individual value, and the relations they bear one to another.

To conclude, a glance at its contents and the progress of its story, will show that our poem is, in its general framework, its motifs, and the whole range of its ideas, in no small degree dependent upon the Chaucerian Muse, and thus bears a not uninteresting testimony to the wide influence of Chaucer upon the literature of his country. If I add that, in several respects, the Temple of Glas bears a decided family-likeness to the Kingis Quair, and that King James was probably not uninfluenced by Lydgate's poem, the latter may perhaps appear to deserve greater interest than one might be inclined to bestow on a poem of Lydgate's, when bearing in mind certain criticisms on him.

Digitized by Google

I have above alluded to the circumstance that our poem was, in deference to Warton's judgment, more praised than actually read. The best-known account of it is probably the one in Hazlitt's re-edition of Warton, which is especially calculated to give an inadequate conception of it. For on p. 61 of the third volume of this work, the introduction to the poem is alone taken notice of, and, in fact, the whole passage would rather impress the reader with the idea that the introduction constitutes the entire poem. It will not, therefore, be amiss, if, in a few words, we sketch its contents, the less as this will at once indicate the position of the poem with respect to other works of the same school. The story may thus be briefly told:

Heavy-hearted and oppressed by sorrow, the author lies down to sleep one December night and finds himself, according to the favourite dream-motif of that day, before a temple of glass, which stands in a wilderness, on a craggy rock, frozen like ice (1—20). Dazzled by the brilliancy of the sun-light reflected from the temple, he is unable to distinguish his surroundings, until clouds gather before the sun, and he discovers, after long search, a "wicket" affording access into the building (20—39). He enters, and there finds depicted on the interior walls of the circular temple, the figures of many celebrated lovers, taken from classic antiquity and mediæval saga, portrayed in various attitudes with "billes" in their hands, petitioning Venus to mitigate their woes (39—54). Next follows an enumeration of the various lovers (55—142), with a list of their complaints (143—246). Last of all the dreamer perceives a lady, the very pattern of all beauty and excellence, an angelic creature, who, in loveliness and virtues, surpasses all others of her sex, and "illumines" the whole temple by "her high presence" (247—314). She, too, like the rest, presents Venus with a "bille" of the sorrows of her love (315—320), which she then begins to pour forth (321—369). After hearing her complaint that she is separated from her lover, Venus consoles her, promising her union with her knight (370—453), for which the lady returns thanks (454—502). The goddess then throws down to her branches of hawthorn, admonishing her to keep them sacred, as a symbol of constant love (503—530).

Digitized by Google

Whilst dreaming thus, the poet finds himself, on a sudden, amongst a great multitude, who are bringing sacrifices to Venus in her temple (531—544). He leaves the crowd, and perceives a knight wandering alone, who, oppressed with the sorrows of love, holds a long soliloquy, and finally resolves to lay his trouble before the goddess (545—700). This being accomplished (701—847), Venus consoles him in like manner to the lady, and sends him forthwith to his beloved, to whom he is boldly to disburden his mind (848—931). With a heavy heart the knight goes on his way (932—969), and makes confession of his love to the lady (970—1039), who colours red "as the ruddy rose," and bashfully assents to his suit, in obedience to the will of Venus as her sovereign lady and mistress (1040—1102). The lovers now humbly present themselves before the goddess, who unites them with many admonitions (1103—1298), upon which all present praise Venus, and petition her to keep the lovers thus united by everlasting bonds (1298—1319). This prayer being granted (1320—1333), the whole temple resounds with a "Ballade" of praise to the goddess, sung by all true lovers present (1334—1361). These sounds awake the poet, who, saddened at finding the beauteous vision has faded, resolves to make a "litil tretise" in praise of women, until he finds leisure to "expound his fore-said vision" (1362—1392). The envoy, addressed to his lady, concludes the poem (1393—1403).

It may be well to note here that the two MSS. G and S, which differ from the rest in having various interpolations, have, at the end, from l. 1380 onward, a most tedious, drawled-out addition of above 600 lines, containing the Compleynt of a lover who is separated from his lady, added most likely by reason of the unclear purport of the last twenty-five lines of the poem. This is given as Appendix I in the present edition.

CHAPTER II.

TITLE OF THE POEM.—DESCRIPTION OF THE MSS. AND PRINTS.

Before we proceed to give an account of the various MSS. and Prints, it may be well, at the very outset, to settle the title of the poem, with regard to which some doubts may remain after the perusal of the note in Warton-Hazlitt, III, 61. The matter is, in reality, very simple. All the texts of the poem give "The Temple of Glas" as the title, except MSS. F and B, where the poem in title, colophon and headlines, is called "The Temple of Bras."[1] Now chapter III, § 5, will show that F and B have many peculiarities in common which point to their being derived from one and the same original. We may therefore take it for granted that the error comes from their common source. I think we may even assign a reason for this error. It is not at all unlikely that the scribe of the MS. in question hit upon this wrong title because it seems to have been in use as another title for Chaucer's Parlement of Foules.[2] A comparison of line 231 of this poem furnishes the key to the occurrence of such a title for it;[3] for Lydgate's poem it is entirely unwarrantable, as in the decisive line 16 all texts, F and B not excepted, speak alike of a "temple of glas."

Digitized by Google

For the further title: The dreeme of a Trewe lover, etc., in MS. S, see below, under 6, p. xxiii.

As we have said above, numerous texts of the Temple of Glas have come down to us. I have altogether come across seven MSS. and six Prints; one of the latter, however, is only a fragment. They are as follows:

A. THE MANUSCRIPTS.

1. T = Tanner 346.

Bodleian, Oxford. See Skeat, Chaucer's Minor Poems, p. xlii; Legend of Good Women, p. xli. On vellum; date 1400—1420. The poems contained in this MS. are in various handwritings, that of the Temple of Glas being one of the earliest; in fact, Dr. Macray tells me that it dates back, as nearly as possible, to the year 1400. Our poem begins on folio 76 a, and ends on 97 a. The title runs: The tempil of Glas; at the end stands: Explicit. Some of the capitals are ornamented, and illuminated in red and blue. The index at the

[1] In F, it is true, the word Bras has been, by a later hand, corrected to Glas, twice in the title (in one case Stowe's hand is discernible), and once in the colophon, also by Stowe.

[2] It occurs in the colophon of Caxton's Print in the University Library, Cambridge (A B. 8. 48. 6), and in the fragment of it in the British Museum (C. 40. l. 1); cf. Blades, Caxton, II, 61; Warton-Hazlitt, III, 61, note 1; Tanner, Bibliotheca Britannico-Hibernica, p. 491; Furnivall, Trial-Forewords, p. 116; Catalogue of the Caxton Exhibition, No. 37.

[3] It is curious to notice that in this passage just F should read glas (as accordingly Morris has it).

Digitized by Google

beginning, in recent handwriting, has the item: The Tempil of Glass, f[ecit] Steph. Hawes. v[ide] Pits. This MS. is, with G, the oldest, and is altogether the best of them all. It has therefore been taken as the basis of the present edition, in which every deviation from it has been duly marked by brackets or asterisks.—For a description of the way in which T has been reproduced in this edition, see chapter IV.

Lines 96, 154, 216, 320 are omitted in T, as also in those MSS. which are most nearly related to it (F, B, P).

Some of its most conspicuous orthographical and phonetic peculiarities are the following:

The scribe often writes w alone for the usual ew in words like nwe, trwe, rwe, knwe, hwe; also in swe, 352 (but sue, 1180), eschwe 450 (but eschew 1181); always shew(e), 206, 305, 319, 916. This seems to indicate that the scribe of our MS. pronounced the vowel of the first group above also as a monophthong.—ov is often written instead of ow; so we find nov, hov, ȝov, morov, folov, sorov; lovli; sparovis 541; avove 771. A confusion of w and v appears further in woid (= vowed) 741 and 1128; nvfangilnes 1243; showe (= shove) 534. Between vowels w has sometimes been dropped, for instance in: waloing 12; sorois 967; foloiþ 416.—Letters not rarely stuck fast in the scribe's pen; for instance several times, the i or y in -li: goodl 1000; womanl 1020; mekel 1105.—Instead of she we find sho 72, 666; we have boin = ben 136, and sein = seen 935. In certain endings the scribe of T has a predilection for putting i instead of e; he writes for instance: Rauysshid 16, foundid 18, entrid 39, callid 219, wikkid 153; billis 50, hestis 59, oþis 59, tungis 153, þingis 167; manis 402; rekin 91; werin 152; oþir 3, vndir 9, aftir 47, wondir 48, tendir 210; telliþ 110, beriþ 173; nedis 232; tempil 92, etc.—i in this MS. is often kept where other MSS. put y (for instance in the syllable -li); it presents, in this respect, a contrast especially to F, see Skeat, M. P., p. xl; Legend, p. xli.

Although some of the above-mentioned peculiarities recall the northern dialect, yet they are perhaps not sufficient proof that the scribe was a Northcountryman.

2. F = Fairfax 16.

Bodleian, Oxford. See Skeat, M. P., p. xl; Legend, p. xl; Warton-Hazlitt III, 61 Note. On vellum; date about 1440—1450 (on the first page is the date 1450). In the MS. missing lines have been filled in and other corrections supplied in various places in a small, neat handwriting. This is doubtless the hand of John Stowe,[1] the historian, as is shown by MSS. like Harl. 367, Tanner 464 (transcripts from Leland),[2] and Addit. 29729, a Lydgate-MS. copied by Stowe, according to his own words, from Shirley. The Temple of Glas extends in F from fol. 63 a to 82 b; the title, however, is here given as The temple of Bras, but Bras has later been twice corrected to Glas, once, above, by Stowe and, below, by another hand. Colophon: Explicit the temple of Bras; here Bras has only once, by Stowe, been corrected into glas. The running title is: The temple of Bras (see beginning of this chapter). In the table of contents at the beginning stands: The Temple off Glasse, by the side of which Stowe wrote lidgate (see chapter VII). At the commencement of this valuable Chaucer-MS. is written in Fairfax's hand: "Note y[t] Joseph Holland[3] hath another of these Manuscripts," and at the end of The Temple of Glas in Stowe's hand: "Here lackethe .6.[4] leves that are in Josephe Hollands boke." As, however, the poem is complete in the MS., this remark must either refer to some poem which stood between The Temple of Glas and the following Legend of Good Women in Holland's MS., and which was not given in F; or else the writer of this remark had before him, in "Hollands boke," a copy belonging to group A, with the Compleynt at the end, which appeared to him to be wanting in F. For ll. 96, 154, 216, 320, gaps were originally left in the MS.; of these the one for l. 320 has been filled in by Stowe, the three remaining ones by another hand; the line supplied for 96 being re-corrected by Stowe. Towards the end of the poem, ll. 1375 and 1385 are omitted. Further, there are found in the margin numerous crosses indicating mistakes, probably also put in by Stowe. The lines almost invariably begin with small letters.

Digitized by Google

[1] Max Lange, Untersuchungen über Chaucer's Boke of the Duchesse, p. 1, is wrong in supposing that ll. 31—96 of that poem have been filled in by Stowe, the writing in question being in a later Jacobean hand (Dr. Macray).

[2] This was pointed out to me by Dr. Macray.

[3] Joseph Holland, the Devonshire Antiquary; several articles of his, dated 1598—1601, are to be found in Thomas Hearne's Collection of Curious Discourses, Oxford 1720, and in Sir John Doddridge's Opinions of sundry learned Antiquaries touching the antiquity . . . . . of the High-Court of Parliament in England, London 1658. See Wood, Ath. Ox., 2nd ed., London 1721, vol. I, col. 521 (§ 605).

[4] According to this, Warton-Hazlitt, III, 61 Note, is to be corrected.

Digitized by Google

3. B = Bodley 638.

Bodleian, Oxford. See Skeat, M. P., p. xli; Legend, p. xli; Warton-Hazlitt III, 61. Furnivall, Odd Texts, p. 67 and 213. Paper with vellum quire-covers, 4°, about 1470—1480. The Temple of Glas begins on fol. 16 b, and ends on 38 a. The title is: The Temple of Bras; the running title the same; the colophon: Explicit The Temple of Bras. See under 2, and at the beginning of this chapter. The lines begin as a rule with capitals. Ll. 701—714 have been tampered with by another hand; hence they exhibit a number of arbitrary interlineations which again are now partly erased. B is very nearly allied to F, the two going back to a common source.

Ll. 96, 154, 216, 320, 1385 are omitted.—Two amusing notes have been written in the margin by a later reader. The speeches in the poem seem to have been too long for his taste—for which we could not blame him. At all events, he became impatient at not being able to make out who the speakers were; for, at the end of one speech (after l. 847), he put: "h^{e} vsq*ue* nescio quis"; and at the beginning of another (l. 970): "who in all godly pity maye be."

4. P = Pepys 2006.

Magdalene College, Cambridge. See Skeat, M. P., p. lxvii; Legend of Good Women, xl; Todd, Illustrations of Gower and Chaucer, p. 116; Furnivall, Supplementary Parallel-Text Edition of Chaucer's Minor Poems, p. 27; Odd Texts, p. 265. Paper, about 1450. The Temple of Glas extends from page 17 to 52. The title has been supplied in a small, later hand as Temple of glas; the colophon is: Explicit. Our poem is written in two handwritings, the first including ll. 1—1098; the second beginning at the top of page 45, and extending to the end. The compiler of the Index seems to have thought that the poem was one of Chaucer's, like others contained in the MS.

The following lines are omitted: 154, 290, 346, 532, 552—555, 616, 818, 955—957, 1027.—Ll. 147, 148; 1330, 1331, and 207, 208 are transposed; in the last instance, the mistake has been indicated by two crosses in the margin. Ll. 124, 432; 96, 216, 320 differ entirely from those of the other texts; the three latter must have been omitted in the common original of T. P. F. B, and were most likely supplied in their present form on the way from this original to P (see chapter III, § 10).

Digitized by Google

Many dialectal peculiarities occur in the part written by the first scribe:

ā for ō: behalden 34, knawe 261, knaw 430, owr(e) thrawe 608, 647, aweñ 938, knawe 1002.—u, ou, ow for o: suthe 43, goudly 56, lowke 230, rowte 307, sowne 392, shuke 524, gowd 684, 906, 977, 985, lulinesse 288, vnfoulde 360 [dulfull 52]; owr, owre (over) 608, 647.—Vice versâ, o for ou: flores 540.—

Orthography quh for wh: quhen 116, 119, 421 (qwhen 610), Quhame 314, quhat 567, swmquhyle 655.—quh for h: quhow 100, 117, etc., quho 599.—wh for h: who (= how) 17, 58, 63, 65, 67, etc.; wher (= were) 46, 47, 92, 143.—h for wh: how (= who) 297, hoo 615.—wh for w: whete (= wite) 728; w for wh: wan 4.—h prefixed wrongly: hus 110, hws 1081.—w in the function of a vowel: lwfys 86, lwfith 157, lwfit 163, lwfe 212, 213 etc., Wpon 89, vertwe 297, 306, dwle 407, trwe 453, abwfe 466, swndry 609, etc., etc.—w for v: grewous 1, Rawishid 16, wisage 56, dissawyt 58, growe 109, Inwie 114, lowes 125, enwie 147, lower 149, etc., etc., (very numerous cases).—Vice versâ, v for w: vexit 69, vas 129, vitte 463, vaxeñ 508, vittes 831, vyttis 1029.—We find also ey for e: feyr 10, deyr 219, beyn 323, seyñ 506, apeyre 581, greyn 617; ay for a: naymly 229, laydy 468.—Vice versâ: twene 354, chene 355, presith 403, dispared 651, etc.—warde (= word) 360.—The MS. has also often -ir, -id (or -it), -is, in unaccentuated syllables.

These peculiarities leave no doubt that the first part was written by a northern scribe. There are moreover, besides the above-mentioned omission of fourteen whole lines, no end of careless mistakes in this portion of the MS., dittographies, omissions of words, syllables and letters, and other nondescript faults, in many cases presenting perfect nonsense. None of our MSS. have been so carelessly written as this particular part of P.

The latter portion of the poem, written by a second scribe, is not only almost entirely free from these northern forms, but it is altogether more correctly and carefully transcribed.

5. G = Gg. 4. 27.

University Library, Cambridge. See Skeat, M. P., xliii (the passage quoted on p. xliv forms ll. 701—704 of The Temple of Glas, not a continuation of it) and Legend of Good Women, p.

Digitized by Google

xxxviii. On vellum; date about 1430? This MS. contains a well-known text of the Canterbury Tales, and is remarkable as having a different version of the Prologue of the Legend of Good Women (one of Bradshaw's favourite MSS., see Prothero, A Memoir of Henry Bradshaw, p. 357). With respect to the Temple of Glas also, it has a distinctive feature, in being, with S, the only MS. which contains the appendix named the "Compleynt." The "Temple of Glas" proper extends from fol. 458 a to 476 b (ending here with l. 1379); after that follows the Compleynt, which stops short at l. 563, at the bottom of fol. 482 b, the next leaf being cut out. Another leaf (= 513 according to the new pagination of the MS.) is wanting between fol. 479 and 480 (of the old pagination); thus, ll. 255—330 of the Compleynt are missing in G. The title stands already at the foot of fol. 457 b: Here begynyth the temple of Glas. Ll. 531—596 are wanting, not, however, in consequence of a missing leaf.

The Catalogue of the MSS. in the University Library wrongly splits up our poem into two parts (III, 173, 174):

19. The Temple of Glass (fol. 458 a).
20. Supplicatio Amantis (fol. 467).

But compare the Corrigenda (V, 598): "This copy differs from the printed editions, by having much more at the end. The last page is here wanting, but a complete copy of this recension, in the handwriting of John Shirley, is in the British Museum, Add. MS. 16165." The compiler of the Index of G apparently believed the poem to be Chaucer's, for he has, on fol. 488 b (the last leaf but one) at the foot, the remark: "The Temple of glasse and supplicatio Amantis not in the prynted booke."

MS. G is, with T, the oldest of our texts. It represents with S (and, in part of the poem, with F and B) another version of the text, exhibiting, in the body of the poem also, various interpolations, which will be discussed in chapters III and IV. Its peculiarities of spelling, etc., can be studied in the Compleynt, for which it has been taken as the basis.

6. S = Additional MS. 16165.

British Museum. This is one of the MSS. of John Shirley, a gentleman who spent a considerable part of his time in copying poems of Chaucer and Lydgate. The MS. is on paper, folio; date about 1450. See Skeat, M. P., xlv. Our poem extends from fol.

Digitized by Google

206 b to 241 b, and has been almost entirely copied by Shirley himself; but ll. 119—134 and 391—439 have been written by other hands. At the end of the Regula sacerdotalis, which precedes our poem, is written in the MS.: "Et ensy fine vn petit abstracte appellez regula sacerdotalis et comence vne soynge / moult plesaunt fait a la request dun amoreux par Lidegate · Le Moygne de Bury." The running title is: The dreeme of a trewe lover; this, however, is not always uniformly the same, inasmuch as trewe is sometimes omitted, or a has been replaced by þe, or is altogether left out, etc. On folio 207 a stands in addition to this headline: "made by daun John of þe tempull of glasse þat shall nexst folowe þe hous of fame" (the words in italics supplied later); similarly, there is a later addition to the running title on fol. 212 a: calde þe Temple of glasse by Lydegate. See further chapter VII.—The colophon runs (on fol. 241 b): "Here endiþe þe Dreme and þe compleynt of þe desyrous seruant in loue and filowyng begynneþe þe compleint of Anelyda," etc.

As has been intimated above, this is the only other MS., which, besides G, contains the Compleynt. Where, therefore, the first MS. is defective, the text of S is given in Appendix I, namely, in ll. 255—330, and from 563 to end.

Folios 228—230 do not follow in correct sequence. It seems that fol. 228 b was, through an oversight, left blank; Shirley turned from fol. 228 a immediately to 230 a, and then to 230 b; on the blank side of 228 b he then wrote the continuation of 230 b. Folio 229 ought to stand before 228 (perhaps a mistake in binding?). The scribe himself draws attention to the right sequence of the pages.

Besides the many striking mistakes which S has in common with G, discussed in chapter III, S has omitted ll. 261—264 and 507; totally changed 594 and 618, and the latter halves of 1358, 1359, to make the rhyme suit l. 1356; in the interpolated stanza 3 b, line 4 is omitted, and a new one introduced; in place of ll. 741 and 742 one single line appears; two lines (the first = line 91) have been interpolated between ll. 28 and 29, and, before 736, line 727 has been, by mistake, repeated.

In the Compleynt ll. 157—176 are omitted in S; ll. 364, 378, 412, 474 are totally different from G, and lines 380 and 422 differ slightly. Compare also the lines 206, 207 in the two MSS.

Shirley's peculiarities of orthography are well known from Dr. Furnivall's publications[1]: his e- for y- (the prefix to the past parti-

[1] Compare particularly Odd Texts, p. 78.

Digitized by Google

ciple), as in: echaced 31, eblent 32, Eslawe 95, Ewownded 113, Eturned 116, Eentred 201, etc.; his -eþe, -iþe (3rd ps. sgl.): abydeþe, flourеþe, bereþe, telliþe, sittеþe; his predilection for ffs: efft, alofft, sofft, wyff, stryff; his eo and oe; his invariable svarabhakti-vowel in hurome; his uw in truwe, huwe, eschuwe, etc.; his pleonastic writing of nexst, etc.—He also often has the Scandinavian þeyre.—His reading sounde of bras (instead of stede of bras) in l. 142 does not reflect great credit upon his knowledge of Chaucer, nor does his reading Physyphonee (for Tisiphone), in l. 958, say much for his classical scholarship. What with all the above-stated omissions and interpolations, and a whole legion of alterations which he introduced on his own hook, his MS. is one of our worst copies.[1]

7. L = Longleat 258.

In the possession of the Marquis of Bath. On paper and vellum; 4°.; date about 1460—1470. See Furnivall, Supplementary Parallel-Text Edition of Chaucer's Minor Poems, p. 143; Odd Texts, p. 251; Reports of the Commission for Historical MSS., third Report, Appendix, p. 188, at the bottom, and 189 at the top. Curiously enough, in the last-mentioned passage the Temple of Glas is not given in the contents of that MS. in which it really stands—namely, MS. No. 258, the Chaucer-MS. containing the Parlement of Foules, etc.—; but after the description of this MS. in the Reports, on p. 189, a further MS., The Temple of Glasse, on paper, of the 15th century, is mentioned. Canon Jackson, to whom I am much indebted for his information about this MS., tells me that this latter does not exist as a separate copy; he thinks that the Temple of Glas, which, in reality, stands first in MS. 258, has, in the table of its contents, as given in the Reports, been wrongly put at the end of the table as a separate "folio" of the 15th century. The Temple of Glasse, mentioned in the Historical Commission Reports on p. 188, in the middle of second column, is Chaucer's Dreme, or, as the poem has been better called, The Isle of Ladies; see Thynne's Animadversions, printed by Dr. Furnivall, p. 30; Skeat, M. P., xxxii; Koerting, Grundriss der Geschichte der Englischen Litte-

[1] Shirley also wrote "poetry" himself. By an enormous jump, we come down from Chaucer to Lydgate; a little lower than Lydgate's poorest verses ranks the Compleynt, and with another decided step we descend from the Compleynt to Shirley's productions. See specimens of them in chapters VII. and VIII.

Digitized by Google

ratur, p. 157, note 1. This MS. is of the 16th century (about 1550), and has the number 256.

As we have just mentioned, The Temple of Glas stands, in L, at the beginning, from fol. 1 a to 32 a. The title is: The Temple of Glas; the colophon: here endith the Temple of Glas. On fol. 32 a were originally only the last two lines and the colophon; later on, Sir John Thynne wrote on the same page a poem by Rycharde Hattfeld; comp. Add. MS. 17492, fol. 18 b, where the same poem is to be found.[1] Ll. 211 and 212 are transposed; ll. 96, 609, 610, and 901 are omitted; the latter, however, has been filled in by a later hand, as well as the headings before 321 and 531, and the running title: The temple of Glas; various corrections also, as in ll. 426, 816, 818, 833, 844, have been supplied by the same hand.—In the table of contents our poem appears as "Templum vitreum."

The text of MS. L forms an interesting link between the recension of the Prints and of MSS. T. P. F. B; it must stand in close relation to the MS. which we may suppose Caxton to have used.—It has few peculiarities of spelling or phonetics; it writes vade for fade (508); abought for about; grugging, etc. (with gg), and invariably dud (= did, O.E. dyde). The Scandinavian forms thair, them (or theim) are of frequent occurrence.

Another MS., not now known, once in the possession of the Paston family, is spoken of in the Paston Letters, in one dated the 17th of February, 1471-72 (see chapter VII). The Temple of Glas seems also to have been contained in a MS. of Joseph Holland's; see above, under § 2 of this chapter. Moreover, the criticism of the known texts, in chapter III, points to the former existence of a considerable number of MSS. now lost sight of.

B. THE PRINTS.

8. C = Caxton's Print.

University Library, Cambridge, marked AB. 8. 48. 5. Unique.[2] 4°, without date, place, name of printer, signatures or catchwords. The type used (No. 2) shows that this is one of Caxton's oldest Prints, and belongs to about the year 1478. It contains thirty-four

[1] This I was able to ascertain through the kind help of Mr. Bickley, of the British Museum. The poem is about to be published, from the Addit. MS., in Dr. E. Flügel's Lesebuch.

[2] Of all the six prints known to me, I have, of each, seen but one copy. See, however, Lowndes, the copies mentioned by whom I could not always trace to their present possessors.

Digitized by Google

leaves, a—c^8 d^{10}; folio a_1, probably blank, is missing. The poem begins on a_2 recto, and ends on d_{10} recto. The full page comprises twenty-three lines. The title is given at the top of a_2 recto : + The temple of glas + ; the colophon on d_{10} recto : + Explicit the temple of glas +.

See Conyers Middleton, A Dissertation concerning the Origin of Printing in England, 1735, p. 29; John Lewis, Life of Caxton, 1737, p. 104; Ames, Typographical Antiquities, 1749, p. 60; Herbert I, 79; Dibdin I, 306; Panzer, Annales Typographici, 1795, III, 561, No. 67; Ritson, Bibliographia Poetica, under No. 10 of the Lydgate-list; Robert Watt, Bibliotheca Britannica I, 207 c; Catalogue of the Caxton Exhibition, No. 34; and, particularly Blades, Caxton, 1863, vol. II, 59, No. 19.

The Cambridge copy seems once to have formed part of a volume of collections, belonging to Bishop John More of Ely (died 1714; see his portrait forming the frontispiece to vol. II of Dibdin), who procured it through John Bagford; see Blades II, 51; Hazlitt, Remains of the Early Popular Poetry of England, III, 24; Bibliotheca Heberiana, Part IV, 134; Hartshorne, The Book Rarities in the University of Cambridge, 1829, p. 135.—The various component parts of this volume have since been separated again. The other prints are all descended from Caxton's, as will be shown in chapter III.

9. W = Wynken de Worde's first Print.

British Museum, King's Collection. It forms the third piece in a volume marked C. 13. a. 21, the two preceding it being the Story of Thebes and the Assemble de dyeus. See the description of the whole volume in Hazlitt, Hand-Book to the Popular, Poetical and Dramatic Literature of Great Britain, p. 358, No. 3; comp. also Ward, Catalogue of the Romances in the British Museum, I. 88.

The print is in 4°, containing a—c^8 d^4 = 28 leaves, with 28 lines on a full page. The Catalogue of the British Museum gives 1500 (?) as the probable date; but Mr. Gordon Duff tells me that it must be somewhat earlier, perhaps 1498. This print has signatures, as have also the following ones; in Pynson's print this is not visible, as the bottom of the pages has been cut off.—The print has no separate title-page; the title is given at the top of a_1 recto : ¶ Here begynneth the Temple of glas; immediately below the poem begins, and ends on fol. d_4 recto, in the middle, with the colophon : ¶ Explicit the Temple of glas. Underneath there are the : ¶ Duodecim abusiones, in Latin, followed on d_4 verso, by two English stanzas in rhyme royal (printed in Appendix II.). Below these is Wynken de Worde's device, No. 1 (= Caxton's small device, having his initials in black on a white ground, with black floral scrolls, without W. de Worde's name underneath); see Herbert, table between I. 116 and 117, left corner at the bottom; Dibdin, No. 1 of Wynken's devices.

Digitized by Google

This first print by Wynken de Worde was followed by two others (W2 and w, described in the two ensuing paragraphs) which have often been confused with each other and with Caxton's print,[1] so that many mistakes in connection with them are found in bibliographical and typographical works.

See Ames (1749), p. 86; Herbert I. 194, 195; Dibdin II. 303—305; M. Denis' Supplement to Maittaire (1789), No. 5992, vol. II. 673; Panzer III. 561, No. 67; Ritson, Bibliographia Poetica, p. 68; Watt I. 475 e; Lowndes ed. Bohn III. 1419; L. Hain, Repertorium Bibliographicum, No. 15364, vol. II., pars II., 397; Bibliotheca Westiana, No. 1684; Bibliotheca Heberiana[2] (1834), part IV. p. 134. Our print W is probably also the one meant by Herbert, vol. I. p. 79 (bottom) and 80 (top); Mason-Heber's copy must have been very similar to the one in the Brit. Museum, if not of the very same impression.

The text of W is derived from C; see chapter III.

10. W2 = Wynken de Worde's second Print.

Advocates' Library, Edinburgh. 4°; a—d^4 in eights = 28 leaves, with 28 lines on full page. No separate title-page; title at the top of a_1 recto: ¶ Here begynnyth y^e^ temple of Glas. Below it, the poem begins, and ends on d_1 recto; the colophon is: ¶ Explicit the Temple of glas. Immediately below follow the: ¶ Duodecim abusiones, in Latin and English; they end at the bottom of d_4 recto. On d_4 verso stands Wynken de Worde's device alone, No. 4 as given in Dibdin. The sign ¶ stands before every line throughout the whole poem. Folio b_7 and b_8 are bound in wrong order in the Edinburgh copy.

My attention was drawn to this print by Mr. Gordon Duff, who also told me that the date of it is about 1500.—This second print by Wynken de Worde is derived from his first one, as the evidence of the text shows.

See Catalogue of the Advocates' Library VI, 490, where this print is ascribed to Stephen Hawes.

11. w = Wynken de Worde's third Print.

In the possession of the Duke of Devonshire. This copy once belonged to the Duke of Roxburghe and, still earlier, to Dr. Farmer,

[1] The confusion of W with C arose from W having Caxton's device at the end. But Wynken at first used Caxton's own device, and the type furnishes decisive evidence that W was not printed by Caxton.

[2] For Heber and his bibliomania see Allibone's Dictionary; also Breymann's edition of Marlowe's Doctor Faustus, p. x.

Digitized by Google

the well-known Shakspere-scholar and Librarian to the University of Cambridge. See Catalogue of the Library at Chatsworth, 1879, IV. 152 and IV. 340; Bibliotheca Heberiana IV. 134.—The print contains a^8 b^8 c^6 d^4 = 26 leaves in 4°, with 31 lines to the full page. This print has a separate title-page: on folio a_1 recto stands: ¶ Here begynneth the temple of Glas. Underneath is a woodcut formed of three blocks, representing in the middle a tree, to the right a lady, to the left a gentleman, as it would seem in a courting attitude. Two blank scrolls are respectively over their heads.

On folio a_1 verso the poem begins, and ends at the bottom of d_3 verso. On folio d_4 recto are the Duodecim abusiones in Latin, with the two stanzas in English. At the bottom of d_4 recto is the following colophon: ¶ Here endeth the temple of Glas Enprynted in London in Flete strete in the sygne of the sonne. by Wynkyn de Worde. On d_4 verso there is a large woodcut formed of four blocks; the two composing the border representing ornamental scrollwork of floral design, the upper enclosed block depicting the Virgin and Child standing in a cloister (or chapel?), the lower being Wynken de Worde's device No. 2 in Dibdin (Caxton's initials in white on black ground, with white floral ornamentation, and underneath the name of Wynkyn de Worde in smaller black letters on a white ground); see also Herbert, table between I. 116 and 117, right corner at the bottom.

Mr. Jenkinson, the Librarian to the University of Cambridge, tells me that the above-mentioned woodcut shows the date of our print to be not long after 1500. w is derived from W2, the second print by Wynken.

See Brunet, Manuel du Libraire, 1862, III. 1250; Lowndes, ed. Bohn III. 1419; Bibliotheca Farmeriana, p. 296, Lot 6451; Dibdin II. 304, Note †.

Herbert, p. 1778 (quoted by Dibdin II. 305), speaks of a print by Wynken de Worde with his device No. 5 as being in the Cambridge University Library, where, however, its existence could not be traced. Most likely Herbert meant the print described in this paragraph, as it was formerly in the possession of Dr. Farmer, once Librarian to the University.[1] The statements in Ames, Herbert, and Dibdin, with respect to Caxton's and Wynken's prints, are anything but clear or accurate.[2]

[1] The colophon of w and of the print referred to by Herbert are the same.

[2] I believe Ames (I, 86) and Herbert (I, 80 and 194) mean Wynken's first print W; later on, Herbert saw w also and took some notes from it which were

Digitized by Google

12. p = Pynson's Print.

Fragments in the Bodleian, Oxford. A print by Pynson is mentioned in Ritson, Bibliographia Poetica, p. 69 (top); but I should not have been able to trace it, had not Dr. E. Fluegel discovered four leaves of this print among the Douce-Fragments (No. 38) in the Bodleian. The leaves are in 4o, and are in a mutilated condition, owing principally to the bottom of the pages having been cut off. They have been put together in wrong sequence; leaf 1, recto, contains ll. 1327—1349, verso 1355—1379; leaf 2, recto, 1103—1126, verso 1131—1154; leaf 3, recto, 1159—1180, verso 1187—1208; leaf 4, recto, 1385—1403. Underneath is the colophon:

[Explicit][1] the Temple of glas.

[Emprynt] ed by . Rycharde Pynson.

On the last page stands Pynson's large device No. V in Dibdin. The Duodecim abusiones are not given in p. As the signatures have been cut off, we cannot say how many sheets or pages this print contained. As, however, the top-lines of the four leaves left of it coincide, by a curious chance, with those of b, we may, perhaps, infer that p had twenty-six leaves like b (and w).—The text of p is taken from W, the first print by Wynken. From this reason, we may perhaps conclude that p was printed sometime between 1498 and 1500.

---

made use of by Dibdin. Dibdin's account (II, 303)—unless, indeed, there is a fourth print by Wynken—is a shockingly confused medley of W and w. The title stands nowhere as Dibdin has it; by the alteration of the capital letters, as given by Dibdin, we might get W or w (not W2). The colophon annexed to this title is taken from w; its orthography is faulty, and it represents here the second part only of the full colophon in w. The beginning of the Temple of Glas is given from W, very faultily. The second colophon, introduced after these lines, is that of W or W2 (one capital wrong). The Latin part of the Duodecim abusiones is from W, with one slight mistake. Then Dibdin tells us that the two English stanzas stand on the last page; this applies only to W. But nevertheless, in the form in which they stand in Dibdin, these two stanzas are taken from w (Dibdin apparently following MS. notes of Herbert's); still many words are as in W (for instance, yougth in l. 18). Then follows the beginning of the colophon in w; then a controversy with respect to Dr. Farmer's copy (w) and that of Mason (W), etc.—every line only adding to the bewilderment of the reader.

Had the historians of Typography been accurate in trifles, matters would have been very simple; the accurate rendering of the title alone—or of the first two words of the poem alone—would have been enough to distinguish all the four prints C, W, W2, w.

[1] The brackets show what I have filled in myself, the paper here being torn away.

Digitized by Google

13. b = Berthelet's Print.

Bodleian, Oxford; marked S. Selden d. 45 (22). The print contains a^4 b^6 c^4 d^6 e^6 = twenty-six leaves in 4o, with thirty-one lines to the full page. Folio a_1 is devoted to the title and woodcuts, the title being on a_1 recto: ¶ This boke called the Temple of glasse / is in many places amended / and late diligently imprynted.—Underneath it stands a woodcut, representing Fortune on her wheel, blindfolded, bearing an unfurled sail in her hand, surrounded by kings and knights. On a_1 verso there is another woodcut, showing trees and flowers enclosed by a paling, in the midst of which stands a knight courting a lady.—The poem begins on a_2 recto, and ends on e_6 recto, in the middle; after it follow the: ¶ Duodecim abusiones, ending on e_6 verso; below them is the colophon: ¶ Thus endeth the temple of Glasse. Emprinted at London in Fletestrete / in the house of Thomas Berthelet / nere to the Cundite / at the sygne of Lucrece. Cum priuilegio.

The text of b is taken from w, Wynken de Worde's last print. It was from this print by Berthelet that Warton made his extracts (comprising ll. 14—41; 44—85; 137—142),[1] and these, again, served as basis for the German translation of ll. 55—66 and 75—81 in Alex. Buechner's Geschichte der Englischen Poesie I, 56.

See on this print Warton-Hazlitt III, 61; Ritson, Bibliographia Poetica, p. 69 (top); Herbert I, 463; Dibdin III, 348; Bibliotheca Heberiana, part IV, p. 134.

CHAPTER III.

GENEALOGY OF THE ORIGINAL TEXTS.

I. GROUP A.

§ 1. Coincidences in MSS. G and S.

It will be seen by a cursory glance that the two MSS. G and S exhibit common characteristics which point to a close relation between them. In both, the end of the poem, from line 1380—1403, is wanting, and, in its place, appears an exceedingly prosy appendix of over 600 lines, the "Compleynt," which was, I suppose, added in the two MSS. in consequence of the ambiguous expression of the last twenty-five lines of the poem, which seemed to leave [1] Some of Warton's readings are taken from the MSS.; some are conjectural. I need hardly add that the latter are all wrong.

Digitized by Google

scope for some such addition. Moreover, in both MSS. the five stanzas 3—7 (ll. 335—369) have been replaced by four others; line 510, and in connection with it, 513 and 514, have been altered, to bring in the name "Margarete" for the Lady (cf. also Compl. 395 etc.); similarly, in ll. 309 and 310 the motto of the lady has been changed (cf. also line 530); in l. 299, the colours of the lady's garment are given differently, most likely because our redactor did not consider the green colour, token of inconstancy, appropriate here. Another deliberate change has been made with the pronouns þou, þe, þin (altered to ȝe, ȝour, your in ll. 889, 1152; 883, 888; 854); and here the alteration can be easily detected as such, because in several instances the old pronoun has been either left (cf. ll. 852, 859 etc., 927 etc., 1151, 1156 etc.), or altogether omitted, or otherwise changed (cf. ll. 910, 926, 1172). The subjoined list gives the principal minor instances in which G and S agree in opposition to all other MSS.

Line 1. constreint] compleynt G. S. 9. Hadde hid only in G. S. 19. a] om. 51. compleint] compleyntes. 60. she was] was she. 66. pein] sorwe. 79. hade for Tristram al] for Trystram sufferede in. 81. him] hyre G. hir S. 89. walles depeint] wal depented. 93. lusti fresshe] fresshe lusty. 96. sawe I] I sawe S. I say G. 112. hov] of. 139. &] and ek. 161. ne] in. 200. in] In here G. in hir S. 215. oft] soore. 220. was to him] to hym was. 230. he doþ] men do. 244. for] thorowe. 251. which] the whiche. 269. so] or. 271. briȝter] is bryghtere. 321. of] to. 328. ful] cler. 331. her] om. 370. þo] as. 407. sorowis dul] sorwe dwelle. 418. ful] om. 457. plainli] only. 470. That] What. 511. þei do] it doth.[1] 632. hou] ȝow. 637. 2*nd* me] om. 697. ful] alle. 763. noþing can] can no thyng. 767. wot] wot that. 770. she] ye.—vnto] in to.—hir] youre. 778. euer was] was. 781. That was] Was. 785. To] And. 801. louli] lowe. 808. grace] your grace. 812. helth] helpe. 817. and] that. 818. 1*st* me] om. 819. not long] no-while. 827. mater] preyer. 831. fiue] myne fyve. 833. And] To. 835. O] om. 840. ȝe me whilom] whilhom ȝe me. 844. bi] wiþ. 854. þin] your.—I wil anon] anon I wyl. 873. For] But. 883. þe] ȝow. 888. þe] ȝow. 889. þou menyst] ȝe mene. 905. noþing] for no thyng. 910. þe] om. 921. if] om.—herte] erys. 922. wilte] lyst. 928. on þe] of the may. 939. he] hym. 958. I] And. 1007. lowli] low. 1010. shal so] so shal. 1028. deuyse] to devise. 1031. me of] of your. 1039. I] he. 1040. trwe] so trewe. 1056. vnto] to. 1081. Riȝt] Lych.—vs] bothe vs. 1082. þe] om. 1111. ȝe] they. 1152. þou] ye. 1164. And] But. 1170. and] om. 1172. neuer for] for no.—þe] neuer. 1180. biseli þou] besye the to. 1192. in] at. 1206. no] om. 1212. haue] om. 1239. On] In. 1270. shal þe knot] the knot shal. 1284. haue Venus] Venus haue. 1309. his] besy. 1328. oure presence] here pressyence G. hir heghe prescyence S. 1330. hir] fynal. 1331. prudence] prouidence. 1356. ȝe done appere] the sunne apperyth.

To these instances must be added all the common readings of F. B. G. S (see § 3), and the list of the coincidences of G and S might still be considerably augmented by adding all those of a more trifling character, and those which, though slightly differing, yet indicate a common source (see, for instance, ll. 21, 47, 151, 229, 515, 693, 826, 834, 938, 1076, 1141, 1143, 1337, 1368, 1377, and especially 870, 1305).

[1] The long break here is accounted for by ll. 531—596 being omitted in G.

Digitized by Google

§ 2. Differences between G and S.

Notwithstanding the many cases in which MSS. G and S coincide, as set forth in § 1, they still cannot either of them have been derived from the other. For

α. G cannot be derived from S; since G is some twenty or thirty years older, and, moreover, S has a host of its own individual faults. But

β. neither is S derived from G; for ll. 531—596 are missing in G, whilst they are found in S; and the two MSS. further differ in the following passages, where S has, as a rule, the right reading:

63. falsed] Ifalsid. 65. hov] how that. 82. hou] of. 90. honged] hangyn. 95. I-slain] Slawe. 105. hurt] hit.—þurugh] for. 118. loue of þe] the love of. 133. lowli] only. 138. with] that. 141. hou] om. 147. þei] there. 171. haþ] hadde. 183. lust of loues] lustis. 197. ful] wol.—soune] swoun. 201. Yentred] Irenderede. 206. of] in. 217. þat] om. 219. hir] hym. 241. &] or. 244. hindred] hemerede. 252. doþ hir] so th*ourgh*. 254. clerenes] cl*e*nnesse. 260. al] alle the. 263. þe] om. 265. Forto] ffor forto. 269. aungellike] agreable. 274. replenysshid] replevisshes. 287. bounte] beute. 290. or] om. 295. 3*rd* of] &. 299. and] & In. 325. Causer] Cause. 328. sterre] sterrys.—p*er*sant] passa*u*nt.—Stanza 3 c, l. 6. þey] I.—370. þe] that. 383. haþ] han. 395. storme] str*e*m. 428. him] h*e*m. 458. atones] attreynys. 484. to] om. 488. to ȝow hole I] hol I to ȝow. 505. þat] that it. 509. she haþ] I have. 515. kene] lene. 526. drede] degre. 529. from] for. 607. it] om. 608. possid] pressid. 615. for] but. 620. werre] werrys. 640. solein] sodeynly.—forto] to. 642. or] &. 644. And] om. 649. souerein] sodeyn. 669. with hope I am] I am with hope. 707. here] þe S. om. G. 722. hoolli] only. 725. ones] only. 761. to] of. 762. if] om. 775. shal not] ne shal. 776. 1*st* ne] nor. 777. to] om. G. 788. þat] om. 798. nov on] vp on. 813. me hurte] myn herte. 818. socoure] sature. 829. life lust] lust lyf. 831. of] with. 853. obey] tobeye. 872. of hir in no] in nomaner. 874. of] at. 892. biforne] to forn. 898. menyng] mevyng. 914. Fulli] ffullyche. 921. to] vnto. 926. þi] this. 935. covntenaunce] gouernaunce. 941. on] in. 956. as] om. 1052. noþing hir] hir nothyng myght. 1069. bi] at. 1077. 1*st* In] And in. 1078. on] of. 1093. list þis mater] this mat*e*r lest. 1125. Hou] How þat. 1135. nov] om. G (+ Prints). 1147. &] & at. 1150. hede] good hede. 1163. wheþer þei] wherso thow. 1174. euer] ay. 1177. myrþ] mercy. 1183. shal sone] sone shal. 1185. þe] om. 1190. vertue] beaute (+ B). 1200. may] ne may. 1225. so] om. 1229. be bonde of] ben bounde &. 1230. which] the wheche. 1231. goddis] knottys. 1246. giuen] gynnyn. 1248. assautes] assayis G.—or] nor. 1260. peyne wo] wo peyne.—&] om. 1273. bounte] beute. 1274. hert] hete. 1294 beþe boþe] bothe ben. 1311. ay dide] dede ay ek. 1317. hool of hem þe loue] ho the loue of hem. 1318. in] wyt. 1324. of] by. 1329. þurɜ] in. 1338. in] with. 1358. plesaunt] pers*a*unt.

It is therefore evidently impossible that S should be derived from G. Hence we conclude that G and S go back to a common original, which we may denote by (GS).

Digitized by Google

§ 3. Group F B G S.

For a certain portion of the poem, the readings of the MSS. F and B, which, as will be shown in § 5, go back to a common original (F B), are the same as those of G and S. First, between ll. 453 and 454, a new stanza is interpolated in all four MSS.; similarly between ll. 495 and 496 three more stanzas appear. Ll. 504—507 have evidently been tampered with by the scribe or redactor of the common original; the change of grene to rede in 504, which entailed a change of the corresponding rhymes in 506 and 507, reminds us of the scribe's dislike to the green colour in l. 299. Again, the motto of the Lady has been changed in l. 530 in all four MSS. (cf. l. 310). Moreover, there are not few cases of minor importance, in which the four MSS. F. B. G. S have the same reading, in opposition to all other MSS.; these are given in the subjoined list:

75. was] was also F. B. G. S. 429. maner] wyse. 483. loueþ me] I love (+ b). 488. wil] al. 504. braunchis] Roses.—grene] rede. 509. kepe] folowe. 529. in] to (+ b). 597. gif] gynne.—I wot] y wys. 609. a sondri] sturdy. 614. wil] shal. 635. within] with.—þouȝt] owne þouȝt. 636. ladi Venus] Venus lady. 649. nov] and now. 684. 1*st* so] to. 691. And] And me. 696. an] the. 703. contre] contrees. 706. In] Wiþin. 709. o ladi myn] lady and. 711. 2*nd* to] om. 723. sorow] sore. 733. grace] a grace. 749. saue] but. 752. wil be] ben. 762. And] So. 781. hem] hym F. G. him B. S. 877. dilacioun only in F. B. G. S. 934. in] as in. 955. þei] om. 988. ne] nor. 990. to] for to.—me to] vnto. 995. anone] in oone. 997. euer] om. 1008. ben] om. 1029. And] Ryght.—as my] my.—con] may (+ P). 1149. to] for to (+ S). 1258. bouȝt] aboght (Ibought P).

The following coincidences in three of the MSS. in question would seem also to be derived from the original (F B G S) common to all four:

582. stremes] percyng F. B. S; and possibly 577. in] which in F. B. wight in S (ll. 531—596 missing in G). 674. haue] had F. B. S (corrected in G ?).

Group F. G. S appears in l. 701. sorow] sorowful F. G. S; and l. 721. and shapeþ] to shape.

Group F. B. G (in which instances S would have altered the reading of the original) appears in lines: 610. ouerdrawe] to me dawe F. B. G. slake lawe S. 618. vnto] to F. B. G (S having altered the whole line). 668. paynis] harmes F. B. G. 700. Heading Supplicacio amantis F. B. G (S translates this into English). 725. ne] om. F. B. G. 954. Help] Helpynge F. B. G. Helpen S. 973. shul] shuld F. B. G. 1009. began] gan F. B. G.

It is, however, easy to see that these coincidences, in all four MSS., cover only a certain part of the poem. Thus, the substitution of four new stanzas for the five stanzas 3—7 (ll. 335—369) is only found in MSS. G and S; the change of the motto is, in all four MSS., found only in line 530, not in line 310. And, a point of still greater weight, the end of the poem does not, in F and B, follow the version represented by G and S: lines 1380—1403 are found in their proper place, and the Compleynt does not appear in F and B.

Digitized by Google

A close examination of the above list will show that the minor coincidences occur in continuous sequence, only from l. 429—1029. The isolated coincidence in l. 75 must be a mere chance, as the above-mentioned interpolations, etc., between l. 75 and 429 are not to be found in F and B, and, I think, the same may fairly be supposed with regard to the coincidences in ll. 1149 and 1258, the former one, especially, being of a very trifling character: in fact, it can hardly be counted here, as it occurs also in MS. L.

From all this we conclude, that from l. 429 (or a little before) to l. 1029 (or a little after) the common original (F B) of F and B follows the version represented throughout the whole poem by G and S.

§ 4. Differences between (F B) and (G S).

It is now incumbent upon us to determine the exact kind of relation existing between these two groups of MSS. § 1 will have sufficiently shown that G and S, throughout the poem, form one group derived from an original (G S); § 5, as has already been anticipated, will show the same thing to be true of F and B with respect to an original (F B). Now the question arises whether either of these two groups could have been derived from the other. This question will be settled at once by a comparison of the two lists of coincidences, of G and S on the one hand, in § 1, and of F and B on the other, in § 5. There are, between ll. 429—1029, in both lists, such numerous and characteristic readings in each of the groups, that, at a glance, the supposition of one group being derived from the other must be given up. The only satisfactory solution, therefore, is that (F B) and (G S) come from an original (F B G S) = A common to all four.

We have thus proved the existence of a group A of manuscripts, represented, in general, by the MSS. G and S throughout the poem, and by MSS. F and B, in a certain part of it (ll. 429—1029). Whether this part was wanting in the original used by the scribe of (F B), so that he had to recur to another copy, or whether the MS. (F B), or one of its ancestors, was written by several scribes, one of whom had been given two or three quaternions of the second version as his copy—must remain a matter of conjecture.

Digitized by Google

II. MSS. T F B P.

§ 5. Coincidences in F and B.

THAT these two MSS. follow one another very closely is already well known from Chaucer's Minor Poems. For the Book of the Duchesse see Lange, Untersuchungen über Chaucer's B. of the D., pp. 7—10; Koch, Anglia IV, Anzeiger, p. 95. Skeat, M. P., pp. lviii and xli. For the Parl. of Fowles see Furnivall, Trial Forewords, p. 53; Koch, Anglia IV, Anzeiger, p. 97; Skeat, p. lxi. For the Hous of Fame see Willert, Ueber das Hous of Fame, 1883. For the Leyend of Good Women, see Skeat's edition, p. xli. See also Dr. Furnivall's reproductions of Chaucer-MSS., in several places.

The same holds good for the Temple of Glas. For the two MSS. F and B deviate in the following instances from the remaining texts: In both l. 1385 is wanting. Both have the same title: The Temple of Bras; the same colophon, the same headings before lines 321, 370, 461, 531, 701, 848, 932, 970, and the same rubrics after 847 and 931, and at the side of 696. Minor points of agreement are:

84. for-wrynkked] for wrynkeled F. for wrinkelid B. 193. These] The F. B. 221. so] sone. 242. 2*nd* he] om. 436. him] om. 437. him] om. 452. þingis] thinge.—Stanza 19 a, l. 1. so sore to yow] to yow so sore.—470. hert] her.—Stanza 25 c, l. 7. Iayis Pyis] pyes Iayes.—506. even] evere F. euer B. 570. subieccioun] obieccion. 571. bicome] be bounde. 577. in] which in. 586. at] in. 606. now] new F. nyw B. 619. can] om. 627. dar] ne dar. 636. whom] to whom.—souȝt] thought. 650. Nou] om. 651. were] where. 653. not] om. 662. it] om. 666. noþing] noght. 684. 2*nd* so] to. 696. into] in. 715. heuens] heuynessh F. heuenyssh B. 722. al] om. 738. Whiles] while. 746. eke] al. 751. Of] and. 758. A] om. 793. þe] thys. 882. Ne] He. 1152. þat] thys that. 1166. ay] eke.—Cf. also 568. nou am] am now F. I am now B.

To these coincidences in F and B are to be added all the common readings of the four MSS. F. B. G. S, s. § 3; of T. P. F. B, s. § 9; of T. F. B, s. § 10, and of T. P. F. B. L, s. § 13.

§ 6. Differences between F and B.

But there are also considerable differences between F and B, which show that neither of them can have been derived from the other. The individual mistakes of F, in which B has preserved the right reading, are the following:

Line 1375 is wanting in F; one rubric in B, at the side of l. 454, which may come from the original, is not found in F (on the other hand, five rubrics in F, one after l. 502, the other four at the side of 1040; 1104—1106; 1110 and 1271 respectively, are not to be found in B).—Minor points:

Digitized by Google

16. spirit] scripture F. 58. deceyued] descended. 103. prison] om. 209. þere] they altered to them. 239. his] this his. 259. &] om. 282. hei3] om. 284. forto] to. 300. al] om. 337. And] a. 374. al] of (+ b). 412. And] As. 442. he] ye. 476. vnto] and to. 486. to] in. 501. Me] and. 557. 1*st* Of] and. 560. -al] om. 572. come] kan. 605. were] was. 618. is] yt. 621. gete] grete. 688. si þ] such. 735. restreyne] refreyne (+ L. G). 754. ground] growed. 768. wil] wolde. 853. obey] weye. 922. þou] then. 957. allas] but allas. 987. I-persid] y presed. 1109. desseuer] disserue. 1216. his] thys. 1232. 1*st* &] of. 1280. toke] take. 1308. Orpheus] or Phebus. 1340. ri3t] om. 1347. forto] made to. 1390. þe] om. 1396. to] om. 1397. And] I. 1402. þat] the.

The foregoing list proves, I think, conclusively that B cannot be derived from F; for it is impossible to believe that B in all the afore-mentioned cases could have, of itself, found the true reading again.

But, on the other hand, it is even more impossible that F should in any way be a direct descendant from B. For F is older, and, apart from this proof, a long list of individual mistakes in B might be drawn up, which do not appear in F. We hence conclude that F and B, throughout the whole poem, go back to a common original (F B).

§ 7. Common Readings of MSS. T and P.

Although very different as to age, and even more as to quality, MSS. T and P must stand in some close connection with each other. For they have, in common, a number of very characteristic mistakes, which could scarcely have been committed twice over by different scribes. They are the following:

323. hauteyn] ha doten T. hadoten P. 439. Wherso] Whe þir T. P (so also in W and the Prints dependent on it). 465. his hygh request] om. T. P. 478. Si þ ye] Wi þ þe.—appese] haue peas. 677. to be bold] bihold T. be holden P (+ be holde G. S.). 733. wold] wil T. wulle P. 872. Demen] Semen. 877. dilacioun] dillusioun. 935. seen] sein T. seyñ P. 1000. er] om. 1044. ran] it ran T. P (+ W. W2. w. b). 1346. Be] We.

I would especially point to the common readings of T and P in the above list, in ll. 323, 465, 478 (two instances), 677 (this mistake was also made by G and S, most likely independently from T and P), 872, 877, 1044, 1346. To this list must be added all the coincidences of the groups T. P. F. B (s. § 9), T. P. F. B. L (s. § 13), and T. P. L (s. § 14).

§ 8. Relation of MS. P to T.

The way which first occurs to one of accounting for these remarkable coincidences in T and P is doubtless the supposition that P is a direct descendant from T, a supposition suggesting itself the more readily from the circumstance that P is a MS. of considerably later date than T, exhibiting no end of omissions and mistakes characteristic of a continuous corruption of the text through several generations of MSS. But the following list of individual mistakes in T, not shared by P, will prove that this supposition cannot hold good.

Digitized by Google

133. lowli did] did lowli T. 192. So soote] To sute. 201. Yentred] Yrendred T (+ L. G). 380. offence] defence. 456. had] haþ. 502. of] to. 563. by] in. 587. hir] him. 608. possid] passid. 664. myselfe] myschef. 673. þurgh] þouȝ. 705. oft] of. 706. Elicon] eleccion. 821. 2*nd* I] om. 939. þouȝ] þat T (+ S). 983. to] om. 1057. behest] hest. 1188. herte myne] hertes mynd. 1280. toke] eke. 1289. That] And.—and] þow. 1293. of] to. 1297. shal] om.

As therefore the hypothesis of one MS. being derived from the other must be given up, the above-mentioned singular coincidences in T and P seem to point to the following conclusion:

T and P are both derived from a common original (T P), s. diagram on page xli; but as P is some fifty years later than T and greatly corrupted, one or more connecting links have probably stood between P and (T P). This will be further corroborated by the arguments in §§ 9, 10, 13, 14.

§ 9. Group T P F B.

The readings of all these four MSS. agree, in opposition to the others, in the following instances:

154. om.—96, 216 and 320 seem also to have been originally omitted; in their stead, to make up the couplet, P, or, more likely, a scribe between P and (T P) supplied, in each case, another line out of his own head. 338. is] om. 412. þis] þus. 1082. list] om. 1098. relesen] plesen T. F. B. recou*er* P. The common original of the four MSS. seems to have read plesen, for which mistake P, or a scribe between (P T) and P, attempted a correction; but he did not hit on the true original reading relesen, but only its synonym recouer.—1222. þere] here. 1333. Reading tyme for contune in the original of T P F B altered by B?

To this list are, of course, to be added all the common readings of the group T. P. F. B. L (s. § 13).

There is, in this list, a conspicuous gap in the coincidences of T. P. F. B, between ll. 412 and 1082. This agrees very well with, and is accounted for by, our statement above that, from ll. 429—1029 (about), the readings of (F B) follow group A.

Now, the groups (T P) and (F B) are evidently not derived from one another, as the list of the coincidences common to each particular group alone (in §§ 5 and 7) will show. We conclude, therefore, that the two groups (T P) and (F B) go back to a common original (T P F B).

Digitized by Google

§ 10. MSS. T F B.

The characteristic coincidences of these three MSS. are the following:

119. a] om. T. F. B. 160. in] on. 408. her] om. 518. for] om. 857. be behynd] behind. 1045. femynyte T. F. B. pure femynite P. 1098. relesen] plesen. 1113. as hit is] at his. 1257. in] om. 1291. For] For þe.

If our arrangement of the MSS. T. P. F. B., arrived at by the discussions in the preceding paragraphs, and shown in the diagram on page xli, be correct, it would naturally be expected that all the mistakes made by the common original of T. P. F. B would propagate themselves equally into the four MSS. Mistakes made by the scribe of (F B) we should expect to find in F and B, mistakes of (T P) in T and P alike. So the above list of mistakes common to (F B) and T only, without P, would seem, at first sight, to testify against the correctness of the above arrangement. But only at first sight; for I think it is not too bold to suppose that the original (T P F B) had all the above readings now only found in T. F. B.; that from there they crept into T. F. B., whilst on the way from (T P) to P a scribe supplied the respective corrections. For these mistakes, characteristic though they be of the close connection between F. B. T., were nevertheless easy to correct; in certain cases, as for instance, ll. 119, 408, 1113, 1257, they quite challenged a correction; the common readings of the three in l. 518 and 857 must be a mere chance, as in this part of the poem F and B follow group A; line 1098 has been discussed in § 9; the remaining coincidences in ll. 160, 1045, 1113, 1291 are of quite a trifling character.

Further proofs that between (T P) and P some more careful scribe had tried to correct certain conspicuous mistakes, are afforded by the readings of P in lines 18, 1189 (s. § 13, end); 463, 494 (s. § 14, end), and by the substitution of new lines, in P, for the missing ones, 96, 216, 320.[1] The gap in ll. 96 and 97 was characteristically filled in. The scribe of (T P F B) had, after copying the first sawe I in l. 96, evidently caught sight of the second sawe I in l. 97, and thus omitted two half-lines. This patched-up line was thus left standing in P, with the slight alteration of þis to thus, and a new line was added to make up the couplet.

If we thus consider the common readings of T. F. B., given in [1] Stowe must have, in some way, got hold of two of the new lines in question, as his substitutions in the corresponding places in F coincide with those of P (in ll. 96 and 320).

Digitized by Google

this paragraph, adding all those of T. F. B. P in § 9, and of T. P. F. B. L in § 13, it becomes apparent that, on the one hand, there exists a near connection between T. F. B., a connection well known from the text-criticism of Chaucer's Minor Poems. But, on the other hand, the above discussion will, I hope, have sufficiently shown that our theory of a close relation of T to P, advanced in § 8 and established on the basis of very remarkable coincidences in T and P, is not upset by some readings common to (F B) and T only.

III. MS. L A LINK BETWEEN PRINTS AND MSS. T P F B.

§ 11. Coincidences of L and the Prints.

The Prints of the Temple of Glas all go back to the first one, printed by Caxton about 1478. We shall attempt to show in this §, that MS. L stands in close relation to the MS. which, we may fairly be allowed to suppose, Caxton had as his copy. The subjoined list gives the readings common to MS. L and to the Prints.

2. 2*nd* for] om. L. Pr. 10. sore] colde. 16. in] into (+ S). 154. or] or any. 180. sore] so. 191. 2*nd* þat] om. (+ S). 233. efter perauenture] peraunter after he. 276. so] om. (+ S). 284. of] of her (+ P). 310. and] of. 311. þis] was L. was so Pr. 320. this] om. 331. woful] woful hertes. 345. witte &] out of. 362. þat closid] In the colder L. the colder Pr. 377. þe] thy (+ P). 384. ȝe] ye ben. 397. awakiþ] waketh. 411. ende and fine] fyne and ende. 517. 2*nd* for] om. 576. whiles þat] while. 602. soris] sorowes (+ S). 614. ouershake] overslake (+ S). 618. is] hit is. 625. euen] euer. 658. would] wol L. wil Pr. 666. þen] Whan. 678. For] And. 799. þan] than of. 843. bi] with. 877. dilacioun] dissolucion. 975. &] and of. 1019. þis] the. 1045. femyny[ni]te] verray femynyte. 1047. gan] began. 1096. it] om. 1120. maked] forged (+ G). 1128. haþe vowid] vowed hath. 1138. for] for his. 1164. champ*ar*tie] them party. 1233. ȝou dide] did you (+ P). 1248. Ne] Ner L. Nor Pr. 1249. men may no] no man may. 1265. þlein] playnly (+ S). 1272 ? off] om. (+ T !). 1290. myrþe] myrthes (+ G). 1363 ? Which] With (+ T !). 1367. so] om.

A common feature of MS. L and the Prints is also the frequent introduction of the Scandinavian forms their, them (theim) for the her (hir) and hem of the other texts.

§ 12. Relation between L and the Original of the Prints.

In spite of the coincidences enumerated in § 11, L cannot have been the original of the Prints, as it has a great number of individual mistakes which are not shared by the Prints. A complete list of the mistakes of L alone might be easily drawn up from the various readings given at the bottom of the pages in the text; as they are too many to be enumerated separately, it may be as well to point out a few conclusive instances. Lines 96, 609, and 610 are missed out.

Digitized by Google

For line 901 a gap was left by the original writer of the MS., which was filled in by a later hand. Lines 211 and 212 are transposed. A few conspicuous mistakes of minor importance in L are the following:

14. oppresse] expresse L. 176. Tresour] tresouns. 198. bi] with gret. 238. forþ] sory. 271. sonnyssh] goodly. 426. doutefþ] doughter. 515. dures] distresse. 539. þer were with blood] there that blede. 540. floures] om. 703. contre] Court. 747. Hir trouth hir faiþ] Hire faith hire trouthe. 900. viage] message. 1094. take] om. 1252. euer is] is neuer. 1364. oute] om.

Much less can we suppose that L can have been copied from one of the Prints; for, besides L being probably older than the oldest of them, the Prints represent quite a distinct group by themselves, with a host of deviations from all other texts. We must, therefore, conclude that L and the original of the Prints (the MS. used by Caxton), come from a common original (L. Pr.). Line 901 proves, perhaps, that another MS. must have stood between L and (L. Pr.).

§ 13. Group T P F B L.

To find the relation in which the original (L. Pr.) of L and the Prints must have stood to the other texts, we will begin with the coincidences of L with (T P F B). They are the following:

78. 2*nd* al only in T. P. F. B. L. 81. him. 96 (?) om. 175. of] in. 605. cauȝt] Icauȝt. 1004. distres. 1057. 2*nd* of. 1191. þenk] þenk þat. 1402. face] hir face.

We see again, that, with the exception of two instances, namely, ll. 605 and 1004, no coincidences of this group are to be found in the middle of the poem; for, as we have seen, from l. 429 to l. 1029 (F B) follows group A. We are, I think, fairly entitled to add the few coincidences in T. L. F. B to the above list:

18. liklynesse] liknesse T. F. B. L. 1189. ȝyue hir] hir ȝyue. 1230. is knytt] ȝe knytt T. F. B. L. om. P.

In the first two cases P seems to have corrections, introduced on the way from (T P) to P.

§ 14. Coincidences in T P L.

For that part of the poem in which F and B follow the first group A, the legitimate representative of group T. P. F. B. L would be T. P. L, with F. B missing. We find, accordingly, the following common readings in T. P. L:

495. 2*nd* to] om. T. P. L. 497. ful] hole. 534. croude] bronte. 638. am] I am. 655. bold] hold. 676. al] om. 703. al] om. 843. flaumed] bavmed. 872 (?) Demen] Semen T. P. Seyen L.

Digitized by Google

Near the beginning and end the two coincidences appear:

123. Almen] al men (corrupted line). 1283. þrifti] tristi T. tristy L. P.

The following common readings of T and L may also go back to their original (T P L)—P, again, would have corrected or attempted to correct:

463. beaute] om. T. L. vitte P (attempted correction). 494. last now] lust T. L. life P. 976. I shal] shal I. 990. haþ bound me to] me haþ bound vnto.

The unimportant coincidence in l. 213. 2*nd* at] om. T. L (before l. 429) must be by chance.

§ 15. Group B of Texts.

We will now attempt to summarize the arguments contained in the preceding paragraphs, and, as the result of these investigations, to establish a theory as to the relation between all the MSS. other than G. S, which latter form, as we have shown before, a distinct group A by themselves.

First then, we must be allowed to anticipate here the proof contained in section IV of this chapter, that all the Prints go back to the oldest one by Caxton. Moreover, we may be allowed to suppose that Caxton had a MS. as his copy, which we may denote by (Pr.), it being the original of the Prints. This MS. goes back, with L, to a still older original (L. Pr.), as we have shown in § 12; between L and (L. Pr.) a connecting MS. seems to have existed. Again, in § 9, we arrived at the conclusion that a MS. (T P F B) existed, from which the four MSS. T. P. F. B were drawn in two groups. Now, I think, the simplest way of accounting for all the coincidences and deviations, respectively, enumerated in the foregoing paragraphs, is to suppose that (L. Pr.) and (T P F B) go back to a common original B, as the source of the whole second group of texts. The two archetypes A and B of the two groups, would then in some way or other go back to the original O, that is, the poem as it was written by Lydgate himself.

Digitized by Google

The only objection of any weight to this pedigree of the MSS. in our group B seems to be that the Prints have the right reading in certain cases, in which L, in common with T. P. F. B or T. P, differs from them, as for instance in 1402. face] hir face T. P. F. B. L; or in 497. ful] hole T. P. L; see the full lists in §§ 13 and 14. For in such a case we must suppose that this reading appeared already in B, and has thence found its way into the individual MS. T. P. F. B. L. On the way to L it must have passed through (L. Pr.), and in the regular course of mechanical copying ought to have propagated itself into the Prints as well. If, therefore, such an error is not found in the Prints, we must suppose that Caxton (or, in some cases, perhaps his original) had found the right reading again. Nor need we be surprised at that. Throughout the Prints, and not least in Caxton's, we find a tendency to modernize the language and to make the poem altogether more palatable to the public of the day. If therefore Caxton, in his endeavour to produce a readable text from his corrupted copy, hit on the true reading in some dozen cases out of the very numerous instances of alteration, this would betray no incredible amount of sagacity on his part. The nature of the few cases in question seems certainly to warrant this supposition.

One point still remains to be accounted for. Lines 154, 216, 320 are missed out in T. P. F. B, which is easily explained by their being omitted in the original (T P F B). In the same way line 96 is left out, not only in T. P. F. B, but also in L. Now, if that line had been omitted by the original of group B, it would not appear how the Prints have got the line correctly. The simplest explanation that suggests itself, seems to be that L made the same mistake again, as (T P F B); here also the scribe's eye must inadvertently have wandered from the one I sawe to the other in the next line.

Digitized by Google

IV. THE PRINTS.

§ 16. Caxton's Print.

THE Prints of the Temple of Glas present to us an aspect of the text differing considerably from that of the MSS. The first, by Caxton, already exhibits the principal features common to them, the most important of which are enumerated in the subjoined list:—

Lines 156, 157 are omitted. The same headings are found before ll. 321 and 701.—þurgh has been changed to by in ll. 105, 443, 515, 867, 871, 1217, 1331, 1344, 1350, 1357.—Changes of the old imperative: 513, 721. Beþ] Be ye. 721. shapeþ] shape ye. 808. takeþ] take ye. 812. sufferiþ] suffre ye. 869. vndirstondeþ] vnderstande ye. 976. takeþ] take ye. 1272. Comeþ] Come ye.—For the introduction of the Scandinavian forms their, them, see § 11, end.—Other alterations are: 8. ihorned] horned and Pr. 21. me þouȝt] om. 31. Ichaced] chaced. 44. euere] a. 49. &] & som. 63. was falsed] falsed was. 67. hov] how that. 69. Ful ofte wex] Was. 76. hir] om. 77. a noþir] other. 81. him] sire, syr. 90. was honged] henge. 106. Of] On.—ȝunge] lusty yong. 118. in] om. 130. and] and al the. 132. god] the god. 136. to] there to. 138. goodli] the goodly. 144. of] om. 149. iput] put. 166. ful] right. 172. haþ] hath had. 175. eke] om. 177. al againes] agaynst al. 178. Wher] Where as. 197. with ful] om. 199. tender] om. 205. to curen al] for to coueren. 206. outward] om. 211. of] of fre. 218. And] And after. 250. Hov þat] om. 251. riȝt] om. 254. bi] om. 265. Forto] That for to. 291. &] or. 293. and] om. 298. benigne and] right. 299. al] om. 305. And] To. 311. þis] was so. 323. of] by. 333. ȝour grace may] may your grace. 338. al] om. 362. That hatter] The hotter that I. 376. so forþ lyue] so lyue forth. 378. þe] om. 386. Haue] And. 394. also] om. 406. hir] om. 428. cherissh nov] now cherisshe. 440. his hert I shal] I shal his herte. 463. eny] om. 488. to ȝow hole I] I hooly to you. 495. to your] om. 499. haue] om. 506. it] om. 531. and] om. 532. þat] om. 541. faire &] om. 543. 2*nd* with] om. 555. Nere þat he hade] Yf that he had not. 568. so] om. 573. riȝt] om. 576. loue and serue] serue and loue. 586. Iȝolde] so yolde. 595. no] ony. 597. gif a werre] renne awey. 600. &] and so. 602. forto sound] to founde. 605. she were late] late she was. 609. with] of.—a] om. 620. your] his. 636. þat] om. 644. drede againward] agaynward drede.—& saiþ] om. 647. Haue] Hath. 657. ful] ful the. 668. opon] on. 670. of þat] how. 672. þan doþ] doth me thenne. 677. 2*nd* to] and. 679. merci] pyte. 687. þe] om. 694. þat] om. 703. contre] mounte. 704. 2*nd* þi] om. 705. oft] om. 714. þe] yet the. 726. restreyne] constrayne. 733. me] om. 735. me not] not me. 736. haþe ȝeue me] me hath yeue. 748. his] her (+ P). 757. secre & wondre] wonder secrete and. 766. a] om. 775. not] neuer. 788. shottes] shott. 800. not] no thing. 804. clepe] I clepe. 811. Nou] om. 814. helpe] helth.—hir me] me her. 818. nou] om. 820. nov] you. 834. ȝov] now. 859. The] This. 863. alway] althing. 871. þurugh euil] by ony. 882. þat] but. 899. merci] pyte. 910. þe here] to her. 919. but] om. 939. a] om. 956. directe as nov] as now directe. 959. sustren forto helpe me] suster to calle help vpon. 968. him] om. 990. hath me bound vnto. 1002. þe soþe] my peynes. 1015. ȝe shuld as nov] as now ye shold. 1039. graue] begraue. 1046. so] om. 1070. bound] drowned. 1095. oure hertes boþe at] bothe our hertes in. 1122. for] of. 1147. at] om. 1165. With] Ayenst. 1173. deuoid] voyd. 1191. in fire hou] hou in fyre. 1206. shalt] om. 1207. Reioise] Shal reioyse. 1209. flour] the flour. 1215. þe] these. 1219. also I wil] I wil also. 1225. depured] pured. 1230. which] that. 1232. 1*st* &] om. 1235. doþe] om. 1239. founde] found of. 1254. may] ther may. 1257. As] And. 1259. þat] om. 1263. he] it. 1268. nov do] do now. 1291. life] lyf to telle. 1302. vnto] to. 1305. song] songes. 1318. plite] wyse. 1320. so] om. 1322.

Digitized by Google

haþ made a ful] made a. 1327. euer] euermore. 1380. 2nd a] om. 1383. fulle] om. 1391. So] om. 1397. þat] om.

This long list, in which some trifling coincidences are nevertheless omitted, shows, without further comment, how widely the Prints differ in character from the other texts, although adhering distinctly in the main to group B. These readings, first appearing in C, have all crept into the succeeding Prints, whose mutual relations it will be the object of the following paragraphs to point out.

§ 17. Wynken de Worde's first Print, W.

In the prints later than Caxton's we can, as a rule, clearly distinguish two leading features: namely, first, they correct the obvious mistakes of their predecessor and thus gain certain readings (fewer or more as the case may be), superior to those of their original. Secondly, they all add a great many more mistakes to those already inherited from Caxton's print. The corrections of some of Caxton's mistakes, found in W, are:

13. began C.] gan W. 23. cam] gan. 119. he] her. 258. Surmounted] Surmounteh (h by mistake for th). 322. in] all.—the] in. 345. For] Fro.—for] fer. 381. han they] han. 426. This] This is. 439. you] ye. 522. fyne] fayne. 587 and 588, transposed in C, are, in W, in right order. 700. this] thus. 779. lasteth] lasted. 910. lowe the] lowly. 942. to] for to. 950. I with my silf] with my selfe I. 963. not to peynt] to peynt not. 1055. is] his. 1143. world] wold. 1177. approched] approcheth. 1178. axid] axeth. 1215. syn] fyn. 1234. ouermore] euermore.—bewreke] be wreke. 1358. twinkyng] twynklyng. 1361. Fortune] Fortuned.

Both Prints have wrong readings, differing from one another, in ll.:

41. &] om. C. and now W. 117. gan to chaunge] changed C. began to chaunge W. 180. pleined] pleyneth C. playnen W. 612. when] whan that C. what that W. 1140. lateþ] late ye C. late your W. 1236. ferse] fair C. fyry W. 1336. gonne] begun C. goon W.

The new mistakes, introduced by W, are the following:

eke changed to also in ll. 155, 241, 243, 246, 252, 273, 293, 294, 855, 1117; the archaic form eke having been left standing in ll. 77, 97, 398, 746, 1173, 1209, 1210 and many more.—159, 163. oþir eke] also other.—182, 187. elde] olde.

95. vnwarli] unwardly W. 178. force noon] noo force. 239. graue] in his graue. 247. alderlast] at the last. 249. statue] statute. 309. was] om. 323. ben] om. 394. dropping] drepynge. 416. foloiþ] folowed. 437. so] om. 439. Wherso] Whether. 449. baspectes] by aspecte. 450. teschwe] teshewe. 551. semed] semeth. 618. kouþe] knowen. 651. were] werre. 656. ginneþ] begynneth. 667. my] the. 674. þen] that. 683. seith] sayd. 689. dovmb] doun. 722. case] care. 726. hire] om. 727. at þe lest] atte laste. 841. euenlich] lyke wyse. 871. compassing] rehercyng. 890. she] he. 905. maist þou] may you. 946. wo as] wooes. 980. in] om. 1028. ȝou] ye. 1044. ran] it ran. 1053. hir] om. 1092. be holed] beheled. 1125. most] oft. 1142. pace] space. 1182. remue] renewe. 1257. deinte] deute.

Digitized by Google

1284. haue] had. 1305 changed considerably. 1368. Me þou3t I] My thought. 1379. to] om.

As W, therefore, has all the characteristic readings of C, and differs from C only in certain corrections, and new mistakes of its own, we may conclude that Wynken, in his first edition of the poem, copied from Caxton's print. We may suppose that the corrections all came from Wynken himself; even the two or three more remarkable ones in ll. 322, 587 and 588. 950, 963 hardly warrant the supposition that Wynken had recourse to another source than Caxton's print.

§ 18. Pynson's Print.

Although this is but a fragment, there is nevertheless no difficulty in assigning to it its proper place in the pedigree of the Prints. It must have been derived from W, Wynken de Worde's first print. For, first, it follows the readings of W very closely, and wherever W differs from C, p gives the reading of W. This is the case in the following lines:

1117, 1125, 1140, 1142, 1177, 1178, 1215, 1336, 1368, 1379 (for the specification of which see § 17).

Add hereto the coincidence of such an extraordinary spelling as l. 1160. wm̃yen (= women) in both prints W and p.

Therefore p cannot have been derived from C. But neither can it have been derived from a print later than W, as is shown by the following coincidences in p and W, where these prints have preserved the old reading in opposition to the second print W2 by Wynken, whose mistakes have, for the most part, crept into the still younger prints w and b:

1104. twein] sweyne W2. w. 1121. he] ye W2. w. b. 1130. Ay] As W2. w. b. 1337. In] An W2. w. 1370. gret] frete W2. w. (b).

Some new mistakes occur also in p:

1149. do] om. 1182. renewe] om. 1197. þi] the. 1201. dai] om. 1332. hem] hym. 1341. 3oure] oour. 1377. that] om. 1378. as] om. 1379. wryte] wyrte.

I think the above arguments can leave no doubt that p had W as its original.

§ 19. Wynken de Worde's second print, W2.

This print has all the characteristic readings of W, reproducing W's corrections of C as well as its own numerous new mistakes. It hardly supplies any corrections beyond mere printer's mistakes, whilst it exhibits a great many new errors:

Digitized by Google

1. thouȝt] through W2. 16. a] om. 26. gan] om. 37. In] I. 38. gone] om. 62. next] nex. 73. trouth] through. 85. When] What. 105. vnwarli] vnwardly. 139. leydons] leydous. 145. In] Is. 200. ofte] oft a. 204. for to] or to. 205. hir] they (for theyr?). 231. þuruȝ] om. 248. cristal] orystall. 252. donne] om. 254. In] I. 273. of] yf. 318. wil] stylle. 347. yonde] yonder. 391. þis within] thir within. 401. mate] wate. 450. teschwe] teshewe W. to shewe W2. w. b. 472. while I liue] lyue whyle. 480. to turne] to forne. 512. is] om. 514. mai] many. 533. pres] preces. 535. in his] iu. 582. wiþ] within. 616. til] ryl. 617. vnwarli] wardly. 638. so] loo. 660. þat] om. 664. encrese] lencrece. 718. influence] infulgence. 720. þis] his. 796. menyng] meuyng. 839. Hir] om. 845. of] om. 890. she] om. 926. adoun] and a doun. 944. felt] lete. 968. at] om.—his] is. 985. god] good. 1001. rwe] knewe. 1013. offend] offence. 1079. to obei] to beye. 1092. men] man. 1104. twein] sweyne. 1121. he] ye. 1130. Ay] As. 1253. doubilnes] om. 1263. it] it it. 1269. ȝour] you. 1312. queme] quene. 1337. In] An. 1370. gret] frete.

There remains no doubt that W2 was derived from W.

§ 20. Wynken de Worde's third print, w.

This print must have followed W2 as its original, for it has all the readings of W2, with a few corrections and many new mistakes of its own. In some cases tangible errors of W2 have been very thoughtlessly reproduced, for instance, in ll. 37, 73, 145, 200, 204, 248, 254, 273, 616, 664, 1104, 1337.

w supplies corrections in the following ll.: 205, 514, 551, 727, 926, 1001, 1269, 1372.

Unsuccessful attempts at correction appear in ll.:

318. stylle W2] skylle w. 391. thir within] therwithin. 617. wardly] inwardly. 944. lete] ledde. 1125. it] om. 1253. For the omitted doubilnes w supplies falsnes. 1312. and quene] the quene.

New mistakes are introduced:

Ll. 366, 367, and 390 are omitted in w.—219, 464, 816, 840. whilom] somtyme. 1. For through] Throughe w. 2. pensifhede] pensyfnes. 18. as] all. 25. persing] passynge. 31. haue] than. 62. next] nex W2. next her w. b. 86. loues] loued. 106. faire] the fayre. 188. Ay] Alwaye. 192. be to] to be. 207. wepen] where. 292. &] om. 356. feruence] feruente. 357. mot] may. 381. han] than. 385. chaunge] chaunce. 399. some] om. 406. to] the. 422. ioi] no Ioye. 426. douteþ] dowte it. 478. nov] om. 492. to] om. 527. þis] the. 530. de mieulx en mieulx magre] better & better after my gre. 537. Descriuen] Dysceyue. 542. offerin] om. 547. þe] om. 608. possid] tossed. 620. may] om.—him] dare hym. 686. to] lo. 765. axen] axely. 815. eyȝen] euen. 842. het] hit C. W. W2. it w. 862. oure] her. 886. wiþ] and. 890. as] om. 898. menyng] menne. 903. fortune] forne. 933. I gan] gan I. 951. want] lacke. 977. first] om. 991. That] My. 1055. menyng] meuyng. 1135. ȝoure] om. 1162. euermore] euer. 1183. ouergon] be gone. 1210. eke] ete. 1232. Ioue] Iuno. 1299. aboute] aboue. 1307. 2*nd* her] om. 1312. and quene] the quene. 1345. Venus ladi] lady Venus. 1357. siȝt] light.

Moreover, in a considerable number of cases, where the older Prints C. W. W2 had left the pure English forms her, hem, w has introduced the Scandinavian forms their, them; it also occurs for hit.

Digitized by Google

§ 21. Berthelet's Print.

Into such a corrupted state had the text of the Temple of Glas sunk, when Berthelet, on account, doubtless, of its still enduring popularity, set about issuing another edition. As many passages had become entirely unintelligible, he attempted an out-and-out revision of the text, which thus differs from its immediate predecessor at least as much as Caxton's print differs from its nearest relations, the MSS. of Group B. Berthelet's principles were very simple: where he met with obsolete words or inflexions, he modernized; where there were evidently corrupted or unintelligible readings, he got rid of them, as a rule, by some radical cure, more or less appropriate; the three lines omitted in w he supplied out of his own head, nor did he feel pangs of conscience in changing, without any apparent reason, a great many other things which it would have been better to have left untouched. The question as to which of the preceding prints he took for his copy, is easily solved: as his print gives not only the few corrections, or attempts at correction, introduced by w, but also the greater part of the mistakes which first appear in w, there can be no doubt that this last print of Wynken de Worde's served as his original.

To do justice to Berthelet, we first subjoin a list of his successful corrections, in which he found the old true reading again, a list which puts the corrections in Caxton's print, or those in MS. P, quite in the shade, as regards their number, sometimes their sagacity, and always their appropriateness to his purpose.

9. Had] Hydde b. 15. that restored in b. 16. a restored. 93. the restored. 194. to] for to. 200. it restored. 204. or to W2. w] for to. 231. thurgh restored. 309. was restored. 310. of] and. 377. thy] the. 378. Thy] The. 381. haue restored. 400. also reioyce in the right order. 406. the] to. 416. folowed] followeth. 422. no] om. 436. hym sette in the right order. 437. so restored. 472. lyue whyle] while I liue. 480. toforne] to turne. 517. of] for. 533. preces] preace.—with restored. 537. Dysceyue] Discryuen. 542. offre restored. 547. the restored. 574. her] his. 616. ryll] tyll. 626. that restored. 661. one] a. 718. infulgence] influence. 749. sauyng] saue. 765. axely] axen. 796. meuynge] meanyng. 845. of restored. 850. that] thoug̃. 916. to restored. 935. 2*nd* the restored. 960. 2*nd* of restored. 1013. offence] offende. 1052. vndeuysed] vnaduysed. 1053. her restored. 1055. meuyng] menyng. 1061. so moche] as much as. 1092. man behelde] men be healed. 1104. sweyne] tweyne. 1113. Ful] Fully. 1125. oft] most. 1138. thenne] trouthe. 1210. ete] eke. 1257. deute W. W2. w] dente b. 1279. lady restored. 1284. had] haue. 1299. aboue] aboute. 1314. lusty] lykely. 1337. An] In. 1340. this] thus. 1368. My thought] Me thought I.

Some of the well-intentioned, but unsuccessful, corrections in b are:

Digitized by Google

For lines 366, 367, and 390, missing in w, b has substituted some of his own.—26. gan] om. W2. w. dyde b. 86. loues] loued w. loue the b. 150. haue] hath. 192. to be] with the. 207. Thus] There.—where] om. 252. and also the storme] in brightnesse echone. 256. the] in. 356. feruent and] feruent. 391. therwithin] therfore within. 415. by] to. 443. hym selfe] he wolde. 492. be at] in to. 839. Hir] om. W2. w. Myn b. 842. be hit] be it w. by it b. 903. fortune] forne w. forther b. 933. so] as.—I gan in the right order. 934. so] sore. 1030. preue] me preue. 1054. of roupe] of whiche C. W. W2. w. so moche b. 1125. is] om. w. hath ben b. 1363. With] om.

Thus far we have enumerated Berthelet's corrections. We now proceed to give other more or less systematic changes in b:

The demonstrative pronoun tho, answering to O.E. þâ, is replaced by those in ll. 1165, 1337, 1351. Similarly, the adverb of time tho (also = O.E. þâ) is replaced by than in ll. 370, 525, 1366, 1369. Tofore has been changed into before in some 17 cases; thou into you 852; thou sorowest into ye sorowe 860; the into you 859, 874; thin into your 854, 861.

These changes, the first of which are owing to Berthelet's tendency to modernize his text, are at least excusable, and certainly they answered to the requirements, or taste, of his readers. But, unfortunately, Berthelet also thought that the readings of his copy were corrupted in many places where, in reality, they were right. Such is the case in the following lines:

23. gan] cam. 180. pipyng] wepyng. 225. they] he. 233. That] Yet. 275. ennewed] endewed. 320. was] foloweth. 407. gan] became. 483. loueth me] I loue. 539. blood] golde. 572. god] the god. 651. man] a man. 695. haue] haue made. 724. ne dare alas] alas ne dare. 860. That] And. 1060. of] for. 1061. That] And. 1090. is founden] fyndeth. 1093. to] om. 1266. that] if. 1348. Willy] Worthy. 1366. for] sore.

The number of these cases might be augmented; but, in some of them, it is obviously difficult to say whether Berthelet believed he was restoring the original reading, or simply wished, by fair means or foul, to improve upon the copy before him. Further, what is still worse, he made a great many apparently quite unwarrantable and uncalled-for alterations, in which his individual caprice seems to have been his sole standard: thus he interpolated four lines between 314 and 315, and completely changed whole lines, as 314, 315, 319, 545—548, 882, 950, 951, or half-lines, as in 318, 374, 1190.[1] To point out his countless smaller alterations would avail nothing, the more as they are one and all contained in the apparatus criticus.

If, to sum up, we consider the above lists, we must, I think, in fairness give Berthelet credit for his many real corrections in the first list; as to those which follow next, we must at least pass a

[1] Or had he a copy of w before him, in which some of these lines were obliterated?

Digitized by Google

verdict of "tamen est laudanda voluntas,"[1] all the more readily as there are comparatively few mistakes arising from his own inadvertency. We must certainly allow that the "in many places amended and late diligently imprynted," put with an evident sense of satisfaction on his title-page, is not altogether unjustified.

But, on the other hand, we are in justice bound to say that Berthelet's text is, by a long way, the one furthest removed from the original, as it came from Lydgate's hand. This, of course, is in some measure not so much Berthelet's own fault, but is rather accounted for by the fact of his Print being the last offshoot of a long generation of MSS. and Prints. It is, nevertheless, instructive to note how Berthelet, with all his emendations and critical sagacity, only managed to produce the worst text of all, and how he was wrong even in such a case as the one pointed out in the footnote below, which, in his eyes, must have appeared a masterpiece of conjectural emendation. These considerations are apt to dim in no small degree the lustre of the nimbus, surrounded by which, some people tell us, the "Conjectural-Kritiker" walks in unapproachable majesty.

CHAPTER IV.

PRINCIPLES FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE TEXT.

§ 1. Group A corrupted.

In the foregoing paragraphs it has been shown that the existing texts of the poem form two groups A and B, the first represented by MSS. G and S, and, for part of the poem, also by F and B; the second by the rest of the MSS., and the Prints. As there are some radical differences between the two groups, we have now first to discuss which of the two is the most likely representative of the older and purer text.

From what we have intimated in Chapter III, § 1, it will already have been gathered that we do not consider group A as representing the original version. G and S alone give the Compleynt at the end, and no one is likely to be of opinion that this wretched production can possibly have formed an original continuation of the Temple of Glas. For although the poetic value of the Temple of Glas may not rank high,

[1] This certainly applies in the case of such an alteration as that in l. 724. For as he found the word case in l. 722 corrupted in his original into care, he again made good the lost rhyme in l. 724 by transposing the ne dare alas of his original to alas ne dare.

Digitized by Google

yet this bungling piece of patchwork is much inferior to it. Throughout the Temple of Glas it is obvious that the author endeavours to present to us the action of his poem in clearly-defined outlines; but these 600 lines, which are entirely foreign to the general tenour of the Temple of Glas, and which have been tacked on to it in such an ill-judged manner, spoil the composition as a whole most cruelly. Granted that the action in the Temple of Glas is poor and overweighted by long, tiresome speeches, yet the narrative clearly ends and is complete at line 1380, and we expect the close of the poem somewhere near there. The Envoy which follows (ll. 1393—1403), and which is thus not given by G and S, is quite characteristic of Lydgate. Here, too, he has not forgotten the request to "correct" his poem, if any word be missaid in it; a close which is as sure to come in at the end of a work of Lydgate's as the famous white horse in a picture of Wouwerman's. We have mentioned above that the Compleynt was most likely added here in consequence of the ambiguous and unclear purport of the last 25 lines, where the author (ll. 1380 and 1381) promises a "litil tretise," "in pris of women," "Hem to comende, as it is skil & riȝt." But where is anything of this programme carried out in this miserably stupid concoction?

To conclude, not the shadow of a doubt can remain that the Compleynt has nothing whatever to do with the Temple of Glas.[1]

Some of the minor interpolations also may readily be discerned as such. Thus the three stanzas interpolated in group A after stanza 25, are certainly far from being in harmony with the general tenour of the poem, and it seems more appropriate that the lady's thanks to Venus should end with laud and reverence to her name and excellence, rather than with jays, pies, lapwings, and owls. Very much the same holds good of the four stanzas put, in G and S, instead of stanzas 3—7. The expression "fryed in his owene gres" (Stanza 3 c, l. 1) may be quite appropriate in the mouth of the Wife of Bath, but certainly it is not so from the lips of our gentle Lady. We readily allow that the lady's complaint to Venus (ll. 335—369) is somewhat vague in expression, and can in no sense be called a masterpiece; but the substitute (stanzas 3 a—3 d) must surely be pronounced even less successful.

The above considerations are calculated to make us mistrustful of [1] I wonder very much whether it is by a mere chance that MS. G, not only in the Temple of Glas, but also in the Prologue to the Legend of Good Women, follows quite a different version.

Digitized by Google

the more extensive deviations of group A from B. Thus the single stanza interpolated between ll. 453 and 454, also arouses our suspicion, although innocent enough in itself; so does, similarly, the change of the motto of the Lady in ll. 310 and 530, and the alteration of the colours in ll. 299 and 504 (green being considered by the redactor the symbol of inconstancy; see Skeat, M. P., p. 387). What must make us question still more the correctness of the common readings of G and S, is that we find distinct changes in these two MSS. alone, even in that part of the poem where F and B follow the same group and yet differ from G and S. So, for instance, in l. 510 G and S alone attempt to give a name to the Lady, namely, "Margarete,"[1] and change lines 513 and 514 accordingly, whilst F and B do not deviate from the readings of the other texts. This shows that some of the deliberate and important changes in G and S may come from (G S) rather than the archetype of group A, even when not controlled by the readings of F and B.

Another alteration in G and S, not warranted by the readings of F and B, is the change of the pronouns þou, þe, þin to ȝe, ȝow, your in certain lines. Venus is addressed in the poem, both by the knight and lady, as ye; she, in her turn, addresses the lady as ye, and the knight as þou. But, in fact, the author himself sometimes seems to have been shaky in his principle, and, in ll. 857 and 865—868, Venus addresses the knight also as ye. G and S, however, make Venus address the knight as ye in several other instances; as in 854, 883, 888, 889; 1152; in the first four cases certainly wrongly; in the last it cannot be controlled by F and B. Decidedly wrong also is the alteration in l. 1356; for the reading of G and S destroys the rhyme in ll. 1358 and 1359. Shirley, indeed, attempted to restore the rhyme, and the "poetry" introduced by him for that purpose is quite worthy of him.

But, on the other hand, there are, without doubt, certain minor passages in the poem in which group A has preserved the right reading. Thus F. B. G. S are correct in reading dilacioun, l. 877; dillusioun in T. P, and dissolucion in L. Pr., are evidently wrong, as both sense and metre show; compare, for the meaning of dilacioun,[2] ll. 1089—1092, 1193, 1206. Further, in l. 635, owne (as given in

[1] This name was perhaps introduced here in connection with Compleynt 395, etc. Were this certain, we might be led to suppose that the Compleynt appeared first in (G S), rather than in A.

[2] This word happily illustrates the way in which the texts of type B group themselves into three sub-divisions, namely (L. Pr.), (T P), and (F B).

Digitized by Google

F. B. G. S) is wanted to make up the full line; so is also in l. 75 (here also seems, in F and B, to be a later correction); on the other hand, ben makes a syllable too much for the metre in l. 1008. It cannot be decided with certainty which of the two groups is right in ll. 990, 997, 1029. G and S alone seem to have preserved the right reading in 1328, 1331; in 75, and perhaps in l. 9.

But they are certainly incorrect when, between ll. 429 and 1029, F and B do not go with them; as in 778, 781, 808, 870, 910. In the case of the first three lines, this consideration did not present itself so clearly to me, when I introduced the reading of group A into the text; I believe now that the text-criticism absolutely obliges us to let the singular accentuation Ántonyús, the monosyllabic, and even the trisyllabic foot at the beginning of lines 808 and 781 pass unchallenged. See chapter V on Metre. The readings of G. S seem to me to be doubtful or wrong in ll. 1, 19, 31, 79, 81, 112, 407, 470, 632, 770, 1111, 1170, 1172, 1212, 1270, 1284. Group A, and in particular G. S, has a decided tendency to improve upon the metre, and, especially, to do away with the monosyllabic first measures.—In many other instances the readings of Group A and B are equally good; in such cases I have left the reading of T in the text.

All the foregoing discussions prove that in a critical edition of the text, group A must not be taken as the basis; at the most, we may introduce a few of its readings where they seem to be old and good.

§ 2. MS. T taken as the basis.

After thus discarding group A, little doubt remains as to which text in B we have to turn to. We must, from the first, reject group (L. Pr.); for neither representative of it, L or Caxton, is old or good. The prints after Caxton's, being all derived from his, are of course of no value whatever for the construction of the text; for even when a deviation from their respective original restores the true reading, any such successful correction has only the value of a conjectural emendation.

In the two remaining sub-divisions (T P) and (F B), we cannot think of taking the younger representatives P and B. So only T and F are left. Their text does not differ much; but the scale will be turned at once in favour of T, if we consider that it is older, and that, for part of the poem, F follows the version of group A.

I have therefore chosen MS. T as the basis of the present text.

Digitized by Google

The obvious mistakes made by T alone have been, of course, corrected; but I have marked, in the text, every deviation from T. I have used brackets to supply omissions, be it of words or syllables or letters; if the nature of the deviation from T could not be indicated thus, I have marked the altered word, or the first of a group of altered words, by an asterisk. The reading of T is, even in the slightest instance of correction, always given in the list of various readings at the bottom of the pages, whenever it cannot be gathered at once from the nature of the sign introduced in the text. Thus [hid], in l. 9, means that I have supplied the whole word; long[e] in l. 12, that the e is not to be found in the MS. In a case like the latter the reading long of the MS. has not been expressly given, as there can be no doubt about it. The asterisk before in, in l. 160, shows that in does not occur in the MS., and a glance at the various readings will show that T has on instead. Similarly, in l. 133, we gather that T reads did lowli, not lowli did.

Changes introduced without a particular notice are the following. The whole punctuation is mine. The MS. has only in some cases marks for the cæsural pause; they are quite superfluous, teach us nothing, and would only interfere with the other punctuation.—ff at the beginning of a line has been changed to F.—Capital letters have been put more regularly in proper names; for in many cases it was impossible to say whether the letter standing in the MS. was a capital, or small. The scribe has frequently joined on the indefinite article, or certain adverbs, such as so, and the negation, etc., to the word following it; these I have separated.

The contractions, which are rather numerous in our MS., have been expanded in the usual way. Several instances in this MS. seem to show that r with a curl to it, was meant by the scribe for re; so in repent 1076; decembre 6; often in euere (= every), l. 26, 41, 450, 476, 1257 (euere in full occurs, for instance, in ll. 44 and 139), and in some other cases of less conclusiveness. I do not say at all that the scribe, therefore, purposely put r with a curl for re in every case where it occurs; even in the above-mentioned lines it might be only a pleonastic writing, the well-known abbreviation for re (or er) being attached to the r. This would then be similar to cases where ou^{ur} stands for o^{ur}, which former I transcribe by our. I have, however, for the sake of consistency and in accordance with the principles of the E. E. T. S., in every case printed re for r with the curl.

The readings of the various texts are all given in full at the bottom of the pages, when they represent variations of meaning; mere orthographical variations, or phonetic ones of no consequence, have not been reproduced. The reader has thus in every case the full available material before him by which he may judge for himself in questions concerning the metrics and language of Lydgate.

Digitized by Google

Conservatism—perhaps pushed too far—in reproducing the MS. has prevented me from putting in the final e's, whenever the metre did not manifestly show that they were absolutely indispensable, especially at the end of the line, or the first half-line. To quote a case to the point, I believe that Lydgate read line 1042 just as Chaucer read line 442 of the Parlement of Foules; I have, however, not added an e to fressh, as T does not give it, and the line is, as it stands, a regular Lydgate-line. I readily grant that this method may be too cautious; but then we avoid the necessity of introducing further questionable alterations on this already slippery ground.

PART II.

Ἐπειδὴ καὶ τὸν οἶνον ἡξίους πίνειν, ξυνεκποτέ· ἴστι σοι καὶ τὴν τρύγα.

CHAPTER V.

LYDGATE'S METRE.

§ 1. Lydgate's metrical forms in general.

A CONSIDERABLE portion of the discussions in the following Chapters will consist in setting forth Lydgate in the light of an epigone of a more resplendent epoch, from which but a few stray rays found their way into the dull, dark period of the 15th century. Not least do we perceive this epigonic aspect of the monk's poetry when we examine its outward garb. Lydgate is entirely dependent on Chaucer in the choice of all his principal metres. He found the beautiful and wonderfully harmonious versification of Chaucer ready made to hand, and he thought it best to adopt it without more ado. Thus Chaucer's principal metric forms are represented in the monk's works, transformed, it is true, by many a license, into the peculiar Lydgatian structure of verse, which anything but improves upon that employed by Chaucer. The metrical forms mostly used by Lydgate are the following:—

A. The 7-line stanza ("rhyme royal," five-beat lines, with the sequence of rhymes ababbcc). This stanza is employed in the Falls of Princes, Life of Our Lady, Court of Sapience, Edmund and Fremund, Albon and Amphabel, Assembly of Gods, Black Knight, Chorl and Bird, Æsop, De duobus Mercatoribus, Flour of Curtesie, Secreta Secretorum, and in part of the Temple of Glas, not to mention the minor poems.

Digitized by Google

B. The metre ranking second in importance is the heroic couplet, where two five-beat iambic lines rhyming with each other form the unit of the metrical system. This is the metre of the most important of the Canterbury Tales, the Legend of Good Women, etc.; the epic metre of Chaucer by way of eminence. In imitation of his master, Lydgate employed it in his two most prominent epic works, the Troy-Book and the Story of Thebes. Part of the Temple of Glas is also in this metre.

C. The third metrical form of importance is the four-beat couplet, the metre of Gower's Confessio Amantis, the Hous of Fame, the Romaunt of the Rose, etc. Lydgate has employed it in Reason and Sensuality, and in the verse-translation of Deguileville's first Pilgrimage.

These afore-mentioned metres are also employed in many minor poems, where, of course, numerous other metrical forms also appear, especially the 8-line stanza. Of Lydgate's prose-writing[1] only one certain specimen seems to be extant, namely, the Serpent of Division; whether the prose-translation of Deguileville's second Pilgrimage was done by Lydgate, seems to me extremely doubtful.

As I have already intimated, the Temple of Glas is written in two of the above metres used alternately, namely, the heroic couplet and the 7-line stanza. The former of these is, speaking generally, employed in the epic parts of the poem, whilst the stanzas are used for the lyrical parts. But it is true that this distinction is not maintained strictly throughout the poem; occasionally narrative appears in the stanzas, whilst on the other hand, the long soliloquy of the Knight is written in couplets (ll. 567—693). Toward the end of the poem, we have a "Ballade" (ll. 1341—1361), i. e. three 7-line stanzas with a refrain, the last lines of the stanzas being substantially the same (see ten Brink, Chaucer's Sprache und Verskunst, p. 213). The three rhymes a, b, c, required to make up a stanza, are, moreover, in this form of the "ballade," identical in all three [1] "Carmina quoque latina composuit, & in soluta oratione nonnulla," says the not altogether dependable Bale, Summarium, 1548, fol. 203 a.

Digitized by Google

stanzas; in our present one they end in -ight, -ere, -inne. We have a ballad of similar structure and function in the Prologue to the Legend of Good Women (ll. 249—269); also at the end of the Flour of Curtesie, frequently in the Envoys of the Falls of Princes; again in the Isle of Ladies, ll. 2213—2233, and at the end of the Court of Sapience; in the last two poems, however, the burden alone recurs, with slight variations; the rhymes a and b are different in the three stanzas. Our present ballad, which can only boast of identical rhymes in three consecutive stanzas, is but one of Lydgate's less brilliant feats in the art of rhyming; he has elsewhere envoys consisting of a considerable number of stanzas—in one case (Falls of Princes, fol. 66 d, etc.) amounting to nineteen—in which the three rhymes a, b, c of the first recur in all the following ones.

§ 2. The Structure of the Verse.

Lydgate himself was not very proud of his metre. He explains his system to us in the following lines from the Troy-Book (fol. E_8 b), which, if they do not reflect great credit upon his metrical art, are at least delightfully candid:

> "And trouthe of metre I sette also a-syde;
> For of that art I hadde as tho no guyde
> Me to reduce, whan I went a-wronge:
> I toke none hede nouther of shorte nor longe."

Accordingly, poor Daun John's metre has been very severely criticized; Ritson says that there are scarcely three lines together of pure and accurate metre, and Professor Skeat has even as late as 1884 the following sentence in his Preface to the Kingis Quair (p. xxxii): "The net result is that the lines of James I., like the lines of Chaucer, are beautifully musical, and quite different from the halting lines of Lydgate." Nor need we wonder that a juster estimate of Lydgate's metre was not sooner arrived at. There is hardly a good critical text of Lydgate's writings existing, and the metre in the corrupt MSS. and Prints deserves indeed the severest strictures that have been laid upon it. There are, in the later MSS., and particularly in some of the prints, hundreds and thousands of such halting lines as which seem to have simply no metre at all; in the present instance the line can only be scanned, so far as I can see, by one means, namely, by the assumption that Lydgate intended to introduce Firdausi's line into English poetry. The greatest wonder to me is how the public of the time of Caxton and his immediate followers could read these things as verses; their ears must surely have been singularly impenetrable to anything like rhythmical harmony. If, however, we go back to Lydgate himself, the case is after all not so bad. The monk thinks it great fun to make himself out worse than he really is—a peculiarity of which we shall have to say more in Chapter X—and we know that even his great master Chaucer alludes humorously to possible defects in his metre.

> "In Wiltshire | of Englond | two priestes | there were,"

Digitized by Google

The most successful attempt to set forth Lydgate's metrical peculiarities, is, so far as I know and am able to judge, Professor Schipper's account in his Englische Metrik, I, § 196. My own observations, based on a critical text, tend to confirm the results arrived at by the Professor, and I think there can remain no doubt as to the correctness of Schipper's views in general, although in many particulars I cannot agree with his scanning of Lydgate's lines. We may say, roughly speaking, that Lydgate has five types of the five-beat line—even if we make no distinction between lines with strong (monosyllabic) and weak (dissyllabic) rhymes.

A. The regular type, presenting five iambics, to which, as to the other types, at the end an extra-syllable may be added. There is usually a well-defined cæsura after the second foot, but not always. Examples:

Line 1: For thóuȝt, constréint, || and gréuous héuines[se].

B. Lines with the trochaic cæsura, built like the preceding, but with an extra-syllable before the cæsura. Examples:

L. 77: There wás eke Ísaude — || & méni anóþir mó.

L. 91: And máni a stóri, || mo þén I rékin cán.

L. 120: List óf his gódhode || his fóurme tó transmwe.

L. 1093: Wherfóre, as Vénus || list þís matér to guíe.

This redundant syllable before the cæsura is often found in Chaucer, and, again, in the Elizabethan dramatists, and greatly contributes towards giving variety to this metre, which, in less skilful hands, easily becomes monotonous. This "epic" cæsura is also well-known in Romance poems (see Tobler, Vom französischen Versbau, p. 69, etc.), particularly in Italian, French, and Provençal. In our poem this type is very common; the following lines either must be read, or are best read according to it: 39, 102, 105, 164, 198, 227, 244, 276, 298, 329, 367, 401, 406, 409, 429, 444, 463, 484, 541, 543, 553, 609, 678, 679, 690, 698, 722, 750, 759, 770, 792, 797, 801, 835, 853, 859, 864, 898, 953, 960, 1000, 1017, 1034, 1038, 1053, 1073, 1078, 1089, 1100, 1126, 1164, 1176, 1188, 1206, 1237, 1302.

Digitized by Google

I believe there are many more lines which we may suppose Lydgate to have read in this way; and, again, there are a great many others about which it is impossible to decide.

C. The peculiarly Lydgatian type, in which the thesis is wanting in the cæsura, so that two accented syllables clash together. Examples:

L. 905: For spéchelés || nóþing máist þou spéde.
L. 309: Enbróuded wás || ás men mýȝte sé.
L. 1200: Siþ nóon but shé || máy þi sóres sóund.
L. 1368: Me þóuȝt I wás || cást as ín a tráunce.
L. 1398: If ény wórd || ín þe bé myssáide,
L. 579: Hou éuer gód || fórto réken áll.
L. 580: Myȝt máke a þíng || só celéstiál.

This line is peculiar to Lydgate, or, at least, is more developed in his works than anywhere else. The second half of the line is here treated, as the whole line is in type D, the first syllable, so to say, being cut off. The development of this type may, to a certain degree, also be due to the increasing tendency to drop the final e. This type is very common in all Lydgate's works, and our Temple of Glas exhibits many lines of this peculiar metrical structure, the most important of which I enumerate in the following list: Ll. 18, 63, 127, 159, 245, 246, 255, 412, 434, 485, 491, 503, 536, 567, 578, 592, 681, 689, 767, 794, 836, 845, 848, 849, 858, 911, 913, 942, 1005, 1028, 1030, 1049, 1084, 1106, 1141, 1145, 1150, 1261, 1270, 1328, 1373, 1395.

D. The acephalous or headless line, in which the first syllable has been cut off, thus leaving a monosyllabic first measure. Example:

L. 1396: Unto hír || & tó hir éxcellénce;
L. 1311: Óf musíke, || ay díde his bísynés;
L. 1158 (?): Róte þin hért, || and vóide dóublenés.

Most likely we must add l. 489; Lydgate, I should think, read Thánking; Gower would read Thankènde. There is hardly another certain example of this type in the Temple of Glas. For although the text of this poem can, in general, be reconstructed with sufficient certainty, yet there are, just with respect to this particular question, certain discrepancies between the two groups A and B, which allow of an ambiguous interpretation: namely, either G and S exhibit the true old reading, which represented a more regular type; or, G and S show a tendency to tamper with the metre, considered deficient by them, and especially to do away with these monosyllabic first measures.

Digitized by Google

I am inclined to think that the second interpretation holds good in the majority of cases (cf. Chapter IV, § 1). Thus, I think, we must consider lines 808 and 870 as acephalous; so also l. 265 (G and Prints alone exhibiting an alteration), perhaps also 79. Lines 9 and 954 may be doubtful.

E. Lines with trisyllabic first measure. The occurrence of such lines in our poem is uncertain; but two lines may belong to this class, if we read them in the following way:

L. 781: Thăt wăs féiþful fóund, til hém depártid déþe;

L. 1029: Ănd ăs férforþe ás my wíttes cón concéyue.

Lines 496 and 1037 do not belong to this class; this is is to be read this', as a monosyllable; see, for instance, Chaucer's Parlement of Foules, 411 and 650.

In many cases it is, however, impossible to classify a line as belonging incontestably to any particular one of the above-named types. It not unfrequently happens with Lydgate, as with all doggerel-poets who have not a sensitive ear for rhythm, that his verses can be read in two or three different ways. Type A and C particularly may often seem to have equal claims to a line, according as we read or drop the final e before the cæsura. For instance, l. 3 belongs to type C, if we read went, as the MS. has it; but it belongs to type A, if we read wentë, sounding the final e. In our present case it is impossible to decide: Lydgate usually sounds the e of the weak preterit, but he has also unquestionably went in l. 546. The same holds good of types A and B; for instance, l. 395; clereþ may be a monosyllable or a dissyllable. Again, type C and D might lay claim to one and the same line; for instance, l. 63, which may be read:

Hou þát she wás || fálsed óf Iasón; or:

Hoú þat shé || was fálsed óf Iasón.

In cases like the last I am inclined to assign the line to type C, as there are so many more indisputable instances of it than of type D.

I must add here that Lydgate seems sometimes to have a double thesis; but the instances are rare and uncertain in our poem. This may be the case in ll. 1082, 1170, 1172; 910, 1212, all of which, however, are uncertain,[1] inasmuch as they either present doubtful

[1] So are almost all the examples, adduced by Schipper, p. 495, in support of the double thesis: we have most likely to scan: For thè sixte Hérry; wedyr, in line 2, is treated as a monosyllable, to be pronounced somewhat in the same way as modern French quat' for quatre (words in re or le are very commonly so treated by Lydgate; cp. the line quoted by Schipper on p. 497); in line 3 I

Digitized by Google

readings, or may be scanned smoothly by slurring. Further, Lydgate very often makes the arsis fall on unaccentuated syllables; for instance: Hertès, 1097, 1211; Demèn, 872; vndìr, 809, 1111, 1213; Whilòm, 816; Fairèst, 1341; Oþìr, 1038; Makìng, 939; Singỳng, 1340; Ledìn, 239; Gladèst, 703; Passèþ, 252, etc.

Again, alliteration, particularly in the form of alliterating formulæ, is very common in Lydgate. Many words, like servise, fortune, beaute, etc., have a double accent, perhaps to a greater extent than in Chaucer. Elisions, slurrings, hiatus, synizesis, etc., occur very much in the same manner as in Chaucer. I think I had better leave a careful and detailed synopsis of these phenomena to some special treatise on Lydgate's metre; the question of the final e, which it was absolutely necessary to investigate closely for the construction of the text, will be fully discussed in the following Chapter.

§ 3. The Rhyme.

The rhyme is, in general, pure and skilfully handled. The principles followed by Lydgate are much the same as those of Chaucer, for which reason I will only draw attention to certain points which are of special interest or which are peculiar to Lydgate.

As to the quality of the rhyme-vowel, Lydgate makes no difference between open and close sounds; open and close o or e being treated exactly alike. For instance: wo : do 1370, so : do 637, also : do 902 (compare, however, with regard to these examples, ten Brink, § 31, 72); stoode (O.E. stôd) : abode (O.E. âbâd), Falls of Princes, fol. 9 c and 21 a; wode (O.E. wôd) : abrode, F. of Pr. 22 b. Drede rhymes with rede (O.E. rêd) 641, 1367; with lede (O.E. lêdan) 1198; with hede (O.E. hêafod) 526; with womanhede 764; with mede (O.E. mêd) 352, 413, and spede (O.E. spêd) 681. Speche (O.E. sprêc) rhymes with leche (O.E. lêce) 917, and with seche (O.E. sêcan) 1166; clene (O.E. clêne) with grene (O.E. grêne) and to sene (O.E. tô sêonne) 504, &c. (cp. again ten Brink, § 25). Similarly, no difference is made between ei and ai, for instance: maide (O.E. mægden) : leide (O.E. legdon) 207; peine : complaine 145, 723, 942; disdein : vain 155, etc. In three cases we find an assonance[1] in place of the rhyme:

should scan: of cólour fúll cov'náble; in the 5th and 6th line for and the are probably to be omitted; read further in the 6th line at thentring, and in the 9th The childre of Seth; in ll. 7, 8 and 4 we have probably to accentuate súpport, réport, dévise, if, indeed, we have not, in the last case, to substitute wise for devise.

[1] Assonances in the Black Knight have been pointed out by Skeat, in the Academy, Aug. 10, 1878, p. 144, col. 1: forjuged : excused, 274; ywreke : clepe, 284.

Digitized by Google

ll. 125, 126 ascape : take; ll. 856, 858, 859 : perfourme : refourme : mourne; and ll. 1017, 1018 : accepte : correcte. We need not blame the monk too much for this oversight; for sometimes, assonances are put unawares by poets who are particularly conspicuous for the purity of their rhymes, such as Chaucer (see ten Brink, § 329), and Robert of Gloucester (see Pabst, Die Sprache der me. Reimchronik des R. von Gloucester, § 4).

Of course there are plenty of cheap rhymes in Lydgate; suffixes, such as -(n)esse, -ful, -hede, rhyme frequently with each other; we have further in the Temple of Glas, binde : unbinde, 1269; liȝt : liȝt, 1341; herte : smerte, etc.; in one case (ll. 1013, 1016) Lydgate repeats the same word wise to rhyme with itself. Lydgate, as well as Chaucer, uses double forms of the same word for rhyming purposes; thus deye rhymes with obeye in ll. 587 and 772, with saie, 983; but it rhymes also, in the form dye, with fantasie and specifie, l. 514; with crie, 998. We have, moreover, swete rhyming with hete 510; but soote rhyming with rote and bote, 458. eye is made to rhyme with lie, 73, Emelie 106, regalie 262, deye 232, and was evidently pronounced ȳe. The rhymes prove that Lydgate often used the Kentish e for O.E. y; in our poem we have thus lest (: best : rest), 483; the Tanner-MS., however, writes in all cases where the word occurs, list or lust. We find, further, mynde, l. 732, rhyming with ende and sende; and, again, l. 1241, mynd : ende. Compare, on the other hand, the rhymes mynde : finde, ll. 741 and 830; kynd : mynde : behind, 343.[1] Romance words in -oun are very common; the rhymes prove that Lydgate sounded the vowel as a long u (as in Modern-English ruth) : soun : lamentacioun, 197 : toun : Palamoun, 101; doun : lamentacioun, 566; prisoun : adoune, 647; compassioun : renoun : adoun, 926. But we have also rhymes like Iason : anon : gone, F. of Princes, fol. 11 d, &c. (cp. ten Brink, § 71).

A peculiarity of Lydgate's is that he frequently rhymes words ending in -ire with those in -ere. This has several times been pointed out; as by Sauerstein, in Lydgate's Æsopübersetzung, p. 17 (bottom); Prof. Zupitza, in the Deutsche Litteraturzeitung, 1886, col. 850; Koeppel, Mitteilungen zur Anglia, 1890, p. 92. We have the following rhymes in the Temple of Glas: chere : desire, 315, 563, 729; praiere : desire, 543; daunger : desire, 776; pantere : desire,

[1] See, on the promiscuous use of i and Kentish e in the Suffolk-dialect, Horstmann, Introduction to Bokenam, p. xi; Hoofe, in Englische Studien, VIII, 239.

Digitized by Google

603; wire : spere, 271; 3ere : desire, 1201; daunger : fire, 631; 3ere : fire, 473. The regular form for the words: continue, discover, recover, is in Lydgate contune (ll. 1333; 390); discure (ll. 629; 916, 161); recure (l. 1226). Impure rhymes seem to be : yonder : wonder, 577,[1] and socoure : endure, 818; socoure elsewhere rhymes with words in -oure, not in -ure.[2]

I have now to say a few words on the number of the syllables that form the rhyme. There can be no doubt that we have the strong, monosyllabic rhyme in lines like 11, 12; 15, 16; 77, 78, etc.; the weak or dissyllabic rhyme in lines like 5, 6; 99, 100; 107, 108, etc. In cases like 23, 24 (place : face); 103, 104 (smert : hert) the rhyme would be certainly dissyllabic in Chaucer. The question is whether this also holds good for Lydgate's language. Now we cannot deny that some strong arguments might be brought forward in support of the theory that the final e in such cases is mute in Lydgate. In the present poem Lydgate has the rhymes grace : trespas, l. 1031; assaie (infin.) : nay, 643; assaie : say (I saw, O.E. seah), 693; peine : agein, 1138; peine : wellbesein, 1169; chaine : tweyn (but tweyne is perhaps dissyllabic, as in Chaucer), 354, 1106; repente (infin.) : entent : sent, 497; repente (infin.) : entent : jugement, 1076 (entent is usually a dissyllable in Lydgate, see ll. 304, 384, 1335); Iocound : founde (pp.) : abounde (infin.), 1174; despit : wite (O.E. wite), 165—wite is also a monosyllable in l. 208—; in l. 1049, we have, I suppose, to read pastë (p. t.), to rhyme with castë (infin.). Sometimes we also meet with the rhyme ȳ : ie in Lydgate's works, although not in the Temple of Glas; for instance, more than once in the Black Knight. All this shows that there is in Lydgate a considerable advance beyond Chaucer in the dropping of the final e in Romance words, or rather, to express it more exactly, Lydgate does not always refrain from doing at the end of a verse what Chaucer does not hesitate to do in the middle. Chaucer would read vilainȳ only in the middle of a line, Lydgate would do the same also at the end in the rhyme. With Teutonic words the monk seems to be far more careful; I can find only one example of such rhymes in our poem which would be inadmissible in Chaucer's system,

[1] This rhyme, however, occurs also in Chaucer, Man of Law's Tale, l. 920; in Havelok 922 we have the spelling yunder. We find this rhyme elsewhere in Lydgate, for instance Falls of Princes, fol. 20 b.

[2] We have the rhyme ye socour : youre cure also in the Romaunt of the Rose, l. 3539. The language of this poem often reminds one of Lydgate, both in its rhymes and in its vocabulary.

Digitized by Google

namely (ll. 392, etc.), sone (O.E. sôna) : mone (O.E. môna) : don (O.E. ge-dôn). The same rhyme-system occurs in the Falls of Princes, fol. 174 c. We may, however, note that sone in Chaucer is always a monosyllable in the middle of the line; see ten Brink, § 327.

As, however, the following chapter will show that the final e is sounded by Lydgate nearly in all cases in which Chaucer sounds it, I believe that Lydgate thought it proper to read the words in question as dissyllables, although his Suffolk-dialect may sometimes lead him astray. As the matter is not absolutely certain, I have refrained from any interference with the Tanner-MS. in such cases, in so far that I did not add any final e's at the end of the line or immediately before the cæsura, even where I believe Lydgate would have sounded them. The MS., with its very numerous sins of omission and commission in this respect, thus shows us all the more clearly how matters stood in general with regard to the final e shortly after 1400.

I believe that according to the types set forth above, nearly all Lydgate's lines, perhaps even the very unruly ones of the Story of Thebes, can be made to scan tolerably. Still, the above-given exposition of Lydgate's metrical system will seem little calculated to bear out the statement by Berkenhout, Biographia Literaria, p. 317 (copied in A. D. Burrowes's Modern Encyclopædia, VII, 201), according to which Lydgate's versification is "much more harmonious" (sic) than that of Chaucer. But, on the other hand, we must at least grant that, if the metre of Lydgate is "halting," there is, as a rule, method in this halting.

CHAPTER VI.

LYDGATE'S LANGUAGE.

§ 1. General Characteristics.

THE first thing that strikes us in comparing Lydgate's and Chaucer's language is that the first is a great deal more modern than the latter. This has already been frequently noticed, and is in the main correct. The modern stamp, however, of Lydgate's language seems to result principally from the choice of words, rather than from phonology and inflexions. Chaucer, as compared with Lydgate, uses many more concrete words, which are mostly of Old-English origin, and, to a great extent, are now obsolete or have completely died out; Lydgate, especially in his more pretentious works, uses many abstract words of French or Latin origin, which in most cases are still in use or are at least intelligible. As he has, however, an extensive vocabulary at his disposal, many interesting words rarely met with in English literature are found in his writings, so that his name must be of frequent occurrence in historical dictionaries of the English language.

Digitized by Google

In accordance with his propensity to expatiate on his own qualities, Lydgate has also bequeathed to us his opinion on his own language, which is, of course, again expressed in that same self-deprecatory, apologetic style which characterizes his other utterances concerning his own abilities and performances. Among the many passages in which he reviles the "rudeness" of his own language, the most interesting is the one in the prologue to the Court of Sapience,[1] which runs thus:

> "I knowe my selfe moost naked in all artes,
> My comyn vulgare eke moost interupte;
> And I conuersaunte & borne in the partes
> Where my natyfe langage is moost corrupte,
> And with moost sondry tonges myxte & rupte.
> O lady myn, wherfore I the beseche (Clio)
> My muse amende, dresse, forge, mynysshe & eche."

That Lydgate occasionally uses dialectal forms varying from those of Chaucer, is certain. The principal phonetic peculiarities, so far as they are apparent in the rhymes, have been noted in § 3 of the last chapter. If it is true that Chaucer was Lydgate's "master" in more than a figurative sense, and that he "corrected" some of the early poems of his young admirer, he would doubtless have pointed out, as things to be avoided, these dialectal peculiarities, the dropping of the final e in certain instances, and type C of Lydgate's metre.

It would be useless here to give a full analysis of the sound-system of the Temple of Glas, as it would be almost entirely a repetition of ten Brink's book on Chaucer's language. Again, there is little difference in the inflexional system of Chaucer and Lydgate; but as there has been some doubt about this point, especially with regard to the sounding of the unaccented syllables, I must deal with Lydgate's inflexions in greater detail. I shall therefore point out the instances in the Temple of Glas which tend most to throw light upon this question, hoping that the ground on which we stand will have been made firm by the metrical investigations of the preceding chapter, and by the text-criticism contained in Chapter III. A few

[1] I must, however, note here that the genuineness of this prologue has been called into question; see Warton-Hazlitt III, 60, note 4; Blades, Caxton II, 115; Ames, Typographical Antiquities (1749), p. 67.

Digitized by Google

further illustrations of certain points, gathered here and there from Lydgate's other works, may not, I hope, be unwelcome.

§ 2. The Inflexions of the Temple of Glas. Declension.

I. Substantives.—Strong Masculines and Neuters.

Nom. and Accus. without ending; inorganic e in weyë,[1] acc. of wey (l. 897, 639 ?[2]) See ten Brink, Chaucer's Sprache und Verskunst, § 199 note; Sachse, Das unorganische e im Orrmulum, p. 7.

Genitive in ës: liuës 1196; daiësye 74. Dissyllables: heuens 715.

Dative in ë: kyndë 224; goldë (: biholdë) ? 112.

Plural in ës (often written is[3] in MS. T): oþis 59; stremës 252, 1101, 1342; stonës 301, 310; harmës 314, 618, 686; stormës 515; bemys 718; weiës 1168, etc.—In the Secreta Secretorum (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 102 b) occurs the rhyme: desirs (read deseris): cler is; in the Falls of Princes, 111 b, we have thestates rhyming with the Latin genitive "lese magestates" (sic); ib. 127 d: warres: far is; Edmund III, 634, ground is: woundis; in the Pilgrimage 172 a: Instrumentys: entent ys. But we have also rhymes like succours: deuinours: shoures, Falls of Princes, 19 b. The neuters also usually end in -ës; þingis 167; yeris 202; wordys 320, etc.; kneis 459; soris 602, 1200; shottes 788; wittes 1029. The old Plural without an ending occurs in folk 193, 400.

ja-stems. witę l. 208 (O.E. wite). But ë in Pilgrimage, fol. 216 b:

"Ther-whyles the chesë fyl a-doun."

I am not aware of a good example, in the Temple of Glas, of the ë in i- or u-stems; but compare for the latter, Pilgrimage, 98 a:

"How goddys sonë, man to saue" . . .
ib., 252 b: "My wodë shal on euery syde" . . .

The octosyllables of the Pilgrimage of man and of Reason and Sensuality lend themselves much better to a grammatical analysis of Lydgate's inflexions than his five-beat line.

[1] ë means that the e is sounded, ę, that it is mute.

[2] The frequent notes of interrogation mean that the metre does not absolutely warrant the sounding of the final e; in most instances, however, I am inclined to read it as a full syllable. In some doubtful cases I have refrained from putting dots to the e. I may remark here that, on account of the ambiguity of Lydgate's metre, conclusive examples on this point are rarer than might be supposed at first sight. In some few cases it will be found that I have here decided with more absolute certainty in favour of sounding the final e than when I first constructed my text.

[3] The Suffolk-dialect shows a predilection for i, y in the endings; in O. Bokenam's Legends we have rhymes like knelyn: mawdelyn (8, 1098); see Horstmann's Introduction, p. xi. Cp. also, with respect to Chaucer, ten Brink, § 62.

Digitized by Google

Strong Feminines.

Nom. ends usually in ë: lovë 1317; dedë 341; helthë 812; rouþë 873. In the case of love, the ë is due to O.E. u; in the other instances it crept into the nominative by analogy of the oblique cases. See Sachse, §§ 7 and 8; ten Brink, § 207.

But we have also love 1143, 1256, 1265; drede 672; tale 903.

Genitive in ës: lovës 86, 125, 183, 573, 633. worldis 1208.

Accus. and Dative end a.) in ë: ȝouþë 448; trouþë 455, 1081? 1102, 1235, 1249; whilë 549; spechë (?) 760; talë 910; salvë 922; helpë 952; myrþë 1177; lovë 1337.

b.) in e: ȝouþe 199 (rhymes with couþ; the same rhyme occurs Falls of Princes, 211 d and 214 a); while 217, 626; love 327, 1351; worlde 729; rouþe 1054; trouþe 1277.

Plural in ës: woundis 816; sorowis 967; talës 1182 (?).

Old Dative Plural: whilom 568, 816.

n-stems.

a.) Masculines. Nomin. ending in ë: hopë 643, 676 (?); timë 1204 (?).

Nom. in e: time 1194, 1377. mone rhymes with don 394; plei 183 (plei is a monosyllable also in Chaucer, see ten Brink § 211).

Oblique cases in ë: hopë 657, 892.

Plural in ës: sterrës (?) 252, 1341; dovuës 541; lippës 1049.

b.) Feminines. Nom. in ë: sunnë 396; hertë 337, 829 (?)—Nom. in e: herte 775.—lady (O.E. hlǽfdige) remains the same in all cases: Nom. 250 etc.; Gen. 1160; Dat. 158, 966, etc.; Acc. 134, etc.

Genitive in ës or ë: hertës 340, 502, 915, 1212; sunnë bemes, Falls of Princes, 31 d; hertë roote, Pilgrimage, 224 b.

Dative and Accus. in ë: erþë 581; sunnë 21 (?); hertë 80, 312, 363, 726, 756, 825, 839, 888 (?), 920, 945, 986, 1044, 1182, 1188, 1205; wekë 1201.

Plural in ës: hertës 323, 529, 619, 1088, 1095, etc.; genitive, hertis 1083.

c.) Neuters: (e)yȝë (?) 105, 231, 262, 850; Plural (e)yȝën 40, 582, 1047, 1103.

Romance Nouns.

These also usually keep their e. We have formë 120; forcë 178, 1247; gracë 333, 733; sperë (sphere) 396; entailë 37; peinë 798, 1260 (but compare the rhymes in 1140, 1169); festë 473; joyë 1129 (but joye 880?); inkë 961; rosë 1042; Troië 95; Romë 101.

Digitized by Google

But we have also causę 953; Cupidę 855; and when the accent is thrown back: Fórtunę 519; bálaunce 641; bálladę 1338; sérvisę 155, 719.—In the Secreta Secretorum, fol. 110 a, we have "som" (= French somme) rhyming with the Latin genitives "principum" and "virtutum."

Plural in ës: billës 50; peynës 479, 668, 805, 951, 1001, 1286; vicës 1181.

Polysyllabic words form their plural in ęs: sérvauntęs 1126.

II. Adjectives.

The ja-stems keep their e: sootë 192; newë 681, 657 (?), 606 (?), 7 (weak); trwë (weak) 71. We have also mychë (= O.E. mycel), l. 941.

Plural. It is difficult to find good examples of Nom. and Acc. Plural in the Temple of Glas. It seems we must read somë in l. 147, although Chaucer has somë only in the rhyme (for instance, Troil. IV. 967); see ten Brink, § 255 and 327. In the Orrmulum we have sume, see Sachse, § 77; in Gower somë is very common; in Reason and Sensuality, fol. 287 a, we have the line:

"Sommë square and sommë rounde;"

similarly, in the Pilgrimage, fol. 52 b: "Sommë swyfft & sommë soffte;"
ib., fol. 190 b: "With dedly synne as sommë do;"
ib., fol. 76 b: "Sommë pressen to the table;"
ib., Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 58 b: "Sommë hyh and som[ë] lowe;"
Story of Thebes, fol. 371 b: "And bé Iasón ‖ sómë bókes tell."

But it is true, that in all other cases in the Temple of Glas we have somę: 49, 50, 51, 151, 162, 169, 179, 244, 539. Most likely we have to read briȝtë in 705, but this would be the weak form here. We have also the Scandinavian boþë (the ë representing an older ending) 1294, 345, 790, 510 (?); also in 1108, 1224. Boþę occurs in l. 1084.

In the oblique cases we have ë: widë 204; goodë 462; allë (?) 807, 973, 1165; but allę, 752, 1351.

We have, of course, the distinction between the strong and weak adjective. The latter has an ë also in the Singular, being the continuation of fuller endings in Old-English. The weak adjective stands:

1. After the definite article: longë 12; fresshë 70, 93, 1042 (?); fairë 786; gretë 87, 787 (?), 984; holë 97; ȝungë 106; saddë 377; þe samë 841; þilkë 81; þe whiche 514; hardë 957; selfë 846; blakë (?) 330; riȝtë 975.—ja-stems: nwë 7; trwë 71.—Compare also þe soþë 1002, and Skeat's Note to Group G, l. 662 of the Canterbury Tales.

Digitized by Google

For cases like The bestë tauȝt (l. 292; cp. also l. 558, the mostë?), see ten Brink, § 246, end of note.

2. After a demonstrative pronoun: These yongë 193; þis fairë 454.

3. After a possessive pronoun: hir gretë 265; my fullë 489, 830, 1383; his hiddë, 967; Oure hiddë 1087; myn hiddë 988; ȝoure gladë 1344; his ownë 535, 938; myn ownë 635; ȝoure oldë 1222. —But we have also: Hir sad 750; your holȩ 857; his long 1122.

4. Before proper names: fresshë May 184; ooldë Januari 185; ȝungë Piramus 780; óld Satúrne, or óldë Sáturne? 389 (Sáturne olde occurs in Story of Thebes, Prol., l. 3).—Cp. bright[ë] Phebus, Story of Thebes, Prol., l. 1.

These cases certainly confirm Zupitza's opinion on this treatment of the adjective; see Deutsche Litteraturzeitung, 1885, col. 610. I do not think that Freudenberger's attempts to explain away the respective cases in Chaucer quite hit the mark (Ueber das Fehlen des Auftakts in Chaucers heroischem Verse, p. 36, etc.).

5. Before a Vocative: clerë 715.

But we have no different form for the weak adjective of more than one syllable: The feiþful 378; The inward 1290; þis woful 936; ȝour dredful 717; my forseid 1389, etc.

Romance Adjectives.

*palë 4 (the asterisk means weak form); benygnë (?) *449, 1110 (?); *clerë 715; *justë 1331; *fersë 1236; *rudë 1393; and, of course, doublë 167, and humblë 472, 697, 925; but sóverain *415, 649.

III. Numerals.

twoo 348, 1255, 1314, and tweyn 354, 1081, 1104 (read tweynë?), 1298, 1322; fivë 831.

IV. Pronouns.

The same as in Chaucer. With regard to the final e I note: yourës (?) : showres 1215; doubtful youres 1076, 1130, 1134; similarly hires 593; þe whichë (?) 514; attë = at þe 405, etc.; hirȩ 766, 783; but compare Pilgrimage, 229 b:

"Ded to hyrë the presente."

Ib., Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 96 a: "Towchynge hir[ë], the mercer."

It has been said that Lydgate uses the Scandinavian forms þeir, etc., throughout. This is not borne out by the MSS.; only the late

Digitized by Google

Prints gradually introduce these forms. Lydgate has always, like Chaucer, þey in the nominative, hir in the genitive, and hem in the dative and accusative.

V. Adverbs.

Formed from adjectives by adding ë. No decisive example in the Temple of Glas, but elsewhere in Lydgate; for instance, Life of St. Edmund, III, 1041:

"Sweyn affraied loudë gan to crye."

Story of Thebes, fol. 358 a: "On whiche thing the kyng gan sorë muse."

Pilgrimage, fol. 231 b: "Thogh the bowe be strongë bent."

In the Temple of Glas we have longë (or long?) 38; derë (ja-stem) 1258, but see the various readings; soręe or sorë? l. 180 (type A or B?); 1202 ilichę or lichë? Other examples of adverbs in e are: þan 672, 799 (but þannë, which is particularly frequent in Gower, in l. 596?); oftë 69, 169, 193, 200, 231, 669; sonę 1185, and also in the rhyme, l. 392.—outë (?) 662 (cp. outëward 340, but outward 563); aboutë 28, 933 (used as a preposition); withoutë 154, 211, 308, 365, 379, 385, etc., etc.; atwixën 348; besidë 248.—abouę 466.

Adverbs in -es: againës 177, 181; nedës 232, 1063; atonës 458; onès (?) 725; hennës 481, 1025; towardis 1048; þennes (?) 1316; ellës 917 (ellęs 1032; in 819, 1131 most likely ellës); always whilęs 172, 576, 738, 790, 1011, 1109, 1324. We have, of course, also the suffix -ly to form adverbs; further, forms like "of nwe," l. 615, "of hard" 1319, etc.

For an explanation of "The bestë tauȝt," in l. 292, I refer the reader to ten Brink, § 246, end of note: the sign ë of the weak adjective, properly belonging to tauȝt, is shifted to the adverb best.

VI. Composition.

The composition of words in Lydgate is effected on the same principles which we find in Chaucer, and, indeed, as early as in the Orrmulum; the e in particular, which stands between the two parts of the compound—be it organic or inorganic—being sounded by Lydgate as by Chaucer and Orrm. Thus we have: lodëster 612; spechëles 905; causëles 150; kyndënes 747; rekëles 918; hawëthorn (O.E. hagaþorn) 505; of course, secrëness 900; secrëli 365; privëli 635, 1014; bisëly 1180; further, richëli 302; always humbëlly, humbëli (as if for humblëli) 491, 773, 852, 1047; benignëte 1296; benignëly 711, 849; jugëment 1079; duëte 800 (for the adjective duë, see ten Brink, § 239); surëte 1259; goodëly 851.

Digitized by Google

But we have nearly always mekęli: 324, 371, 469, 482, 589, 868, 915, 994, 1084, 1105; mekëli occurs in 1281. Further, nameli 229; softly 371; truli 431 (elsewhere trewëly); derknes 401, 1211, 1357; swetnes 403; meknes 76, 621; goodnes 745.

§ 3. Conjugation.

I need not dwell on the formation of the tenses of strong and weak verbs, as this is the same in Lydgate as in Chaucer. More important for our purpose are the endings of the verb, with regard to which I wish particularly to elucidate how far they were sounded as distinct syllables or not. I proceed at once to give the endings.

Infinitive in ën, ë: takë 13; biholdë 34; walkë 42; reportë 43; puttë 52; askë 164; wynnën 177; shapë 195; cuïën 205; makën 236; ledin 239; findë 242, etc. etc. (some sixty or seventy conclusive instances).

But sometimes we have also apocope of the ending: shewę 206; voidę 253; vnfoldę (?) rhyming with bold 360; repentę 500; clerę 611; tel 663, 964; comę 924; farę 1063; berę 1234, and always havę 54, 165, 229, 375, 418, 425, etc. Dissyllables end in ę: guerdonę 1031; disseuer (: euer) 1314; rekin 91, 579. n kept in the rhyme: gon : one 26; gon : allone 548, but se : Penalope 68; se : tre 89; se : Canace 137. So also 233, 269, 302, 309, 612.

Gerund: We have to seinë : compleyne 1325; but also to seinę : again 157. Indecisive is l. 506 : to sene, rhyming with grene. We have further, to do : so 637; to do : wo 1371.

Indicative Present, first person, ends in ë (?) and ę: stondë 689 (infinitive?); takë (?) 769; axë (?) 800; want or wantë 951? menë or menę 1402? (see note). We certainly have þankę 1060, hauę 349, 366; and in polysyllables: mérvailę 585; trespacę 1018.

Second person, in ëst: Enclynyst 324; Gladest 703; soroist 860; menyst 889. Also ęst; MS. T even writes tast for takęst 602. In rare cases we have the ending -es: thow tellys : bellys, Pilgrimage 102 b; thow pursues : stewes, ib., fol. 141 a; thow tell[ys] : ellys, ib., 275 b.

Third person in ëþ (no Umlaut in the stem-syllable): abidëþ 222; falleþ 231; passëþ 252; surmountëþ 258; louëþ 1292, etc. Also ęþ in comęþ 656; contraction in saith 644, 653, etc.; sleiþ (: deþ) 782; fleith 603; liþ 722, 865; seþ 862 (the vowel comes from the infinitive); the þ of the ending is absorbed in the dental consonant at the end of the stem in forms like: sit 184 (but sittëþ 894, 1118); bitt

Digitized by Google

676; list 297, 314, etc.; stant 890, 1259 (standeþ? 1186); bint 1096; fint 1263.

Besides the usual form in -eþ, Lydgate has also the northern form in -es (for singular and plural), not very frequently, but more so than Chaucer. So we have in the Troy-Book telles : welles $G_5 c$; dawes : wawes $M_4 d$; fyghtes : knyghtes $O_2 a$; endytes : rytes $Aa_3 a$; bytes : rytes $Aa_3 a$; Falls of Princes ledes : dedes, fol. 184 c; telles : shelles; 192 b; disdaynes : mountaines 194 a; Secreta Secretorum 125 a: techys : lechys; Reason and Sensuality 207 a: obeyes : ydeyes (ideas); tellys : wellys, 214 b; Story of Thebes leres : baneres, fol. 363 c; Pilgrimage ordeynys : chaumberleyn[y]s, 35 a; espyes : skyes 170 a; gouernys : posternys, 181 b; thynkes : drynkes 195 a; espyes : delycacyes 196 a; shynes : wynes 229 a; espyes : lyes 265 a; shewes : thewes, 275 b; pulles : bulles 296 a.

Plural in ën, ë: putten 166; lovë 167; passen 393; rejoicë 400; greven 663; knowë 723; witen? 797; causen 1343; bië 1351. Lydgate has also ę in the rhyme, as the following passage from the Court of Sapience, $e_8 b$, proves, where the monk says of the dialecticians:

> "With sophyms straunge maters they discusse,
> And fast they crye oft: 'tu es Asinus'!"

list seems always to be a monosyllable, also when in the plural and in personal construction: 478, 482, 868, 983, 1000.

A remnant of the old ending seems to remain in haþ 171. We find this ending occasionally also in the rhyme; so in the Troy-Book $L_1 a$: they gothe : wrothe (so also Pilgrimage, fol. 52 b); they seyth : fleyth, Pilgrimage, fol. 101 a. As has already been said, Lydgate uses also the northern form -es in the Plural: telles : elles Troy-Book $K_5 a$ and $Cc_4 c$; specifies : fantasies Story of Thebes, 363 b; duellys : ellys Reason and Sensuality 272 a; discriues : striues (noun), Falls of Princes fol. 145 b; shewes : thewes, Pilgrimage 180 b; men peyntes : seyntes 271 b; they lookys : bookys, 272 a; telles : elles, 303 a; ye tellys : ellys, ib. 152 a.

Subjunctive, Singular in ë, Plural in ën: þou felë 1178; most likely also þou aracë 894; þou fynë 910; perhaps þou herë 1184; but certainly þou haue 896. Plural: ȝe takën 1124.

Imperative, Singular, second Person, no ending: Lat 1198, 1205; come 1214; take 1174. Weak verbs : wisse (O.E. wissa) 637; loke (O.E. lôca) 894; put 891, 1403; rote (?) 1158. Romance words generally seem to have ë : voidë 1158; of course, suffrë 1161; auaunte 1172; sue 1180; remue 1182; but Tempest 1157.

Digitized by Google

Plural, second person, in ëþ: þinkiþ 391; Remembrëþ 398; trustëþ 412; doutëþ 426; Folowiþ 511; shapëþ 721; takëþ 808, 976; sufferiþ 812; grauntëþ 1034; latëþ 1140; settëþ 1240. Ending ęþ: Comęþ 1272; Haueþ (= Haþ) 714. Moreover, we have let 878, 961, 1094, 1177, 1179, 1247, which may be a contraction (see Morris, Prologue, p. xxxvii, note a); latëþ occurs in l. 1140. Dissyllables: guérdonę 1139.

Participle Present, in -ing: persing 25; passing 226; Thanking 489 (have we to read Thankingë?), 498; sleping and dremyng 531; Sayyng 700, 1110; Making 939; Singyng 1340; Glading 1356; Prayeng 1384. We have certainly to read -ingë in the following lines from the Pilgrimage, fol. 166 b:

"Travayllyngë [plural] nyht & day."

Ib., fol. 170 a: "Remewyngë fro that place."

also in R. & S., fol. 274 a: "Nor the ravysshingë sowns" (weak form).

The form in -ende (Gower's form) occurs in the rhyme, in Falls of Princes 173 a: shinend[e] : attende : Legende.[1]

Verbal noun, ending also in -ing: casting 105, 231; peping 180; bidding 509; cherisshing 869; compassing 871; in -ingë (?): variynge (: wringë, inf.) 216.

Strong Preterit, with Ablaut as in Chaucer; I mention, sey (I saw), rhyming with lay 532, and with assai 694 (cp. Troil. II, 1265: say : day). Plural: foundę 216; Gunnę 1305; always werę 47, 181, 199, 210, etc. We read, however, also gunnë, in the Pilgrimage, fol. 156 a:

"And as we wente & gon[në] talke;"

similarly, ib., fol. 284 b:

"The dropys gonnë for to glyde;"

and even in the Singular, 2nd person, we have comë:

"Off thylke hous thow komë fro," Pilgrimage, fol. 16 a;
"Off swych fylthe thow komë nouht," ib., fol. 147 b.

But, again, we have thow spak (O.E. þû sprǽce), rhyming with lak, Pilgrimage, 177 a, and thow gan (O.E. gunne), rhyming with man, ib., 264 b.

Subjunctive: werę 161, 605, 660, 679, 1131, 1291; nerę 555. But also in ë:

"Woldë god yt stoodë so," Pilgrimage, 172 b.

Weak Preterit. See ten Brink, § 194. Ends a. in -ëd: lastëd

[1] We have -ende also twice in O. Bokenam's Legends: lyuende 9, 377; diedende 12, 252. See Horstmann's Introduction, p. xii.

Digitized by Google

779; departid 781. Plural: pleynëd 151; louëd 157, 163; compleynëd 175.

b. in të, dë, t(e), d(e): þouȝtë 15, 532, 694; nystë 17; myȝtë 68, 286, 595, 1021; mostë 61, 341; rouȝtë 939; mentë 1288; didë 80, 116, 945, 1055, 1233; woldë 591, 847, 893, 1143; sholdë 191, 372; hurtë 813; hadë 316, 578; pastë (?) 1049; castë (?) 1103. Plural: brentë 840; woldë (?) 658, 1017, 1027; criden 193; wenten 505; mighten 280; myȝtë 89, 137, 309; pastë (?) 1105. But we have ę in shuldę 668; woldę 214; coudę 409; þouȝtę 21, 527; mostę 232; wentę 546; feltę 788; nystę 1371; madę 994; hadę 202, 1372; called(e) 219; kneled(e) 697; woldęst 922.

Past Participle. Strong; ends in ën, ë: holpën 141, 376; foundën 1090, 1239; chosën 433;—in ę: boundę 990; ȝeuę 736. Note also sein (O.E. gesegen) 1377; further done : mone : sone 395, but do : also 903.

Weak, ends in ëd: Ioynëd 5; foundid 18; falsëd 63; Iturnëd 99, 116; Endurid 171; closid 362; wapëd 401, etc. etc. We have makëd 1120, but mad 1091, 1322, 1354.

Polysyllables, with the accent thrown back, end in -ęd: Ráuysshęd 16; enlúmynd 283; cómpast 1053.

Contractions: knyt 338; put 397; I-hid 793; het (O.E. gehâten) 842; hurt 615, etc. The prefix I- is very common, in Teutonic and Romance words: I-went 31; I-blent 32; I-slain 95; I-sett 47;—I-chaced 31; I-entred 201; I-stellified 136, etc. etc.

I hope the above examples have made it clear that Lydgate still pronounced the final e, or the e in unaccented inflexional syllables, in the main as Chaucer, and indeed even Orrm, pronounced it. Thus Lydgate decidedly stands in point of language, as in everything else, on the mediæval side of the great gulf that intervenes between Chaucer and the new school of poetry which arose in the 16th century. It is somewhat difficult to ascertain precisely to what extent the dropping of the final e gradually made itself felt in the metrical system of that age. Ellis (On Early English Pronunciation, I, 405) was inclined to make the time of Caxton the great turning-point as regards pronunciation in general; so far as the dropping of the final e in poetry is concerned, my own observations tend to confirm his opinion.[1] Evidently the e first gave way in Romance words, and later on in those of Teutonic origin. This gradually led to a phase in the language in which double forms—with mute or sounded e—were allowed and used to a great extent in poetry. This is already the case with Chaucer, and even more so with Lydgate and his followers. As we have pointed out above, this state of the language may even, with Lydgate (and Occleve), have led to a new metrical type, namely, our type C. After the middle of the 15th century, a time of great confusion in language and metre seems to have followed. The transcripts of the older poets made at that time, and the prints of their works by Caxton and his immediate successors, show palpably that the public of that day had lost all feeling for anything like regular metre. After this period of total decay and anarchy, we see not only how poetry itself, but also the language rises, as if new-born, out of this chaos; in Surrey, for instance, final syllables would be rarely sounded, which are silent in Modern English.

[1] We have, however, as yet no minute analysis of the versification of Hawes, which might somewhat modify the above-expounded view.

Digitized by Google

This question of sounding or dropping an e at the end of a word may at first sight seem a very insignificant thing; but, in reality, it entails a great change in the whole poetical phraseology. It means that nearly all inflexions lose their syllabic value, that ever so many dissyllabic words become thus monosyllables, and ever so many time-honoured formulæ, inherited by one poet from another, become no longer practicable. Lydgate could unhesitatingly take from his master Chaucer any such forms as the shenë sunnë, the grenë levës, smalë foulës, this yongë lordës namë, oldë stories tellën us; but the new school of poetry, in the 16th century, could not easily adopt such archaic stock-phrases without their jarring on the ear of contemporary readers. Instead of Chaucer's my grénë yéares, Surrey has to say my frésh green yéars; instead of Chaucer's sóotë flóurës, Sackville says sóot fresh flówers; and for the dropt two syllables in Chaucer's smálë fóulës, he makes again up by an addition: smáll fowls flócking.

Still these examples will show that the difficulty in point of language was in no way so great that it might not be easily overcome by a real genius, who had sufficient originality to strike out a new path for himself. Our Lydgate would not, of course, have been the man to do this, had it been necessary; but, according to our analysis of it, the state of his language did not even call upon him to do so. For, as we have seen, in his language the system of certain allowable double forms still prevailed in the main, and such a system, although it was very detrimental to the smooth flow of Lydgate's verse, would by no means be a hindrance to a true poet and master of form; on the contrary, instead of hampering him, it would only give him greater freedom.

Digitized by Google

Chaucer uses such double forms, as force and fors, cometh and comth, without any injury to the flow and melodiousness of his metre. For a further illustration of this usage of Chaucer and Lydgate, scholars have rightly pointed to the similar state of things in modern German. Thus Goethe would use Liebe and Liel', flehet and fleht, as the metre might require; he even, without hesitation, puts double forms side by side, as in the two beautiful lines from Faust:

"Es reget sich die Menschenliebe, Die Liebe Gottes regt sich nun."

Nevertheless, no one would think of taking exception to these lines steeped in perfect melody.

Whilst we must, therefore, make due allowance for the increasing difficulty of creating a new metrical canon, it would nevertheless be wrong to infer that the dreariness of this period in English literature is due only to this state of the language. It is even less possible for us to save our monk's reputation upon the strength of the oft-repeated assertion that this decay was due to the unsettled state of public affairs after Chaucer's death. For the Wars of the Roses did not begin till half a century after Chaucer was laid in his grave, and even between 1400—1450, there is no work of any decided poetical value—except perhaps Lydgate's Reason and Sensuality. The wars in France would not have disturbed an English poet much: the Weimar-poets wrote in the midst of the wars against Napoleon, and, indeed, the earlier part of the Anglo-French war, with the Battle of Agincourt, ought certainly to have called forth rather than stifled the poet's voice.

The true explanation of the barrenness of this period in English literature, as in corresponding periods in world-literature in general, is simply that an ebb in the tide of poetical talent had set in. Nature had to rest before she could give birth to the diva proles of the Elizabethans. And if a period of almost two hundred years of barrenness may appear of undue length, let us not forget the uniqueness of the race that was to come: it took three full nights to create Heracles.

CHAPTER VII.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF THE POEM.

I. Stephen Hawes's supposed Authorship.

It has been mentioned in the preliminary remarks that the Temple of Glas was still a very popular work at the beginning of the 16th century. Whilst on the one hand Wynken de Worde's, Pynson's and Berthelet's presses issued new editions of it, Lydgate found, at the same time, a most enthusiastic admirer in the person of Stephen Hawes, the author of the Pastime of Pleasure, so highly praised—far too highly, I think—by Warton as a forerunner to Spenser. As to Hawes's admiration of Lydgate, we have the recorded evidence of Wood in the Athenæ Oxonienses, edit. of 1721, vol. I, col. 61: (Stephen Hawes was) "highly esteemed by him (King Henry VII.) for his facetious Discourse, and prodigious[2] Memory; which last did evidently appear in this, that he could repeat by Heart most of our English Poets; especially Jo. Lydgate a Monk of Bury, whom he made equal in some Respects with Geff. Chaucer." But even without this express testimony of Wood, Hawes's own works would speak even more eloquently for his excessive reverence for Lydgate; for there is no opportunity let slip—be the work small or large, be it at the beginning, in the middle, or at the end—to inform us of Lydgate's transcendent accomplishments in poetry and rhetoric. When he thus, in chapter XIV of the Pastime, comes to enumerate those who distinguished themselves in poetry, he starts off in an animated panegyric extolling Lydgate above all others as his master κατ' ἐξοχήν. But, in this passage, he gives us also something more valuable than his opinion of Lydgate, namely, a list of some of his works, at the end of which he says of the monk:

Digitized by Google

> "and the tyme to passe,
> Of love he made the bryght temple of glasse."
> (Edition for the Percy Society, p. 54.)

Even if we had no further external evidence, we should, I think, still be justified in considering the passage quoted from Hawes as a fairly reliable witness to Lydgate's authorship of the Temple of Glas. At all events it starts us in the right direction for settling this question.

But curiously enough, on the other hand a tradition has sprung up which would make the author of the Temple of Glas this very Stephen Hawes, who, as clearly and expressly as possible, tells us that the poem was written by Lydgate. We first meet with it in the Scriptorum illustrium maioris Brytanniæ Catalogus, by John Bale,

[1] Almost literally repeated in Lewis, Life of Caxton, 1737, p. 103, note t; see also Warton-Hazlitt III, 170.

[2] This is, I think, a most appropriate epithet for a memory that can retain Lydgate, especially those long-winded productions where he says the same thing a hundred times over. But what an idea, to learn Lydgate by heart!

Digitized by Google

the well-known theologian, historian of literature, and dramatic writer. In the edition of 1557—1559, printed at Basle, on page 632, under "Centuria octava," No. LVIII, a "Templum crystallinum" in one book is ascribed to Hawes. The same error is, later on, also found in John Pits, Relationum historicarum de Rebus Anglicis Tomus primus, Parisiis 1619, cap. 903 (under the year 1500). Hence, in both Bale and Pits, the Temple of Glas is wanting in their long catalogue of Lydgate's writings (Bale, p. 586 and 587; Pits, cap. 820), and the same omission naturally occurs in other works which derive their information from these sources. So Ghilini, in his Teatro d'Huomini Letterati, Venice 1647, vol. II, 130, rests his evidence on Pits, and, in his turn, at least in his list of works, serves as an authority to Papadopoli Historia gymnasii Patavini, Venetiis 1726 (vol. II, 165): both these also omit the Temple of Glas in their lists of Lydgate's works. In the same manner, our poem is passed over in silence by the Bishop Josephus Pamphilus, in his Chronica ordinis Fratrum Eremitarum sancti Augustini, Romae 1581, p. 88[1]; by Winstanley, The Lives of the most famous English Poets, 1687, pp. 33—37; in Zedler's Universal-Lexicon (1738), XVII, 944; in J. A. Fabricius, Bibliotheca Latina mediæ et infimæ Ætatis (1754), IV, 95, and in Joecher's Gelehrten-Lexicon, 1750 (all dependent on Bale or Pits).

To return to positive evidence, we again find Hawes expressly stated to be the author in Wood's Athenæ Oxonienses. In the edition of 1721, vol. I, col. 6, a work with the title The Crystalline Temple, is ascribed to Hawes, a title which betrays at once that it was taken from Bale's or Pits's Latin. Somewhat later, however, than the testimonies of Bale, Pits, and Wood, an entry in Ames, Typographical Antiquities, first edition, 1749, gave a fresh start to this

[1] Pamphilus makes Lydgate an Augustine monk (an error repeated in Edward Phillips, Theatrum poetarum, 1675, p. 113 of the Modern Division—another of Phillips's "flagrant inaccuracies" spoken of by Dyce); he, moreover, gives 1482 as the year of Lydgate's death, for which he is duly censured by Pits. This, I conjecture, may have originated in a confusion of the Benedictine John Lydgate, Monk of Bury, with the Augustine John of Bury (born at Bury), who, according to Bale (centuria octava, No. XX, p. 595), flourished about 1460. The Augustine is also mentioned in Fuller's Worthies of England, 1662, under Suffolk, p. 69. Leland, in his Commentarii de Scriptoribus Britannicis, Oxonii 1709, p. 448, treats in Cap. DXLV of a "Joannes a fano Eadmundi, Carmelita Gippovicanus," a commentator of St. Luke's gospel, who seems to be identical with Bale's Ioannes Bury. A book by Philip Elsius, with the title Encomiasticon Augustinianum, Brussels 1654, quoted by Zedler and Fabricius as an authority on Lydgate, and criticized by Labbé, Bibliotheca Bibliothecarum, Paris 1664, p. 142, has not been available to me.

Digitized by Google

erroneous theory of Hawes's authorship. In that work, on p. 86, the following print is mentioned as having been brought out by Wynken de Worde:

1500. Here bygenneth the temple of Glas, wrote by Stephen Hawes grome of the chamber to king Henry VII. It contains 27 leaves in Octavo.

This passage in the first edition of Ames is surrounded by a whole labyrinth of misunderstandings in the various editions of Warton, Ames, and Wood. For Warton (Hist. of English Poetry, 1778, vol. II, p. 211, note h) believed that the words printed in italics, in the above quotation from Ames, were included in the title of Wynken de Worde's edition, which, of course, is not the case. The words in italics merely express Ames's individual opinion with respect to the authorship; his authority might have been Bale, Pits, or perhaps Wood, unless, indeed, Herbert (I, 195) is right, according to whom Ames may easily have derived the statement in question from a written notice in a copy of one of Wynken de Worde's prints, then in the possession of James West (afterwards of Mason and Heber), to whose library Ames had access.

Ames gives the date of the print in question as 1500, so that the book would have come out in Hawes's life-time. Now it seemed unlikely to Warton—labouring as he was under the afore-mentioned delusion and having, moreover, Bale's testimony before him—that a poem, not from Hawes's pen, should have been published, by a contemporary printer, with his name prefixed to it. This argument would not seem, in itself, very strong, and it is all the more curious that Warton should have decided for Hawes's authorship, as he was confronted by the above-quoted passage, in which the latter himself attributes it to Lydgate.[1] As Warton's opinion that Hawes's name was put on a title-page of the Temple of Glas, is not borne out by an examination of the three existing prints by Wynken de Worde—one of them, most likely W, we may fairly assume to have been of the same impression as West's copy used by Ames—not a vestige of rational support from this quarter is left for Hawes's authorship.

Unfortunately, the discussion of these arguments spread from Warton to the later editions of Ames by Herbert and Dibdin—controversies about the various prints by Caxton and Wynken de Worde making matters still worse—and thence the theory of Hawes's author-

[1] And also by Speght's authority (going back to Stowe?), see section II of this chapter.

Digitized by Google

ship found its way into innumerable other works. To disentangle the details of this confusion, and to assign to each of the combatants his exact share of right and wrong in this maze of arguments and refutations, would be a task of some length and difficulty, and would certainly avail nothing for our purpose, as the matter is, without all this, so conspicuously clear. With respect to the typographical part, the best course to pursue appeared to me to give a clear and full description of the prints known to me, and with respect to the authorship, the following pages will establish Lydgate's claim beyond any doubt.

Some of the handbooks, encyclopædias, etc., which give Hawes as the author, are enumerated in the following list. They are, of course, of no authority whatever, being all more or less mechanically copied from Warton or others of the authorities mentioned.

S. Paterson, Bibliotheca Westiana, No. 1684; Edward Phillips, Theatrum Poetarum Anglicanorum, 1800 (dependent on Warton); G. Ellis, Specimens of the early English Poets, 1811, I, 416; Chalmers, Biographical Dictionary, 1814; R. Watt, Bibliotheca Britannica, 1824, I, 475 e; J. Gorton, General Biographical Dictionary, 1851; Alex. Buechner, Geschichte der englischen Poesie, 1855, I, 56, and Abriss der engl. Litteratur-geschichte, 1856, p. 10 (dependent on Warton); H. J. Rose, Biographical Dictionary, 1857; Biographie Universelle (Michaud) 1857; Nouvelle Biographie Générale, 1858; Allibone, Dictionary of English Literature, 1859; Larousse, Dictionnaire du 19e siècle, 1873; Maunder-Cates, The Biographical Treasury, 1873; Th. Cooper, Biographical Dictionary, 1873.

Also in the Catalogue of the Tanner-MSS. in the Bodleian, by Hackman, 1860, under No. 346, Hawes is given as the author, probably from the notice in the index of the Tanner-MS. 346, where Pits is quoted as the source (see Chapter II, § 1). Other writers have wisely preferred silence on the subject, considering its uncertainty; thus the Temple of Glas is not mentioned in the articles on Lydgate and Hawes in the Encyclopædia Britannica. W. D. Adams's Dictionary of English Literature valiantly attempts to be impartial, assigning it severally to either, neither or both; see articles Hawes, Lydgate, Temple of Glas.[1] The most distorted account of our poem, however, is given in Ersch and Gruber's Encyclopädie (1828), under article Hawes, where it is stated that Hawes's Temple of Glas is meant as a parody of Chaucer's Temple of Fame! Crabbs (sic) Dictionary is given as the source, where, however, the last monstrosity is not to be found.[2]

We must, however, not omit to repeat here that the Temple of Glas was hitherto not easily accessible, a circumstance which makes the repetition of such a glaring error made over and over again, for a

[1] Hazlitt also, in his Handbook (1867), seems to have been uncertain about the authorship; as he gives an account of our print W under Lydgate, I at first overlooked the fact that he had already noticed our prints C, p, w, b under Hawes.

[2] There are several dictionaries by George Crabb; a Universal Technological Dictionary, 1823; a Universal Historical Dictionary, 1825; and A Dictionary of General Knowledge, 1830 (and later). As the article in Ersch and Gruber came out in 1828, the second must be meant.

Digitized by Google

whole century and more, at least excusable. For even those who were willing enough to get their information first-hand, must often have found no other text available, except the extracts in Warton. These, as has been mentioned, were taken from the last and worst print, that by Berthelet; their language in its modernized form much resembled Hawes's, and the metre seemed to be very much the same as that of the Pastime of Pleasure, namely, to all appearance, there was often none at all.

II. The Supporters of Lydgate's claim.

But, on the other hand, there have always been scholars who rightly assigned the Temple of Glas to Lydgate. Such is the case in Speght's edition of Chaucer, 1598, fol. 394 b, col. 2, l. 16 (ed. of 1602, fol. 376 b, col. 2, l. 13), where we find The temple of Glasse in the "Catalogue of translations and Poeticall deuises . . . by Iohn Lidgate . . . whereof some are extant in Print, the residue in the custodie of him that first caused this Siege of Thebes to be added to these works of G. Chaucer" [i. e. Stowe]. Speght's testimony is thus all the more valuable as evidently going back to Stowe.

Further, John Lewis, in his Life of Caxton, 1737, p. 104, calls Lydgate the author;[1] also Th. Tanner, in his Bibliotheca Britannico-Hibernica, 1748, p. 491, ascribes a Temple of glasse to Lydgate in the long list of his works, and so does, on his authority (?), Berkenhout, in the Biographia Literaria, 1777, p. 318. Even the very same Ames, who wrought such havoc by the above-quoted passage (Typ. Ant., p. 86), calls in the self-same work, on p. 61, Lydgate the author; so does also Ritson in his Bibliographia poetica, 1802, p. 68 (No. 10 of Lydgate's works); see ib. p. 59. A fact which spoke strongly against Hawes's authorship, seems to have first been pointed out by George Mason, in an entry in his copy of a print by Wynken, quoted by Dibdin II, 305, note at the bottom, and Warton-Hazlitt III, 61, end of note; after Mason, Hallam spoke of it again in his Introduction to the Literature of Europe, 4th ed. 1854, I, 311. The fact was this, that the Temple of Glas is mentioned in the Paston Letters, as early as February 17th, 1471-72, when Hawes was pro-

[1] A still earlier writer on typography, C. Middleton, does not give, in his meagre account of the Cambridge Collection, any author's name for the Temple of Glas; he most likely knew little concerning the authors of the pieces in question. See his Dissertation concerning the Origin of Printing in England, 1735, p. 29.

Digitized by Google

bably not yet born.[1] The passage in question occurs in a letter from John Paston, Knight, to Johan Paston, Esquier, where it runs (John Fenn's edition, vol. II, p. 90, Gairdner's edition, III, 37): "Brother, I comande me to yow, and praye yow to loke uppe my temple off Glasse and send it me by the berer herof."

In the footnote to the above quotation Fenn also hesitates between Lydgate and Hawes as author; Gairdner gives Lydgate alone. Cf. also Gairdner III, 300 (Fenn II, 300), where, in the Inventory off John Paston's Books, mention is made of "a blak Boke," which contained, amongst other pieces, the Temple of Glasse. The argument against Hawes's authorship, contained in this passage from the Paston Letters, will, indeed, be rendered superfluous by older evidence adduced in section III of this chapter; nevertheless, the passage is valuable as giving further proof that, some seventy years after its composition, the Temple of Glas was still read, a fact still more strongly testified to by Caxton printing it seven or eight years later.

In more recent times there has hardly been a scholar of note who, deluded by Warton or Ames, has stuck to the impossible theory of Hawes's authorship. Thus Lydgate has been restored to his rights in the re-edition of Warton by Hazlitt (III, 61), and besides this, I may be allowed to point to a few other works, in all of which Lydgate is held to be the author:

Hallam, Introduction to the Literature of Europe, I, 311; Collier, Bibliographical Account I, 367; David Laing, Hawes's Conversyon of Swerers, etc., Preface, p. IV; J. F. Waller's Imperial Dictionary, which expressly contradicts Warton; Klein, Geschichte des Dramas XII, 691; Lowndes, ed. Bohn III, 1419; H. Morley, English Writers II, 433 note; Mrs. Browning, Book of the Poets, 1863, p. 123; H. M. Fitzgibbon, Early English Poetry, p. xxxii, and xxxvii; Skeat, Chaucer's Minor Poems, in several places; J. Churton Collins, in T. H. Ward's English Poets I, 175; Chambers's Encyclopædia, 1890, article Lydgate; Dictionary of National Biography, 1891, article Hawes.

III. Lydgate's Authorship established.

There still remains external evidence of a yet more decisive character for Lydgate's authorship. For we are not disappointed, if we look for evidence of the oldest and most authentic kind in that quarter where we should most naturally expect to find it. I mean the Manuscripts. There are, indeed, only two of all the seven MSS. which give the name of an author, namely, Fairfax 16, and Shirley's Add. MS. 16,165; but in both cases we have the good fortune to

[1] The poem is also mentioned in a list of the contents of a MS. of the Marquis of Bath, ab. 1460 A.D.—F.

Digitized by Google

know the hand that assigns the poem to our monk. In MS. F the author's name does not occur in the handwriting of the copyist of the poem itself; but the name "lidgate" is added to the respective item, in the table of contents, by the same hand that supplied the missing ll. 96 and 320 and some other corrections in F, namely, that of John Stowe (about 1560).

Further, in the second MS., we have Lydgate's name given several times in a handwriting which is even some hundred years older, namely in Shirley's. In his Add. MS. 16,165, the name of the author stands in the title (see Chapter II, § 6) as "Lidegate. Le Moygne de Bury"; in the headlines: on fol. 207 a as "daun John," on fol. 231 a as "þe Munke of Bury," on fol. 232 a as "Lidegate"; lastly on fol. 212 a the name is added to the headline, so that this latter runs as follows: "þe dreme of A lover calde þe Temple of glasse by Lydegate" (the part in italics added later). The handwriting in the two additions on fol. 207 a and 212 a differs[1] somewhat from that of the text itself; in the other passages it is undoubtedly Shirley's own. But there is yet another passage in this MS., unquestionably written by Shirley himself, which may afford still further proof for Lydgate's authorship of our poem. It is the identical passage which Skeat, Chaucer's M. P., pp. xlv and xxxiii, note 3, takes as a proof that the monk was author of the Black Knight. Shirley has added to this MS. a prologue of 104 lines in verse, written upon two leaves of parchment at the beginning, which describe the contents of the volume. The order of the pieces in the MS. is: 1. Chaucer's translation of Boethius; 2. The gospel of Nicodemus (translated by John Trevysa); 3. þe desporte of huntyng (or "maistre of the game"), by Edward, Duke of York; 4. A Complaynte of an Amorous Knight [= Black Knight]; 5. Regula sacerdotalis; 6. The Dreme of a trewe lover [= Temple of Glas]; 7. Compleint of Anelida; lastly, a number of smaller poems. These Shirley, in the above-mentioned versified prologue to his MS., enumerates in the following order: Boethius (ll. 25—34); Gospel of Nicodemus (ll. 35—44); Maistre of the game (ll. 45—61); then the Regula sacerdotalis (ll. 61—71), thus omitting No. 4 (the "black Knight"); after this he has (fol. 3 a):

"Þanne and ye wol þe wryting suwe, 72
Shul ye fynde wryten of a knyght,
Þat serued his soueraine lady bright,

[1] Also noted by Dr. Furnivall, Suppl. Par.-Texts of Ch. M. P., p. 46.

Digitized by Google

As done þees louers Amerous,
Whos lyff is offt seen parillous,
Askeþe of hem, þat haue hit vsed—
A dieux Ioenesse, I am refused—
Whos complaynt is al in balade,
Þat Daun Iohan of Bury made,
Lydegate, þe Munk cloþed in blacke—
In his makyng þer is no lacke—
And thankeþe Daun Iohan for his peyne,
Þat to plese gentyles is right feyne,
Boþe with his laboure, and his goode:
God wolde, of nobles he hade ful his hoode."[1]

The order of sequence points decidedly to the Temple of Glas (comp. l. 72 above); moreover, considering the length of the poem as given in Shirley's text (some 2000 lines, against 681 of the Black Knight), it is little likely that our poem should have been passed over. Lastly, to this "poetical" table of contents is added, at the top of the first page, a short summary, in which No. 4 is called þe dreme for lovers (Black Knight), No. 5 þe Ruyle of preestis, No. 6 þe compleynt of a lover (Temple of Glas), which latter expression is quite in accordance with l. 79 above. I do not mean, however, to deny altogether the possibility that the Black Knight may have been in Shirley's mind when he wrote the passage in question; the expression al in balade [i. e. in seven-line stanzas], in l. 79, would especially hold good for that poem, and the above lines certainly give but an inadequate idea of the Temple of Glas. Be this as it may, we have at all events Shirley's sure testimony for Lydgate's authorship, not only of the Temple of Glas, as specified above, but also for the Black Knight. For Lydgate's name has, in the latter poem also, twice (on fol. 192 a and 193 a) been added to the headline; it stands in the title, on fol. 190 a (bottom), and on fol. 200 b we have as running title: Lenvoye of daun Iohn.

To sum up: 1. Hawes cannot be the author. One is seldom able to refute an error more completely than this theory of Hawes's authorship. For first, it has been shown that Warton's advancement of this hypothesis was based on a misunderstanding of Ames. Secondly, if, in favour of Hawes, Bale's or Pits's authority be brought forward, [1] May we conclude, from ll. 83—86, that Lydgate was still living, when Shirley wrote this? Shirley died on Oct. 21, 1456, aged 90, see Stowe's Survey of London, ed. Thoms, 1876, p. 140. "John Sherley wrat in ȳ tyme of John Lydgate in his lyffe tyme," says Stowe in Add. MS. 29,729, fol. 179 a. Stopford Brooke, in his excellent little Primer, p. 55, gives 1449 (which seems to be wrong) as the date of the death of Shirley, whom he has honoured far too highly in mentioning him twice, whilst, for instance, some of the pre-Shaksperian dramatists are barely named.

Digitized by Google

our answer is that there is a MS. of the Temple of Glas, Tanner 346, which is a hundred years older than Hawes's principal work. Thirdly, if doubts should be raised respecting the age of the MS., we have the express statement of Hawes himself, who ascribes the poem to his admired master. 2. Lydgate must be the author. For, by way of external evidence, we have the witness of three reliable authorities who all call him so, namely Shirley, about 1440 or 1450, Hawes, about 1506, and Stowe, about 1560. The internal evidence is equally convincing. First, the testimony of language and metre. There are unfortunately as yet no special treatises on Lydgate's language and metre, and, indeed, to undertake such a thing would be premature, before we have some more critical editions of his works. But, after the preliminary researches in Chapters V and VI, we may say as much as that the language of our poem is quite in accordance with the more prominent peculiarities of Lydgate's. Thus there is a slight advance in the disregard of the final e beyond Chaucer: we have in our poem specimens of the confusion of -as and -ace rhymes (not however of -y and -ie rhymes, as in the Black Knight, to give an instance of one of his earlier poems); also the Teutonic words sone, mone, and don (p. p.), rhyme with each other.—The treatment of the final e in general, is altogether the same as in other recognized works of Lydgate, so far as I have been able to investigate the subject. We have also another outspoken peculiarity of Lydgate's in our poem, namely, that he rhymes words in -ere with those in -ire, as has been noted by others in more than one place. See, on this matter, Chapters V and VI.

The best account of Lydgate's metre, and the most successful in its results, seems to me to be contained in Prof. Schipper's Englische Metrik. The unmistakable characteristics of the verses of our monk exhibit themselves throughout the Temple of Glas.[1] See Chapter V.

Lydgate's style is justly denounced as being intolerably drawled-out, incompact, and full of anacolutha; and although the greater part of the Temple of Glas may, on the whole, be superior to his lengthy works, yet the Lydgatian "drivelling"[2] long-windedness is not to be mistaken in the speeches of our poem.

Ample examples have been given in the notes illustrating some

[1] I would here note that I had myself, in every respect, arrived at the same conclusions before consulting Schipper's book. I merely make note of this in order to corroborate the distinguished scholar's statements.

[2] For this expression, which so exactly hits the right nail upon the head, I am indebted to Ritson, with whom, however, I have a bone to pick by and by.

Digitized by Google

of Lydgate's favourite expressions and ideas; thus his pen quakes, when he has to "endite of wo," l. 947; thus he invokes the Furies, instead of the Muses, when he has to relate something dreadful (l. 958); the lady with hair "like gold-wire" is not wanting, and at the end, in the Envoy, he has not omitted his favourite request to "correct" his poem, if "any thing be missaid in it."

Lastly, the entire atmosphere of the poem, the framework of a vision, the allegories, the whole range of ideas, and the motifs borrowed from Chaucer, Gower, the "Roman de la Rose" etc., are essentially the same as in several of the monk's earlier works, particularly the Complaint of the Black Knight, the Flour of Curtesie, and his hitherto almost unnoticed best work, Reason and Sensuality.

CHAPTER VIII.

CHRONOLOGY OF LYDGATE'S WRITINGS.

"For myne wordes here and every parte,
I speke hem alle under correccion."—Troilus, III, 1282, 1283.

§ 1. Lydgate's Life.

THE exact dates forming the boundary-lines of Lydgate's life have never been precisely made out; nor can we affix a certain date to the greater number of his works. Still there is in his case comparatively less ground for complaint than in other instances, with regard to the scantiness of information accessible to us; for it has been at least possible to fix approximately the dates of the longer writings of Lydgate's second period, and no doubt, after a careful collection and investigation of the materials extant, many more points connected with chronological questions will be brought to light.

It is in view of assigning to the Temple of Glas its proper place amongst Lydgate's other writings, and also, I hope, of offering some help to the investigator of particular works of the monk's, that I here attempt a rough outline of his life and his most important works, in chronological order—with great mistrust in more than one point, I confess, and always "under correccioun."

We know that the monk was born at Lydgate[1] (near Newmarket),

[1] Falls of Princes, fol. 217 d:

"Borne in a village which called is Lidgate,
By olde time a famous castel toune;
In Danes time it was beat[e] doune,
Time whan saint Edmund, martir, maid, & king
Was slaine at Oxone, record of writing."

ib., 176 d: "I was borne in Lydgate,
Where Bacchus licour doth ful scarsly flete."

Æsop, Prol. 32: "Have me excused, I was born in Lydegate."

Digitized by Google

whence he derived his name. But there has been much dispute as to the year of his birth. Bale says of him (Catalogus, 1557, p. 587): "Claruit sexagenarius, anno . . . 1440."[1] Pits, "illius pro more exscriptor," makes of this (cap. 820): "(Buriæ tandem) circiter sexagenarius mortuus & sepultus est circa annum . . . . 1440", adding in brackets: "malè etenim vitam eius producit Iosephus Pamphilus vsque ad annum Domini 1482."

This censure is well-deserved by Pamphilus, who seems to confuse Lydgate with the Augustinian (or Ipswich Carmelite?) John of Bury, as has been remarked above in the footnote on page lxxvii. The exact words of Pamphilus concerning Lydgate are (Chronica ordinis fratrum sancti Augustini, p. 88): "Claruit Buriæ, vbi tandem decessit, anno. 1482." This date has also been wrongly defended in the Catalogue of the Harleian MSS., No. 2251, Article 3, on the grounds that a stanza on King Edward IV. is, in that MS., added to Lydgate's stanzas on the Lives of the English Kings. Again, Ghilini, dependent on Pits, says: "Finalmente nell' età di 60. anni, passò all' altra vita nel suo Monasterio di Sant' Edmondo, circa l'Anno 1440" (Teatro d'Huomini Letterati, II, 131), and Papadopoli, following him, has: "Decessit in patria an. MCDXL. aetat. LX" (Historia Gymnasii Patavini, II, 165). Papadopoli had evidently well mastered the first rules of arithmetic; for, from Ghilini's evidence, he has been able to make out the date of Lydgate's birth, which he is the first to state expressly as 1380. This year, however, is certainly too late. It has since been concluded from more than one reason that the monk must have been born some ten years earlier.

The facts which are of first importance to us in attempting to settle this much disputed point, are contained in the extracts from certain MSS. quoted by Tanner in his Bibliotheca Britannico-Hibernica, p. 489. The dates we gather from these extracts, are the following:

March 13th, 1388 (I suppose 1389, according to the new style): "fr[ater] Joh[annes] Lidgate monachus de Bury ord[inatus] ad omnes ordines in ecclesia de Hadham."

This entry is from the register of Robert Braybrook, Bishop of London from 1381—1404; it certainly has reference to the four minor ecclesiastical orders. The next three entries, which I have had the opportunity of examining myself, are contained in MS.

[1] In the first edition, however (1548, folio 203 a), Bale wrote: "Claruit ab incarnato Dei uerbo. 1470. sub rege Edwardo quarto."

Digitized by Google

Cotton Tib. B. ix, the register of William Cratfield, abbot of Bury St. Edmunds from 1389—1414. According to them, the young monk of Bury received letters dismissory for the office of subdeacon on [Dec. ?][1] 17th, 1389 (Cotton Tib. B. ix, fol. 35 b); for that of deacon on May 28th, 1393 (ib., fol. 69 b); for the order of priesthood on April 4th, 1397 (ib., fol. 85 b). According to a MS.-note[2] in Tyrwhitt's copy of Wayland's Falls of Princes (now in the British Museum, marked 838. m. 17), Lydgate was ordained priest by John Fordham, Bishop of Ely, on Saturday, April 7th, 1397, in the chapel of the manor at Dounham.

From these dates it has been reasoned backwards that Lydgate must have been born about 1370. So by Ward, Catalogue of the Romances in the British Museum, I, 75, and by H. Morley, English Writers, II, 421. Tame, Life of our Lady, p. III, and Th. Arnold, A Manual of English Literature, 6th ed., p. 134, conclude the date to be 1368; but this date does not agree so well with certain allusions to his age made by Lydgate himself in several of his works, allusions which will be discussed in full below.

Nothing seems to be known about his family,[3] or as to how he came from his native village of Lydgate to the Monastery of Bury St. Edmunds. Papadopoli, indeed, has: "A puero Monasticam D. Benedicti regulam professus est, primasque literas didicit in cœnobio," which is not unlikely at all; but, in Papadopoli, this statement seems merely to be a guess, and not drawn from any older reliable authority.

If I interpret the passages in Lydgate's Testament rightly, this poem would seem to warrant the conclusion that he was received into the monastery as a "child," "within 15 yeares age," although the lines in question are not very clearly put. He says that

[1] The month is wanting in the MS., owing to its being much damaged by fire. Tanner has December. The date immediately preceding in the MS. is Oct. 26th, 1389.

[2] Printed in A. Hortis, Studj sulle opere latine del Boccaccio, p. 641, note 2, not always quite correctly. It runs as follows: "Frater Iohannes Lydgate Monachus de Bury, ordinatus Presbiter per Iohannem ffordham Episcopum Eliensem in Capellâ magni Manerii de Dounham, die Sabat. 7° April. 1397." The passage professes to be transcribed from a Register of Bishop Fordham of Ely, which was in 1728 in the hands of "ffr[ancis] Blomefield de ffersfield."

[3] In his Testament (Halliwell, p. 255) he says of himself (speaking of his school-days):

> "Made my freendys ther good to spende in ydil";

and, further on, p. 256:

> "Snybbyd of my frendys such techchys for tamende,
> Made deffe ere, lyst nat to them attende."

Digitized by Google

"Durynge the tyme . . . of my yeerys greene,
Gynnyng fro childhood stretchithe up so fere,
To the yeerys accountyd ful fifteene,"

he was a naughty, mischievous boy, "loth toward scole," "straunge to spelle or reede"; then he tells us that he entered the monastery as a novice:

"Entryng this tyme into religioun,
Unto the plouhe I putte forth myn hoond,[1]
A yeer compleet made my professioun;"

but he did not like much to follow "blessed Benet's doctrine,"

"Which now remembryng in my latter age,
Tyme of my childhood, as I reherse shal,
Witheyne fifteene holdyng my passage,
Mid of a cloistre depict upon a wal
I sauhe a crucifix."

This would go very well with Temple of Glas, ll. 196, etc. I believe that Lydgate was certainly thinking of himself when he wrote those lines, and that he also was "entered in childhood into religion before he had years of discretion." Certain is that in the extracts referred to above, the dates of which range from 1388 to 1397, Lydgate is always called a "monachus de Bury."

Besides the instruction which he would thus have received during a considerable number of years in the monastery, Lydgate seems to have enjoyed the benefit of a University education. Bale says of the monk in his Catalogus, p. 586:

"Didici tamen, post perlustratas Anglorum academias, Galliam & Italiam, discendarum linguarum gratia, petijsse illum."

His statement, which I do not consider very trustworthy in itself, is, so far as Oxford is concerned, corroborated by an entry in MS. Ashmole 59, where we have, on fol. 24 b, in Shirley's handwriting, the following title to part of Lydgate's Æsop:

"Here begynneþe . a notable proverbe of Ysopus Ethiopyeñ in balad . by Daun Iohan Liedegate made in Oxenford."

Of course, it does not follow from this passage that Lydgate was then studying at Oxford, as a member of the University; still, I think, this would be the most natural interpretation.[2] According to Tame,

[1] This expression, taken from the Bible, occurs also in the Pilgrimage, fol. 296 b: "I sette myn hand vnto the plough."

[2] Is it a grateful reminiscence of Oxford, when he, in his old age, writes in the Secreta Secretorum (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 123 b):

"As the sonne shewyth in his guyse
Mong smale sterrys with his beemys bryght,
Right so in the same maneer wyse
An vniuersite shewith out his lyght,
In a kyndoom, as it shulde be of ryght"?

But see also his verses on the foundation of the town and University of Cambridge, printed in the Retrospective Review, 2nd series, vol. I, p. 498.

Digitized by Google

Lydgate would then have been attached to Gloucester Hall, where the Benedictines used to send their pupils.

After finishing his academic studies in his native country, a tradition, repeated from Bale downwards, supposes Lydgate to have travelled abroad and studied in France and Italy. That the monk was at one time at Paris, we shall see presently; but whether he was there in his youth, for the purpose of study, seems doubtful enough. His translation of Deguileville's First Pilgrimage would have afforded him an opportunity of showing off his knowledge of Paris University-life; but in the passage in question he adds hardly anything of his own to Deguileville's words. The original reads (Barthole and Petit's print, fol. 50 b):

"Car se aux escolles a paris
Auoit par quarante ans apris
Ung poure / qui mal vestu fust" . . .

Lydgate translates (Cott. Vit. C. XIII, fol. 176 a):

"Thogh a man wer neuere so wys,
And hadde lernyd at parys,
Thys thrytty yer at scole be
In that noble vnyuersyte,
And hadde ful experyence
Off euery wysdam & scyence, & koude expounen euery doute,
And wer but porely clad with-oute" . . .

It is even more doubtful whether he was ever in Italy. Papadopoli, Historia gymnasii Patavini, II, 165, has: "Joannes Ligdat (sic) unus est ex antiquissimis alumnis Patavini lycæi. Ejus in monumentis gymnasticis vix obiter semel mentio est, memoratur attamen à Ghilino, ut diuturnus hospes Patavii." I wish Papadopoli had given in full the reference he alludes to from the "monumenta gymnastica," instead of quoting Ghilini.—Or is it a mere creation of his own imagination? "Vix obiter semel" is a very suspicious expression.[1]

In one of his poems in MS. Harl. 2255 (fol. 148 a—150 a)—the genuineness of it is vouched for by the "Explicit quod Lydgate" of the MS.—Lydgate says:

"I haue been offte in dyvers londys
And in many dyvers Regiouns,
Haue eskapyd fro my foois hondys,
In Citees, Castellys, and in touns;
Among folk of sundry naciouns
Wente ay forth, and took noon hede:
I askyd no manere of proteccioun;
God was myn helpe ageyn al drede."[2]

[1] In Jacopo Facciolati's Fasti Gymnasii Patavini, Patavii 1757, I do not find Lydgate's name.

[2] Also printed by Tame, Life of our Lady, p. viii.

Digitized by Google

The first line of this stanza is quoted in Warton-Hazlitt (III, 53, note 2), and again referred to by Koeppel, Falls of Princes, p. 76. It is, however, not the first line of the whole poem, as Koeppel was led to suppose from Warton-Hazlitt, but it stands in the middle of it (MS. Harl. 2255, fol. 149 a, top). The last line, as given above, forms, with slight variations, the refrain throughout the poem, which is, in fact, an illustration of this burden. We cannot draw much in the way of a definite conclusion from these lines.

The last support which I can bring forward for the hypothesis that Lydgate was ever in Italy, is contained in the following passage from Papadopoli, Historia Gymnasii Patavini, II, 165, in which the author expresses his belief that a certain Joannes Anglus, mentioned by Salomoni, must be identical with our John Lydgate, not with Duns Scotus, as Salomoni had imagined. Papadopoli says of Lydgate:

"nec alius sit à Joanne Anglo, quem à se in antiquissimis quibusdam albis Salomonius inventum, notatumque scribit, ac vir bonus Joannem Scotum principem Scotistarum existimavit: cum nedum patria, quæ Scoto Caledonia, Anglo Anglia, & Ordo sacræ Familiæ, quæ Anglo Benedictina, Scoto Franciscana fuit, alterum ab altero discriminent, sed etiam ætas, quæ Scoto annum MCCCVIII. emortualem præstituit, natalem Anglo MCCCLXXX."

I do not know whether Papadopoli refers to Giacopo Salomoni's Agri Patavini inscriptiones sacræ et prophanæ, Patavii 1696—1708; I certainly have not been able to find the reference in this work. With regard to the question before us, everything depends upon whether this Joannes Anglus was stated by Salomoni himself, on the authority of old documents, to be a Benedictine, born in 1380. I am hardly inclined to believe it; the documents would scarcely have given the wrong date, 1380, for Lydgate's birth, which was suggested to Papadopoli by the statements of his principal authority, Ghilini. If Salomoni himself does not call this Joannes Anglus a Benedictine, born in 1380, I should then prefer to believe that his Joannes Anglus might have been some other Englishman, perhaps the distinguished Earl of Worcester, John Tiptoft (executed in 1470), who, according to Warton-Hazlitt, III, 337, note 1, occupied a professorship at Padua for some time. As I know of no further evidence which could supply us with information concerning this period of Lydgate's life, I am inclined to acquiesce in Koeppel's opinion concerning the monk's relations to Italy (Falls of Princes, p. 82), namely, that he was never in the country, and knew nothing of its literature in the lingua volgare.

Digitized by Google

Of our monk's successive advances in the priestly office we have spoken above. From 1397 to 1415 we lose sight of him and his outward life, nor do we know, with one exception, a precise and certain date for any of his writings before the Troy-Book. Bale, followed by Pits, Ghilini, Papadopoli, Fuller, Winstanley, etc., says that after returning from his travels and studies abroad Lydgate opened a school for the sons of noblemen; later writers (from Warton downwards) have made this school to be in the monastery of Bury, others (Berkenhout, copied by Burrowes's Encyclopædia) in London. However that may be, it seems to me not unlikely that, about this time, Lydgate was in London. He evidently knew London-life very well from his own experience, a fact which would be amply proved by his London Lick-penny alone.[1]

Whether Lydgate knew Chaucer personally, can, I think, neither be proved satisfactorily, nor entirely disproved. On the one hand he frequently mentions Chaucer, as the note to l. 110 will show, usually with the epithet "my maister." In the Troy-Book, 1513, fol. N, a, we read:

"And Chauncer now, alas, is nat alyue,
Me to refourme, or to be my rede,
For lacke of whom slower is my spede";

in the Life of our Lady, fol. e, b:

"For want of hym now in my grete nede,
That shold, allas, conueye and dyrecte,
And with his supporte amende and correcte
The wronge traces of my rude penne,
There as I erre and goo not lyne right;
But for that[2] he ne may me not kenne,
I can nomore" . . . (but pray for him).

Chorl and Bird is dedicated to his "maister," who, I suppose, can hardly be anybody else but Chaucer, with the following lines:

"Go, gentille quayer! and recommaunde me
Unto my maister with humble affeccioun[3];
Beseke hym lowly, of mercy and pite,
Of this rude makyng to have compassion."

But compare, on the other hand, the quotation on p. lvi, where Lydgate says he had "no guide to reduce him, when he went a-wrong," and the end of the Troy-Book, MS. Cotton Augustus A. IV, fol. 153 a:

[1] Stowe, in his Add. MS. 29729, fol. 166 a, has the entry:
"And now here foloweth an ordenaunce of a presesyon of y^e^ feste of corpus cristie made in london by danne (MS. dame) John Lydegate." See the poem in Halliwell, M. P., p. 95—103.

[2] Thus in MS. Harl. 629; Caxton has that for.

[3] Halliwell (from MS. Harl. 116) effection.

Digitized by Google

> "My maister Chaucer, þat founde ful many spot,
> Hym liste nat pinche nor gruche at euery blot,
> Nor meue hym silf to perturbe his reste,
> I haue herde telle, but seide alweie þe best."

Nor does the epithet "my maister," which Lydgate is so fond of bestowing on Chaucer, go to prove much; King James, and even Gawain Douglas, call Chaucer also their master.

Tanner adduces MS.-evidence that, in 1415, Lydgate lived at Bury, "ubi electioni Gul. Excestr. adfuit"; his statement is taken from the Register of William of Exeter, who was elected abbot of Bury St. Edmunds after the death of Cratfield in 1414. We meet again with Lydgate's name in one of the Minutes of the Privy Council, dated Feb. 21st, 1423. We read there (Proceedings of the Privy Council,[1] ed. by Sir Harris Nicolas, III, 41, taken from MS. Cotton Cleopatra F. IV, fol. 7 a) the decree that all the lands appertaining to the Priory of St. Fides of Longville are to be let to farm[2] to certain persons named by Sir Ralph Rocheford, among which a monk John Lydgate figures, who is, no doubt, our Benedictine. Compare also Sir Harris Nicolas's Preface, p. lxix.

In June 1423 Lydgate was elected Prior of Hatfield Broadoke (also called Hatfield Regis), see Tanner; and, on April 8th, 1434,[3] he received permission from "Prior Johannes"[4] to go back to Bury "propter frugem melioris vitae captandam." See again Tanner, and particularly, the above-mentioned MS.-note in Tyrwhitt's copy of Wayland's Falls of Princes, where the whole Dimissio is quoted in full from the Register of abbot Curteys (1429—1445).[5]

In the meantime, our monk must have been for some time in Paris. In MS. Harl. 7333, fol. 31 a, occurs the following heading to a poem:

[1] My attention was drawn to this, as well as to another passage (given lower down) from the Proceedings, etc., by Dr. Furnivall.

[2] ". . . . dimittantur modo ad firmam dompno Iohanni Lidgate & Iohanni de Tofte monachis. Iohanni Glastoñ & Williamo Maltoñ Cappellanis ad nominacionem prefati Radulphi Rocheford, etc. . . ."

[3] Tame, Life of our Lady, p. ix, says that Lydgate had leave to return to his monastery again in the following year, 1424, and quotes MS. Cott. Tib. B. IX (not, however, the folio). This must be one of Tame's mistakes; it seems that he misread Tanner's date MCCCCXXXIV as MCCCCXXIV.

[4] There is a gap in the list of the Priors of Hatfield Broadoke, as given in Dugdale, Monasticon Anglicanum, IV, 433, between William Gulle, elected prior in 1395 (and, it seems, mentioned again in 1413), and John Derham, who is named as being prior in 1430 and 1432. The latter must be our "Prior Johannes."

[5] This note has also been printed by A. Hortis, in his Studj sulle opere latine del Boccaccio, p. 641, note 2.

Digitized by Google

"Here begynneth A remembraunce of a pee deugre how that the kyng of Englond, Henry the sext, is truly borne heir vnto the Corone of ffraunce by lynyall Successioun. als wele on his ffader side Henry the fifth. whom god assoill as by Kateryne quene of Englond, his modir. whom god assoile. made by Lydygate Joñn the monke of Bury at Parys. by þe instaunce of my lord of Warrewyk."

This says clearly that Lydgate was in Paris, at a time not earlier than 1421, in which year Henry VI. was born. We are even able to determine the date still more exactly. The poem, besides alluding to contemporary events, mentions the king as

"Henry the sext of Age ny fyve yere reñ";

it was begun on July 28th, I suppose in 1426.[1] The poem itself says:

"I meved was . . by . . *com*maundement
Of . . My lord of Warrewyk . . . .
Beyng *pre*sent that tyme at parys,
Whañ he was thañ repaired agein
From seint Iuliañ of mavus oute of Mayñ."

"My lord of Warrewyk" is, of course, Richard de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, who was then Regent of France during the absence of the Duke of Bedford. Evidently the leaders of state-affairs wished to proclaim in every possible way that Henry was the true king of France, so the Duke of Bedford commanded Laurence Callot to compose a poetical pedigree which should serve this purpose, and the Earl of Warwick employed the pen of our monk to translate it. That the notice in the Harleian MS., which ascribes the poem to Lydgate and makes him be in France about 1426, is correct, is borne out by a passage in Lydgate's writings themselves. In the beginning of his Dance of Macabre the monk says (Tottel's edition of the Falls of Pr., fol. 220 a):

"Like thensample which that at Parise
I fonde depict ones in a wal," and again, at the end (fol. 224 d):

"And from Paris to England it sent."

Henry V. is called the conqueror of France in this poem, which would go very well with the above-given dates. Mention is also made in it, on fol. 224 a, of the death of Master John Rikil, whilom "Tregetour" of Henry V., the date of whose death is, however, unknown to me. We may further compare Miss Yonge's Cameos from [1] I should express myself with greater certainty were I sure what the "reñ" in the MS. means. An astronomical calculation based on the detailed description of the position of the principal planets, given towards the end of the poem, would no doubt settle the year precisely.

Digitized by Google

English History, II, 357, where she says that in 1424, for more than six months, the Dance of Death was acted out by living performers in Paris.

To strengthen this argument, we might also adduce here another passage taken from the prologue to Lydgate's translation of Deguileville's First Pilgrimage (MS. Cotton Vit. C. XIII, fol. 4 a):

"And of the tyme playnly & of the date,
Whan I be-gan thys book to translate,
Yt was . . . [1426] . . . .
My lord that tyme beyng at Parys,
Wych gaff me charge, by hys dyscrete avys,
As I seyde erst, to sette myn entent
Vp-on thys book to be dyllygent,
And to be-gynne vp-on thys labour."

This passage, of course, only says that Lord Salisbury was at Paris in 1426; but it may indeed have been that Lord Salisbury personally gave the monk the commission

"Thys seyde book in englysah for to make,"

as the date 1426 (expressed in a very circumlocutory way) tallies exactly with what has been said above.

Still this sojourn at Paris, and Lydgate's priorate at Hatfield Regis, give rise to several questions which I am not able to solve. When did Lydgate return from Paris, and where was he after his return? One would think that he wrote his Life of St. Edmund (in 1433; see below) at Bury, or at least saw King Henry VI. there; but his "Dimissio" from Hatfield is dated April 8th, 1434. What induced or compelled him to go to Paris? When did he give up his office of Prior of Hatfield Regis? I suppose when he went to Paris; most likely Derham was then chosen in his stead.

From 1434 until his death, Lydgate seems to have lived again at Bury St. Edmunds, where he certainly was buried (cf. Bale and Archæologia, IV, 131). The precise date of his death has never been made out. The year 1482 we have already discarded as being quite impossible. Nor is there any certain fact warranting the supposition that Lydgate did not die before the accession of Edward IV. in 1461. In favour of this theory it has been adduced (for instance in the Catalogue of the Harleian MSS., under No. 2251, art. 3) that among Lydgate's stanzas on the kings of England occurs one on Edward IV. Halliwell already (Minor Poems, p. vi) has pointed out this argument to be a delusion; in the older copies such a stanza does not appear. I mention only the one in MS. Ashmole 59, in which case we know very well why Henry VI. is the last king mentioned. For this copy is written by Shirley, who died himself in 1456. Nevertheless, the verses existed then already. So the stanza on Edward is evidently spurious, a fact further certified by its being written in the 8-line stanza, whilst the others are all in the 7-line stanza (MS. Harl. 2251, fol. 4 a).[1] By this mode of argumentation we might easily prove that Lydgate became not only 112 years old, but even some 180; for in MS. Royal 18 D. II (and, I think, in the print by Wynken de Worde), a stanza on Henry VIII. is added. In this recension the earlier stanzas also deviate greatly from the original text, although we can clearly see that they have been built upon Lydgate's groundwork.

Digitized by Google

Very much the same holds good with respect to the poem "Ab inimicis nostris" . . ., quoted by Warton-Hazlitt, III, 53, note 1, for the same purpose. The greater part of the poem may be genuine, the last stanza in MS. Harl. 2251, fol. 11 a, recommending King Edward IV. and his mother to God, is certainly not so. The refrain in this stanza differs also slightly from that employed in the preceding ones.

A proof that Lydgate was alive in 1446, is adduced by Warton-Hazlitt, III, 53, note 1. We there find the assertion that Lydgate in his poem Philomela mentions the death of Henry Lord Warwick, "who died in 1446," and are referred to MS. Harl. 2251, fol. 255. Now it is true that at this place in the MS. in question (new pagination, fol. 229 a) there is a poem by Lydgate, entitled (by Stowe) "A sayenge of the nyghtyngale,"[2] but I cannot find the reference to Henry of Warwick. In MS. Cotton Caligula A. II (fol. 59 a—64 a), however, is also a poem "The nightyngale," and this contains, on fol. 63 a, the following stanza:

> "A myghty prince, lusty, yonge & fiers,
> Amonge the peple sore lamented ys:
> The Duc of Warwyk—entryng the oure of tierce,
> Deth toke hym to—whom mony sore shall mysse:
> All-myghty Ihesu, receyue his soule to blisse.
> Both hye & lowe, thenk well that ye shall henne:
> Deth wyll you trise, ye wot not, how ne whenne."[3]

This stanza was, of course, written after the death of Henry of Warwick—brother-in-law of the kingmaker—which, however, accord-

[1] The Catalogue of the Harleian MSS. itself says (No. 2251, article 3) that the stanza relating to K. Henry VI. looks as if it were written in that king's prosperity.

[2] This poem occurs also in Stowe's MS. Add. 29729, fol. 161 a.

[3] This latter poem has 57 stanzas (in rhyme royal); Lydgate's poem (MS. Harl. 2251, fol. 229 a—234 b, and Add. 29729, fol. 161) has 54 stanzas. It is unfinished; the Harl. MS. has the colophon:

> "Of this Balade Dan Johñ Lydgate made nomore."

Digitized by Google

ing to the Nouvelle Biographie générale, took place on June 11th, 1445, not in 1446. But it seems that these two poems are by different authors; their subject only is the same, namely, an allegorizing interpretation of the nightingale's song. Both poems are perhaps independent treatments of John of Hoveden's Philomela (see Warton-Hazlitt, II, 33 top, and II, 93 note), which I cannot investigate at present.

Again, there is an Epitaphium ducis Gloucestrie (MS. Harl. 2251, fol. 7 a to 8 b), attributed to Lydgate by Ritson, No. 139, and in Warton-Hazlitt, III, 50, note 8. This would bring us down to 1447. But it must first be proved that the poem is genuine. I am inclined to believe that the internal evidence is against its being so; of external evidence I am ignorant: Ritson's opinion as to the authorship of the poem is, of course, worthless.

But we have fortunately two or three certain dates for these latter years of Lydgate's life. The first of them is already referred to in Warton (ed. Hazlitt III, 54, note 1); it is contained in a notice of Stowe's, in his Annals of England, 1615, p. 385, which states that Lydgate made the verses for the pageants exhibited at Queen Margaret's entry into London. This was in 1445. Further, Lydgate is mentioned as living by Bokenam, in his Legend of St. Elizabeth, with the following words (13, 1075):

> "For, þow I had kunnyng for to ryme,
> And eek to endyten as copyously,
> As had Gower & Chauncers in þer tyme,
> Or as now hath þe munk of Bery,
> Joon Lytgate, yet cowd not I . . . ."

Bokenam's Legends were written between 1443 and 1447; that of Elizabeth appears to have been the last in order of time, and was, according to Horstmann's Introduction, p. viii (at the top), written in 1446.

On viewing the above facts, it however becomes clear to us that we reach the last certain date connected with Lydgate's life by means of a document published by Professor Zupitza in Anglia, III, 532. This is a receipt signed by John Baret for a sum of £3 16*s*. 8*d*. received by him for himself and for our monk, as a half-yearly instalment of a pension granted to them jointly. That such a pension was given[1] to [1] Perhaps in compliance with his request to Duke Humphrey at the end of the Falls of Princes (finished about 1438, or 1439?), fol. 217 b:

> "Trusting ageynward, your liberal largesse
> Of thys quotidian shall releuen me . . .
> [Hope] Sayd, ye, my lord, should haue compassion,
> Of royal pitye support me in mine age."

Digitized by Google

Lydgate and John Baret had already been known from the Proceedings[1] of the Privy Council, 1835 (ed. Sir Harris Nicolas), V, 156, from which we gather that there were at first some formal difficulties as to the payment (cf. also Sir H. Nicolas's Introduction, p. clvii). The entry in the Proceedings, taken from MS. Add. 4609, art. 27 (fol. 64), is dated Nov. 14th, 1441, the document published by Zupitza, Oct. 2nd, 1446. So far we can follow our monk, the latter being the latest certain date which we have concerning Lydgate's life. We may suppose that he died soon after this; several of the MSS. of the Secreta Secretorum, his last work, mention his death. In whatever year he may have died, certain it is that, for his literary fame with posterity, he lived some thirty or thirty-five years too long. Had he died before 1412, or at least written no more, the epithet of a poet—cum grano salis, of course—might have been given him less hesitatingly by our generation.

I have already indicated above that we know little of Lydgate's private life,[2] and nothing of his family. They were, I suppose, village-folk, and the boy most likely attracted the notice of the neighbouring monastery by his natural gifts. Considering that he passed the greater part of his life in the monastery, and moreover received frequent commissions for literary work from the highest personages in the land, it seems rather strange that we hear him so often complain of his straitened circumstances and the emptiness of his purse. We should have supposed that many of Lydgate's complaints on this score were only humoristic; for instance, his frequent hints that an occasional glass of Bacchus' finest gift would be a most desirable incentive to spur on a poet's flagging imagination. Some such passages are:

Falls of Princes, fol. 176 d: "I was borne in Lydgate,
Where Bacchus licour doth ful scarsly flete,
My drie soule for to dewe and wete."

Ib., fol. 90 c, the monk tells us that poets should

"eschew all ydlenes,
Walke by riuers and welles christalline,
To hie mountaines a-morow ther cours dresse,
The mist defied whan Phebus first doth shine,"

[1] See supra, p. xcii, note 1.

[2] Those who care to know it may be informed that our monk wore spectacles:
"Myne yien misted and darked by spectacle" (Falls of Princes, fol. 217 a).
It was, I suppose, in imitation of his brother-poet that Bokenam also took to spectacles; cp. his Legend of Margarete (1,656):
... "myn handys gynne to feynte,
My wyt to dullyn, and myn eyne bleynte
Shuld be, ner helpe of a spectacle."

Digitized by Google

and, especially,

"Drinke wine among to quick(en) their diligence."

Ib., fol. 217 a, he speaks of a "thrustlew axesse" as "cause of his langour," because "of Bachus seared were the vines," and complains of the "ebbes of constrained indigence," and that there is in him

"None egal peyse: heart heauy and purs light."

Of his life in the monastery, he says in his Testament (Halliwell, p. 258):

"I savouryd mor in good wyn that was cleer
And every hour my passage for to dresse,
As I seide erst, to ryot or excesse."

The monk seems to have been of a kindred spirit to Heraclius, of whom he says (Falls of Princes, fol. 200 a):

"And therwithall he had a froward lust
Euer to drinke, and euer he was athurst."

As we have said, we should be inclined to look at this entirely from the humoristic side, although we might possibly find in it grounds for the suspicion that our monk belonged to the confraternity of "bibuli," in which the thirstier souls of the monastery may have been united in Lydgate's time as in the days of grand old Abbot Samson.[1]

There is further Lydgate's "Litera ad ducem Gloucestrie pro oportunitate pecunie in tempore translacionis Bochasii" (printed in Halliwell, p. 49), in which he asks the Duke

"To se thentent of this litel bille,"

in which "nichil habet is cause of the compleynt." This again might be interpreted, from its humoristic tone, as a mere imitation—playful or pedantic, however we choose to call it—of Chaucer's Compleint to his Purse. That the literal interpretation is, however, the right one, is confirmed by a passage in the Falls of Princes (fol. 67 d), in which Lydgate thanks the Duke for his liberality:

"My lordes fredom and bounteous largesse
Into mine heart brought in suche gladnes,
That through releuyng of his benigne grace
False indigence list me nomore manace;"

further, by the wording of his "Dimissio" from Hatfield Broad-oak,

[1] See Jocelyn de Brakelond and Carlyle's Past and Present. With respect to Lydgate's time compare a passage in Dr. Logeman's Introduction to his edition of the Rule of S. Benet, p. xvii: "About the year 1421 we find that degeneration had again set in, and that a reform was contemplated. At a meeting in Westminster Abbey between King Henry V and the Abbots and prelates of the Order of Black Monks, more than 360 in number, a reform was decided upon."

Digitized by Google

which was granted him "propter frugem melioris vitae captandam" (see above); also by his petition to the king for the confirmation of a grant, in which he calls himself "youre pouere and perpetuell Oratour John Lydgate" (see above, p. xcvii), and lastly by two passages from Shirley, namely the one given above on page lxxxiii (last line), and the following one from Addit. MS. 29729, fol. 178 a (copied by Stowe from Shirley):

> "Yet for all his much konnynge,
> Which were gret tresore to a kynge—
> I meane this Lidgate, munke daune (MS. dame) Iohn—
> His nobles bene spent, I leue ychon,
> And eke his shylinges nyghe by;
> His thred-bare coule woll not ly.
> Ellas! ye lordes, why nill ye se,
> And reward his pouerte?"

These lines betray, however, a reminiscence of the Prologue of the Story of Thebes, with its humoristic description of the monk's shabby appearance, which makes it questionable whether Shirley had more resources to draw from than the passage alluded to and his own poetical inspiration.

§ 2. Chronological sequence of Lydgate's writings.

Lydgate's writings seem naturally to group themselves into two periods, that of his early works up to 1412, and that of his long translations—of the Stories of Troy, of Thebes, and the Falls of Princes, together with Deguileville's First Pilgrimage—as well as the legends and minor poems of his old age, a period lasting from 1412 to his death.

We have already spoken of Lydgate's sojourn at Oxford, which was most likely devoted to study in that University. It seems that when there he wrote his Æsop, which gives a very drawled-out version of some six or seven Æsopian fables, which have been printed by Sauerstein in Anglia IX, p. 1, etc., and again by Zupitza, in the Archiv, vol. 85, p. 1, etc., from a different MS., with important additions, and corrections of Sauerstein's mistakes. The date of this Æsop would then be about 1387; but there still appears to me to be room for some doubt in the matter.

The first certain date for any of Lydgate's writings has been made known to us by Miss Toulmin Smith; it is the date for the prose-work, The Serpent of Division, or, The Damage and Destruction in Realms. According to vol. 35 of Lord Calthorpe's Yelverton MSS.,

Digitized by Google

this tract was composed by Lydgate in 1400 (December?); see Miss Toulmin Smith's edition of Gorboduc, p. xx, etc.

A poem which, I think, we must not place later than 1400, is Chorl and Bird. The Envoy of it is directed "Unto my maister with humble affeccioun," praying him to correct and amend it. As far as I am aware, Lydgate calls no one his master, except Chaucer, and I think this envoy can be addressed to none other than him. Chaucer, of course, must have been still living then, so that the latest date we can assign to it would be 1400.

Certainly the influence of Chaucer, whom he may have known personally, is most perceptible in Lydgate during this period, to which we may assign those works most clearly impregnated with the ideas of his great master, dimmed and diluted as they may be after having gone through the alembic of Lydgate's mind. To this category belong the Flour of Curtesie, the Black Knight, the Temple of Glas, as well as Reason and Sensuality, the chef-d'œuvre of this period, as it is of all Lydgate's writings. It is a great pity that we have not one certain date for any poetical work of this period, which more than any other does credit to Lydgate's poetical faculties. The Flour of Curtesie, however, must have been written after Chaucer's death, as its Envoy proves, and the Temple of Glas not far from 1400, as I hope to show is probable in § 3 of this chapter. The Black Knight is a palpable imitation of the Book of the Duchesse, and may come before the Temple of Glas, as this last-named poem is evidently a more ambitious effort, in which Lydgate stands, it seems, for the first time, upon his own feet, the invention of the whole work originating entirely with him. Thus I believe that the three works, the Flour of Curtesie, the Black Knight, and the Temple of Glas were written in this sequence, most likely between 1400 and 1403.

I have little doubt that between this time and the translation of the Troy-Book, Reason and Sensuality was written, as well as the Life of our Lady. But as there are no certain dates recorded for these comprehensive works, and our reasons for placing them here, will become all the more evident later on, we will now, by a considerable jump, proceed at once to the lengthy works of the second period, which we may date from the year 1412.

There is, first of all, the Troy-Book. We have fortunately a certain knowledge of the approximate dates[1] for this work, which

[1] A chronological discussion of the three best-known works of Lydgate—best-known by name only, of course—forms the introduction to Koeppel's treatise

Digitized by Google

heads the series of those long, spun-out and entirely unoriginal writings which have so justly discredited Lydgate's Muse. From the Prologue to that work we easily gather that Lydgate must have begun it in October 1412. With the same preciseness we know that it was finished in 1420. For we have in Pynson's Troy-Book (1513), sign. $Dd_2 d$:

> "And tyme complet of this translacyon . . . .
> Was a thousande and foure hondred yere,
> And twenty nere—I knowe it out of drede . . .
> The eyghte yere, by computacyon,
> Suynge after the Coronacyon
> Of hym . . . . . Herry the fyfthe,"

the reading of MS. Cotton Aug. A. IV, fol. 152 b, agreeing word for word with this. To Koeppel, only the modernization of the Troy-Book, printed in 1614 by Th. Purfoot, was available. In this the passage is different, and points to 1421 as the date of the conclusion of the poem. Perhaps the expression "twenty nere" warrants the inference that the Troy-Book was finished between March 21st and March 25th, 1420 (new style). Henry V's eighth year lasted from March 21st, 1420, until March 21st, 1421; so the date must be after March 21st, 1420 (old style, 1419), and if we have to interpret "nere" as meaning "nearly," "not quite," it must be before March 25th, 1420: the days from March 21—25, 1419 (new style, 1420), lie in the eighth year of Henry V, and are "near" the year 1420, from Lydgate's standpoint. I believe, therefore, that the Troy-Book was begun in the autumn of 1412, and finished in the spring of 1420.

The work we have next to discuss is the English prose-translation of Deguileville's Second Pilgrimage, i. e. of the Soul, printed by Caxton in 1483. We know—for instance, from Caxton's colophon and MS. Egerton 615—that this translation was made in 1413, but the great question is whether it was done by Lydgate. It has several times been alleged, as a proof for Lydgate's authorship, that Chapter XXXIV of the Life of our Lady, and Chapter XXXIV of the Pilgrimage are one and the same. It is curious to compare the wording of these assertions. We read in the Catalogus Bibliothecæ Harleianæ, 1744, III, 126: "This is remarkable, that the 34th Chapter of that Poet's [Lydgate's] Life of the Virgin Mary is a Digression in Praise of Chaucer . . . and on the sources of the Story of Thebes. His dating of the Troy-Book and the Story of Thebes are certainly in the main successful; with respect to the Falls of Princes I shall be obliged to somewhat modify his results. It will be seen that the conclusions I have arrived at concerning these works tally more closely with those obtained by Ward, Catalogue of the Romances, I, 75.

Digitized by Google

that the 34th Chapter of the Second Book of this Pilgremage should be the same Poem." There is, indeed, a panegyric on Chaucer in the 34th Chapter of the Life of our Lady, as is very well known; but the second part of the above statement is not correct. There is no 34th Chapter at all in the second book of Caxton's print of the Pilgrimage, as the numbers of the chapters go on without a break through the first two books (1—39 being contained in the first book, 40—65 in the second). Chapter XXXIV of the first book contains the "Charter of Mercy" for the pilgrim, but no eulogy on Chaucer. Again, Miss Cust, in The Booke of the Pylgremage of the Sowle translated from De Guileville, 1859, p. iv, says: 'The translator, or at least the author of the "additions," was in all probability Lydgate; for the 34th chapter of Lydgate's metrical "Life of the Virgin Mary" is literally repeated in the 34th chapter of this translation of "The Charter of Mercy."' Very much the same thing is stated in Warton-Hazlitt III, 67. It is quite true that the 34th, or rather 35th, Chapter of the Pilgrimage (Caxton's numbering is not quite correct) contains the Charter of Mercy, but not so the 34th Chapter of the Life of our Lady. The part of the Life of our Lady, which somewhat recalls this Charter of Mercy in the Pilgrimage, is Chapters XI—XIV, which contain the dispute between "Mercy, Pees, Rightwysnes and Trouthe, for the redempcion of mankynde"; but there again, I cannot find any verbal coincidences. It may be that some of the stanzas, interspersed between the prose of the Pilgrimage, can be identified with others in the Life of our Lady; but I must add, that a comparison of the French and English texts of the Pilgrimage shows the English stanzas to be in all cases renderings of the French original.[1]

In perusing this translation of the Second Pilgrimage, nothing in the way of internal evidence has struck me which points decidedly to Lydgate as the author, either in the prose or even in the stanzas, and yet Lydgate is, as a rule, easily enough detected. Further, it seems to me highly improbable that Lydgate, just after having begun the translation of the Troy-Book, at the command of [1] Even if a more careful investigation than I am at present able to carry out, should after all identify some of the stanzas in the two works, this would not necessarily be a proof of Lydgate's authorship; the case would then be exactly parallel to the intended insertion of Chaucer's A B C in Lydgate's verse-translation of the First Pilgrimage. For later on I hope to make it probable that the Life of our Lady was written before 1413, and could thus have been made use of by anybody.

Digitized by Google

Prince Henry—in 1413, King Henry V.—should only a few months later have started a translation of another work of by no means contemptible dimensions (I should think, some 10,000 lines in the original). Moreover, in his Prologue to the verse-translation of the First Pilgrimage (that of Man), begun by him in 1426, he would scarcely have omitted some reference to his former rendering of Deguileville's Second Pilgrimage. I am, at present, aware of only one passage which could possibly be construed into a proof that Lydgate was the author of this translation of the Second Pilgrimage in prose. I mean the following lines from Stowe's MS. Add. 29729, fol. 178 a, which have been copied by Stowe from one of Shirley's "poetical" lists of the contents of one of his MSS.:

> "First ye humayne pilgrymage,
> Sayd all by proose in fayre langage:
> And many a roundell and balade,
> Which ye munke of bury hath made."

But then this seems to refer to Shirley's Sion College MS. Archives 2. 23, which contains a prose-rendering of the First Pilgrimage, called in one of the headlines of the MS., "þe pilgrymage humayne."[1] I suppose this prose-translation in the Sion College MS. is essentially the same as the one published by W. Aldis Wright for the Roxburghe Club in 1869, from MS. Ff. 5. 30 in the University Library, Cambridge. The title "humayne pilgrymage," if taken literally, only applies to the First Pilgrimage, the "pèlerinage de la vie humaine," which Lydgate later on translated in verse. No one would suppose Lydgate to have translated the same work twice over, first in prose, then in verse, all the less as no decided authority can be adduced for such a supposition. Although I have not been able to examine the Sion College MS. personally, yet I should think that the last line from Shirley given above can only mean that Lydgate was the author of "many a roundell and balade" in this MS., but not so of the "humayne pilgrymage."

Thus I believe that Lydgate certainly translated Deguileville's First Pilgrimage in verse, in 1426, etc., but he neither made the prose-translation of the Second Pilgrimage in 1413, nor (as scarcely any one will assume) translated the First Pilgrimage in prose.

Lydgate's next large work, after the Troy-Book, is the Story of Thebes. The monk was "nie fiftie yere of age" when he wrote the [1] See Dr. Furnivall's Odd Texts, pp. 65 and 78; compare also his Trial-Forewords, p. 13.

Digitized by Google

prologue to this work, which opens with a description of spring. We may therefore fairly assume that Lydgate began the work in the spring of 1420, after having finished the Troy-Book; the expression, "Mid of April,"[1] in the Prologue to the Story of Thebes, would tally very well with the end-date for the Troy-Book. Taking one consideration with another, it seems to me most likely that the Story of Thebes was begun in April 1420. For this would also agree best with the "nie fiftie yere of age" of the Prologue; if Lydgate was born in 1371—we scarcely can make it later—he was in 1420 exactly 49 years old. If he was very "near fiftie," he might have been born early in 1371, or better still for our chronology, towards the end of 1370. As regards the end-date for the Story of Thebes, Koeppel rightly points out that Lydgate would not have omitted in his Epilogue to lament the death of Henry V., after the 31st August 1422, on which day that monarch died. At all events, we cannot be very far wrong if we say that the Story of Thebes was written between 1420 and 1422.

It would seem also that Guy of Warwick belongs to this time; Prof. Zupitza has conjectured its date to be 1420. Perhaps it was written shortly after the Story of Thebes, when the monk appears to have had more leisure after the completion of his two large translations.

With respect to the Troy-Book and the Story of Thebes, I agree in the main with Dr. Koeppel, as to the dating of them; making only the slight change of 1421 to 1420, which change is warranted by texts of the Troy-Book of better authority than the one which was accessible to Koeppel. But I can no longer share his opinion as to the date of the Falls of Princes. On the strength of two passages in that work, Koeppel came to the conclusion that it must have been written from 1424 to about 1433. Now we shall presently show that, in 1426, Lydgate undertook the translation of Deguileville's First Pilgrimage for the Earl of Salisbury. This work has more than 20,000 lines, and thus it would seem unlikely that the Falls of Princes, being done at the command of the Regent of England and uncle of the king, should be broken off for an indefinite time for another big undertaking. Still, we should nevertheless be forced to assume that such was the case, if the date 1424 could be inferred unmistakably

[1] Compare, however, Wülcker, in Altenglisches Lesebuch II, 270, who thinks that this statement as to the time is simply made by Lydgate in accordance with the beginning of the Canterbury Tales.

Digitized by Google

from Lydgate's own words in the Prologue to the Falls of Princes. We should then assume that Lydgate, after having written the two first books of the Falls of Princes from 1424—1426, wrote, in the course of the next years, the translation of the Pilgrimage, and then returned to his former and much duller work. Thus his deep sighs in the Prologue to the 3rd book would be all the more understandable:

> "Thus my self remembryng on this boke,
> It to translate how I had vndertake,
> Full pale of chere, astonyed in my loke,
> Mine hand gan tremble, my penne I felt[e] quake . . .
> I stode chekmate for feare whan I gan see,
> In my way how litle I had runne" (F. Pr. fol. 67 d).

Indeed, there was reason for "trembling and standing checkmate:" 11,627 lines, and only two out of nine books done! Surely, his breast must be girt with "robur et æs triplex" who could be impervious to all feelings of pity for our sorely-tried monk.

But, as I have said, the Falls of Princes was not begun in 1424. The passage adduced by Koeppel for this conclusion is wrongly interpreted (see also Ward, Catalogue I, 75, and Th. Arnold, A Manual of English Literature, 6th ed., p. 137, note). The lines in question, from the Prologue to the Falls of Princes, fol. A_3 a (Koeppel, Story of Thebes, p. 14), are as follows (the punctuation is mine):

> "Eke in this land, I dare affirme a thing,
> There is a prince, ful mighty of puissaunce:
> A kinges sonne, & vnkle to the king—
> Henry the sixth, which now is in fraunce—
> And is lieftenant & hath the gouernaunce
> Of our Britayn . . . . . .
> Duke of gloucester men this prince cal."

The relative sentence, "which now is in fraunce," must certainly refer to Henry VI., an assumption which at once makes everything clear. Henry VI. was in France from April 1430 to the end of 1431; it will tally best with the other evidence to assume that the Prologue to the Falls of Princes was written in 1430.

But, before his Falls of Princes, Lydgate made another lengthy translation for a famous English nobleman. As I have already said, the Englishing of Deguileville's Pèlerinage de la vie humaine, in four-beat couplets, was undertaken by him, in 1426, for Thomas de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury. I should think that the monk finished it between the years 1426 and 1430, at his average rate of producing 4000 or 5000 lines a year.[1] In my opinion, not the slightest doubt

[1] The Earl of Salisbury, as is well known, had fallen in the meantime, being shot in the siege of Orleans. Lydgate, however, does not allude to the event remains as to its genuineness; the Prologue (in heroic couplets) is thoroughly Lydgatian; there is the allusion to his master Chaucer (fol. 256 b), and to the niggardliness of "Jove's butler Ganymede" to our monk (fol. 4 b); we have further the authority of Speght (see No. 3 of the Lydgate-list in the Chaucer-edition of 1598, fol. 394 a), and thus also, I think, indirectly, of Stowe, who supplied many missing headings in the MS. Cotton Vit. C. XIII. The language,[1] the manner of translating, &c., are entirely those of Lydgate.

Digitized by Google

The next work to which we can assign a certain date is the short Legend of St. Margaret. According to the Durham MS., this little work was written "A° VIII° h[enrici] VI,"[2] i. e. between Aug. 31st (on which day Henry V. died in 1422), 1429, and August 31st, 1430. It evidently stands between the Pilgrimage of Man and the Falls of Princes.

The Prologue to this latter work, as has already been pointed out, must have been written in 1430 or 1431. The monk seems first to have finished Books 1 and 2, after which a break of a few months must have occurred. For in 1433 Lydgate certainly wrote the Legend of St. Edmund and Fremund. He says himself in that poem that Abbot William [Curteys] commanded him to write the life of the patron-saint of his monastery during the visit of King Henry VI. to the shrine and convent of St. Edmund (I. 187, &c.). This visit lasted from Christmas 1432 to Easter 1433. Lydgate's own words as to his beginning the poem are not quite clear: from l. 134, &c., in the Prologue, it might appear that he began the poem at Christmas (1432); but lines 151, &c., of the Prologue were clearly written after the king's departure. There can be no doubt however that the main part of the Legend was written in 1433. In this case we need not wonder that the monk stopped short in his translation of the Falls of Princes for Duke Humphrey; for Edmund was written for the king himself. Lydgate brought great zeal to bear on his treatment of this Legend, and the work is by no means his worst. For the last time we get a glimpse of something like poetry in the

in the course of this work; but we have a reference to the Earl's death in his Minor Poems, Halliwell, p. 126.

[1] Note particularly the not unfrequent use of the word "chaumpartie," used in a sense which seems to have originated in Lydgate's misunderstanding of a line in Chaucer. See note to l. 1164. Other favourite expressions of Lydgate's are of frequent occurrence in the Pilgrimage, as the notes will to some extent show.

[2] See the edition of this Legend in Horstmann's Altenglische Legenden, Neue Folge, p. 446.

Digitized by Google

now aging monk, when it devolved upon him to shed all possible lustre upon his glorious martyr-king. For in true piety, which comes straight from the heart, there always lies a touch of poetry.

After this labour of love, our poor monk went on—amid the deep sighs and groans described above—with his Tragedies of Iohn Bochas on the Falls of Princes. "Tragedies" indeed, inspiring the Aristotelian terror and pity in no common degree: terror by their bulk, and pity for their author—and ourselves into the bargain, when we feel bound to wade through them. This time the monk went right through to the bitter end. In the Prologue to the 8th book,[1] Lydgate complains of his great age, which is "more than three-score years," and of his trembling joints. We may suppose that this passage was written about 1436, at which time Lydgate was sixty-five years old. I should think that the monk finished this dreary compilation in 1438 or 1439, and I readily believe that he said a very heartfelt "Deo gratias" after it. He need not in his next work have expressly drawn our attention to the fact that his wit was irretrievably "fordulled."

In 1439, abbot Whethamstede of St. Albans wished to see the patron-saint of his monastery and protomartyr of England glorified in the same way as St. Edmund had been. Lydgate was again chosen to carry out this work, and he thus wrote a Life of Albon and Amphabel, on a similar plan to the Life of St. Edmund, but, as may be easily understood, inferior to it in every respect.

After 1439 we hear little of any poetical efforts of our monk. Still his fame had not died before him; for in one of his last years, 1445, he was called upon to write the verses for some pageants exhibited on Queen Margaret's entry into London. About the same time he was engaged in commemorating in verse certain miracles, wrought by St. Edmund in 1441, and again in 1444, the which verses are printed by Horstmann at the end of his edition of Lydgate's St. Edmund (Altenglische Legenden, Neue Folge, p. 440, &c.). We may also suppose that Lydgate's Testament belongs to this time. We know with certainty that he died when in course of writing the

[1] Ward, Catalogue of the Romances, I, 75, says that this passage occurs in the contemporary MS. Harley 1766, on folio 184, in the middle of the 6th book. This is quite correct; but the passage stands in reality in the same place as in Tottel's print, the numbering of the books in the Harl. MS. being in great confusion. It counts only eight books, whereas Boccaccio's work has nine; and from the very passage in question, as it stands in Tottel as well as in the Harleian MS., we gather that this Prologue was to be followed immediately by "two books."

Digitized by Google

Secreta Secretorum, which was finished by Bennet Burgh. Lydgate's part ends with the line—

"Deth al consumyth, whych may nat be denyed," which may have been the last verse that came from the monk's pen. Immediately after it the MSS. have the rubric: "Here deyed this translatour and nobyl poete / And the yonge folwere gan his prologe on this wyse" (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 131 a).

We must now return to certain works of Lydgate's, the classification of which we postponed until we should find ourselves on firmer ground. We will first consider the Life of our Lady. I have little doubt that this was the last important work of Lydgate's first period, before he began the translation of the Troy-Book in 1412. For we know that it was undertaken at the command of Henry V. Now we have seen that Lydgate, from 1412—1422, was occupied with the Troy-Book and the Story of Thebes. Therefore, it seems most natural that the Life of our Lady should have been written before these works. Moreover, we have an astronomical datum in the work. On folio i, b, we hear that our monk made a certain prayer when "Lucina was passed late from Phebus," and the statement seems to refer to the first of January. There was a new moon, in 1410, on the 26th of December (see infra, p. cxiv), which agrees very well with this statement. I should think that the Life of our Lady was written about 1409—1411. The poem, with its comparative freshness—at least in some parts—still belongs to Lydgate's better works.

For Reason and Sensuality I know of no external evidence which would warrant a certain date for the year of its composition. The work is of considerable length (about 7400 four-beat lines), and there remain only three periods in which Lydgate could possibly have found time to write it, namely, 1422—1426, 1439—1445, and the time immediately before 1409. I believe that 1422—1426, and still more 1439—1445, are quite impossible dates; the monk was much too "fordulled" at that time, and had sunk from what was, at any rate, some approach to a poet, to a mere rhymester and unoriginal translator. He can only, I believe, have written the best production of his life in his prime, and I consider the Flour of Curtesie, the Black Knight, the Temple of Glas, as works which lead up to the only one of Lydgate's poems which we can read with real interest and enjoyment. Thus we are, perhaps, not far wrong in believing that Reason and Sensuality was written between 1406 and 1408.

Digitized by Google

Of the monk's larger works, Horse, goose, and sheep, De duobus Mercatoribus, the Assembly of Gods, and the Court of Sapience remain. With respect to the chronology of these I feel extremely doubtful. The least thing which I should feel it incumbent upon me to do before venturing on any definite opinion as to their dates, would be to read them again carefully, which I have at present no opportunity of doing. The first of these poems has the approximate date, 1470, in the N. E. Dictionary (under bouge), which, of course, is absolutely impossible. Lydgate cannot have written it after his death. Of the Assembly of Gods, otherwise called Assemble de dyeus, or Banquet of Gods, we have a late MS., Royal 18 D II; and the poem was printed by Wynken, Pynson, and Redman (it would seem, altogether five times; see Hazlitt, Handbook, p. 358). The MS. is later than Wynken's first print;[1] its text follows Wynken de Worde's print (C. 13. a. 21 in the British Museum) very closely; indeed, it seems to be a copy of it. Prefixed to the poem itself we find in the prints the Interpretation of the names of gods and goddesses, enumerating the principal heathen deities, and also indicating their respective spheres of action (for instance, Pluto = God of helle, Morpleus (sic) = Shewer of dremes, &c.). This Interpretation has often been mistaken for a separate work, which it is not; it seems only to be Wynken's addition to make the poem more easily understood by those of his readers who were less versed than he in classic mythology. In the MS. it does not appear. The metre of the prints and the MS. is exceedingly irregular, much more so than in any other poem of Lydgate's; but as the lines on the Kings of England in the Royal MS. show the same metrical corruption, besides great arbitrary changes, I am inclined to believe that this Assembly of Gods may have been tampered with in a similar way. Still it is not absolutely certain that Lydgate was the author; but I suppose the following item in Hawes's list of Lydgate's works (Pastime of Pleasure, Chapter XIV) can only mean our work:

> "And betwene vertue and the lyfe vycyous,
> Of goddes and goddes[ses] a boke solacyous
> He did compyle" . . .

Further, Bale mentions De nominibus Deorum among the writings

[1] That is to say, the second half of it; the first part, containing the Troy-Book and the Story of Thebes, with beautiful illuminations, is in a much older handwriting. The second hand (beginning of the 16th century) has written the Assembly of Gods, further, a poem by Skelton, Lydgate's Testament, and his Stanzas on the Kings of England, the latter with additional stanzas down to Henry VIII. (also copied from a print by Wynken?). See Dyce's Skelton, p. x.

Digitized by Google

of Lydgate; so also, following him, Pits, Ghilini, &c. It may, however, be that Bale simply drew his statement from a title-page of Wynken de Worde's, as found in the copy of the British Museum, marked C. 13. a. 21, which seems to have been a joint issue of Lydgate's Story of Thebes, Assembly of Gods, and Temple of Glas (see Hazlitt, Handbook, p. 358). The first stanza reminds one strikingly in its tone of the beginning of Piers Ploughman:

> "Whan Phebus in the crabbe had nere his cours ronne,
> And toward the Leon his Iourney gan take,
> To loke on Pyctagoras spere I had b[e]gonne,
> Syttyng all solytary allone besyde a lake,
> Musyng on a maneer how that I myght make
> Reason and sensualyte in one to accorde:
> But I coude not bryng about that monacorde."

The poem certainly deserves a re-edition.

I feel almost certain that the date of the Court of Sapience could be made out by a careful investigation. As to its genuineness I have not the slightest doubt; Blades's scruples on this score, as brought forward against the opinion of W. Oldys (Caxton, II, 115), are hardly justifiable. Blades would consider the Court of Sapience Lydgate's finest work, if it were his, and wonders that such a remarkable poem should be so scarce then, compared with the monk's other writings. But it cannot be said that the poem is so very scarce; for we have, besides Caxton's print, and the Trinity College MS., a print by Wynken de Worde, of the year 1510, and further, Addit. MS. 29729, which was copied out by John Stowe (from Shirley, or a print?). Moreover, the first part of it, the pleading between Mercy, Truth, Right, and Peace, occurs at the end of MS. Harl. 2251, and some stanzas of it found their way into the Chaucer-print of 1561 (see Chapter XII). We have, moreover, Hawes's (Pastime of Pleasure, Chapter XIV) and Stowe's plain testimony that Lydgate was the author. Stowe's testimony (in MS. Addit. 29729, fol. 87 a, in the Trinity College MS., and in the list contained in Speght's Chaucer, 1598) perhaps goes back to Shirley, not to Hawes, as Blades supposes.

I feel far less certain as to its date. The poem in MS. Harl. 2255, fol. 21 ("Mercy and trouthe mette on an hih mounteyn," etc.), written after Henry V.'s death, or the passage in Pur le Roy (about 1432), Halliwell, p. 11 &c., or the first book of the prose-translation of the Pilgrimage of the Soule (1413), have hardly any direct contact with the Court of Sapience. Who is the "soveraign," by whom the author was "constrained to write"? So far as I am aware at present, this question of the date requires us to take into especial consideration the following line of the prologue:

Digitized by Google

"Let ignoraunce and chyldhode haue the wyte."

But was Lydgate favoured so early by the Court? By Henry IV.? Or is the word chyldhode here not to be taken in its natural and usual sense referring to age? Some critics even feel inclined to believe that this Prologue is not by Lydgate, but was added by somebody else, perhaps Caxton. I repeat that a careful investigation must almost certainly lead to a definite solution of these questions, which will make a re-edition of the poem all the more interesting.

Speaking generally, I believe that further observations will disclose more and more decisive characteristics, from which we may ascribe an earlier or later origin for those works to which we have as yet the most difficulty in assigning a place. For as Koeppel truly remarks, we still stand "in den Anfängen der Lydgate-Forschung," and only gradually, by careful investigations and editions of each separate work, shall we be able once and for all to disperse the doubts and solve the questions which attach to all the more interesting works of Lydgate. Until now, with hardly a single exception, Lydgate's dullest works alone have been treated of by Historians of Literature.

At present we can only with certainty say this much, that there is a wide difference in poetical value, in tone and style, between the more imaginative writings of his earlier time, and the dry, monotonous translations spun out through thousands and thousands of lines in his later days; between the jovial humour, or keen enjoyment of nature in the first period, and the cumbersome and dismal pages of the Falls of Princes, or the philistine rules—often disgracefully devoid of taste—for the health, diet, and general conduct of a prince in the Secreta Secretorum. We may safely say, that, after our monk had reached the zenith of his power in Reason and Sensuality, the poetical value of his works decreases in direct proportion to the distance from this better time.

Whether the same is true of his metre, further investigations have to establish. As regards versification, the Story of Thebes is indeed, of all his works, generally made out to be the scape-grace of the family, whilst the metre of the Falls of Princes is applauded as being far superior. True enough, if we take the two texts as they stand, the one in the Chaucer-Print of 1561, the other in Tottel's edition of 1554. But I should not be astonished if Dr. Erdmann's forthcoming edition of the Story of Thebes proves that its black-letter text is much more corrupted than that of the Falls of Princes; for Tottel gives us to understand on his title-page that he used more than one MS. for the construction of his text. Still I must not omit to say that Lydgate's five-beat line always seems more regularly built in the seven-line stanza than in the heroic couplet.

Digitized by Google

Lydgate's style, at all events, changes considerably in the course of time, and, as he grows older, he entirely forgets some of his favourite expressions. His pen certainly had still ample occasion to "quake" in the Falls of Princes, and the invocations to the Furies are frequent enough; but the pretty descriptions of nature, his humour, in short, the brighter side of his poetry, is almost entirely gone; his "fresh, fair" ladies have become very scarce, and those with "hair like gold wire" have vanished for ever.

It will perhaps not be amiss to subjoin a short synoptical table of the dates—known and conjectural—of Lydgate's life and works.

1370 (or 1371)?, born at Lydgate.
1387? studying in Oxford; his Æsop.
Travels abroad??
March 13, 1388 (new style 1389?), receives the four lower orders of the Church.
Dec. (?) 17, 1389, receives Letters dismissory for the order of sub-deacon.
May 28, 1393, ditto for deacon.
April 4, 1397, ditto for the order of priest.
April 7, 1397, ordained priest.
1398 (?), Chorl and Bird.
,, Horse, Goose, and Sheep (??).
1400, Serpent of Division.
1400—1402 (?), Flour of Curtesie, Black Knight.
1403 (?), Temple of Glas.
,, [Assemble of Gods?? Court of Sapience??]
1406—1408 (?), Reason and Sensuality.
1409—1411 (?), Life of our Lady.
1412—1420, Troy-Book.
[1413, Prose Pilgrimage hardly genuine.]
1415, Lydgate living at Bury.
1420—1422 (?), Story of Thebes.
Feb. 21, 1423, Lydgate mentioned in the Minutes of the Privy Council.
June 1423, elected Prior of Hatfield Broadoak.
1423 (?), Guy of Warwick.
1424—1426, Lydgate in France?
1425 (?), Dance of Macabre.
1426—1430 (?), Pilgrimage de mounde (in verse).
1430, Legend of St. Margaret.
1430—1438 (?), Falls of Princes.
1432, Pur le Roy.
1433, Legend of St. Edmund and Fremund.
April 8, 1434, licensed to go back to Bury from Hatfield.
1439, Legend of St. Albon and Amphabel.
1441, legal difficulties concerning the payment of a royal grant to Lydgate.
1444, Miracles of St. Edmund.
1445, Verses for Queen Margaret's entry into London.
1445 (?), Testament.
1446 (?), Secreta Secretorum.
Dies between 1446 and 1450?

Many of the monk's smaller poems can be dated; the above list comprises only the more extensive works. I repeat that this attempt at making out the sequence of Lydgate's writings, is merely a temporary one, given in the hope that, with all its shortcomings, it may throw more light upon the matter, and may be welcome to the investigator of special works of Lydgate. I shall only be glad if a more thorough study of his particular writings removes any of the above notes of interrogation or assigns the right date to a work possibly inserted in a wrong place.

Digitized by Google

§ 3. Date of the Temple of Glas.

Unfortunately there is not sufficient evidence to afford us a precise date for the composition of the Temple of Glas. That it, however, belongs to Lydgate's first period, and was produced before the interminable rhymes of his middle and old age, is proved by the MS. T, which is scarcely much later than 1400. The next-oldest MS., G, seems to have been written about 1430; it exhibits, with S, extensive deviations from the other texts; and the common original of G and S may be some years earlier. This external evidence agrees very well with the classification given above in § 2, and even serves to justify it; the Temple of Glas certainly bears in its composition, its style, and its general tenor, the marks of the early period, as alluded to above. Lydgate's inveighing against the enforced monastic life (ll. 201—208) strengthens this supposition of an early origin; we know from his Testament that, in his youth, he himself felt little vocation for the cloister. Neither, unfortunately, do the sources the author used advance us much further, nor yet does Shirley's assertion that the poem was written "a la request dun amoreux." Whether this statement of Shirley's was in itself merely a bad guess,[1] must remain a matter of uncertainty; nor have I been able to find anywhere the motto of the lady: "de mieulx en mieulx magre" (in the second version: "humblement magre"). Should, however, the hypothesis that the poem was written somewhere between 1400 and 1415 be correct, then a more precise date within the limits of this period may be assigned to it, or rather we may set on one side certain years in which it cannot have been written. At the opening of the poem is an astronomical statement concerning the

[1] Thomas Feylde, also an admirer of Lydgate, addresses his poem Controversy between a lover and a jay in the Envoy thus:

"For made thou was of shorte aduysement
Be meruayllous instaunce of a louer verament."

But at the end of the Envoy he has:

"Suche grete vnkyndnesse . . .
Was shewed to a louer called. F. T.,
Her name also begynneth with. A. B."

F. T. are doubtlessly meant to represent his own initials. Feylde cites in this poem a great many famous couples of lovers; those of the Temple of Glas are also all in it.

Digitized by Google

time of the dream which Lydgate feigns to have had. It says that he had gone to bed one night

> "Whan þat Lucina wiþ hir pale liȝt
> Was Ioyned last wiþ Phebus in aquarie,
> Amyd decembre, when of Ianuarie
> Ther be kalendes, of þe nwe yere."

The first two lines, of course, refer to the conjunction of Sun and Moon; the key to the exact meaning of the last two we find in Lydgate's poem, Pur le Roy (in Halliwell's edition of the Minor Poems, p. 2), of which the first stanza runs:

> "Toward the ende of wyndy Februarie,
> Whan Phebus whas in the ffysshe croune,
> Out of the signe, wiche callyd is aquary,
> New kalendys were enteryd and begone
> Of Marchis komyng, and the mery sone
> Upon a Thursday sched his bemys bryght
> Upon Londone, to make them glad and lyght."[1]

The date here referred to is February 21st, 1432, relating to King Henry VI's entry into London after his return from France. The above method of fixing the date has, of course, reference to the ancient calendar, according to which, after the Ides of the month, the reckoning would be made by the kalends of the next month. Thus the meaning of ll. 6 and 7 of the Temple of Glas is: in the middle of December, when the new "Kalendæ Ianuariæ" have begun, i. e. at the earliest on December 14th, which is the 19th day "ante Kalendas Ianuarias." Now, Professor Tietjen, of the Berlin University, has been kind enough to give me a list of new moons in the December of the years 1400—1420. According to it, there was a new moon in 1400, on December 16th, at 2 a.m.; 1402 on the 24th, 1403 on the 14th, at 9 a. m., 1405 on the 21st, 1407 on the 29th, 1408 on the 17th, 1410 on the 26th, 1411 on the 15th, 1413 on the 23rd, 1416 on the 19th, 1418 on the 27th, 1419 on the 17th; the other new moons all occur before December 14th. Now we must not lose sight of the possibility that Lydgate did not mean the above-quoted words to be interpreted literally; but if we do so, I should think that the two years 1400 and 1403 are of all the most likely, as the date of their new moon agrees so well with the "Amyd decembre" of the poem. And if we have to choose between the two, I think we must choose 1403 as the more probable. For two

[1] We have also a close parallel to the above lines in MS. Cott. Calig. A II, fol. 59 a:

> "And on a nyght in Aprile as y lay
> Wery of sleep & of my bed all so,
> Whene that the kalendes entred were of May."

Digitized by Google

reasons. It seems that the Flour of Curtesie (evidently imitated from the Parlement of Foules), and the Black Knight (imitated from the Book of the Duchesse) precede our more ambitious Temple of Glas. But the Flour of Curtesie was certainly written after the death of Chaucer, which is proved by its envoy. Secondly, I believe that Lydgate, in December 1400, would have mentioned Chaucer with warmer words than the bare mention of his name in l. 110. For scarcely two months had then elapsed since his beloved master had been laid in the grave.

CHAPTER IX.

THE SOURCES OF THE POEM.

§ 1. Lydgate's learning in general.

We are, indeed, obliged to bring forward a strong protest against certain old admirers of Lydgate, when their effusive eulogies are too freely bestowed on his poetical powers. But we can agree more readily with these ancient literati when they commend our monk's wide learning.[1] Although we moderns perceive at once that it is—like much of the erudition of the Middle Ages—more extensive than deep or accurate, yet we must not deny Lydgate the epithet of "learned," which he received for several centuries, and with which he was still honoured, in the midst of the glories of the Elizabethan era, by no meaner poet than Beaumont. Still, even here we must make the necessary deductions from the wholesale eulogies of Bale, Pits, and other early writers, and some of the accomplishments attributed to him all too lavishly by them, we shall do well to strike out altogether from their lists. Thus, if Pits speaks of him as "non solum elegans Poëta, & Rhetor disertus, verum etiam Mathematicus expertus, Philosophus acutus, & Theologus non contemnendus,"[2] we prefer to believe Lydgate's own words, when he says (Troy-Book, F 1 a):

"For douteles / I radde neuer Euclyde."

[1] And we may perhaps add, his command of language. Bale praises him thus: "Tantæ enim eloquentiæ & eruditionis homo iste fuit, ut nunquam satis admirari possim, unde illi in ætate tam rudi, tanta accreuerit facundia;" further on: "fuitque post dictum Chaucerum, Anglici sermonis illustrator planè maximus" (Catalogus, p. 586).

[2] Pits evidently derives his information from the first edition of Bale (Summarium, 1548, fol. 202 b), which reads: "Rhetorem certe, philosophum, mathematicum, ac theologum eum extitisse, scripta eius luculenter ostendunt." Bale himself thought good to omit this questionable account of Lydgate's versatility in his Catalogus, whilst Pits was copied by Ghilini, Papadopoli, etc.

Digitized by Google

After this confession we need not wonder that the history of mathematics is silent concerning any "Theorem of Lydgate." [1]

Similarly, we must not let pass unchallenged Bale's random guess concerning the authors who served as Lydgate's chief models. Bale asserts—and his assertion has been adopted even by Warton without due criticism—that Dante, Alanus, and Chaucer were the principal poets whom Lydgate studied and imitated. But of Dante he does not seem to have known much more than the mere name and the title of his great work; further, if by Alanus, Bale meant Alanus ab Insulis, then Reason and Sensuality alone would fully justify the tradition; but he evidently means Alain Chartier, and I must confess that, beyond a general likeness of motifs, etc., current at the time, I am unable, so far as my knowledge goes, to trace any actual interdependence between the two. Some works of Chartier were, indeed, translated into English in the 15th century; but we must note that Lydgate is at least twenty-five years older than Chartier, and can thus have learnt little from him. With respect to the third poet mentioned by Bale, there is no doubt that Lydgate knew Chaucer well, and the present poem would strongly confirm this statement, did it need confirmation. Bale's authority is here, as unfortunately also in many other instances, altogether unreliable; he evidently chose haphazard three representative poets of Italy, France, and England, and thus two-thirds of his statements are incorrect.

The sources of two of Lydgate's best known works, the Falls of Princes and the Story of Thebes, have been ably treated in Dr. Koeppel's two excellent treatises, which, although the two works in question are more or less only translations or paraphrases, yet throw

[1] Moreover, let any one who may have imagined Lydgate to be a connoisseur of jewelry, correct his error at once; for he himself tells us in the Secreta Secretorum (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 109 a):

"I was nevir noon expert Ioweleere."

Nevertheless we may not inaptly apply to the monk Hazlitt's remark on Herrick, that "from his frequent allusion to pearls and rubies, one might take him for a lapidary instead of a poet" (Lectures on the Dramatic Literature of the age of Elizabeth, Lecture VI).—Concerning Lydgate's geometry we must, however, in justice add, that he evidently knew the value $3\frac{1}{7}$ for π (see note to l. 36). But again, his "Tractatus de Geometria" in the Court of Sapience, fol. f$_2$ b to f$_3$ b, does not prove him to have been a great adept in the mysteries of Euclid's science. Cp. also the following passage from the Pilyrimage of Man, fol. 182*a*, the purport of which we do not mean to gainsay:

"And many on that thow dost sen,
Ys nat ther-for A Geometryen,
With-In a compas—ha thys in mynde—
Thogh he konne out the centre fynde."

Digitized by Google

considerable light upon Lydgate's general knowledge and the manner in which he makes use of it in enlarging upon his originals. Koeppel shows, I think conclusively, that Lydgate knew no Greek nor Italian, but Latin and French tolerably. In his so-called translations, the monk usually renders his original in a paraphrastic manner, and puts in many additions foreign to it. He is fond of quoting authorities for his statements; but often enough, he does so—like his great master Chaucer—quite incorrectly and at random. Some investigations have also been made into the sources of certain of his smaller poems; I mention especially Guy of Warwick. But much still remains to be done to make clear his attitude towards the sources whence he derived his other principal works. Thus a treatise on the sources of the Troy-Book would be a very meritorious pendant to Koeppel's comparison of Boccaccio, Laurent de Premierfait, and Lydgate; it would have to elucidate the manner in which Lydgate follows Guido di Colonna, and how far he deviates from the Sicilian's famous work. The investigator of Lydgate's Secreta Secretorum would have to define the exact relation between this work and the pseudo-Aristotelian tract of that title; and also to show how it is connected with Occleve's De Regimine Principum or Gower's Confessio Amantis, Book VII. An enquiry into the sources of the Court of Sapience will, so far as it deals with the first part of the poem, lead back to the Pleading between Mercy, Truth, Right, and Peace, so often treated in the Middle Ages.[1] In the later parts of the Court of Sapience, the inquirer will have ample opportunity to show his own erudition whilst discussing that of Lydgate. Not the least interesting of such investigations would be that of Reason and Sensuality; Alanus ab Insulis' work De Planctu Naturæ, the Roman de la Rose, and the moralizations on the game of chess would be found to play a prominent part in it.

If I am not much mistaken, the groundwork of the Assembly of Gods must go back in some way to the Psychomachia of Prudentius, and more than one of Lydgate's stories appear to be derived from [1] By Lydgate himself in the Court of Sapience, 1st part, in Life of Our Lady, cap. 11—14; it occurs also in Deguileville's Second Pilgrimage, books I and IV of the English prose-translation in Caxton. In book I the Charter of Mercy has reference to the soul of the individual pilgrim only; in the IVth to mankind in general. Further treatments of, or allusions to, this Pleading are found in a homily of St. Bernard's, in Grosseteste's Castel d' amour (English version, ed. Weymouth, l. 275 etc.), in the Cursor Mundi, ed. Morris, p. 548—561 (ll. 9517—9752); in Piers Plowman, C-text, XXI, 118 etc.; see ten Brink, Geschichte der engl. Litt., I, 444, and particularly, Skeat's note to the passage in Piers Plowman.

Digitized by Google

the Disciplina clericalis, or a French translation of it.[1] Inquiries of the kind indicated would be valuable contributions to the history of English literature in the 15th century, and I should be glad if these discussions instigate other workers in this field to undertake an elucidation of some of the questions set forth above.

§ 2. Current "motifs" used in the Temple of Glas.

Whereas Sandras, some thirty years ago, spoke of Chaucer's works as "véritables mosaïques" of ideas, gathered together from various quarters, a better knowledge of the poet has made it clear to us that Chaucer, although drawing from many foreign sources, still preserved the originality of his singular genius and impressed each of his genuine works with the stamp of his own personality. Later researches have shown that the works to which this remark of Sandras particularly applies, are mostly not genuine, but, as a rule, belong to a post-Chaucerian school of poets, who had learnt their technique of, and borrowed their ideas from, the great master-poet. But if this remark is not appropriate in the case of Chaucer's genuine works, it is certainly applicable to the earlier compositions of Lydgate, and particularly to our poem. For although the Temple of Glas may be said to be an original production with regard to its action and composition, yet the most prominent motifs which form the component parts of the story, and serve as vehicles to set the action working, are the common property of the time, heirlooms, some of them, of olden days, modified and enlarged upon by generations of writers.

Thus we have in our Temple of Glas the framework of a vision. We can clearly distinguish in the literature of the Middle Ages two separate, yet closely related currents, which represent two different forms of the vision. First we have the vision proper, the religious trance, opening Heaven, Purgatory, and Hell to man's ecstatic gaze. For the origin of this species of the mediæval vision we must turn to the Bible, namely to the visions of Ezekiel and Daniel, the trance of St. Paul, and the Apocalypse of St. John.[2] Again, in the earlier

[1] So Chorl and Bird and De duobus Mercatoribus. For the latter see Ward, Catalogue of the Romances, I. 929, and Zupitza, in his Archiv, vol. 84, 130 etc.

[2] There are also heathen parallels, describing either descents into the lower world, or visions of a life beyond the grave; the 11th book of the Odyssey and the 6th of the Aeneid, the Culex, and particularly the Somnium Scipionis. In the Mahâbhârata occurs a famous episode, the Indralokâgamana, describing the ascent of Arjuna to Indra's heaven. The popularity of these fictions was so great that it produced parodies and burlesques; two well-known instances are centuries of the Middle Ages, many privileged mortals, mostly canonized saints, were credited with having beheld such visions, in body or in spirit; for the historian of literature the names of St. Patrick, St. Brandan, Alberic, Tundalus, and the apocryphal gospel of Nicodemus are of particular interest.[1] The Sólar-Ljóð, Raoul de Houdenc's Songe d'Enfer and Voie de Paradis, Hampole's Pricke of Conscience, Dunbar's Dance of the seven Deadly Sins, Lyndsay's Dream, the poem of the Pearl, Deguileville's Pilgrimages, and Alanus' Anticlaudianus, which latter had certainly no small influence on the conception of the Hous of Fame, are interesting enough as turning the vision of other worlds into a poetic theme; but it is, of course, the Divina Commedia, which shows in its peerless magnificence what a poet of Dante's tremendous powers could make of the vision of the Inferno, Purgatorio, and Paradiso.

Digitized by Google

On the other hand, the vision is often used more or less as a poetical framework only; in this case, it usually presents itself to the poet either in a dream, or when walking forth into the fields on some fair morning. This secular form of the vision no doubt sprang from the religious type; the frequent occurrence of the dream-motif appears moreover to have been partly due to the Somnium Scipionis, with its widespread popularity in the Middle Ages.[2] As famous examples of this species of the vision in Romance literature we may mention the popular work of Boethius, De Consolatione Philosophiae, Petrarca's Trionfi, Boccaccio's numerous visions, and—of great influence upon Chaucer and his school—the Roman de la Rose, and Alanus' De Planctu Naturæ. This type of vision, rather than the preceding, is also exhibited in Piers Ploughman, and Chaucer made use of it in more than one of his works, as in the Hous of Fame, the Parlement of Foules (in this case following directly the Somnium Scipionis), in the Book of the Duchesse, and the Prologue to the Legend of Good Women. It occurs in the pseudo-Chaucerian poems, The Isle of Ladies, The Assembly of Ladies, and Cuckow and Nightingale; in the Μίνιππος ἢ Νεκυομαντεία, attributed to Lucian, and, it would seem, contemporary with Lydgate, the Scandinavian Skida-Rima by Einar Fostri (see Vigfússon, Corpus Poeticum Boreale, II, 396, etc.).

[1] For the subject of visions see particularly Th. Wright, St. Patrick's Purgatory; Hammerich, Aelteste christliche Epik, p. 181; Ebert, Allgemeine Geschichte der Literatur des Mittelalters, passim; and C. Fritzsche, Die lateinischen Visionen des Mittelalters bis zur Mitte des 12. Jahrhunderts, in Vollmöller's Romanische Forschungen, II, 247 etc.; III, 337 etc.

[2] Cp. Warton-Hazlitt III, 65; Sandras, p. 67; Ward, Hist. of Engl. Dram. Lit. I, 57; ten Brink, Geschichte der engl. Litteratur II, 86.

Digitized by Google

Gower's Vox clamantis, in Skelton's Garland of Laurel and Bowge of Court, in the Kingis Quair, in Dunbar's Golden Targe, Henryson's Æsop (Introduction), Douglas's Palice of Honour; in Machault, Alain Chartier, etc., etc. Lydgate, who certainly knew Chaucer, Boccaccio, Deguileville, and the Roman de la Rose, is not less fond of this particular framework than his contemporaries; he has it, in different forms, besides in the Temple of Glas, in the Assemble de Dieus, the Court of Sapience, the Complaint of the Black Knight, and, in a certain degree, also in the Falls of Princes.

The vision of some stately building, a palace or a temple, is common, as the very titles show: Palaces of Honour, Houses of Fame, Temples of Glory, etc., occurring frequently in the English and the Romance literatures. Temples of Venus—for so our Temple of Glas turns out to be—are found amongst Chaucer's works, in the Knightes Tale (l. 1060 etc.), the Hous of Fame (l. 130 etc.), and the Parlement of Foules (l. 230 etc.), from all of which works Lydgate seems to have taken various hints for the present poem. The particular title, The Temple of Glas, may have suggested itself to Lydgate from ll. 119 and 120 of Chaucer's Hous of Fame, which run thus:

> "But as I sleep, me mette I was > Within a temple y-mad of glas."

The temple spoken of in this passage of the Hous of Fame is also a Temple of Venus.

Further, the enumeration of famous names, and particularly of famous lovers, is a very common feature in works of the aforementioned category. These names are naturally most numerous in poems which make the representation and portraiture of personages seen in a vision their primary object, such as Chaucer's Hous of Fame, Douglas's Palice of Honour, Petrarca's Trionfi, Boccaccio's Amorosa Visione, the Intelligenza,[1] not to mention the Divina

[1] This list is interesting as giving, amongst others, the following pair of lovers (stanza 75, l. 2):

La bella Analida e lo bono Ivano.

This seems to point to one of the Romances treating of Iwain and the Round Table, for the origin of the name Anelida, which would at once upset Bradshaw's and Prof. Cowell's ingenious etymologies from Ἀνάτριξ and Anahita; for I do not believe that both the poet of the Intelligenza and Chaucer mistook a t for an l. We have also in Froissart's Dit du bleu chevalier the line (ten Brink, Chaucer-Studien, p. 213):

"Ywain le preu pour la belle Alydes."

One and the same personage is evidently indicated by the two names Analida and Alydes for Iwain's paramour; I am not, however, sufficiently acquainted with the Arthur-romances to know of the occurrence of such a name. Laudine in Chrestien's Chevalier au Lion is not very like it.

Digitized by Google

Commedia. Our poem, however, connects itself in particular with the idea of a "Court of Love," inasmuch as it enumerates none but lovers in the entourage of Venus, who is represented as "Lady-president of Love"—to use a phrase of Peele's—with Cupid at her side and lovers of all ages and conditions around her. We need not seek long for Lydgate's immediate sources among the many Romance and English poems in which this fanciful idea is introduced; Chaucer's Prologue to the Legend of Good Women and Gower's vision of the Court of Love,[1] towards the end of the Confessio (ed. Pauli, III, 357 etc.), were certainly uppermost in Lydgate's mind when he wrote the part in question of the Temple of Glas. This is amply proved by the names which occur in our list (ll. 55—142), as well as in the two sources I have just named.[2]

Lydgate is not, perhaps, quite consistent in the representation of this Court of Love. In the latter part of the poem we find ourselves face to face with living inhabitants of the Temple, who sing the praise of Venus and otherwise join in the action of the poem; but in the beginning we hear of them—even of Venus, l. 53—only as "depainted upon every wall" (see l. 44). Both methods of introducing personages in a vision are common enough with these early "dreamers," and Warton (History of E. P., ed. Hazlitt II, 192; 275, note 1; III, 63) has given us a series of examples, both from History and Fiction, in which such characters figure in pictures, statues, tapestry, etc. Warton's list itself may seem superfluous enough, and if, in addition to this, I point to Béowulf 994, to Úlfr Uggason's Húsdrápa, to Bojardo and Ariosto, to Athis and Prophilias, to Blikêr von Steinahe's Umbehanc (Gottfried von Strassburg, Tristan 4690), to the Anticlaudian of Alanus ab Insulis, to the Intelligenza, to Benoît de Ste-More, to the Peripetasma of Balderic us

[1] A Court of Love meant, of course, originally something different; but our version—Venus as queen listening to the complaints of the lovers—is already found in the 13th century, in Jean de Condé's Des Chanoinesses et des Bernardines (see Morley, English Writers, 2nd ed., V, 143); in fact, we may trace its origin as far back as the classics, for example, Ovid's Amores I, 2, 25 etc. We have this notion again in Petrarca's Trionfo d'Amore, in the pseudo-Chaucerian poem The Court of Love, in Douglas's Palice of Honour, in Rolland's Court of Venus, etc. Cp. also the little poem "The Parliament of Love," in Furnivall's Political, Religious and Love Poems, p. 48—51, and the passage from Hawes's Pastime of Pleasure in the note to l. 50.

[2] We may also refer to the list of lovers in Parl. of F., 288, and to the enumeration of good women in March. Tale 119 etc., Melibe, p. 150; Frankel. Tale 628. In Lydgate similar lists frequently recur; for instance in the Life of our Lady, fol. a_8 b; in the poem on Duke Humphrey and Jacqueline, MS. Add. 29729, fol. 158*b*; in the poem entitled "Of a squyer y^t serued in loues courte," ib., fol. 157*a*; in the Flour of Curtesie, etc.

Digitized by Google

Dolensis, to Catullus' Marriage of Peleus and Thetis (the passage from which Titian drew some suggestions for his glorious picture "Bacchus and Ariadne" in the National Gallery), etc. etc., I willingly plead guilty to the charge of krokyleymos.

Further, the "Complaints" of the Lady and the Knight, as they present them to the goddess, recall to us a certain species of poetry[1] which was at one time much in vogue in England and France. These "Complaints" are usually put into the mouth of a rejected or forsaken lover, bewailing his wretched state, and calling upon his lady for pity. It is not impossible that their origin may have been influenced by Ovid's Heroides, which enjoyed so remarkable a popularity in the Middle Ages. We have such "Complaints" from French poets—for instance, from Rutebeuf, Christine de Pisan, and Machault; Chaucer wrote the "Complaints" of Mars, of Venus, and of Anelida (of somewhat different genre, the Compleint to Pity, and, turned jokingly, the Compleint to his Purse). Of Lydgate we have the Compleint of the Black Knight, a tangible imitation of the Boke of the Duchesse; the Compleint to his Purse has also its parallel in Lydgate, see Halliwell, M. P., p. 49. Of Surrey, we have the Complaint of a dying lover, and, in fact, this species had not died out in Elizabethan times, witness Gascoigne's Complaint of Philomene and Complaint of the green Knight, Daniel's Complaint of Rosamund, Shakspere's A Lover's Complaint, etc.

We ought, however, to add here that the "complaints" in the Temple of Glas, and the prayers combined with them, have perhaps been most immediately influenced by the Knightes Tale, with its prayers of Arcite, Palamoun, and Emelie to Mars, Venus, and Diana.

The mode of beginning a poem with a detailed description of the time was also extensively used in those days; every one will at once recall Chaucer's beautiful descriptions of the May-morning, or the season of spring. These "dreamers" are particularly fond of embellishing their fictions by means of astronomical references; see, for instance, Petrarca's Trionfo d'Amore, I. 4—6, Skelton's Garland of Laurel and Bowge of Court, the Flower and the Leaf, the Kingis

[1] Cp. Marchaundes Tale 636, 637:

"And in a letter wrot he al his sorwe,
In maner of a compleynt or of a lay."

Frankeleynes Tale 219, 220:

". . . made he many layes,
Songes, compleignes, roundeletis, virrelayes."

Digitized by Google

Quair, Dunbar's Golden Targe and Thrissill and the Rois, Henryson's Testament of Cryseide, Douglas's Palice of Honour, Lyndsay's Dream, the Pastime of Pleasure, etc. Nor is Lydgate behind his contemporaries in this respect. His Story of Thebes, the Assemble de Dieus, the Flour of Curtesie, and the Troy-Book (fol. A_1 d), begin in a like manner to the Temple of Glas, and these astronomical allusions are also frequently scattered throughout some of his other works.

Lastly, we believe we hear a faint echo of the love-poetry of those times in the admonitions of Venus to the lovers. They are most of them very diluted and commonplace, but sometimes they remind us of certain laws to which the lovers were bound in the Romance Courts of Love, alluded to in Cupid's Code in the Roman de la Rose and in the English poem, The Court of Love. The latter poem in particular enumerates 20 statutes for lovers, of which many coincide more or less closely with some of Venus's exhortations (see further on, § 4). Naturally, in all these regulations with respect to love, we are also sometimes vaguely reminded of "Venus clerk Ovide," one of the favourite classics in mediæval times.

§ 3. Influence of Particular Works on the Temple of Glas.

It has been more than once alleged that the Hous of Fame and Parlement of Foules were imitated and made use of by the author of the Temple of Glas. Although some of the remarks in question do not seem to be more than vague guesses, yet there is at least some little truth in this statement. We have above referred to ll. 119 and 120 of the Hous of Fame, and intimated that Lydgate may have got the title of his poem from there. Lines 19 and 20 of the Temple of Glas must have been written in remembrance of ll. 1128—1130 of the Hous of Fame:

> "But at the laste espied I,
> And found that hit was, every del,
> A roche of yse, and not of steel."

Ll. 130—139 of the Hous of Fame have been made use of in several passages of the Temple of Glas; see particularly ll. 53 and 541. The "wicket," through which Lydgate gains access to his glass-temple (l. 39), is also found in l. 477 of the Hous of Fame; it occurs further in the Romaunt of the Rose, ll. 528, 642; similarly a "guichet" is found in Deguileville's Pilgrimage, etc. Finally, Chaucer also dreams in the middle of December (on the 10th), see

Digitized by Google

ll. 63 and 111 of the Hous of Fame; it may be that Lydgate intended to imitate this.[1]

If we turn to the Parlement of Foules, we find there also an imaginary Temple of Venus, "peynted over al of many a story;" the names given from ll. 284—292 coincide partly with those in the Temple of Glas. Moreover, l. 442 of Chaucer's poem occurs almost word for word in l. 1042 of the Temple of Glas. In Chaucer it is the female eagle who blushes so deeply. Of course, this coincidence may be purely accidental.

This may also be the most convenient place to note that certain other ideas which appear in the Parlement of Foules, are found occasionally in Lydgate; thus the "pecok with his aungels fethers bright" (P. of Foules, l. 356)[2] occurs in Reason and Sensuality, 221 b; also in the Court of Sapience, e$_1$ b:

(the peacock) "That to the syght he semed euery dele
An Archaungell doune frome the heuen sent."

"The cok that orloge is of thorpes lyte" (l. 350) appears in the Troy-Book D$_1$ a as "the cok comon Astrologere"; see again G$_8$ a:

"a cocke
Syngynge his houres trewe as any clocke."

Similarly, in Æsop 2, 10 and 11, the cock is called

"comvne astrologere
In thropes small to make hertis light."

As to the expression "Nature, the vicaire of thalmyghty lorde" (Parl. of F., l. 379, Chaucer's A. B. C., l. 140, and Doctoures Tale, l. 20), compare:

De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 70 a):

(Nature) "Which is of god minister and vicare;"

---

[1] Lydgate often alludes to the idea of a house of Fame, for instance, Tr.-B. Q$_8$ b (Chaucer, the monk says, is to be exalted thither); ib. Dd$_4$ a (the same is said of Henry V.). Add to these the instances given by Köppel, Falls of Princes, p. 94, and cp. the poem on Humphrey and Jacqueline, MS. Add. 29729, fol. 159 b:

"He hathe deserved thoroughe his knyghtly name (Duke Humphrey)
To be regystred in the hous of ffaame."

[2] The following line 357 of the Parl. of Foules occurs nearly word for word in MS. Gg. 4. 27, fol. 9 b:

"þ^{e} fesaunt, scornere of þ^{e} cok
Be nihyter tyme in frostis colde, þhat nestelyth lowe be sum blok
Or be sum rote of bosschis olde."

In the same poem, fol. 9 a, we have also "Qui bien ayme tard oublye" sung by the "mauys" (cf. Parl. of F. l. 679); this motto occurs also in the form: 'Tar · vblia · chi · bien · eima" as an inscription on one of Francia Bigio's pictures in the National Gallery; see E. T. Cook, Handbook to the National Gallery, 1890, p. 21.

Digitized by Google

further, Troy-Book D$_3$ d:

> "For the goddesse that called is nature,
> Whiche next hir lorde [hath] all thynge in cure,
> Hath vertue gyue to herbe, gras and stone,
> Which no man knoweth but hir selfe alone;"

again, Testament, Halliwell, p. 243:

> (Nature which is) "undyr God ther worldly emperesse;"

F. Princes, 93 a:

> (Nature) "Which vnder god in heauen aboue reigning,
> The world to gouerne, is called themp[e]resse;"

R. Sens. fol. 205 b:

> "For she ys lady and maistresse, (Nature)
> And vnder god the chefe goddesse."

The same occurs nearly word for word again on fol. 210 a. See further, Black Knight, 491—493, and Pur le Roy, Halliwell, p. 6. Scipio's Dream is mentioned, Troy-Book, fol. R$_3$ d (not in Guido). The Parlement of Foules was evidently in great favour with Lydgate, as with all his contemporaries.

Line 703 of our poem, with the name of Cirrea, suggests line 17 of Anelida and Arcite. "Cirrea" occurs more than once in Lydgate's writings; see note to l. 703. The general composition of Anelida is also somewhat similar to the Temple of Glas, the epic and lyric genre alternating in different metres.

There are also certain points of analogy between the Temple of Glas and the Boke of the Duchesse; the dream-motif occurs in both at the beginning, and the figures of the Duke and Duchess Blanche bear some resemblance to our knight and lady.

One is frequently reminded of the Legend of Good Women, especially of the Prologue, as the greater part of the lovers named in the Temple of Glas also occur there, and some of them, with their detailed history, in the Legend itself. Lydgate may also have been influenced in the portraiture of his lady by Chaucer's description of certain ladies in the Legend; for instance, Alceste, whom Lydgate mentions in l. 74, as having been turned into a daisy. The garments of the Lady (l. 299) remind one also of Alceste's "whyt coroun" and "real habit grene," Prologue 214, etc. Line 60 of the Temple of Glas agrees with the Legend of Dido, l. 385, where Dido also exclaims:

> "That I was born! allas!"

Compare, however, for the common occurrence of this expression, the note to l. 60. A "ballade" of similar metrical structure is inserted in both poems (Leyend, Prol. 249—269, and Temple of Glas, 1341—1361).

Digitized by Google

The mention of Mars, Vulcan, and Venus, ll. 126—128, may also remind us of Chaucer's Complaint of Mars, and Complaint of Venus.

Lydgate was of course well acquainted with the Canterbury Tales; he himself aspired to add another to their number in his own Story of Thebes. The following of them are referred to in the Temple of Glas:

The Knightes Tale, in ll. 102—110, in which the monk mentions Chaucer's name expressly (l. 110). I have already said that the prayers of the three principal personages in the Knightes Tale bear a certain resemblance to those in the Temple of Glas. The conception of Lydgate's temple may have been somewhat influenced by Chaucer's description of the "theatre" built by Theseus (Kn. Tale, 1027 etc.); the line on Venus, Temple of Glas 53, is almost a literal transcript from Kn. T. 1098 (cp., however, also Hous of Fame, l. 133). Certain ideas and many lesser expressions are common to the two poems, as pointed out in the notes.[1]

Further, allusions are to be found to the Clerkes Tale, ll. 75 and 76, to the Squieres Tale, ll. 137—142;[2] to the Frankeleynes Tale, ll. 409 and 410, and to the Marchaundes Tale (ll. 184, 185), which latter has been imitated by Lydgate in his Story of December and July (see Halliwell, M. P., p. 27).

Lastly of Chaucer's works we may mention Troilus and Cressida. The notes will sufficiently show that many of the standard phrases of the monk come from this poem, especially those relating to love and lovers. The monk says of this poem in his well-known list of Chaucer's works in the Prologue to the Falls of Princes:

> (Chaucer) "Gave it the name of Troylous and Cresseyde, > Whiche for to rede lovers them delyte,
> They have therin so grete devocyon."
> (Morris's Chaucer, I, 79.)

Lydgate is also indebted to Gower's Confessio Amantis. First, Gower's representation of the Court of Love seems to have been present in a general way in his mind, as has been said above. More-

[1] Our monk also got the epithet "armipotente" for Mars, in the invocation at the beginning of the Troy-Book, from the Knightes Tale, 1124, or ib. 1583 (and compare the beginning of Anelida and Arcite). The Knightes Tale is twice alluded to in the Story of Thebes, fol. 372 d, and 377 c.

[2] I do not think that the wording of this passage warrants the supposition that there was more of the Squieres Tale written than is now extant (as suggested in Warton-Hazlitt III, 63, note 3); see Milton's Penseroso, and the continuation of our story in the Faerie Queene, book IV, and that by John Lane.

Digitized by Google

over, the allusion to the story of Phoebus and Daphne (ll. 111—116) seems to have been suggested by the Confessio, book III (ed. Pauli I. 336, etc.); so was certainly the story of Phyllis and Demophoon, the "filbert" tree, which seems to have been introduced by Gower (Pauli II. 30), occurring in Lydgate's poem, l. 90.[1]

We have furthermore to mention Martianus Capella, whose work, De nuptiis Philologiae et Mercurii is referred to in ll. 129—136. It may be questioned whether Lydgate was acquainted with the original; certain it is that the book was widely known in the Middle Ages; see Warton-Hazlitt, III, 77. Chaucer mentions it in the Marchaundes Tale, 488, and in the Hous of Fame, 985; Lydgate refers to it again in the Story of Thebes; see Warton, l. c., and Koeppel, Story of Thebes, pp. 25 and 74. Perhaps we must add to Lydgate's sources for the Temple of Glas Fulgentius, on account of l. 248; for in his Troy-Book (G_5 b) the monk tells us that this crystal shield of Pallas is a symbol of force in virtue,

"by manly hye diffence
Agayne vyces / to make resystence."

For this and other symbolical interpretations Lydgate gives "Fulgence" as his source, ib. G_5 c. In the same passage of the Troy-Book, the monk refers us also to Fulgentius with regard to the doves which he there attributes to Venus as in our Temple of Glas, l. 541. Cp. the notes to ll. 53, 248, 541.

§ 4. Resemblances in Later Works to the Temple of Glas.

After having spoken of the sources of the Temple of Glas and the motifs which it has in common with earlier works, it may not be out of place here to add a few words on some resemblances which we find to the Temple of Glas in certain of Lydgate's own works, and in works of later date than our poem.

Of all Lydgate's works, the Complaint of the Black Knight and the Flour of Curtesie are those which a perusal of the Temple of Glas recalls most vividly to our mind, both as regards tone and

[1] Koeppel, Falls of Princes, p. 97, has also pointed out an instance of Lydgate's dependence on Gower, namely in the monk's narrative of the story of Canace (Falls of Pr. I, 23). Lydgate mentions Gower very rarely; he does so, together with Chaucer, in the Court of Sapience a_2 a:

"Gower, chaucers, erthly goddes two . . .
I you honour, blysse, loue, and gloryfye."

And, again, in Falls of Princes, IX, 38, fol. 217 c:

"In moral matter ful notable was Gower."

Digitized by Google

imagery. As the Temple of Glas represents, with its introduction of the dream-motif, one of the popular forms of poetical frame-work, so in the Black Knight we have an example of the other species, opening with a description of the May-morning, and the poet's walk into the woods and by the river. Both poems begin with astronomical allusions; the lines dedicated to "Lucifer" (Black Knight, ll. 5—9) have moreover a close resemblance to ll. 253, 328—331, and 1355—1358 of the Temple of Glas. In both poems we find to a great extent the same mythical and allegorical personages (note particularly Daunger, Malebouche, and the filbert tree in the story of Phyllis), and the same phrases concerning lovers frequently occur in both (the mischievous "false tonges," the "access" hot and cold, etc.). The figure of the Black Knight is the double of the "hero" of the Temple of Glas; he is introduced and described precisely like the latter, and the Complaints of the two are much in the same strain. Both poems are dedicated, in the Envoy, to the poet's lady; one line (554) of the Black Knight is word for word the same as one which occurs twice in the Temple of Glas (424 and 879); also l. 623 of the first poem is nearly the same as l. 128 of the latter. A more minute analysis of the Black Knight, although by no means devoid of interest, would be out of place here; I can only state my opinion briefly that the form and contents of this poem are thoroughly Lydgatian, and even without Shirley's direct evidence (see p. lxxxiii), it would be emphatically clear that the poem is by Lydgate.

The Flour of Curtesie also begins with a joyous greeting to the morning (this time it is St. Valentine's day), and the poet's walk into the woods. The beginning at once pleasantly reminds us of the Parlement of Foules, nor are the astronomical embellishments wanting here. The two principal parts of the Flour of Curtesie are the poet's complaint on the obstacles to his love, and the description of his ideal Lady-love, the Flour of Curtesie. Both are much like their analogues in the Temple of Glas; the latter particularly, with its profuse comparisons of rubies, roses, and stars closely resembles certain lines of the Temple of Glas (cp. the notes to ll. 251 and 257—261). Lydgate has again managed, in spite of the small compass of the poem, to introduce his favourite personifications from the Roman de la Rose, Daunger, Malebouche, False Envie, and also "false suspection" (cp. Temple of Glas, l. 153). The names of famous women enumerated are to a great extent the same as those in the Temple of Glas; I would emphasize particularly the occurrence of Alceste,

Digitized by Google

Grisilde, and Dorigene. At the end of the Flour of Curtesie, Lydgate introduces a ballad in praise of his lady; in the Temple of Glas (l. 1381) he seems to express a similar intention, which, however, he does not carry out. Finally, in both poems, the monk makes mention of his master Chaucer, the closing stanzas of the Flour of Curtesie lamenting his death.

I will now proceed to discuss certain other works which bear some similarity to the Temple of Glas. We have spoken above of Stephen Hawes and his excessive admiration of Lydgate. We have also quoted Wood's assertion that he knew many of Lydgate's works by heart and could repeat them at will. Some lines of the Temple of Glas seem thus to have remained in his memory; there is, at least, a great resemblance between ll. 19—34 of our poem, and Hawes's lines (ed. Wright, p. 15):

"I loked about, and sawe a craggy roche . . . (cp. T. of Glas, l. 19)
And as I dyd then unto it approche . . . (l. 20)
. . . I sawe . . . The royall tower . . . Made of fine copper . . .
Which against Phebus shone so marveylously, (l. 21)
That for the very perfect bryghtnes,
What of the tower and of the cleare sunne,
I coulde nothyng beholde the goodlines (l. 27)
Of that palaice where as Doctrine did wonne;
Tyll at the last, with mysty wyndes donne, (l. 30)
The radiant bryghtnes of golden Phebus (l. 32)
Auster gan cover with clowde tenebrus."

Again, a good many parallels of minor importance are to be found between Hawes's poem and the Temple of Glas.

But, as far as I am aware, the two poems that bear the greatest family-likeness to the Temple of Glas are the Court of Love and the Kingis Quair. Tytler, in his edition of the Kingis Quair, p. 49, has already compared King James's poem to the Court of Love—"of Chaucer," he adds, a mistake which we can readily forgive him: he considered the spirit, not the language of the poem. If we are entitled to introduce the Temple of Glas into the family—as its weakest member, we willingly allow—then there would naturally also be a likeness between Lydgate's work and the Court of Love. And a comparison of the two latter poems proves this to be the case. The structure and extent of the Court of Love, the metre adopted, the allegories introduced, the progress of the action, and a great many direct verbal resemblances, remind us frequently of the Temple of Glas. Philogenet, the poet and hero of the Court of Love, enters the magnificent castle, where the King and Queen of Love, Admetus and Alcestis, have their residence. In it he finds a great throng of young and old people (ll. 110 and 111), servants to Love. Within this castle is the "temple" (l. 229), or "tabernacle" (l. 222), of Venus and Cupid, which shines "with wyndowes all of glasse" (l. 229), "bright as the day with many a feire ymage" (cp. Temple of Glas, l. 45): Dido and Aeneas, and Anelida and Arcite are given as representatives, of which Dido and Aeneas occur also in the Temple of Glas, the false Arcite of Thebes in the closely allied poem of the Black Knight (l. 379). Philogenet is "sore abasshed" to see such a crowd of people, who, "in here guyse" (Court of Love, l. 245, Temple of Glas, l. 537), sacrifice to Venus and Cupid (cp. Temple of Glas, ll. 531—544). He finds a beautiful lady, Rosiall (l. 767), whose description at once reminds one of the Lady in the Temple of Glas; Rosiall also, like the Lady, has on the green garments to which one of the scribes of our poem seems to have had an objection (Court of Love, l. 816, Temple of Glas, l. 299). Philogenet's prayer to Venus, l. 631, etc., and his "bille" to Rosiall, l. 841, etc., recall at once the Knight's prayer to Venus and his suit to the Lady. Rosiall's answer (ll. 890 and 891):

Digitized by Google

> "Truly gramercy, frende, of your gode wille,
> And of youre profer in youre humble wise"

has a verbal resemblance to that of the Lady in the Temple of Glas, l. 1060; lines 1016—1019 also, describing Rosiall's blushing, resemble Temple of Glas, ll. 1042 and 1043. The praise of Venus by the fortunate lovers (ll. 591—623) has the same ring as the joyous ballad at the end of the Temple of Glas. The various complaints of the lovers in the Court of Love are in part identical with those in the Temple of Glas; such as the complaints on "Poverte" (Court of Love, ll. 1137—1148, Temple of Glas, l. 159, etc.), and, particularly, the complaints of the priests, monks, and nuns (Court of Love, ll. 253—258, 1095, etc., Temple of Glas, ll. 196—208). The latter are sometimes worded similarly in the two poems; cp. Court of Love, ll. 1116 ("copes wide") and 1104—1106:

> "'Alas,' thay sayn, 'we fayne perfeccion,
> In clothes wide, and lake oure libertie;
> But all the synne mote on oure frendes be'"

with Temple of Glas, ll. 204 and 208. Lines 50—52 of the Temple of Glas should also be compared with ll. 575—581 of the Court of Love, and stanzas 25 b and 25 c (most likely spurious) in the first poem with ll. 582, etc. of the latter. Some of the allegorical figures in the Court of Love are identical with those in the Temple of Glas. So

Digitized by Google

Daunger and Disdeyne, mentioned together in l. 156 of Lydgate's poem, stand, in the Court of Love, near the King and Queen as attendants (ll. 129 and 130); further, Envie, mentioned in T. of Glas, l. 147, is described in two stanzas of the Court of Love (ll. 1254—1267); lastly, the dispute between Hope and Dispeyre, T. of Glas, ll. 641—661, has its parallel in the Court of Love, l. 1036, etc.

But as I have already indicated at the end of § 2, it is in particular the Statutes of the Court of Love which recur in a diluted form in the Temple of Glas, mostly in the exhortations given by Venus to the Knight, T. of Glas, ll. 1152—1213. The lover is admonished in the third of these statutes to be constant, true and faithful to his lady, and never "to take another love" (Court of Love, l. 316, etc.); the same injunction we find frequently in the T. of Glas; see ll. 1152—1158, 1124—1130; 1188; 1201; cp. also 999, 1005. The second of the statutes enjoins secrecy in love (C. of Love 309); cp. T. of Glas 1005, 1154; the fifth commands the lover "to turne and walowe" in bed and weep; cp. T. of Glas, ll. 1—3 and 12; the 6th, to wander alone and to be reckless of life and death; see T. of Glas, 550 etc. and 939; the 7th, to be patient; see T. of Glas 1203 and 1267, and lowly to obey his mistress (T. of Glas 1007, 1145 etc.); the ninth, never to be overbold or offend his lady (ll. 1013, 1025); the tenth, to ask everything from the mercy and pity of his lady, and never to demand anything as his right (T. of Glas 800 and 979); the 12th, to suffer mortal wounds (ll. 170, 1014); the 14th, to believe no "tales" (T. of Glas 1182); lastly, the 18th, not to be "sluttish," but always clean, "fresh," and courteous (T. of Glas 1166, 1167).

If thus the Court of Love, concerning the author and exact date of which we are so sorely puzzled, reminds us in many particulars of the Temple of Glas, the Kingis Quair, written, it would seem, some twenty years later than our poem, does so perhaps even more forcibly and directly.

This poem, justly famous for its intrinsic worth and the associations connected with it, nevertheless presents two different aspects of poetry, which illustrate in a striking manner the poetical currents of the time. We almost imagine, in the first part of the poem, and again at the end, that we hear Chaucer's own melodious voice once more, speaking to us of beauteous ladies, of the fresh May-morning, and the delightful song of the birds, whose charms alone could lure him away from his beloved books. But the more we feel delight in King James's poetry in the first part of his famous work, so much the more are we reminded, in the second part, of Goethe's famous words:

Digitized by Google

"Weh dir, dass du ein Enkel bist!"

This part, decidedly inferior to the first, is blighted throughout by the baneful influence of the allegorical plots so much in vogue at that day—from which, however, Chaucer wisely kept aloof in his ripest works—and even King James's brilliant genius could not take free flight under the pressure of those leaden wings. This part does not recall Chaucer, but Gower and Lydgate. It is true that, besides Chaucer, King James mentions Gower alone as entitled to his thanks;[1] but my impression is that he must also have read Lydgate. If I remember rightly, some resemblances are found in Reason and Sensuality to the Kingis Quair;[2] but, of all Lydgate's writings, it is the Temple of Glas of which we are especially reminded in reading King James's poem. The very first lines of it contain an expression which Lydgate seems to have originated, and perhaps, indeed, just in our present poem. We read in the Kingis Quair, stanza 1, ll. 3 and 4:

"And, In Aquary, Citherea the clere Rynsid hir tressis like the goldin wyre."

Skeat, in his notes, cites many instances of the notion of golden hair, but none which contains the exact comparison of hair to "golden wire." The latter is, however, a favourite phrase of Lydgate's, as the note to l. 271 will amply show, and, once started, this expression lived a long life down to the Elizabethan period, from Lydgate and King James through Hawes and popular ballads down to Spenser, Peele, and perhaps even Shakspere. I do not think it probable that such an expression should have been started twice independently. Unless, therefore, earlier instances of it come to light, I am inclined to believe that King James borrowed it from Lydgate.

[1] Prof. Schipper evidently quotes from memory in stating the contrary, see his Dunbar, p. 29. Henry Morley, indeed, makes King James finish up with an additional stanza in honour of Lydgate (English Writers, II, 453). Skeat, however, on p. 94 of his edition of the Kingis Quair, rejects this stanza, as obviously belonging "to some other poem"; and rightly so, for it is the closing stanza of Hawes's Pastime of Pleasure.

[2] Henry Wood, in Chaucer's Influence upon King James I., p. 25 (also in Anglia, vol. III, 223 etc.), compares Kingis Quair, stanza 116, and Troy-Book, lib. III, cap. 24 (beginning):

"Whan Aurora the syluer droppes shene,
Her teares, shad vpon the freshe grene;
Complaynyng aye in weping and in sorow
Her chyldrens death euery somer morowe."

He also points out (p. 31) a general likeness between Kingis Quair, stanza 154—158$_2$, and Black Knight, l. 36 etc.

Digitized by Google

But, more than this, there is in part of the Kingis Quair great resemblance of subject-matter to the Temple of Glas. This similarity begins at stanza 73, where King James feigns to have been carried up to the Temple of Venus, an episode much resembling part of our poem. Stanzas 82—93, in particular, cover the same ground as ll. 143—246 of the Temple of Glas, both passages containing the complaints of various conditions of lovers, who present their "billes" to Venus. King James's complaint to Venus and her answer to him are much in the same style as the complaint of our Knight and Lady to the goddess and Venus's reply. Portions also of Minerva's answer to King James recall expressions used by Venus in the Temple of Glas; compare, for instance, Kingis Quair, 129, with stanza 55 of Lydgate's poem.

Further, special instances of resemblance occur in the following passages: Stanzas 88—90 of the Kingis Quair, and lines 196—206 of the Temple of Glas; particularly stanza 90 and ll. 207 and 208; stanzas 91 and 92 and ll. 209—214; stanza 93 and l. 151; stanza 134 and ll. 215—222; stanza 137 and ll. 167 and 168; stanza 144, 1 and 2, and ll. 1061 and 1062. Many more verbal resemblances will be pointed out in the Notes; I would only observe here that "gude hope" is James's guide to Minerva (cp. Temple of Glas, 892 and 1197).[1]

The names of the lovers in the Temple of Venus, enumerated in Lydgate's poem from ll. 55 to 142, are not given by King James, as, to use his own words, of their

> "chance maid is mencioun
> In diuerse bukis, quho thame list to se;
> And therefore here thaire namys lat I be."
> (Kingis Quair, 78, 5—7.)

As instances of the "diuerse bukis" which King James had in mind, Professor Skeat mentions, besides Ovid, the three well-known lists in the Man of Law's Prologue, the Legend of Good Women, and in Gower's Confessio Amantis (ed. Pauli III, 359). I think we may boldly add the Temple of Glas to the books enumerated by the learned commentator of the Kingis Quair.

[1] If King James wrongly inferred from Troilus (1st stanza of Canto 1 and last stanza of Canto III) that Tisiphone was a Muse, Lydgate's frequent invocation of that "Muse" was quite calculated to keep this error awake; see Temple of Glas, l. 958 and Note.

Digitized by Google

CHAPTER X.

Style of the Temple of Glas.

I PURPOSE, in this chapter, to treat of certain characteristics of Lydgate's, which I would handle collectively under the comprehensive heading "Style," although some of them might more properly be assigned a place in Chapter VI on the language, or Chapter IX on the sources and borrowed motifs of the Temple of Glas.

We have already stated, in discussing the authorship of the Temple of Glas (see p. lxxxiv), that the style of this poem is essentially the same as that of Lydgate's other works. Drawled-out and incompact, are the first epithets which one would most readily apply to the style of the monk's productions. His sentences run on aimlessly, without definite stop, and it is often difficult to say where a particular idea begins or ends. One certainly has the impression that the monk never knew himself, when he began a sentence, how the end of it would turn out. He knows little of logic connection, or distinct limitation of his sentences, and the notion of artistic structure, by which all ideas form, in mutual interdependence, an organic whole, is entirely foreign to him: what is uppermost in his mind comes to the surface without further consideration of the context; for a moment he may lose sight of the first idea when something fresh turns up, to resume it again as soon as his new thought leaves him. Compare, for instance, the list of the lovers, from ll. 55—142. In his enumeration, he is evidently only guided by the inspiration of the moment, according to which he either gives a brief summary of the story, or merely indicates it. After line 77, and particularly after 91, one imagines that he is about to close his list, as we find an apparently concluding phrase; but the expected finale turns out to be a delusion, for meanwhile Paris and Helen have flashed across his mind, which sets him going once more in the old strain, on the principle of "The more, the merrier." The same applies to the lengthy list of the complaints of the various lovers, from l. 143—246. He adds one set of complaints after another, just as they occur to him, and as the rhyme may require, so long as he can think of any; nor does it matter much to him if he says similar things twice over.

He is especially in his own element whenever he can bring in long sermons and moralizations. Then showers of commonplaces, proverbs, and admonitions rain down upon us, the fruits of his extensive reading swelling the vast store of his own commonplaces. In our poem, this natural propensity of the monk is most apparent in the speeches of Venus, who, in this character of a pedantic moralizer, occasionally appears to us in a very philistine aspect.[1] More commendable, however, is the zeal with which our monk allows his pen free flight, when he comes to a passage which inspires him with unusual fervour. Then he lets loose the floodgates of his eloquence, and a whole deluge of epithets and images is showered down upon us. Such is usually the case when he comes to a turning-point in his story, or when he wishes to present us with a lively description of Nature, or a portrait of a personage in whom he is especially interested. In our poem, he found unfortunately no opportunity for bringing in one of his famous pictures of Nature, but he more than makes up for it in what he evidently considered the chef-d'œuvre of his poem, the description of his lady. For this, every imaginable simile and comparison is raked up from every possible quarter, and he heaps together sun and stars, May, roses, balm and rubies; it is a wonder how ever Nature could make such an angelic creature; her hair shines like Phœbus' beams, and the entire temple is illumined by her; and, in addition to all this, he winds up with a whole string of womanly charms and virtues in her praise. The "πλέον ἥμισυ παντός" evidently never dawned upon our monk.

Digitized by Google

It is nevertheless in this vitiated, overwrought style that he is at his best, as the good intention of heaping every beauty and virtue upon his ideal lady, or his sincere love of Nature, makes him sometimes really a poet. The worst of it is that he often loses his way and becomes entangled in his own sentences, by reason of overmuch zeal in setting forth what impresses his mind most strongly. The consequence is that the anacoluthon is exceedingly common in all Lydgate's writings. Now, an anacoluthon may be a fine thing—I have always, for instance, admired the one in Hamlet, before the Prince first sees his father's ghost;—but, in Lydgate, it does not usually heighten the beauty of the passage—at all events, if it ever

[1] Brugari, in a little pamphlet on Chaucer, has a quaint remark concerning the position of Venus in certain poems of this period: "Venere in tutta questa letteratura è degradata e rassomiglia ad una vecchia douairière pensionata e collocata a riposo" (Jeffrey Chaucer e la Letteratura Inglese del secolo xiv, p. 13). Similarly Godwin, Life of Chaucer, III, 256, has: [The poets of chivalry] "superannuated her [Venus], and substituted another [Alcestis], as the active and administering divinity, in her room."

Digitized by Google

does, it must be by a tremendous fluke. What it certainly does, is to make the punctuation very difficult for the editor, especially as it is often impossible, in the monk's interminable sentences, to define with certainty whether we have to do with an anacoluthon. An undoubted oversight of this kind has, however, crept in unawares into his masterpiece, the portraiture of his lady; for it seems impossible to construe ll. 271 etc. grammatically. The same may be said of ll. 548 etc., 563 etc., 603 etc., 614 etc.; stanzas 42, 43, 44, 50, etc. There is, however, no instance of the anacoluthon in our poem quite so bad as the beginning of Guy of Warwick, where, as Professor Zupitza says (Sitzungsberichte der Wiener Akademie, Phil.-Hist. Klasse, 1873, vol. 74, p. 665), not only the predicate of the sentence is wanting, but the subject as well.

We may also note here that sometimes direct and indirect speech flow together in a very careless manner, as in ll. 509 and 510, and in ll. 376 and 377. Our monk apparently here at first intended to give only a few words of reply, for which indirect speech might conveniently be employed; but he changed his mind, and when once in full swing, it is no easy matter to stop him.

Parallel to this carelessness in language, is the monk's inconsistency in depicting his ideas. Thus we first hear of his assemblage of lovers as being painted on the wall, whilst later on we have clearly to do with living personages. Venus herself is first spoken of as "fleting in þe se," evidently in a picture on the wall (l. 53); then, in l. 249, her "statue set on height" is mentioned, before which the Lady kneels to pray, and, throughout the rest of the poem, we find her addressed as a living being, and speaking and acting as such. If we had to do with a poet who can hold his ideas together, we might try and reconcile the discrepancy; but, in the present case, it arises simply from Lydgate's well-known laisser-aller and general muddle-patedness.—In the same manner, also, his mode of expression in the last lines of the poem is unclear, and of the several "treatises" mentioned in ll. 1380 and 1387, it is difficult to know which is which. Such a slight inconsistency as the ὕστερον πρότερον in ll. 33 and 39, where he sees the inside of the temple before entering it, of course hardly counts with our monk.

If, however, heathen and Christian ideas are heaped together in a very incongruous medley, the monk is less to blame for it than the general taste of that period. For this feature is exceedingly common throughout the Middle Ages, and is especially in accordance with the notions prevailing at the time of the Renaissance. We meet with more or less grotesque confusion of this kind in Dante, Boccaccio, the Italian Humanists, Chaucer, Gower, Camões, etc. In the same way it mattered little to our monk whether he invoked a saint, the Virgin Mary, or a heathen goddess; he did it all in one and the same strain. In our poem Lydgate speaks of "orisouns" to Venus (l. 460), of an "oratory" in her temple (l. 696), and when the scribe of the Pepys MS. once (l. 577) changes tempil into cherche, the alteration is not out of keeping with the general tenour of the poem. The greatest absurdity, however, committed by our monk himself, is that Venus cites the example of "holy saints," who won heaven through their suffering; but this is more than matched by the Kingis Quair, in which Minerva quotes Ecclesiastes (see the passage in the Note to l. 1203), or by Bishop Gawain Douglas, in whose Palice of Honour a nymph of Calliope's train expounds the scheme of redemption.[1]

Digitized by Google

We need not be greatly astonished that a rhyme-maker of Lydgate's order of mind should make ample use of expletives, pleonasms and certain stock-phrases occurring again and again; in fact, if we consider how often a poet like Chaucer has recourse to such means, we wonder that Lydgate does not go still further in that respect. Some of the expressions he uses as a make-shift to fill up the line—mostly also Chaucerian—are the following: Shortli in a clause, 536; shortli to conclude, 545; forto reken all, 579; if I shal not lie, 73; if I shal not feine, 911; what shal I lenger tarie, 1297; þer is no more to sein, 1325; some of his set phrases: for wele or (for) wo, 517, 783; bope in cold and hete, 512; doumb as eny ston, 1184; stil as eni stone, 689; trw as eny stele, 866; constant as a walle, 1153; favour or be foo, 519. Sometimes he repeats whole lines which form favourite stock-phrases; thus l. 385 is the same as 1295, and l. 424 the same as 879. Paraphrases by means of a relative—

[1] Other incongruities and anachronisms, at which we cannot forbear a smile, occur in the following passages, where Lydgate calls Orpheus a "poet laureate" (Falls of Princes, 32 c), and Gabriel the "secretary of God" (Life of our Lady, fol. e_3 b); the Parcæ are made to keep the library of Jove (Falls of Princes, 27 d); Mercury is chamberlain, secretary and chief notary to Phœbus (R. & Sens., 225 a); Pythagoras is chief clerk to govern the library of "Arsmetryk" (Pur le Roy, Halliwell, p. 11); Ganymede, Jove's "butler," and of Venus the monk says (R. & Sens., 222 a):

> "For she doth leden and eke guye
> The amerouse constablerye."

Sometimes, however, I believe Lydgate must have seen the joke himself, as Chaucer certainly did when he made Pluto quote Solomon (Marchaundes Tale 998).

Digitized by Google

for instance: stormes þat be kene for kene stormes (l. 515); cloudes þat ben blake (l. 613)—often help him through, and meaningless little words, such as so, as, gan and other similar stop-gaps, also serve to fill up his line.

To return, however, to points of more general and further-reaching interest than the monk's individual make-shifts to get his lines right, we must first notice the traces found in the Temple of Glas of the allegorical style so much in vogue at that time. Professor Ward, in his History of Dramatic Literature, I, 56, calls the English an allegory-loving people, and rightly so, no doubt, if we bear in mind Piers Ploughman, Chaucer and his school, Hawes, the Moralities, and above all Spenser, Bunyan, and Swift. Lydgate certainly was acquainted with those of the above-mentioned works which existed at his time; all the instances, however, of allegory, or rather personification, in our present poem, seem to go back, more or less directly, to the Roman de la Rose.[1] In that poem excessive prosopopœia forms a distinctive feature, and many of its personifications became exceedingly popular with the English poets. So, in numerous passages of our poem (ll. 156, 646, 652, 739, 776), we meet with the great bugbear of the Roman de la Rose, Dangier, who guards the rose-tree from all assailants; in l. 153 we have also a distinct allusion to Dangier's comrade, Malebouche, called Wikked-Tonge in the English translation (see also stanza 25 b, l. 7). Other such personifications—nearly all of them started by the Roman de la Rose—are the following: Hope (641—686, 736, 892, 1119, 1197) and its opponents Drede (631—686, 893, 1119, 1198), Dispeire (656, 895, 1198), Wanhope (673, 895), and Disdain (156, 218); further, Reason

[1] Reason and Sensuality, especially, has in many points a distinct connection with the Roman de la Rose; the French poem is directly named on folio 268 b, etc. (MS. Fairfax 16), and the monk says of its author:

"He compiled the romaunce,
Callyd the Romavnce of the Rose,
And gañ his processe so dispose,
That neuer yet was rad noo (read nor) songe
Swich a nother in that tonge,
Nor nooñ that in comparysouñ
Was so worthy of renouñ,
To spekyñ of Philosophie,
Nor of profounde poetrie:
For sothly yet it doth excelle
Al that ever I herd of telle."

This admiration, in his earlier days, for the Roman de la Rose did not, however, prevent Lydgate from translating, without any comment of his own, Deguileville's severe censure of it in the Pèlerinage de la vie humaine, MS. Cott. Vit. C. XIII, fol. 201 a, etc.

Digitized by Google

(878); Riches 175, Tresour 176, Poverte 159; Mirth and Gladnes 190; croked Elde 182, 187; þe serpent of fals Ielousie 148 (see also stanza 3 b, and 25 a, l. 7); Suspecioun 153; Envie 147;[1] Covetise 244, Slouth 244, Hastines 245, Reklesnes 246; see also, particularly, stanza 58 and 59. In more than one of the above instances it is, however, difficult to say whether we have to do with a distinct and conscious prosopopœia.

Another feature of some prominence in our poem is the occurrence of expressions which had arisen from the astrological beliefs of the time. Every planet was supposed to be guided by the heathen god whose name it bore, and star and god were, in the language of the period, often entirely identified. So Venus in our poem is directly addressed or spoken of as a "star" or "planet," etc., see ll. 326, 328, 715, 835, 1097, 1341, 1348, 1355. The "aspects" of the planets are described as "benign," l. 449, or "fierce," l. 1236, and their effect is accordingly beneficial or pernicious. The proper word to express the working of the planets upon human destiny is the word influence, of particularly common occurrence throughout these centuries; so also in the Temple of Glas, ll. 718, 885, 1330; Chaucer, in one place (Man of Law's Tale, l. 207), introduces the corresponding Arabic word at-ta'thīr (infinitive of second stem of 'athara, with prefixed article).

Quite in accordance with the style of the age are likewise the portions of the poem referring to love and lovers. As already indicated, the idea of a Court of Love runs through the whole poem; Cupid deals his dreadful stroke (l. 984), and Cupid and Venus keep the books (ll. 1238, 1136, 1234) in which the good and evil deeds of every lover are registered. The poor lover has, indeed, a hard time of it. He is the "man" and "servant" of his lady, and desires to be nothing beyond that; the wounds inflicted by his lady's "casting of an eye" are always fresh and "green"; his blood rushes to his heart, making him "pale and wan"—the favourite aspect of a man "daunted" by Cupid; he is in a continual "access," now hot, now cold, constantly swoons and falls down, and is altogether nearly killed. In fact, we hear from the mouth of our lover himself (l. 634) that he is murdered and slain at the least. Now there is appropriateness in the hyperbole of Harpagon's "Je

[1] The seven deadly sins appear to have been particularly often personified at that time; Lydgate himself introduces them thus in the Assembly of Gods, b7 b, following, it seems, Prudentius' Psychomachia; and they come, of course, also in his translation of Deguileville's first Pilgrimage.

Digitized by Google

suis tué, je suis tué," after his money-box has been stolen, or in the cowardly "hada mhi, hada mhi" of Kâlidâsa's Vidûshaka; but in the case of our innocent though long-winded lover it seems hard lines that Cupid should go so far as to kill him straight off, and, indeed, murder and slay him at the least. We involuntarily ask, if to be murdered and slain is the least that befalls him, what would be the most?

Another similarly absurd way of putting the case is that our lover assures us—evidently with a view to refute those who might not believe it—that he has a mouth (l. 823), with which he is, however, unable to speak. Yet this ridiculous phrase seems not to have been uncommon at the time; see note to l. 823. But among all these absurdities, the palm must certainly be awarded to line 117, where the monk represents as changing his "cope" for the purpose alluded to. Leopold von Schroeder, in his History of Sanskrit-Literature, has aptly drawn our attention to the significant fact that all nations represent their gods as being similar to themselves in appearance and occupation, and he adduces the characteristic instance of the compilers of the Yajur-Veda, who, impressed with the all-importance of their interminable sacrifices, finally make their own gods priests operating with the sacrificial ladle. So our monk, being himself vested in the black cope (see the Prologue to the Story of Thebes), would clothe the "father of gods and men" with the same garment, and the outcome of this "false analogy" is, mighty Jove enthroned on Olympus in a monk's cope.

"Κρονίωνα πεπασφόρον ἅρπαγα νύμφης"

Another feature characteristic of Lydgate is his self-deprecatory vein. He very frequently introduces modest excuses and phrases; he willingly grants that the Muses did not preside over his cradle, that he knows nothing of the flowers of Tully, that Jove's butler, Ganymede, deals his liquor very sparingly to him (Prologue to the Pilgrimage of Man, and Envoy to Edmund), and that he never slept on the hill of Parnassus; he complains of his "dulnesse" and asks Calliope to "redress" it; he excuses himself that he is "born in Lydegate,"[1] and that thus his English is not the best; his metre, also, he is afraid, may be found wanting, and he even does not

[1] "I wil procede furth with white and black,
And where I faile, let Lidgate beare y^e^ lack."
Falls of Princes, 217 d.

Digitized by Google

hesitate to run down his own character and manner of life.[1] I have already alluded to his particular mania of ending his poems by an appeal to the reader, or the addressee of his envoy, to correct his poem; for he knows well, as he himself says at the end of the Troy-Book (fol. Dd, b), that

> "moche thynge is wronge
> Falsely metryd / bothe of short and longe."

Similar requests to correct his verses are found, besides in the Troy-Book, in our Temple of Glas, in the Æsop (Anglia, IX, 2, 46), in the Legend of Austin (Halliwell, p. 149), and elsewhere; see note to l. 1400. In one case he says:

> "If ought be mysse in worde, sillable or dede, > Put all defaute upon John Lidgate."[2]

Similarly in Guy of Warwick, 73, 7. 8, he has:

> "Yif ought be wrong in metre or in substaunce, > Putteth the wyte for dulnesse on Lydgate."

Yes, certainly, on whom else?

Almost invariably hand in hand with the demand to correct him, goes the expression "litel boke" bestowed by the monk on his poems in the envoys. Lydgate forgot many a favourite phrase of his youth, when, in later years, the Falls of Princes too sorely tried his spirits; but to this particular one he clung most tenaciously. We should have thought the monk might have been content to call the 20,000 lines of the Pilgrimage,[3] or the 30,000 of the Troy-Book a "litel boke." But no; after he has tired us out with nearly four myriads of verses of the dullest description in his Falls of Princes, he has once more, at the end, the coolness to say in his envoy (fol. 218 c):

> "With letters and leaues goe litle booke tremblyng."

I need hardly add a word on our envoy (ll. 1393—1403), as such terminations occur in dozens and dozens of poems of the time. Nor is indeed self-deprecation, even in its absurd exaggeration, uncommon

[1] Cp. his Testament, and Troy-Book, Dd, b:

> "Monke of Burye by professyon,
> Usynge an habyte of perfeccyon,
> Albe my lyfe accorde nat therto.
> I feyne nat, I wot well it is so;
> It nedeth nat wytnesse for to calle:
> Recorde I take of my brethren alle,
> That wyll nat fayle at so great a nede."

[2] Stans Puer ad Mensam. I have not yet seen the paper by F. Burhenne, which undertakes to prove that this poem is spurious (s. Mitteilungen zur Anglia, 1890, p. 221).

[3] See MS. Cott. Vit. C. XIII, fol. 257 a.

Digitized by Google

in those days. Skeat, Man of Law's Tale, p. xxv, quotes Dunlop's History of Fiction (3rd ed. 1845, p. 247), who says of Ser Giovanni's Pecorone (the "Dunce"): "a title which the author assumed, as some Italian academicians styled themselves, Insensati, Stolidi, &c., appellations in which there was not always so much irony as they imagined." The immediate sources, however, of Lydgate's self-deprecatory phrases seem to be Chaucer's humoristic excuses for possible shortcomings; for instance, the familiar ones in the Hous of Fame, l. 1098, and at the end of Troilus (V, 1872), and I may add, Lydgate's personal modesty, especially when he measures himself with his great master. We have seen above how Lydgate himself is apt to fall into absurdities in his handling of these phrases; but they come to sheer stupidity in their treatment by Lydgate's imitators. Thus one of them (MS. Fairfax 16, fol. 309 a) complains that the Pierides do not favour him "dull ass." Chaucer is here, as always, the graceful humourist, Lydgate the ungraceful imitator, and our anonymous aspirant at the laurels of Parnassus—"such as he said he was."

CHAPTER XI.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

After these strictures on Lydgate's absurdities it is only fair that we should also hear the other side. If we needed only the laudatory testimony of a successive line of poets, historians, and critics to prove that Lydgate was a great poet, we could, indeed, for this purpose marshal a long and proud array of names. I have spoken above of Hawes's craze for his favourite author, and of Shirley's verses in honour of Lydgate; I may further mention, among the less conspicuous admirers of Lydgate, Bennet Burgh, the continuator of the Secreta Secretorum, Bradshaw (Life of Saint Werburge II, 2023), Feylde (Controversy between a lover and a jay, Prol. 19—21), Bokenam (Legends I, 177; II, 4, 612; VI, 24; XIII, 1078) and Ashby, Active Policy of a Prince (see Morley, English Writers, 2nd ed., VI, 161). To proceed to greater names, King James I. was, as we attempted above to make probable, acquainted with his writings; Skelton frequently introduces him together with Chaucer and Gower (Philip Sparrow 804—812; Garland of Laurel 390, 428—441, 1101); Sir Thomas More evidently imitated him in his early poems, and the great triad of later Scotch poets never fail to mention him in connexion with Chaucer (cp. Dunbar, Golden Targe 262—270, and Lament for the Makaris 51; Douglas, Palice of Honour, ed. Small, I, 36, 11; Lyndsay, Papyngo, Prol. 12). In the Elizabethan times, even at the close of the period, Lydgate's name was far from being forgotten. In Tarlton's Seven Deadly Sins he appeared before the Elizabethan public as speaker or chorus (like Gower in Pericles), see Boswell's Malone, 1821, III, 348 etc.; Richard Robinson, in the Reward of Wickednesse, 1574, places Googe on Helicon with Lydgate, Skelton and others (Dictionary of National Biography, under Googe); later on, John Lane, in his continuation of Guy of Warwick, again introduces Lydgate as speaker of the prologue and epilogue. Camden praises him very highly indeed,[1] the Polimanteia (fol. R_3 a) and Beaumont (Chaucer, ed. Speght, 1598) mention him honourably, and but little doubt can be entertained that even Shakspere himself read Lydgate. The Story of Thebes was repeatedly printed between 1561 and 1687, together with Chaucer's works, and even the two longest poems of the monk were reprinted after the middle of the 16th century (the Troy-Book in 1555 by Marsh, the Falls of Princes, 1554, by Tottel, and again, 1558 (?) by Wayland). The authors of the Mirror for Magistrates continue his longest and dullest production, and the man who, in 1614, took the trouble to re-write the Troy-Book in six-line stanzas, and the publishers who issued it, must have had no mean opinion of the value of that book. Nay, even a hundred years later, we find the highest compliments paid to Lydgate. Dart, the modernizer of the Black Knight—which he, it is true, believes to be Chaucer's—says in his preface (1718) that he thinks this Complaint "the best design'd of any extant, either Antient or Modern, . . . the Thoughts in the Speech natural, soft, and easy, and the Hint for Invoking Venus, and the Invocation inimitable." It even seems that this Complaint of our "inimitable" Lydgate biassed Dart not a little in proclaiming its supposed author to be "the greatest Poet that England (or perhaps the World) ever produc'd."

Digitized by Google

More than one name of good repute might also be adduced to testify that the Temple of Glas is far from being the meanest work of our "brillant (sic) disciple de Chaucer."[2] I have above quoted

[1] "Nec procul dissitus est Lidgate viculus, qui hoc nomine neutiquam tacendus, quòd in lucem Ioannem Lidgate monachum ædiderit, cuius ingenium ab ipsis Musis effictum videatur, ita omnes Veneres & elegantiæ in suis Anglicis carminibus renident" (Britannia, 1607, p. 336).

[2] So is he called by L. Constans, La Légende d'Œdipe, p. 368. Tame also, Life of Our Lady, p. iv, speaks of his "brilliant genius."

Digitized by Google

the excessive praise bestowed upon this poem by a poet laureate (see p. xiii). Warton's criticism was fully endorsed by Dibdin I, 309 note: "Whoever may be the author of it (the Temple of Glas), its intrinsic merits are very great; as the reader will be convinced by a careful perusal of the brilliant extracts given by Warton." Hill, De Guileville . . . compared with . . . Bunyan, p. 35, finds a "decided similarity" between the preamble of the Temple of Glas and Dante's Inferno. He compares, in particular, l. 14 to Dante's words:

> "I' non so ben ridir com' io v' entrai;
> Tant' era pien di sonno . . ."—(Inferno I, 10).

I must confess that in reading the poem for the first time, I myself was also vaguely reminded, by certain lines such as stanza 1, 2, 117—119, l. 716, of the Divina Commedia. But this does not go to prove much for the value of the poem, and even less for the supposition that Lydgate had read the Divina Commedia; for such lines as 329, 330; 1355, 1356 also reminded me vaguely of the hymns to the Açvins in the Veda, which latter were, most likely, unknown to Lydgate. Further, Mrs. Browning says that the Temple of Glas forms, with Piers Ploughman, the Hous of Fame, and Hawes's Pastime of Pleasure, one of the "four columnar marbles, on whose foundation is exalted into light the great allegorical poem of the world, Spenser's Faerie Queene (Book of the Poets, in E. B. Browning's Greek Christian Poets and English Poets, p. 123). I do not think that the text of our poem bears out this statement; if any one of Lydgate's writings may be regarded as a forerunner to the Faerie Queene, it would be the Court of Sapience, which seems to have served Hawes as a model.[1]

I do not claim such a high place for the Temple of Glas as Warton and Mrs. Browning. But I think we may fairly allow it some small amount of poetical merit. It may be that Shirley is right in his statement that Lydgate wrote the poem "a la request dun amoreux;" for the monk had, all his life, patrons enough: Henry V., Henry VI., Humphrey of Gloucester, the Earl of Warwick, the Earl of Salisbury, Lady March, etc., representing the proudest names among them. And if it is true that our monk wrote the poem with the view of celebrating the union of a certain knight and his lady, we must admit that the machinery he introduces is prettily conceived. The poet takes up the current motif of a vision, and by this means brings his [1] By a closer investigation the following pedigree might perhaps be made out—of course, with regard to certain features only—: Martianus Capella—Anticlaudianus—Court of Sapience—Pastime of Pleasure—Faerie Queene.

Digitized by Google

knight and lady, as the most prominent pair among the famous lovers of history and mythology, into the magnificent temple of Venus, where the goddess of Love herself unites them. Of course, our monk does not omit to adorn both with all imaginable excellences, and the picture of the Lady is one of the brightest of any in Lydgate's works. The rejoicing in the Court of Venus, ending in a ballad which makes the whole temple resound with the praises of Venus Urania for her graciousness to the lovers, leaves an impression at once vivid and pleasing upon the reader's mind. We can at all events understand the long-enjoyed popularity of our poem in an age which fully appreciated this its brighter side, and perhaps even found the weaker parts to its taste. If I add to this that our poem belongs to the few of Lydgate's works which are not directly taken from a foreign source, but that it exhibits, at the most, some traces of the poetical currents of the day, and especially of Chaucer's genial influence, I think I have said about all that can be brought forward in its praise.

I have above pointed to a general family-likeness, and a number of minor resemblances between the Temple of Glas and the Kingis Quair. I must not be understood, however, to wish for one moment to compare the Kingis Quair and its right royal author to our monk and his glass-temple. For although the second part of the Kingis Quair reminds one of Lydgate, and although many passages could be adduced from certain writings of Lydgate which would almost be a match for some of the finer parts of King James's poem, yet I know full well that there is another side to be considered in this question, namely, the subjective as well as the objective. Two-thirds of the poetry of the Kingis Quair lie in King James himself, his person and fate, his capture, his love, and death. Manly strength and undaunted courage—exhibited in the cause of justice—have seldom been combined in one man with that exquisite tenderness of feeling with which the royal Stuart wooed and won his lady, and the graceful gift of song with which he immortalized it. It is the consciousness of its reality and of a tragic fate lurking behind its sunny pages that gives the Kingis Quair an incomparable interest, and raises many a passage into poetry which otherwise would be flat and meaningless. In what light has subsequent history placed the following passage from it:

> "And thus this floure, I can seye [ȝou] no more,
> So hertly has vnto my help attendit,
> That from the deth hir man sche has defendit" (Kg. Qu., 187, 5—7),

Digitized by Google

the absurd counterpart of which we had to criticize severely in Lydgate! It is this personal interest which appeals to us so strongly in the Kingis Quair: the royal poet has in reality loved the beauteous lady of whom he sings, he has made her his queen, and she has defended him in that last terrible struggle, when the "noblest of the Stuarts" had to fight for his life. And, moreover, the kindly feeling displayed by the noble prince towards everything surrounding him, animate and inanimate Nature, and the gratefulness with which he thanks the nightingale, the roses, the hedges, Gower, Chaucer, and all the saints of March for their help, win our hearts irresistibly. All these qualities would alone be sufficient to make the Kingis Quair a book of uncommon interest, and as the poetry is occasionally truly beautiful, it will remain a pearl in English literature for ever and ever.

Pour revenir à nos moutons! Although the two poems, in spite of many resemblances, are not for one moment to be compared as regards poetical value or interesting associations, the above discussions have I hope at least shown that a better knowledge of Lydgate's works would greatly contribute to the elucidation of the more illustrious of his contemporaries, "who sang together at the bright dawning of British poesy." The monk's name will certainly be of frequent occurrence in commentaries on Chaucer, Gower, and King James, when the principal of his works are more easily accessible. There is, in the investigation of Lydgate, a wide field for work open to the student: editions, treatises on the sources, the language, the metrics, the text-criticism, the chronology, and also the genuineness of certain poems affording ample material to the philologist, whatever his particular bent may be.

I have spoken above, in the preliminary remarks, of the most important work done in this direction, and, in Chapter IX, § 1, have also pointed to some desiderata towards the elucidation of the monk's sources. I may add here that a re-publication of the smaller poems, as edited by Halliwell, would be very welcome; it would have to omit the spurious poems[1] given by Halliwell, and to collect those not contained in this first edition; its text, of course, would have to be based throughout on critical principles. A not uninteresting col-

[1] Also those that form part of larger works of Lydgate's, as the "Moral of the Legend of Dido" (Halliwell, p. 69), which is identical with the Envoy to Chapter II, 13 of the Falls of Princes, and "A Poem against Idleness" (Halliwell, pp. 84—94), which consists of Falls of Princes II, 15 (beginning with the second stanza), followed by II, 14 and closing with the Envoy to II, 15.

Digitized by Google

lective volume might then be formed by a critical edition of Lydgate's somewhat longer poems in the epic, or lyric-epic genre, such as the Black Knight, Chorl and Bird, Horse, Goose, and Sheep, etc.; of the latter Halliwell (Minor Poems, pp. 117—121) and Furnivall (Political, Religious and Love Poems, pp. 15—22) unfortunately only give parts, and the reprint of the whole for the Roxburghe Club from a faulty print, is scarce enough. The Æsop, Guy of Warwick, and the story, De duobus Mercatoribus, belong also to this class. A good critical edition of the Dance of Macabre, or of the Testament, would likewise be very desirable.

To speak of Lydgate's larger works, I should consider an editor of Reason and Sensuality[1] as more fortunate than myself; for this poem appears to me to be by far the finest of all Lydgate's productions. The editor would have to settle definitely the question of the authorship; I can only mention here that there is amongst others Stowe's evidence for its being Lydgate's. The text-criticism would be very simple, as there are apparently only two MSS., Fairfax 16 and Stowe's Add. 29729, of which the first presents a very fair text indeed. The investigation of its sources would be highly interesting, and, if anything definite could be brought to light as to the time of its origin, such a date would be of great importance for the right understanding of Lydgate's development as a poet. Another important contribution would be a treatise on the Troy-Book, with respect to which many questions have to be settled: the classification of the numerous MSS. and Prints, the way in which Lydgate follows Guido di Colonna, the assignment to it of its right place in the literature of the mediæval Troy-Saga; its popularity in the Elizabethan time, the authorship of its modernized form, as printed in 1614, and the question as to exactly how much Shakspere took from it, furnishing ample material for research. The Prolegomena would, I suppose, be a good deal more interesting than the edition itself; but, perhaps, some unusually courageous philologist will also one day undertake this; and then he had better at once set about the Falls of Princes into the bargain. Previous researches in the text-criticism of at least parts of these two big works would make the matter considerably easier, and not tax the patience of one individual too sorely.

Further, it would be no thankless task to compile a good and clearly-put treatise on the two Pilgrimages, and to settle their author-

[1] Skeat, M. P., p. xii, l. 9, means this poem, and quotes from it on p. 349, where he has the title.

Digitized by Google

ship, their relation to the French original, etc. Lydgate's last work, the Secreta Secretorum, with its curious lore—not poetry, I must add—might induce a scientist among the philologists to publish it and compare it with other poems based on the same grounds. Perhaps Dr. Horstmann will one day reprint the Life of our Lady in full, and tell us something definite about its date. An edition of the Serpent of Division would be interesting as a specimen of Lydgate's prose, and even more in its connection with Gorboduc; perhaps the careful investigator would find that it was not unknown to Shakspere.—Of the forthcoming editions of the Story of Thebes, De duobus Mercatoribus, and the Court of Sapience I have spoken above, and from the prospectus of the Early English Text Society I see too that it has an edition of the Pilgrimages in view.

I need hardly mention that a careful and exact bibliography is one of the greatest desiderata for Lydgate-literature. And now for my bone with Ritson. We are usually referred to his list of 251 "works" (Bibliographia Poetica, p. 66, etc.) as the "fullest and best" account and synopsis of the monk's literary productions. I call this "fullest and best" list an Augean stable of disorder, glaring mistakes and inextricable confusion. For first, this appallingly tedious medley is arranged according to no apparent principle whatever, neither of chronology, nor length, nor importance, nor genre, nor anything else. Ritson's intention seems, indeed, to have been to enumerate the printed works first (No. 1—36); but this is a ridiculous division, the best copies of the first numbers being, of course, also as a rule in the MSS. Moreover, this pretended classification is a mere delusion; for—to give only one or two examples—the very next number 37 is also in print, forming part of the Falls of Princes; No. 11 is Parvus Catho, No. 54 Magnus Cato; but in the very print by Caxton mentioned in No. 11, Magnus Cato is of course also included, etc. etc. The whole list is a thoughtless jumble copied without understanding from headings of MSS. and entries in Catalogues, and from earlier writers whom Ritson reviles with the utmost impertinence, whilst at the same time transcribing and distorting their statements with a coolness sans pareil. Ritson says he believes his list to be the completest that can be formed "without access, at least, to every manuscript library in the kingdom, which would be very difficult, if not impossible, to obtain," thus implying hypocritically that he at least consulted the libraries easily accessible to him. But a consultation of the British Museum or the Bodleian alone would have been more than sufficient to prevent the incredible mistakes which I have here to expose. Indeed the worst of them he ought surely to have avoided without any library at all. Nobody but Ritson would want access to "every library in the kingdom" to know the Canterbury Tales! Of Bale, who has also, it is true, serious mistakes in his list, Ritson says: "but it is the constant practice of that mendacious prelate to split one book into several."[1] Let us see what Ritson himself does.

Digitized by Google

First, he has made two works of the Secreta Secretorum, which he mentions in No. 36; in No. 52 they come again as "Regimen principum," sive "De Aristotele & Alexandro," called also "The booke of all goode thewes, and Secreta secretorum." Again, he has made two works of Albon and Amphabel, which he mentions under No. 7; but under No. 249 he has once more: Vita S. Albani martyris ad J. Frumentarium abbatem. Similarly, of Æsop's Fables:—the "notable proverbe of Ysopus in balade, made in Oxford (canis & umbra)" in No. 44 is part of No. 45: "Isopes fabules." Further, of the Testament, which he mentions under No. 33; but in No. 214 we read: Christ a lamb offered in sacrifice: "Behold o man, lift up thy eye and se"; this is in reality part of the Testament, occurring in Halliwell, p. 259. Also of the "Dietary," Nos. 55 and 61 belonging to the same poem; see Halliwell, M. P., p. 66; Skeat, Bruce, p. 537. Again, No. 58 "Of a gentlewoman that lived with (read loved) a man of great estate," is the same as No. 110: A love balade: "Allas i woful creature," printed by Halliwell, p. 220, as "A Lover's Complaint," and declared to be altogether spurious by Koeppel, Falls of Princes, p. 76, note. Then, No. 22 of our "learned" Ritson's list: "A balade of gode counseile, translated out of Latin verses," is identical with No. 62: "Consulo quis quis eris, &c." "I counceile whatsoer thow be," and No. 84 is again the same: Balade of wysdome: "Counseillyer, where that ever thou be." Besides this, our "accurate Ritson" has made three works (at least) of the Court of Sapience; namely, No. 12: "The werke [or Court] of Sapience," and No. 225: "The court of sapience in heaven for redemption of mankind"; further, No. 51: The vision:

[1] To adduce an instance, which Ritson omits to do—he almost invariably gives again in his own list these split-up books, enumerated as separate works by Bale—: Leland, Collectanea II, 428, has: "John Lidgate, monke of Byri, made a treatise of king Athelstan, and Gui of Warwike that slew Colbrond the Dane." Bale has, as three separate articles (pp. 586 and 587): "Vitam regis Ethelstani; Acta Guidonis Vuaruuicensis; De Guidone & Colbrando."

Digitized by Google

"All busy swymmyng in the stormy floode" (Harley MSS. 2251) is nothing else than the beginning of the Court of Sapience, after the Prologue. We have again three separate works made of the Life of our Lady, in No. 5: "The lyf of our lady"; No. 8: "Part of the life of the virgin Mary," etc., contained in the Pilgrimage of the soule, printed by Caxton (on this see Introduction, Chapter VIII, p. ci); further, in No. 187 we have: On the same subject [i. e. In praise of the virgin Mary]: "O thoughtful herte plunged in distresse." But these words are actually the beginning of the Life of our Lady. Sometimes these mistakes are very complicated and difficult to unravel. Compare No. 158: "Moralisation of a fable how the trees chose them a king." Sauerstein, Ueber Lydgate's Aesopübersetzung, p. 13, believes that Ritson refers to the beginning of Chorl and Bird, a not unlikely supposition in itself. This is, however, not the right solution. Ritson saw in MS. Ashm. 59, fol. 34 b, the following entry by Shirley: "þan folowęþe howe a notable moralisacioñ made by Lidegate of a fabul poetical. howe trees chose hem a kyng bytwene þe þe [sic] Ryal Cydre of þe hye montayne and þe thowthistell of þe lowe valeye. þis moralisacioñ is in þis same boke to-fore." Thus Shirley was on the point of copying over again a piece already transcribed a few pages back in his MS., namely No. 3, on fol. 16 b: "þis moral Epistel sent kynge Amasias to kynge Johas made by . . . . Lidegate"; but Shirley saw his error, did not transcribe a second time this epistle to[1] Amasias, and proceeded to copy a new piece. Thus Ritson's No. 158 is a mere imaginary shadow. Nor is this epistle to King Amasias itself a separate work, although Ritson, in No. 72, has put it down as one; it is nothing else but part of Book II, Chapter 16, of the Falls of Princes.

We have again a complete muddle in Ritson's Nos. 13, 112, and 113. No. 112 reads: "Play at the chesse between Reason and Sensualitie"; No. 113: "Banket of gods and goddesses, with a discourse of reason and sensualitie": "To all folkys vertuose" (Fairfax, MSS. 16: Royal MSS. 18 D II.); No. 13: "The interpretation of the names of the goddes and goddesses"; printed by W. de Worde. Two works are totally confused in these three numbers. MS. Fairfax 16 contains Reason and Sensuality (No. 112), beginning "To all[e] folkys vertuose"; Royal MS. 18 D II contains the "Assembly [or Banket] of Gods"; No. 13: "The interpretation of the names of the gods" is a printer's addition to the Assembly of Gods, on the

[1] Not from Amasias; see the Falls of Princes II, 16, and Kings II, 14, 9.

Digitized by Google

title-page of that work, to render the heathen names more familiar to the reader. See Chapter VIII, p. cix. So much for learned Ritson's account of Lydgate's best work, which of course he had never even seen. This number 113 is, by the bye, not the only one which exhibits a tendency of Ritson's to make up for his chorizontic work; in No. 213 also two distinct works are mixed up: "A saying of the nightingale touching Christ": "In June whan Titan was in Crabbes hede" (Caligula. A. II. & the Harley MS. 2251); as has been said above, on p. xcv, the poems in the two MSS. are two distinct works.

But we have not yet done with Ritson's feats in "splitting up one work into several." Of the Legend of St. Edmund and Fremund he has made at least four works; in No. 243, "The martyrdome of saint Edmunde" is put down as one work; but No. 244: A poem on the banner and standard of St. Edmund: "Blyssyd Edmund, kyng, martyr, and vyrgyne," is equivalent to Edmund I, 1 (Prologue) in Horstmann's edition; No. 245, "A ballad royall of invocation to saint Edmond at thenstaunce of kynge Henry the sixt": "Glorious master [read martir], that of devout humblenesse" [read, of course, humblesse], is nothing but Legend of Edmund, Book III, ll. 1456, etc. No. 247, Vita sancti Fremundi martiris, constitutes Book III of Edmund and Fremund. No. 246: Miracula S. Edmundi may stand as a separate work; see above, p. cvii. But Ritson's masterpiece in "splitting up" is his account of the Falls of Princes. These are first cited as number 2 in his list. But then we have besides this, in No. 37: "De rege Arthuro"; in No. 38: "De ejus mensa rotunda"—both numbers thoughtlessly copied from Bale. They are, of course, one and the same, and form Book VIII, Chapter 24 of the Falls of Princes; MS. Lansdowne 699, fol. 50 b, gives "Arthurus Conquestor" as a separate work. That No. 72, identical with No. 158, "Morall epistle sent [from] kynge Amasias to kyng Johas" forms part of the Falls of Princes (II, 16), I have already mentioned. No. 93: Of poverty: "O thow povert, meke, humble, and debonayre," is I, 18 (stanza 4, etc.) of the Falls of Princes. No. 73 reads: "Epistle of vartuous ensines eschewing idlenesse"; this I suppose is nothing else but II, 15 of the Falls of Princes, also printed as "A poem against Idleness" by Halliwell, pp. 84—94 ("Two maner of folkes to put in remembraunce"); it may, however, also be that it is the same poem as Ritson's No. 141. I am not sure whether No. 117 etc. of the list are also taken from the same passage of the Falls of Princes. Lastly, in No. 17 we have the

Digitized by Google

"Proverbes of Lydgate" (on the Falls of Princes) printed by Wynken de Worde. The very title of Wynken ought to have shown Ritson that these proverbs would, in part at least, be taken from the Falls of Princes.[1] So the Falls of Princes come at least about seven or eight times in Ritson's list. We see that "mendacious" Bale's feats in splitting up are very poor performances indeed as compared with those of "accurate," "learned" Ritson.

But this is not all. Ritson ascribes to Lydgate any number of early English pieces, the titles of which he happens to have come across: thus the Assemblee of Ladies (No. 27), Remedie of Love (No. 29), Craft of Lovers (No. 30), Childe of Bristow (No. 42), De fabro dominam reformante (No. 44), the "Coventry Plays" (No. 152, see Halliwell, p. 94), "Dantis opuscula," "Petrarchæ quædam" (No. 159, 160, copied from Bale), etc., etc., are all by Lydgate! In No. 38 he attributes the Siege of Jerusalem to Lydgate, forgetting that on p. 24, No. 6, he had already ascribed it to Adam Davie. He sometimes also attributes spurious writings to Lydgate, and then again splits them up into two; we have noted this already in the case of No. 58 and 110; we have further in No. 53: Vegetius de re militari, and again in No. 144: "De arte militari." We also find Bennet Burgh's translation of Cato among Lydgate's pieces, again split up into Parvus Catho, No. 11, and Liber magni Catonis, No. 54.

But the worst is yet to come. In No. 21 we have: "Balade of the village without paintyng." This is, of course, Chaucer's Ballade of the visage without painting. No. 206 reads: Another [i. e. poem in praise of the Virgin Mary]: "Almighty and almerciable qwene." Of course, Chaucer's A. B. C. In No. 85, Ritson has the Complaynt d'amour. Prof. Skeat says that the poem is by Chaucer; it forms No. XXII. in his edition of Chaucer's Minor Poems. Here, indeed, it is possible that Ritson may not be wrong. But it would [1] That these "Proverbes" were not entitled to be put down as a separate work of Lydgate's, the identification of the contents of Wynken's print will clearly show: "Go kysse y^e^ steppes" . . . = Falls of Princes, fol. 218 c (the three last stanzas); "Sodeyne departynge" . . . = Falls of Princes I, 1 Envoy (5 stanzas); then follow Chaucer's Fortune and Truth; further: "The vnsure gladnesse" . . . = Falls of Princes I, 12 Envoy (4 stanzas); "Vertue of vertues" . . . = Falls of Princes IX, 31 Envoy (9 stanzas); "Myn auctour" . . . = Falls of Princes VI, 15, stanzas 1, 30, 39—47; "This tragedye" = Falls of Princes V, 25 Envoy (4 stanzas). Then follow the two poems: "I Counseyll what so euer thou be," already amply represented in Ritson's list, as No. 22, 62 and 84 (in Halliwell, Minor Poems, pp. 173—178, called "The Concords of Company"), and "Towarde the ende of frosty Januarye" = Ritson 99 (in Halliwell, Minor Poems, pp. 156—164, with the title "A Poem against Self-love").

Digitized by Google

be a rash conclusion to think that any merit in the case belongs to Ritson; he has merely copied Tanner. No. 28, "A praise of women," is printed in Morris's Chaucer, VI, 278; cp., however, Skeat, Minor Poems, p. xxvi. No. 31: "A balade teching what is gentilnes" is, I suppose, again Chaucer's work. But Ritson's supreme ignorance of Chaucer becomes most transparent, when we look at Nos. 46 and 235 of this "fullest (full, indeed!) and best" list of Lydgate's works. No. 235 reads: Vita Sancte Cecilie: "The ministre of the (read and) norice unto vices." Of course, this is the Second Nun's Tale! No. 46: "Tale of the crow." The precedence of "accurate, learned" Ritson also induced Sauerstein to regard this "Tale of a Crow" as a fable by Lydgate; but Zupitza, in the Deutsche Litteraturzeitung 1886, col. 850, showed that this "Fable," "little known and never published," was in reality Chaucer's well-known and somewhat frequently published Maunciples Tale. Ritson, I suppose, had heard that Lydgate's Story of Thebes was intended to form an additional Canterbury Tale, and so the "learned" reviler of Warton seems to have thought Lydgate must also be the author of those which one usually ascribes to Chaucer. I am in justice bound to add that "accurate" Ritson makes up for this by attributing works of Lydgate to Chaucer; but I am afraid that the Black Knight is but a poor compensation for some half dozen of Chaucer's poems.

And here I think I had better stop. It would go far beyond my knowledge and patience to set all Ritson's errors right, or even to find them all out; I have here merely censured his more glaring and obvious mistakes. I would only add that Ritson's references are very often faulty, and always exceedingly poor; in the case of many of the most interesting works they are only conspicuous by their absence. Of course, Ritson never even saw many of Lydgate's principal works; much less did he know anything of their contents. He found it easier to revile the monk than to know him: reviled he must be, for Warton had praised him.

Still, after all this, I owe some thanks to Ritson. It is for having himself put into my mouth the very words which constitute the truest criticism on him. I myself could have found none so appropriate as the following, with which Ritson sums up his arrogant attack on Warton, who was in every way his superior.

"I have at length, Mr. [Ritson], completed my design of exposing to the public eye a tolerable specimen of the numerous errors, falsities, and plagiarisms of which you have been guilty in the course of your celebrated ["fullest and best" list of Lydgate's works]. And, though I am conscious of having left considerable gleanings to any who may be inclined to follow me, I trust I have given you much reason to be sorry, and more to be ashamed. . . . . Your indolence in collecting and examining materials; and, beyond every thing, your ignorance of the subject, should have prevented you from engaging in a work which [requires, if certainly no vast amount of genius, yet care, diligence, and learning]; in which, whatever might be your progress, how uninformed soever you might esteem the bulk of your readers, you were certain, at last, of encountering detection and disgrace."

Digitized by Google

These words are literally taken from Ritson's "Observations on . . . the History of English Poetry" (by Warton), p. 47; the words in brackets only replace such words as are, indeed, applicable to Warton's great History of English Poetry, but not so to Ritson's bibliographical gallimaufry.

The least thing we expect from a list of an author's works is an insight into the extent of his productions; but this is certainly impossible in Ritson's list. I should not point out the self-evident absurdity of putting little trifles of a few lines only, on a level with the Falls of Princes or the Troy-Book, if I had not, in ever so many books, met with the number 251 given as the fixed and sacrosanct number of Lydgate's "works." Such a method of proceeding gives a most inadequate idea of the monk's productions, the combined length of two particular works out of the list being more than all the remaining 249 put together. The truth is this. There are two or three works of the monk's, translated by the command of the Court, which indeed exceed all ordinary limits. I mean, of course, the Falls of Princes, consisting of nearly 40,000 lines, the Troy-Book of about 30,000, and the Pilgrimage of Man, of some 22,000 or 23,000. The subjoined list enumerating the monk's principal works, together with the number of lines they respectively contain, will I hope be welcome to the reader:[1]

[1] In some cases, the number of lines is only roughly estimated, by multiplying the number of pages with the approximate average number of lines contained on one. Had I counted line for line, the result would again have only been approximate, as lines are sometimes wanting in the MSS., etc.

Digitized by Google

Falls of Princes	36,316	lines	(cp. Köppel, F. Pr., p. 87).
Troy-Book	about 30,000	,,	(Ward, Catalogue I, 75).
Pilgrimage of Man ...	,, 22,000	,,
Reason and Sensuality	,, 7,400	,,
Life of Our Lady	5,936	,,
Albon and Amphabel ...	4,724	,,
Story of Thebes	4,716	,,	(Ward, Cat. I, 87).
Edmund and Fremund ...	3,693	,,
Court of Sapience	2,282	,,
Assembly of Gods	2,107	,,
Secreta Secretorum	1,484	,,	(+ 1239 by Burgh).
Temple of Glas	1,406	,,
Æsop	959	,,
De duobus Mercatoribus ...	910	,,
Testament	897	,,
Dance of Macabre	672	,,
Horse, Goose, and Sheep ...	658	,,
Guy of Warwick	592	,,
Pur le Roy	544	,,
Legend of St. Margaret ...	540	,,
December and July ...	520	,,
Miracles of St. Edmund ...	464	,,
Legend of St. Austin	408	,,
Chorl and Bird	386	,,
Legend of St. Giles	368	,,
Flour of Curtesie	270	,,
	Total 130,249	lines.

Hereto we have to add the smaller poems, especially those in Halliwell, which are not comprised in the above list, and possibly also a number of pieces of doubtful authenticity. We are, however, at all events, not far from the truth, if we say that the number of lines our monk produced, is, in round numbers, 130,000—140,000. There are, as we see, three works of indeed stupendous length, which betray their origin in one of those "collegiate establishments, where the patient monk, in the ample solitude of the cloister, added page to page, and volume to volume, emulating in the productions of his brain the magnitude of the pile he inhabited."[1] There are, further, some four or five works of no mean bulk, and, again, some four or five of less significant length, some dozen of a few hundred lines only, besides numerous smaller pieces. I hope that the above synopsis I have given will at least prevent the repetition of the absurd statement that the monk wrote 251 "works." In comparison with the coryphæi of prolific production—take Lope de Vega as an example—our monk is but an innocent baby, and even among the "drivellers" of our 19th century, called Novel-Writers,[2] who are the nearest

[1] Washington Irving, London Antiques.

[2] Henry Morley, English Writers II, 424 note, wishes to rebut the accusation of tediousness often laid against Lydgate, with the fact that when he was one of the novel-reading "boys" in the British Museum Library, a MS. of brethren to Lydgate I can think of, he would be one of the more harmless delinquents.

Digitized by Google

To sum up, I certainly shall not subscribe to the insipid eulogies of a Shirley, a Burgh, or a Hawes; I find Warton's praise far too high, and in some cases even ten Brink's, or Koeppel's, well-tempered commendation of Lydgate's better-known works somewhat beyond the mark. But neither, on the other hand, do I endorse the slighting remarks of Pinkerton and Pauli, and still less do I mean to act the advocatus diaboli, by joining in Ritson's Billingsgate. It certainly does not occur to me to claim for Lydgate a place in the realms of higher poetry; but I think we must allow that not unfrequently do we meet in his better works, especially in those of his youth, with passages which breathe true poetry, or at all events, lie on the borderlands of true poetry. There is certainly many a felicitous line and many a poetical sentiment or piece of imagery to be found in his works that would not deface the finest page of a true poet. Moreover, his love of Nature, his humour, his earnest piety,[1] his admiration of his betters or of genius beyond his reach—always tendered ungrudgingly—the love of his country, his national pride,[2] his high reverence for woman, cannot fail to win our hearts; certainly these qualities incline us to forgive much.

Ten Brink, in his History of English Literature, and Professor Minto in his Characteristics of English Poets, have some admirable remarks showing that many of the monk's most prominent faults arise from his being an epigone of greater masters; our motto at the head of the second part of the Introduction will have shown that we judge of many of Lydgate's peculiarities from the same point of view. There cannot be, moreover, the slightest doubt that Lydgate's commissions from the Court, resulting, amongst other productions, in his two most bulky works, had a baneful influence upon his further Lydgate, with a long saints' legend, was as pleasant to him as Tylney Hall or Peter Simple. Sir W. Scott calls Hawes "a bad imitator of Lydgate, ten times more tedious than his original"—which, be it said by way of parenthesis, means not a little.

[1] Especially in the Life of our Lady and the Legend of Edmund.

[2] Compare Lydgate's amusing rebuke of Boccaccio, whom he pays out soundly for having slighted his dear Albion (the passage refers to the battle of Poitiers, and the capture of King John):

> "Hys fantasye nor hys opinion [Boccaccio's]
> Stode in that case of none auctorite:
> Their king was take, their knightes did[e] flee;
> Where was Bochas to help them at such nede?
> Saue with his pen he made no man to blede."
>
> Falls of Princes, fol. 216 a and b.

Digitized by Google

development. I believe that the scales will be decidedly turned in Lydgate's favour, and ten Brink's comparatively high opinion of the monk still further justified, when certain of his works which lie as yet unpublished in various libraries are made generally accessible. Then it will appear more and more clearly that, in estimating him as a poet, the stress should not so much be laid on the unoriginal and spun-out rhymes of his later age, but rather on the more spontaneous and animated productions of his earlier years. The best turn we can do Lydgate—and ourselves in studying him—is certainly to leave the nauseating tirades on Fortune in the Falls of Princes, and the soporific speeches in the Troy-Book alone, and to take up one of his earlier and more attractive works—such as Reason and Sensuality, which we put down with real regret at its unfinished state. Of works of the first stamp we say with Taine: "On s'en va et bâille," while those of the second are sure to engage our interest. At all events, in criticizing Lydgate's abilities, we must not lose sight of one fact which will always incline us to a mild judgment:—as Lydgate has often and justly been praised for his reverence of woman, let me express it in the words of an accomplished woman:[1] "When he ceased his singing, none sang better; there was silence in the land."

CHAPTER XII.

THE APPENDICES.

I. The Compleynt.

I HAVE already, in Chapter III, § 1 and Chapter IV, § 1, sufficiently expressed my opinion concerning these lines which MSS. G and S give as a continuation of the Temple of Glas. I ought perhaps to apologize for the publication of such worthless rhymes; but I need hardly assure the reader that it was not as a pleasure that I resolved upon the printing of them. When I first came upon this Compleynt in the London MS., it was, I confess, with many a deeply-heaved sigh to Apollon Apotropaios that I perused it; but the piece turned up again in the Cambridge MS. Gg. 4. 27, which, with S, formed a conspicuous group by itself, and therefore it had to be printed, were it only for the sake of the text-criticism.

The date of this "Compleynt" cannot be much later than that of the Temple of Glas; I should think, it is about 1420 or 1430.

[1] El. Barrett-Browning, Book of the Poets, 1863, p. 121.

Digitized by Google

Later than 1430 we cannot make it, since it occurs in MS. G, which is one of our oldest texts, and supposed to be written about that date. We have also distinct reminiscences of Chaucer in the poem. I mean the allusion, in ll. 394—437, to the worship of the daisy-flower, which reminds us at once of the Prologue to the Legend of Good Women.

Line 575 may also be a reminiscence from Anelida 211:

"So thirleth with the poynt of remembraunce" . . .

The evidence of the language is quite in accordance with the above date. In fact I do not see any remarkable discrepancy between the language of the Compleynt and that of Lydgate. The rhymes, although often faulty from Chaucer's standpoint, nevertheless agree with Lydgate's principles of rhyming. That the poem is not northern, we see at once by rhymes like abod : stod, 207; oones : sones, 619. We have further the rhyme y : ie in l. 86: mercy : dye; l. 447: dayesye : pryvyly; further, trespas : grace 603; mynde : finde 39; but also mynde : ende 287; fyr : cler 607; deye : preye 625; eye : espye 183; recure : endure 93; further, dysdeyn : peyne 89; ageyn : peyne 407; seyn : peyne 615; holde : cold 305; among : vndyrfonge 171 (or have we to read amongë? cf. stanza 25 c, l. 6); whether sloo : foo, l. 295, is a Lydgatian rhyme, I am at present unable to say.[1] In ll. 395, 396 we have only an assonance; Shirley's reading, however, differs here from G.

Moreover, the inflexions, as shown by the metre in the middle of the line also, are exactly the same as in Lydgate. The ratio of the number of instances in which the final e is sounded, to those of its apocope, at the end of nouns—of Teutonic or Romance origin—and in the conjugation of the verb is very much the same as in the Temple of Glas. I speak with diffidence of the metre, as I have not analyzed Lydgate's four-beat line with the same care as his five-beat one. If there are many more monosyllabic first measures in the Compleynt than in the Temple of Glas, this need not surprise us; for in the four-beat line a trochaic beginning has not an unpleasant effect on the ear, and consequently it is also frequently used by poets with an unmistakably fine perception for rhythm. Lydgate himself has this acephalous type very often, as the perusal of any one page of Reason and Sensuality will amply show.

But in spite of all this I cannot help thinking that the Compleynt

[1] The form sloo occurs in the rhyme in the Siege of Jerusalem, and more than once in the Romaunt of the Rose (ll. 1953, 2593, 3150, 4592).

Digitized by Google

not only has nothing to do with the Temple of Glas, but that it is not Lydgate's production at all. The piece is so thoroughly stupid. Now Lydgate's poetry was, it is certain, only occasionally inspired by Apollo and the Muses, but I do not think that I have read anything so wretchedly poor as this in his acknowledged works. The only piece of Lydgate's that reminded me slightly of it, is the poem on Thomas Chaucer's departure for France.[1] But even that is not quite so miserable a production as this Compleynt, and besides, it is contained within merciful limits.

There was little doubt as to which MS. was to be chosen as the basis of the text, G being older and evidently better than S. Where G is deficient, we had to rely on S; the text is then sometimes hopelessly corrupt. In no case am I a great advocate of conjectural emendations; in the instance of these silly rhymes it would certainly have been ridiculous to deliberately sit down and try one's ingenuity in improving upon them.

I need hardly add that the principles adhered to with respect to punctuation, orthography, etc., are the same as those I have followed in the Temple of Glas itself. The headlines and the short summary of the contents on p. 58 were done by Dr. Furnivall.

II. The Duodecim Abusiones.

In the description of the Prints, in Chapter II, I have spoken of the errors and disputes which exist with respect to the Prints of the Temple of Glas by Caxton and Wynken de Worde. It is not always easy to see which particular print Herbert and Dibdin mean; but these Duodecim Abusiones, occurring in W, W_2, w and b, and given as specimens (with the beginning of the Temple of Glas) by Herbert and Dibdin, help to make their statements clearer.[2] It was therefore with the view of enabling the reader to judge for himself which print the historians of Typography meant in each respective case, that I thought it advisable to subjoin Appendix II. The text is taken from W, i. e. Wynken de Worde's first edition of the Temple of Glas, which has been faithfully reproduced, with the addition of stops only. All the variations of W_2, w and b are given, including even those of mere orthography.

[1] I fully concur in Dr. Furnivall's opinion that Thomas Chaucer was not the son of Geoffrey, as expressed in Notes and Queries, 1872, May, p. 381 etc. Lydgate would not have let this opportunity slip of introducing an allusion to his "master."

[2] Unfortunately, their orthography (even Herbert's) seems anyhow to be somewhat incorrect, whatever print they used.

Digitized by Google

But I hope the present reprint will also serve another purpose. A very important task of Chaucer-philology is the critical analysis of Stowe's Chaucer-print of 1561, the object of which must be to eliminate the supposititious works, and to assign, as far as possible, each of the spurious pieces to its real author. Now these Duodecim Abusiones appear also in this Chaucer-print (on folio 336 d), that is to say, the two English stanzas only without the Latin text. They have been reprinted in Bell's Chaucer, ed. Skeat IV, 421, and again in Prof. Skeat's edition of Chaucer's Minor Poems, Introduction p. xxix. Skeat has pronounced his opinion as to the authorship with great decision: "Surely it must be Lydgate's," and I think he is right. The appearance of the Abusiones in the above-mentioned prints, annexed as they are to a work of Lydgate's, can only tend to strengthen the learned Professor's supposition.[1] I have added the few variations of importance (not the orthographical ones) of the earlier Chaucer-prints.

There are similar pieces to these Duodecim Abusiones in earlier English literature (see ten Brink, Geschichte der englischen Lit., I, 268, and note). The "twelf unþêawas" existed also in Old-English; a homily on them is printed in Morris, Old English Homilies, p. 101—119. It is based on the Latin Homily, "De octo viciis et de duodecim abusivis huius sæculi," attributed to St. Cyprian or St. Patrick; see Dietrich in Niedner's Zeitschrift für historische Theologie, 1855, p. 518; Wanley's Catalogus, passim (cp. the Index sub voce Patrick). In the Middle-English period we meet again with more or less of these "Abusions"; see Morris, Old English Miscellany, p. 185 (11 Abusions); Furnivall, Early English Poems, Berlin 1862 (Philological Society), p. 161: "Five evil things"; Wright and Halliwell, Reliquiæ Antiquæ, I, 316 and II, 14.

[1] In another case, which concerns a work of Lydgate's in Stowe's Chaucer-print, Skeat is on the right track, without however arriving at the ultimate conclusion. I mean the passage in M. P. XLVI, top of page. The poem on the "Fall of Man" in MS. Harl. 2251 is part of Lydgate's Court of Sapience.

Digitized by Google

The Temple of Glas.

For thouȝt, constreint, and greuous heuines,
For pensifhede, and for heiȝ distres,
To bed I went nov þis oþir nyȝt,
Whan þat Lucina wiþ hir pale liȝt
Was Ioyned last wiþ Phebus in aquarie,
Amyd decembre, when of Ianuarie
Ther be kalendes of þe nwe yere,
And derk Diane, ihorned, noþing clere,
Had [hid] hir bemys vndir a mysty cloude:
Wiþin my bed for sore I gan me shroude,
Al desolate for constreint of my wo,
The long[e] nyȝt waloing to and fro,
Til at[te] last, er I gan taken kepe,
Me did oppresse a sodein dedeli slepe,
Wiþ-in þe which me þouȝt[e] þat I was Rauysshid in spirit in [a] temple of glas—
I nyst[e] how, ful fer in wildirnes—
That foundid was, as bi lik[ly]nesse,
Not opon stele, but on a craggy roche,
Like ise Ifrore. And as I did approche,
Again þe sonne that shone, me þouȝt, so clere

In heaviness and distress I went to bed the other night, when Sun and Moon were last in conjunction in mid-December.
A long while restless, I at last fell into a deep sleep, in which I was carried in spirit into a Temple of glass, far in a wilderness, on a craggy rock, frozen like ice.
As I approached, methought

For the titles in the various MSS. and Prints, see the Introduction. 1. For thouȝt] For through W2. Throughe w. b. constreint] compleynt G. S. 2. pensifhede] pensyfnes w. great thought b. 2d for] om. L. Pr. distres] pensyuenesse b. 6. Amyd] Amiddes S. 7. nwe] newe come S. 8. ihorned] horned and Pr. 9. Had] om. L. b. hid] om. T. P. F. B. C. W. W2. w. 10. sore] feyr P. colde L. Pr. 13. atte] at the L. P. G. S. at T. B. Pr. er] as S. til P. gan] began C. 14. oppresse] expresse L. dedeli] dede L. 15. þat] om. Pr. (exc. b.) 16. spirit] scripture F. in] into S. L. Pr. a] om. T. W2. w. 17. nyst] nyst nought S. ne wist L. ne wyste w. b. fulfer] fer S. Pr. in] into S. 18. as] all w. b. liklynesse] liknesse T. F. B. L. 19. on] vpon B. L. S. a] om. G. S. 20. Ifrore] afrore P. 21. that shone me þouȝt] me thoughte I saw G. me thought hit shoone S. me þouȝt] om. Pr. so clere] as clere G. als clere S.

Digitized by Google

the Temple shone clear as crystal against the sun: the light shone so dazzlingly in my face,

As eny cristal, and euer nere and nere
As I gan neigh this grisli, dredful place,
I wex astonyed: the liȝt so in my face
Bigan to smyte, so persing euer in one
On euere part, where þat I gan gone,

that I could perceive nothing,

That I ne myȝt noþing, as I would,
Abouten me considre and bihold,
The wondre *estres, for briȝtnes of þe sonne;

till at last some dark clouds drifted before the sun,

Til at[te] last certein skyes donne,
Wiþ wind Ichaced, haue her cours Iwent
To-fore þe stremes of Titan and Iblent,

so that I could see all around me.

So þat I myȝt, wiþ-in and with-oute,
Where so I walk, biholden me aboute,
Forto report the fasoun and manere

This place was circular, round in shape.

Of al þis place, þat was circulere
In compaswise, Round bentaile wrouȝt.

After I had long sought, I found a wicket, and entrid in as fast

And whan þat I hade long gone & souȝt,
I fond a wiket, and entrid in as fast entered quickly.

Into þe temple, and myn eiȝen cast

I cast my eyes on every side,

On euere side, now lowe & eft aloft.
And riȝt anone, as I gan walken soft,
If I þe soth ariȝt report[e] shal,

and saw pictured on the walls images of sundry lovers.

I sauȝe depeynt opon euere wal,
From est to west, ful many a faire Image
Of sondri louers, lich as þei were of age
I-sette in ordre, aftir þei were trwe,
Wiþ lifli colours wondir fressh of hwe.

22. 1st nere] the nerre P. 23. gan] cam C. b. 24. wex] was L. 25. persing] passynge w. b. 26. euere part] yche apart S. gan] koude S. om. W2. w. dyde b. 28. me] me to P. Between 28 and 29 are the following two lines in S:

And many a story / mo þan I reken can, (= line 91)
Hem to rehers / I trowe þer might no man.

29. wondre] wondreful S. wonders b. estres] hestres T (hestrys L.) 30. atte] at the P. L. G. S. att B. at T. w. b. skyes] kyes P. donne] doone L. 31. Ichaced] chased Pr. haue] than w. and b. Iwent] went G. S. 32. To-fore] þo for S. Before b. 33. and] and eke P. S. 34. Where so] Wher that P. walk] wolde G. Pr. 35. report] report the report P. 36. þis] þat S. 37. In] I W2. w. Off P. Round] om. P. 38. þat] om. P. Pr. hade long] longe hadde G. long] longher P. long gone] goon longe S. gone] om. W2. w. b. souȝt] well sought b. 39. fond] founded L. 41. &] om. C. and now W. W2. w. b. 43. ariȝt] ryght P. 44. euere] a Pr. 45. ful] om. S. Pr. 47. I-sette in] Sett by S. aftir] lych as G. after that as P. right as S. 48. wondir] wonders b. of hwe] & new B.

Digitized by Google

And, as me þouȝt, I sauȝe somme sit & stonde,
And some kneling wiþ billis in hir honde,
And some with compleint, woful & pitous,
Wiþ doleful chere to putten to Venus,
So as she sate fleting in þe se,
Vpon hire wo forto haue pite.
And first of al I saugh þere of Car[ta]ge
Dido þe quene, so goodli of visage,
That gan complein hir aduenture & caas,
Hov she deceyued was of Eneas,
For al his hestis & his oþis sworne,
And said: 'alas, þat euer she was borne,'
Whan þat she saugh þat ded she most[e] be.
And next I saugh the compleint of Medee,
Hou þat she was falsed of Iason.
And nygh bi Venus saugh I sit Addoun,
And al þe maner, hov þe bore him slough,
For whom she wepte & hade pein Inouȝe.
There saugh I also, hov Penalope,
For she so long hir lord ne myȝt[e] se,
Ful oft[e] wex of colour pale & grene.
And aldernext was þe fressh[e] quene,
I mene Alceste, the noble trw[e] wyfe,
And for Admete hou sho lost hir life,
And for hir trouth, if I shal not lie,
Hou she was turnyd to a dai[e]sie.
There was [also] Grisildis innocence,
And al hir mekenes, & hir pacience.
There was eke Isaude—& meni a noþir mo—

Some sat, some stood, some knelt, with 'bills' in their hands, with complaints to lay before Venus.

First I saw Dido of Carthage, complaining of the faithlessness of Æneas;

next Medea, deceived by Jason;

then, nigh by Venus, Adonis slain by the boar.

Also Penelope, pale with grief at her lord's absence.

Next Alcestis, who died for Admetus, and was turned into a daisy.

There was also patient Griselda,

49. And] Right S. &] sum L. & som Pr. 51. compleint] compleyntes G. S. 54. forto] to L. 55. Cartage] Carge T. P. F (in F. corrected by ſ to o). 58. deceyued] descended F (n corrected to v in different ink). 59. hestis] behestes P. 60. she was] was she G. S. 61. Whan] And when P. þat] om. S. P. Pr. she moste] most she S. 62. next] nex W2. next her w. b. 63. was falsed] falsed was Pr. falsed] Ifalsid G. Iason] Iosan L. 64. saugh I] I saw P. sit Addoun] siten doun S. 65. þe maner] manere P. hov] how that G. bore] bere P. 66. hade] made S. pein] sorwe G. S. pyne C. W. W2. w. pite b. 67. hov] how that Pr. howe feyre S. 68. so] om. S. hir lord ne myȝte] ne myght her lorde b. ne myȝte] might not S. 69. Ful ofte wex] Was Pr. wex of colour] of colour wex S. pale] bothe pale Pr. 70. And] All B. 72. And for Admete] þat for hir trouthe S. 73. for hir trouth] transfourmed S. trouth] through W2. thrughe w. 74 in S: In to þe floure / cleped Daysye. to] into P. Pr. 75. also] om. T. P. L. Pr. 76. & hir] and al hir P. and Pr. 77. eke] om. S. a noþir] other Pr.

Digitized by Google

Tristram and Isolde,

And al þe turment, and al þe cruel wo,
That she hade for Tristram al hir liue.

Pyramus and Thisbe,

And hou þat Tesbie her hert[e] did[e] rife
Wiþ þilk[e] swerd of him Piramus;

Theseus and the Minotaur,

And al þe man*er*, hou þat Theseus
The Minatawre slow amyd þe hous,
That was for-wrynkked bi craft of Dedalus,
When þat he was in prison shette in Crete.

and Phyllis, who for love of Demophoon, hanged herself upon a filbert tree.

And hou þat Phillis felt of loues hete
The grete fire of Demophon, alas,
And for his falshed and [for] his trespas
Vpon þe walles depeint men myȝt[e] se,
Hov she was honged vpon a filbert tre.

There were Paris and Helen,

And mani a stori, mo þen I rekin can,
Were in þe tempil, & hov þat Paris wan
The faire Heleyne, þe lusti fressh[e] queno, and Achilles slain for Polyxena.

And hov Achilles was for Policene
I-slain vnwarli *with*in Troi[e] toune:
Al þis sawe I, [walkynge vp & doun.

There was also the story of Philomene and Progne,

Ther sawe I] writen eke þe hole tale,
Hov Philomene into a nyȝtyngale
Iturned was, and Progne vnto a swalow;

and the Sabines at the feast of Lucrece.

And hov þe Sabyns in hir maner halowe
The fest of Lucresse ȝit in Rome tovne.

I saw also the sorrow of Palamon,

There saugh I also þe sorov of Palamoun,
That he in prison felt, & al þe smert,
And hov þat he, þurugh vnto his hert,

78. 2d al] om. G. S. Pr. 79. hade for Tristram al] for Trystram sufferede in G. S. 80. hou þat] howe b. her] thorowe þe S. 81. þilke] þe S. him] hyre G. hir S. sire C. syr W. W2. w. b. 82. þe] om. P. hou] of G. þat] Duc S. 84. for-wrynkked] for wrynkeled F. for wrinkelid B. so wrynkled G. S. 85. When] What L. W2. w. þat] om. Pr. was] om. P. 86. loues] loued w. loue the b. 87. fire] furye S. of] for S. b. 88. 2d for] om. T. P. F. B. L. G. 89. walles depeint] wal depented G. S. depeint] epeynted P. 90. was honged] was hangyn G. henge Pr. filbert] philbertis S. 92. in þe tempil] þer depeynted S. 93. The] om. S. þe] a Pr. (exc. b.) lusti fresshe] fresche lusty G. S. 94. hov] om. L. 95. I-slain] Slawe G. vnwarli] unwardly W. W2. w. b. Troie] troyes S. 96. om. T. (P.) F. B. L. In F the following line has been subsequently supplied: by forcastyng of greit tresovne; this has been expunged and (by Stowe) corrected to: And in this Temple / as I Romed vp and downe. The latter is also the reading of P. sawe I] I sawe S. I say G. 97. Ther] Al þis T. F. B. L. Al thus P. eke] also S. 99. vnto] to G. into L. S. b. 100. þe] om. S. hir] a S. om. L. 101. ȝit] that P. 103. prison] om. in F; but subsequently added by Stowe. 104. vnto] in to S. om. P.

Digitized by Google

Was hurt vnwarli þurugh casting of an eyȝe — his love for Emily, and his fight with his brother,
Of faire fressh, þe ȝung[e] Emelie,
And al þe strife bitwene him & his broþir,
And hou þat one fauȝt eke with þat oþir
Wiþ-in þe groue, til þei bi Theseus
Acordid were, as Chaucer telliþ us. — as told by Chaucer.
And forþirmore, as I gan bihold,
I sawȝ hov Phebus with *an arow of gold — I saw how Phœbus was wounded by Cupid,
I-woundid was, þuruȝ oute in his side,
Onli bi envie of þe god Cupide,
And hou þat *Daphne vnto a laurer tre — and Daphne changed into a laurel tree;
Iturned was, when she did[e] fle;
And hou þat Ioue gan to chaunge his cope — and how Jove turned himself into a bull for love of Europa,
Oonli for loue of þe faire Europe,
And into [a] bole, when he did hir sue,
List of his godhode his fourme to transmwe;
And hou þat he bi transmutacioun — and took the shape of Amphitryon for Alcmene's sake.
The shap gan take of Amphitrioun
For *hir, *Almen, so passi[n]g *of beaute;
So was he hurt, for al his deite,
Wiþ loues dart, & myȝt it not ascape.
There sauȝ I also hou þat Mars was take — I saw Mars and Venus bound by Vulcan,
Of Vulcanus, and wiþ Venus found,
And wiþ þe Cheynes invisible bound.
Ther was also al þe poesie — and the wedding of Mercury with Philology,
Of him, Mercurie, and Phil[o]log[y]e,

105. hurt] hit G. wounde P. vnwarli] om. S. vnwardly W2. inwardly w. b. þurugh] thorowe þat S. for G. by Pr. 106. Of] On Pr. faire] the fayre w. b. þe] om. L. and w. b. ȝunge] lusty yong Pr. 108. eke] om. P. B. Pr. þat one] the ton G. þat oþir] the tothyr G. the othir P. 109. þei bi] that P. 110. Acordid] Arrested S. Departed P. Chaucer telliþ] telliþe Chaucer to S. 111. as] om. L. 112. hov] of G. S. an arow] anoro T. of] om. P. 113. oute in] in to P. in] om. Pr. 115. Daphne] Dane G. Done S. Diane T. P. F. B. L. Pr. vnto a] In ta G. in to a S. 116. when] whan that Pr. 117. Ioue] Iohon P. gan to chaunge] changed C. began to chaunge L. W. W2. w. b. 118. loue of þe] the love of G. 119. into a bole] Triable S. a] om. T. F. B. hir] he C. 121. hou] om. S. 122. gan] cane S. 123. hir] his T. F. B. L. he P. om. Pr. Almen] Alcumena Pr. al men T. P. L. þat was S. so] om. L. passing] passaunt G. of] was T. F. B. L. was with P. was of Pr. 124. in P: Aforne all othir that smyten so was hee. deite] deynte S. 125. reads in P:

With lowes dart he myght
he myght it noght aschape. it] om. B.

126. þat] om. Pr. 127. found] I founde B. 128. Cheynes] Cheynes of L. bound] I bounde B. 130. him] om. S. and] and al the Pr. Philologye G.] Phillogie (Philogye etc.) F. B. P. L. Pr. Philloge T. Philosophie S.

Digitized by Google

And hou þat she, for hir sapience, Iweddit was to god of eloquence, and how the latter was conveyed to heaven by the Muses. And hou þe Musis *lowli did obeie,
High into heuen þis ladi to conuei,
And with hir song hov she was magnified
With Iubiter to bein Istellified.

One could see, how Canace understood the language of birds, And vppermore depeint men myȝt[e] se,
Hov with hir ring, goodli Canace
Of euere foule þe ledne & þe song
Coud vndirstond, as she welk hem among;
and how her brother was helped by the steed of brass. And hou hir broþir so oft holpen was In his myschefe bi þe stede of bras.

There were, furthermore, many thousands of lovers, ready to complain to the goddess: And forþermore in þe tempil were Ful mani a þousand of louers, here & þere,
In sondri wise redi to complein
Vnto þe goddes, of hir wo & pein, of envy, Hou þei were hindrid, some for envie,
of jealousy, And hou þe serpent of fals Ielousie
Ful many a louer haþ iput o bak,
And caus[e]les on hem Ilaid a lak.

of absence and exile through wicked tongues, And some þer were þat pleyned on absence,
That werin exiled & put oute of presence
Thuruȝ wikkid tungis & fals suspecioun,
[With-oute mercy or remyssyoun.]
And oþer eke her seruise spent in vain, of 'Danger' and 'Disdain.' Thuruȝ cruel daunger, & also bi disdain;
And some also þat loued, soþ to sein,
And of her ladi were not louyd again.

131. hir] his S. 132. god] the god Pr. 133. hou] om. S. lowli] only G. lwfly P. lowli did] did lowli T. 136. to] there to Pr. Istellified] stellified L. S. Pr. 138. with] that G. goodli] the goodly Pr. 139. ledne] leydons C. W. b. leydous W2. laydous w. layes L. &] and ek G. S. 2d þe] om. C. W. W2. w. 140. Coud] Cowde thenn L. welk] walked Pr. 141. hou] om. G. 142. stede] sounde S. 144. a] of P. a þousand of louers] an hundred thousand S. of] om. Pr. 145. In] Is W2. w. 146. pein] pyne P. 147 and 148 transposed in P. 147. þei] there G. for] th*ourgh* G. by S. of P. 149. iput] put Pr. offt put S. 150. causles T. hem] hym G. S. Ilaid] leyd G. haþe leyde S. b. haue leid C. W. W2. w. he layd P. 151. þer] om. S. þat pleyned] pleynynge G. pleyning hyely S. pleyned] playne L. 152. put] om. L. 154. om. T. P. F. B; in F by a different hand:

Wyth owte answar weche was no resoun.

154. or] or any L. Pr. 155. eke] also W. W2. w. b. seruise] lwfys P. 156 and 157 om. Pr. 156. also] al P. 157. loued] lwfith P. 158. And] om. L.

Digitized by Google

And oþir eke, þat for pouerte
Durst *in no wise hir grete aduersite
Discure ne open, lest þai were refusid;
And some for wanting also werin accusid,
And oþir eke þat loued secreli,
And of her ladi durst aske no merci,
Lest þat she would of hem haue despite;
And some also þat putten ful grete wite
On double louers, þat loue þingis nwe,
Thurgh whos falsnes hindred be þe trwe.
And some þer were, as it is oft[e] found,
That for her ladi meny a blodi wounde
Endurid haþ in mani [a] regioun,
Whiles þat an oþer haþ possessioun
Al of his ladi, and beriþ awai þe fruyte
Of his labur and of al his suyte.
And oþer eke compleyned *of Riches,
Hou he with Tresour doþ his besines
To wynnen al, againes kynd & ryȝt,
Wher trw louers haue force noon ne myȝt.
And some þer were, as maydens ȝung of age,
That pleined sore with peping & with rage,
That þei were coupled, againes al nature,
Wiþ croked elde, þat mai not long endure
Forto perfourme þe lust of loues plai:
For it ne sit not vnto fressh[e] May Forto be coupled to oold[e] Ianuari—

Others were in poverty,

or loved secretly, not daring to declare themselves;

others blamed false lovers, who hinder the faithful ones.

Some had endured bloody wounds in distant regions,

whilst another possessed their lady.

Others complained against Riches, who, with Treasure, wins the field against true lovers.

Young maidens complained, that they were coupled with crooked Old Age:

for fresh May should not be coupled with old January:

159. oþir eke] also other W. W2. w. b. 160. in] on T. F. B. 161. ne] in G. S. 162. And] om. S. wanting] avaunte S. 163. oþir eke] also other W. W2. w. b. 164. And] om. L. þat S. no] ne b. 165. she would of hem] of hem she wolde S. of hem haue] haue of theim L. 166. ful] right Pr. 167. loue] lufyth P. 168. þe] om. P. L. 169. þer] that L. as] at P. found] efounde S. 170. meny a blodi] haden many a S. 171. haþ] hadde G. haue b. and S. a] om. T. F. B. S. 172. Whiles] Whyle b. þat] om. P. haþ] hath had Pr. hath the P. 174. Of his] Of al his P. 175. And] An b. eke] om. Pr. compleyned] complayneth b. of] in T. P. F. B. L. 176. he] om. B. tresour] tresouns L. 177. wynnen] wymen F. womene P. al] om. Pr. againes] agaynst al Pr. 178. Wher] Where as Pr. force noon] noo force W. W2. w. b. no kynde S. ne] no b. myȝt] ryght P. 180. pleined] pleyneth C. playnen W. W2. playne w. b. sore] so L. Pr. peping] piping L. pipyng C. W. W2. w. popyng P. peynenge B. wepyng F. G. S. b. 181. þei] om. G. Pr. were] om. P. coupled] compelled S. againes] agayn Pr. 182. elde] olde G. W. W2. w. b. old P. 183. lust of loues] lustis G. 184. it ne sit not] it is nat syttynge b. vnto] to S. 185. to] vnto G. with P.

Digitized by Google

Old Age and Youth are so different.

Thei ben so diuers þat þei most[e] varie—
For eld is grucching & malencolious,
Ay ful of ire & suspecious,
And iouth entendeþ to Ioy & lustines,
To myrth & plai & to al gladnes.

'Alas! that sugar should be mixed with gall!' these young folks cried.

'Allas þat euer þat it shuld[e] fal,
*So soote sugre Icoupled be with gal!'
These yong[e] folk criden oft[e] siþe,
And praied Ven*us* hir pouer forto kiþe
Vpon þis myschef, & shape remedie.

And others I heard lament with tears and piteous sounds,

And riȝt anon I herd oþir crie
With sobbing teris, & with ful pitous soune, Tofore þe goddes, bi lamentacioun, that had been forced to enter the monastic life in their childhood,

That *were constrayned in hir tender youþe,
And in childhode, as it is oft[e] couþe,
*Yentred were into religioun,
Or þei hade yeris of discresioun,

and now must feign perfection in wide copes, hiding their inwardsmart.

That al her life cannot but co*m*plein,
In wide copis p*er*feccion to feine,
Ful couertli to curen al hir smert,
And shew þe contrarie outward of her hert.

Thus wept many a fair maid, blaming her friends.

Thus saugh I wepen many a faire maide,
*That on hir freendis al þe wite þei leide.
And oþer next I saugh þere in gret rage,

186. moste] mot nedes S. most ned*es* P. 187. eld] olde G. P. W. W2. w. b. grucching] grucchynd P. &] om. S. 188. Ay] Alwaye w. b. ful of ire] irefull b. of] om. L. &] and eke b. suspecious] suspessyonous S. 189. iouth] though P. &] & to P. 190. al] gret S. 191. 2d þat] om. L. S. Pr. it] is P. ye F. om. B. shulde] shulle P. eshoulde S. fal] befall b. 192. So] þat S. So soote] To sute T. Icoupled] couplid B. Icoupled be] shoulde be coupled S. be] om. L. be with] be to C. W. W2. to be w (be has been scratched out and soure written over it). with the b. 193. These] The F. B. folk] folkys S. criden ofte siþe] of sithe weppith and cryden P. ofte] oftyn G. 194. forto] to C. W. W2. w. 195. Vpon] Vnto L. &] to S. 196. oþir] an othir P. 197. sobbing] sowing L. pytous S. with ful] om. Pr. ful] wol G. pitous] weping S. soune] swoun G. 198. Tofore] By fore S. Before b. A for P. bi] with S. with gret L. 199. That] Thaire L. were constrayned] conseiles T. counseyles F. B. counseillys L. conseylis G. concellith P. cofessen S. tender] om. Pr. 200. in] In here G. in hir S. childhode] childysh hode F. childerhod P. it] om. C. W. W2. w. ofte] oft a W2. w. 201. Yentred] Yrendred T. L. Irenderede G. were] ben S. 202. Or] Er þat S. 204. to] for to C. W. b. P. or to W2. w. 205. to curen al] for to coueren Pr. hir] they W2. 206. outward] outwardes S. om. Pr. of] in G. her] om. P. 207. Thus] This P. There b. wepen] wepyng P. where w. om. b. 207 and 208 transposed in P. 208. That] Than T. L. þe] hir S. þei] om. P. G. b. 209. oþer] ouer L. next] mo b. þere] om. P. they altered to them F.

Digitized by Google

That þei were maried in her tendir age,
Wiþ-oute fredom of electciou*n*,
Wher loue haþ seld domynacioun:
For loue, at laarge & [at] liberte,
Would freli chese, & not w*ith* such trete.
And oþer saugh I ful oft wepe & wring,
[That they in men founde swych variynge,]
To loue a seisou*n*, while þ*at* beaute floureþ,
And bi disdein so vngoodli loureþ
On hir þ*at* whilom he callid his ladi dere,
That was to him so plesaunt & entere;
But lust w*ith* fairnes is so ouergone,
That in her hert trouþ abideþ none.
And som also I sauȝ in teris reyne,
And pitousli on god & kynd[e] pleyne,
That euer þei would on eny creature
So mych beaute, passing bi mesure,
Set on a woma*n*, to yeue occasioun
A man to loue to his co*n*fusioun,
And nameli þere where he shal haue no grace;
For wiþ a loke, forth-bi as he doþ pace,
Ful oft[e] falleþ, þuruȝ casti*n*g of an yȝe,
A man is wou*n*did, þ*at* he most nedis deye,
That neuer efter p*er*auenture shal hir se.
Whi wil god don so gret a cruelte
To eny man, or to his creature,
To maken him so mych wo endure,

Others had been married in their tender age, without free choice, regardless of inclination.

Others complained of men, who only love while beauty blooms, and when it departs, frown on their lady.

Some I saw in floods of tears complain against God and Nature, for endowing a woman with such passing beauty as to ruin a man:

for by one look a man is often wounded to the death.

Why does God inflict so much woe on any man,

210. þei] om. b. maried] murdred S. 211 and 212 transposed in L. 211. of] of fre Pr. 212. seld] seldome b. 213. 2d at] om. T. L. 214. chese] om. S. not] om. P. trete] threte L. 215. saugh I] I sawe L. I saughe P. oft] soore G. sore S. 216 om. T. F. B. In F the following line is inserted by a later hand: that weer dysayuyd / bi thaeyr wenynge. The reading of P is: That euer a man shuld so fals a thyng. variynge] vaveringe L. 217. þ*at*] om. G. the L. 218. And] And after Pr. bi] be high P. 219. On] Vpon S. hir] hy*m* G. þ*at* whilom he callid] he cleped S. whilom] somtyme w. b. 220. was to him] to hy*m* was G. S. him] hynt P. & entere] in tyre P. 221. so] sone F. B. ouergone] ou*er* grone P. 222. her] hys P. 224. pitousli] pituous L. pleyne] complayne b. þey pleyne S. 225. euer þei] thei euer P. þei] he b. on] in L. G. S. 227. on] in G. S. to yeue] by S. 229. haue] fynd P. haue no] han corrected to hanno G. no] om. S. 230. wiþ] by B. forth-bi] forby G. S. he doþ] men do G. men doon S. 231. Ful] Wel S. þuruȝ] om. W2. w. 232. he most nedis] ned*is* he most P. 233. That] Whiche G. And S. Yet b. efter p*er*auenture] peraunter after he L. Pr. p*er*auenture shal hir] shal hir p*er*avntre S. 234. a] om. P. b. 235. or] or els b.

Digitized by Google

for the sake of one, who will never be his own?

For hir percaas, whom he shal in no wise
Reioise neuer, but so forþ in Iewise
Ledin his life, til þat he be graue.
For he ne durst of hir no merci craue,
And eke perauenture, þouȝ he durst & would,
He can not wit, where he hir find[e] shuld.
I saugh þere eke, & þerof hade I rouþe,

Some were also hindered by covetousness, by sloth or hastiness.

That som were hindred for couetise & slouth,
And some also for her hastines,
And oþer eke for hir reklesnes—

Last of all I saw, beside Pallas, before the statue of Venus,

But alderlast as I walk & biheld,
Beside Pallas wiþ hir cristal sheld,
Tofore þe *statue of Venus set on height,

a lady kneeling, and, as the Sun outshines all stars,

Hov þat þer knelid a ladi in my syȝt
Tofore þe goddes, which riȝt as þe sonne
Passeþ þe sterres & doþ hir stremes donne,
And Lucifer, to voide þe nyȝtes sorow,
In clerenes passeþ erli bi þe morow,

as May is the fairest of all months,

And so as Mai haþ þe souereinte
Of euere moneþ, of fairnes & beaute,
And as þe rose in swetnes & odoure

as the rose surpasses all flowers, balm all liquors, and the ruby all stones:

Surmounteþ floures, and bawme of al licour
Haueþ þe pris, & as þe rubie briȝt
Of al stones in beaute & in siȝt,
As it is know, haþ þe regalie:

so this lady

Riȝt so þis ladi wiþ hir goodli eiȝe,

237. percaas] parcas (underlined as a proper name) S. whom] when S. he] she P. 238. neuer] at any tyme b. forþ] sory L. in Iewise] as vnwyse S. Iewise] inuyse b. 239. his] this (over erasure) his F. þat] om. b. graue] in his graue W. W2. w. layde in graue b. 240. of] on P. craue] haue P. 241. eke] also W. W2. w. b. &] or G. 242. he] om. F. B. he hir] hir he S. hir] om. L. 243. eke] also W. W2. w. b. þerof] of P. therefore L. 244. hindred] hemerede G. for] thorowe S. G. by Pr. 245. for] thoroughe S. 246. eke] also W. W2. w. b. for] thoroughe S. 247. alderlast] at the last W. W2. w b. 248. Beside] Besides L. cristal] orystall W2. w. 249. Tofore] Before b. statue] statute T. B. W. W2. w. stature P. L. b. 250. Hov þat] om. Pr. 251. Tofore] Byfore S. Before b. which] the whiche G. S. riȝt] om. Pr. 252. &] om. b. doþ hir] so thourgh G. doþ hir stremes] eke the stormys C. also the stormes W. doþ hir stremes donne] also the stormes (storme w.) W2. w. in brightnesse echone b. stremes] brightnesse S. donne] downe P. 253. And] And as b. 254. In] I W2. w. clerenes] clennesse G. cherenesse P. bi] om. Pr. 255. so] om. b. 256. of] the C. W. W2. w. in b. 258. Surmounteþ] Surmounted C. Surmounteh (sic) W. W2. floures] the flowres P. and] & as b. al] om. S. 259. &] om. F. briȝt] hight L. 260. Of] Bryght off P. al] alle the G. beaute] bountee S. Lines 261—264 are omitted in S (the rhymes briȝt and siȝt occurring again in ll. 263, 264). P interpolates between

Digitized by Google

And with þe stremes of hir loke so briȝt,
Surmou*n*teþ al þurugh beaute in my siȝte:
Forto tel hir gret semelines,
Hir womanhed, hir port, & hir fairnes,
It was a meruaile, hou eu*er* þ*at* nature
Coude in hir werkis make a creature
So aungellike, so goodli on to se,
So femynyn or passing of beaute,
Whos so*n*nyssh here, briȝter þan gold were,
Lich Phebus bemys shynyng in his spere—
The goodlihed eke of hir fresshli face,
So replenysshid of beaute & of grace,
So wel ennuyd bi Nature & depeint,
That Rose and lileis togedir were so meint,
So egalli bi good proporciou*n*,
That, as me þouȝt, in myn i*n*specciou*n*
I gan me*r*uaile, hou god, or werk of kynd,
Miȝten of beaute such a tres*our* find,
To yeven hir so passing excellence.
For in goode faiþ, þuruȝ hir heiȝ p*r*esence
The tempil was enlumynd enviro*n*,
And forto speke of condicio*n*,
She was þe best þ*at* myȝt[e] ben on lyve:
For þ*er* was noon þ*at* wiþ hir myȝt[e] striue,
To speke of bou*n*te, *or of gentilles,
Of womanhed, or of lowlynes,
Of curtesie, or of goodlihed,
Of spech, of chere, or of semlyhed,
Of port benygne, & of daliau*n*ce,

with her radiant looks surpassed all in beauty.

It was a marvel how Nature could make so angelic a creature:

her sunny hair was brighter than goldwire,

in her fresh face roses and lilies seemed to mingle, and altogether she was of such passing beauty and excellence,

that the whole Temple was illumined by her high presence.

No one could compare with her in womanly charms and virtues:

ll. 260 and 261: To for the goddes wheche ryght as (cf. line 251). 263. þe] om. G. 264. þurugh] om. B. through all P. 265. Forto] ffor forto G. That for to Pr. 266. 2d hir] hert P. 267. meruaile] me*r*uabil P. eu*er* þ*at*] þat euer S. 269. aungellike] agreable G. so] or G. S. 271. so*n*nyssh] goodly L. Schynyng P. om. S. here] here heire P. clernesse S. briȝter] is bryghtere G. S. bright P. 272. bemys] by S. 273. eke] also W. W2. w. b. of] yf W2. w. fresshli] fresshe L. B. S. C. W. W2. w. fayre b. 274. replenysshid] replevisshes G. 275. ennuyd] emewed P. endewed b. coloured S. 276. That] The L. As S. Pr. Rose] roses S. so] om. L. S. Pr. meint] y meint F. B. b. emeynt S. 277. egalli] evenly S. bi] euen be P. 278. in] by S. Pr. 279. of] or P. 281. passing] p*er*sant P. 282. heiȝ] om. F. 284. forto] to F. of] of her P. L. Pr. 285. best þ*at*] om. P. on lyve] a lyue G. alyve S. 286. þ*at* wiþ hir] with her that B. wiþ hir myȝte] might with hir S. 287. bou*n*te] beute G. beautie b. or] er T. gentilles] lowlynesse S. 288. lowlynes] gentylesse S. 290 omitted in P. or] om. G. 291. Of port benygne] Beningne of port S. &] or Pr.

Digitized by Google

The best[e] tauȝt, & þerto of plesaunce
She was þe wel, and eke of oneste
An exemplarie, & mirrour eke was she
Of secrenes, of trouth, of faythfulnes,
And to al oþer ladi & maistres,
To sue vertu, whoso list to lere.
And so þis ladi, benigne and humble of chere,
Kneling I saugh, al clad in grene and white,
Tofore Venus, goddes of al delite,
Enbrouded al with stones & perre
So richeli, þat ioi it was to se,
Wiþ sondri rolles on hir garnement,
Forto expoune þe trouth of hir entent,
And shew fulli, þat for hir humbilles,
And for hir vertu, and hir stabilnes,
That she was rote *of womanli plesaunce.
Therfore hir woord wiþoute variaunce
Enbrouded was, as men myȝt[e] se:
'De mieulx en mieulx,' with stones and perre:
This [is] to sein þat she, þis benigne,
From bettir to bettir hir hert[e] doþ resigne,
And al hir wil, to Venus þe goddes,
Whan þat hir list hir harmes to redresse.

she was a model and mirror, lady and mistress to all of her sex.

So I saw this lady kneeling before Venus, clad in green and white, with broiderles of precious stones, and sundry 'rolls,'

setting forth her motto: 'De mieux en mieux.'

This is to say: she resigns her heart and will, from better to better, unto Venus.

292. tauȝt] thaught G. P. etaught S. &] om. w. b. 293. and eke] also S. W. W2. w. eke C. b. 294. An] And S. &] and the P. eke] also W. W2. w. b. om. S. 295. secrenes] sikurnesse S. 3d of] & G. and of P. 297. sue] shewe S. Pr. sewe in L is, by a later hand, altered into shewe. 298. ladi] om. P. benigne and] right Pr. humble] noble S. chere] her chere b. 299. al] om. Pr. al clad in grene] in blak In red G. S. and] & In G. 300. Tofore] Before b. Beseching S. al] om. F. 303. garnement] garment B. L. b. 305. And] To Pr. þat for hir] for þat hir hye S. humbilles] humblenesse L. b. noblesse S. 306. And for hir] Hir stedfast vertu S. 2d hir] for hir F. B. L. stabilnes] stablesse G. stedfastnesse b. 307. was] om. P. of] of al T. F. B. L. Pr. 309. was] om. W. W2. w. as] ther as P. 309 and 310 read in G. S:

Was vp & doun as men myghte (mighten S) se
In frens (ffresshly S) enbroudyt humblement magre.

310. and] of L. C. W. W2. w. 311. This] þat S. is] om. T. L. þis] is S. was L. was so Pr. 312. From] ffro P. ffor L. 312 reads in G. S: Hyr herte & al fully doth resigne. 313. And al hir wil to] In to the handys of G. S. 314. Whan] Quhame P. 1st hir] she P. harmes] harnes P.—Line 314 reads in b: She stode at poynt redy to expresse.—Between 314 and 315 the following 4 lines are interpolated in b:

And her humbly of mercy for to pray
For her dole remedy to puruaye
Gladly she wolde the goddesse shulde attende
Her sorowes all and harmes to amende.

Digitized by Google

For as me þouȝt sumwhat bi hir chere,
Forto compleyne she hade gret desire :
For in hir hond she held a litel bil,
Forto declare þe sommc of al hir wil,
And to þe goddes hir quarel forto shewe,
[Theffect of which was this In wordys fewe :]

1.

'O ladi Venus, modir of Cupide,
That al þis *wor[l]d hast in gouernaunce,
And hertes high, *þat hauteyn [ben] of pride,
Enclynyst mekeli to þin obeissaunce,
Causer of ioie, Relese of penaunce,
And with þi stremes canst eueri þing discerne
*Thuruȝ heuenli fire of loue þat is eterne ;

2.

O blisful sterre, persant & ful of liȝt,
Of bemys gladsome, devoider of derknes,
Cheif recounford after þe blak nyȝt,
To voide woful oute of her heuynes,
Take nov goode hede, ladi & goddesse,
So þat my bil ȝour grace may atteyne,
Redresse to finde of þat I me compleyne.

3.

For I am bounde to þing þat I nold ;
Freli to chese þere lak I liberte ;
And so I want of þat myn hert[e] would ;

From her face, me-thought, she too had a complaint ; for she had a little 'bill' in her hand, which was to this effect :

'O lady Venus, mistress of all this world,

thou blissful star,

comfort after the black night,

let now my bill attain your grace.

I lack liberty to choose freely ;

315. þouȝt] þinkeþe S. 315 reads in b : And euermore me thought by her chere. 316. Forto] To b. gret] right great b. 317. held] had S. 318. Forto declare] Wherin was writte b. þe somme] sume part S. of] and P. al] om. S. wil] stylle W2. skylle w. b. 319 reads in b : And all that she wolde to the goddesse shewe. to] om. L. 320 om. T. B ; in F Stowe supplied : hir matire was / of thes ballads fewe. This is also the reading of P ; only of is wanting in the latter MS. was] foloweth b. this] om. L. Pr.

The following headings are found before line 321 : Supplicacio mulieris amantis F. B. Balade S. The copye of the supplicacion Pr. The fyrst *par*te of the songe L (in a later hand). 321. of] to G. S. 322. al] in C. world] word T. worde L. hast] þou hast S. in] the C. 323. And] And the b. high] om. b. hauteyn] ha doten T. hatedeyn F. hatydon B. hadoten P. haultotayñ L. haunteyn G. ben] om. T. W. W2. w. hye b. of] by Pr. 325. Causer] Cause G. Relese] releser B. P. L. G. S. 327. Thuruȝt T. fire of loue] loue of fyre b. 328. O] Off (?) P. sterre] sterrys G. persant] passaunt G. ful] cler G. S. 329. Of] O L. devoider] the woider P. voyder S. 330. recounford] confort G. recomforter S. of recounfort P. 331. voide] wynde S. woful] woful hertes Pr. L. her] om. G. S. 333. ȝour grace may] may your grace Pr. 334. me] nowe S. 337. And] a F.

Digitized by Google

my body may not follow my thought, my outward conduct must be at variance with my heart's desire.

The bodi [is] knyt, al þouȝe my þouȝt be fre,
So þat I most, of necessite, 339
Myn hertis lust out[e]ward contrarie;
Thogh we be on, þe dede most[e] varie. 341

338. is] om. T. F. B. P. al] om. Pr. 339. of] of verrey L. 341. varie] nedis warie P.

Stanzas 3—7 (ll. 335—369) are missing in G. S; in their place the following four are found:

3 a.

Deign of your benignity, to grant a remedy for wicked tongues and their cruelty.

So that ȝow lyst of ȝoure benygnete, 1
Goodly to seen & shape remedye
On wekkede tongis & on the crewelte,
That they compasse thourgh maleys & envye,
To quenche the venym of here felonye, 5
Wher as they hyndere wemen gilteles:
*Stynteþe this werre & lat vs leue in pes. 7

3 b.

I complain also of Jealousy, the vile serpent, always grudging and suspicious,

I pleyne also vp-on Ielusye, 1
The vile serpent, the snake tortyvous,
That is so crabbit & frounynge of his ye,
And euere grochynge & suspecyous,
I-fret with eysel that makyth hym dispytous, 5
Of euery thyng the werste for to deme,
That ther is no thyng that may his herte queme. 7

3 c.

ever froward and frowning, whose reason fails in the dotage of old age.

Thus is he fryed in his owene gres, 1
To-rent & torn with his owene rage,
And euere *froward & frounynge causeles,
Whos resoun faylyth in elde thourgh dotage:
This is the maner of krokede fer in age, 5
Whan they ben couplyd with ȝouthe *þey can no more,
But hem werreyen, which wemen beyeth ful sore. 7

3 d.

Thus we are ever oppressed with torments, as you were when bound by Vulcan. Now for love of Mars and Adonis, take pity on my complaint.

Thus euere in *tourment & yre furyous 1
We ben oppressed—allas the harde stounde!—
*Rygh[t] as ȝoure selve were with Wlkanus
Ageyn ȝoure wil & ȝoure herte bounde.
Now for the Ioye, whilom that ȝe founde 5
With Mars, ȝoure knyght, vp-on myn compleynt rewe,
For love of Adon that was so frosch of hewe. 7

3 a. 3. Ou] Of S. 2d on] of S. 4. they] þey may S. maleys &] fals S. 5. the venym of] þeyre vemyme and S. 6. as] þat S. 7. Stynthth G.—— 3 b. 2. vile] wylde S. 3. crabbit] crokid S. of his ye] on hye S. 4. om. S. 5. dispytous] suspecious S. In S the following line is marked to be inserted between 5 and 6: By al kynde þou art so envyous.——3 c. 3. froward] frowar G. & frounynge] groyning S. 4. in elde thourgh] nowe in olde S. 6. þey] I G. 7. werreyen] waryen S. which] om. S. beyeth] ben S.——3 d. 1. turment] tornement G. 2. the] þat S. 3. Rygh G. 4. Ageyns S. 7. Adon] yowe S.

Digitized by Google

4.

Mi worship sauf, I faile electiou*n*, 342 To save my dignity, I forego my choice;
Again al riȝt, boþe of god and kynd,
There to be knit vndir subieccion,
Fro whens ferre *are boþ[e] witte & mynde;
Mi þouȝt goþe forþe, my bodi is behind: 346 In body I remain, but my thought goes forth.
For I am here, and yonde my remembrau*n*ce;
Atwixen two so hang I in balau*n*ce. 348

5.

Deuoide of ioie, of wo I haue plente; 349
What I desire, þ*at* mai I not possede; What I desire, I may not possess,
For þ*at* I nold, is redi aye to me,
And þ*at* I loue, forto swe I drede, and dread to sue for what
To my desire contrarie is my mede; 353 I love.
And þus I stond, dep*ar*tid euen on tweyn,
Of wille and dede Ilaced in a chaine. 355

6.

For þouȝe I brenne w*ith* feruence and w*ith* hete, 356 Although I burn with fervent heat,
Wiþ-in myn hert I mot co*m*plein of cold, my heart within is cold,
And þuruȝ myn axcesse thoȝe I sweltre and swete, nor dare I
Me to co*m*plein, god wot, I am not boold, unfold a word
Vnto no wiȝt, nor a woord vnfold 360 of all my pain.
Of al my peyne, allas þe hard[e] stond!
That hatter brenne þ*at* closid is my wou*n*de. 362

7.

For he þ*at* haþ myn hert[e] feiþfulli, 363 For I have no chance of being with him who, secretly, has my heart and love.
And hole my luf in al honesti,
W*ith*-oute chau*n*ge, al be it secreli,
I haue no space wiþ him forto be.
O ladi Venus, co*n*sider nov & se 367 O lady Venus, consider now

343. Again] Agaynst b. 345. Fro] For C. P. ferre] om. L. ferre are boþe] for both ar C. fer both ar W. W2. w. both are farre b. are] er T. B. or F (sign of the cæsural pause before it). witte &] out of L. Pr. 346 omitted in P. 347. yonde] yonder W2. yonder L. w. b. 348. Atwixen] atwyen F. Bitwix L. Betwyx P. Betwene Pr. so] om. P. 352. swe] shewe P. 354. euen on] in Pr. on tweyn] atwayne L. 355. Ilaced] y lashed P. 356. brenne] out brenne b. feruence] feruente w. feruence and w*ith*] feruent b. 2d w*ith*] om. Pr. 357. mot] may w. b. 358. þuruȝ myn axcesse] by excesse Pr. axcesse] act*es* L. sweltre] swelte P. Pr. 359. god wot I am not] I am nat god wote b. 360. a] one Pr. 362. That hatter] That I L. The hotter that I Pr. That the hatt*ir* P. þ*at* closid] the closir P. In the colder L. the colder Pr. 366 and 367 are omitted in w. In their place b substitutes:

All way it must ikept and couered be Wherfore lady Venus enclyne I pray the. 367. &] om. B.

Digitized by Google

my complaint: my life and death are in thy hands.'

Vnto þe effecte and *com*pleint of my bil,
Siþ life and deþ I put al in þi wil.' 369

8.

And then the goddess inclined her head, and told her how her torment should soon end,

And þo me þouȝt þe goddes did enclyne 370
Mekeli hir hede, and softli gan ex*pre*sse,
That in short tyme hir *tur*ment shuld[e] fyne,
And hou of him, for whom al hir distresse
Contynued had & al hir heuynes, 374
She *shold haue Ioy, and of hir *pur*gatorie
Be holpen sone, and so forþ lyue in glorie. 376

9.

Saying: 'Daughter, your faithful meaning has won my hearing,

And seid[e]: 'Douȝter, for þe sad[de] trouþe, 377
The feiþful menyng, & þe Innocence,
That planted bene, *with*outen eny slouþe,
In ȝ*our per*sone, deuoide of al *offence,
So haue atteyned to oure audience, 381

and I promise you relief.

That þuruȝ oure grace ȝe shul be wel releuyd,
I ȝov bihote of al þat haþ ȝov greued. 383

10.

As you have been so patient in your long adversity inflicted by Saturn,

And for þat ȝe euer of oon entent, 384
*With*oute chau*n*ge or mutabilite,
Haue in ȝ*our* peynes ben so pacient,
To take louli ȝoure aduersite,
And þat so long þuruȝ þe cruelte 388

your woe shall now cease.

Of old Sat*ur*ne, my fadur vnfortuned,—
Y*our* wo shal nov no lenger be contuned. 390

11.

It will soon be assuaged and pass over;

And þinkiþ þis: *with*in a litel while 391
It shal asswage, and ou*er*passen sone;

368. þe effecte] affecte P. 369. I put al in] y put is in al P. al] om. B. Rubric before line 370 in F. B: Thansuere of Venus. 370. þo] than b. as G. S. me] my P. þe] that G. 371. gan] did B. 374. Contynued had] She had endured b. al] of F. b. om. L. 375. shold] would T. 376. so forþ lyue] so lyue forth Pr. lyue] om. P. 377. þe] thy L. C. W. W2. w. thi P. 378. The] Thy C. W. W2. w. feiþful] rightful S. þe] om. Pr. thi P. 380. deuoide] right voyde S. offence] defence T. vycence S. 381. haue] han they C. han W. W2. than w. haue b. 382. þuruȝ] with Pr. by P. shul] should S. wel] om. L. 383. þat] om. P. haþ] han G. 384. ȝe] ye ben L. ye be Pr. ȝe euer] eu*er* ye P. 385. chau*n*ge] chaunce w. eny change P. 386. Haue] And Pr. 387. To take] And takyñ P. 388. þuruȝ] thorght F. trouth P. 389. old] youre S. 390. om. w. b reads: Ye shall of me be well rewarded. Y*our*—lenger] Youres shal neuer more S. 391. þis *with*in] thir within W2. therwithin w. therfore within b.

Digitized by Google

For men bi laiser passen meny a myle.
And oft also, aftir a dropping mone,
The weddir clereþ, & whan þe storme is done, 395 the sun shines all the brighter after a storm,
The soñne shineþ in his spere briȝt,
And ioy awakiþ whan wo is put to fliȝt. 397

12.

Remembreþ eke, hou neu*er* ȝit no wiȝt 398
Ne came to wirship w*ith*oute some debate,
And folk also reiossh[e] more of liȝt, light gladdens the more after darkness,
That þei wiþ derknes were waped & amate;
Non m*a*nis chau*n*ce is alwai fortunate, 402
Ne no wiȝt preiseþ of sugre þe swetnes, sweetness after bitterness.
But þei afore haue tasted bitternes. 404

13.

Grisild[e] was assaied at[te] ful, 405 Even so with Griselda,
That t*ur*ned aftir to hir encrese of Ioye;
Penalope gan eke for sorowis dul, Penelope and Dorigen:
For þat [her] lord abode so long at Troie;
Also þe t*ur*ment þere coude no man akoye 409
Of Dorigene, flo*ur* of al Britayne:
Thus euer ioy is ende and fine of paine. 411 joy was the end of their pain;

14.

And trusteþ *þis, for conclusiou*n*, 412
The end of sorow is ioi I-voide of drede;
For holi saintis, þuruȝ her passiou*n*, and holy saints won heaven through their passion:
Haue heuen Iwo*n*ne for her souerain mede;
And plenti gladli foloiþ after nede: 416

394. also] om. Pr. dropping] drepynge G. W. W2. w. b. 395. &] om. S. storme] strem G. 397. awakiþ] waketh L. Pr. 398. eke] yet P. om. b. 399. Ne came to] Come to no S. some] om. w. b. 400. folk] folkes b. also reiosshe] reioyse also C. W. W2. w. reiosshe] rechen P. 401. That] þenne S. þei] om. b. wiþ] om. P. waped] wraped L. wrapped b. amate] mate L. P. S. C. W. wate W2. w. b. 403. wiȝt] whit G. 404. þei afore] if þai to forne S. afore] to fore C. W. W2. w. before b. 405. assaied] assailled L. atte] at the B. P. L. G. b. atte þe S. at T. w. 406. to] the w. hir] om. Pr. of] and P. Ioye] her ioye b. 407. gan] cane S. became b. for] for her P. sorowis dul] sorwe dwelle G. S. 408. her] om. T. F. B. 409. t*ur*ment] tornement G. 410. flo*ur*] the flour P. 411. Thus] This P. euer] euer corrected into euere (= every), in different ink, T. euer ioy] eu*e*ry ioyes S. ende] endid corrected into ende T. ende and fine] fyne and ende L. C. W. W2. w. finall ende b. of] is S. 412. And] As F. trusteþ] truste G. þis] þus T. F. B. P. for] for a S. 413. The] Thus S. I-voide] y woded P. voyde Pr. 415. Iwo*n*ne] wonne G. Pr. for] by C. W. W2. w. to b. 416. foloiþ] folowed W. W2. w.

Digitized by Google

so I promise you pleasure after grief.

And so my dou3ter, after 3o*ur* greuau*n*s,
I 3ov bihote 3e shul haue ful plesau*n*ce. 418

15.

For Love first wounds

For euer of loue þe man*er* and þe guyse 419
Is forto hurt his seruant, and to wou*n*de;

and then gives joy:

And when þ*at* he haþ tau3te hem his em*p*rise,
He can in ioi make hem to abounde;
And siþ þat 3e haue in my lase be bound, 423

so consolation is now your due.

Wiþoute grucching or rebellion,
Ye most of ri3t haue consolacioun. 425

16.

This is to sein—douteþ neu*er* a dele— 426

You shall soon possess him whom you cherish,

That 3e shal haue ful poss[ess]ion
Of him þat 3e cherissh nov so wel,
In honest maner, wiþ-oute offencioun,

because your intent is to love him best.

Bicause I cnowe yo*ur* entencion 430
Is truli set, in p*ar*ti and in al,
To loue him best & most in special. 432

17.

For your chosen one shall be yours till death:

For he þ*at* 3e haue chosen 3ow to seruc, 433
Shal be to 3ow such as 3e desire,
Wiþ-oute chau*n*ge, fulli, til he sterue:

so have I set him afire.

So with my brond I haue him set afire,
And with my grace I shal him so enspire, 437
That he in hert shal be ry3t at 3o*ur* will,
*Wherso 3e list to saue him or to spill. 439

18.

His heart I will bind to you so humbly

For vnto 3ow his hert I shal so lowe, 440
Wiþ-oute spot of eny doubelnes,
That he ne shal escape fro þe bowe—

417. so] om. b. grevau*n*s] gou*er*naunce S. 418. ful] om. G. S. 420. his] is P. seruant] *ser*vauntz S. and] and for L. 421. þ*at*] om. S. L. Pr. hem] hym F. B. 422. ioi] no Ioye w. hem] him L. 423. þ*at*] om. P. L. lase] lacys P. 426. is] om. F. C. douteþ] dowte it w. doute it b. doughter by a second hand corrected into douteth L. 427. possion T. 428. him] hem G. cherissh nov] now cherisshe Pr. 429. maner] wyse F. B. G. S. offencioun] transgressyon b. 430. Bicause] Be cause that P. 432 reads in P: he shal ben) yours ryght ye wyl hym call. 434. to 3ow] right S. 435. he] ye S. 436. him] om. F. B. him set] sette hym C. W. W2. w. 437. him] om. F. B. so] om. W. W2. w. 438. in hert shal] only P. 439. Wherso] Whe*þ*ir T. P. W. W2. w. b. 3e] you C. 3ow G. S. 440. his hert I shal] I shal his herte Pr. I shal] shal y P. 441. spot of] sport or S. 442. he] ye F. ne shal escape] shape shal P. escape] scapen S.

Digitized by Google

Thouȝ þat him list þuruȝ vnstidfastnes—
I mene of Cupide, þat shal him so distres
Vnto your hond, wiþ þe arow of gold,
That he ne shal escapen þouȝ he would.

19.

And siþe ȝe list, of pite and of grace,
In vertu oonli his ȝouþe to cherice,
I shal, baspectes of my benygne face,
Make him teschwe euere synne & vice,
So þat he shal haue no maner spice
In his corage to loue þingis nwe:
He shal to ȝou so plain be found & trwe.'

20.

And whan þis goodli, faire, fressh of hwe,
Humble and benygne, of trouth crop & rote,
Conceyued *had, hov Venus gan to rwe,
On hir praier plainli to do bote,
To chaunge hir bitter atones into soote,
She fel on kneis of heiȝ deuocion,
And in þis wise bigan hir orisoun:

that he shall not escape Cupid's bow.

I shall make him eschew every sin and vice,

so that he will ever be constant to you.'

When this fair one saw how Venus took pity on her,

she fell on her knees and prayed thus:

443. him list] he wolde b. list] self C. W. W2. w. þuruȝ] by Pr. ‖ vnstedfastne B. 444. of] om. b. þat] om. b. 445. þe] an P. 446. escapen] scapen S. 447. ȝe] you S. 449. baspectes] espectes P. be aspect G. W. W2. w. b. by aspectaunce L. be inspect S. 450. teschwe] teshewe W. to shewe W2. w. b. S. synne] om. P. 452. loue] lyue S. þingis] thinge F. B. 453. plain] playnly P. 454. In the margin of B in red ink: Hic vsque verba Veneris; in b is the heading The authour before l. 454. faire] ladi b. fressh] and fresshe S. 456. had] haþ T. 457. praier] preyers S. prayer prayer P. payne b. plainli] only G. S. 458. bitter] bitternesse S. om. P. atones] ones b. attreynys G. om. S. into] vnto F. B. G. 459. of] by S.

In MSS. F. B. G. S. the following stanza is found between ll. 453 and 454.

19 a.

And whi that I so sore to ȝow hym bynde,
Is [for] that ȝe so manye han forsake,
Bothe wyse & worthy, & gentyl [eke] of kynde,
Pleynly refused, only for his sake:
He shal to ȝow, wher so ȝe slepe or wake,
Ben euene swich, vndyr hope & drede,
As ȝe lyst ordeyne of ȝoure womanhede.

I thus bind him to you, because you have refused so many for his sake.

19 a. 1. so sore to yow] to yow so sore F. B. 2. for that] that G. þat for S. 3. 1st &] om. S. gentyl eke] gentyl G. eke gentil S. 5. wher so ȝe] whepr he S. 7. ȝe] you S.

Digitized by Google

21.

'Heiȝest of high, quene and Emperice, 461
'Goddess of love, who by your beauty won the apple at Jupiter's feast: Goddes of loue, of goode ȝit þe best,
þat þuruȝ ȝour [beaute], *with*outen eny vice,
Whilom conquered þe appel at þe fest,
That Iubiter þurugh [his hygh request] 465
To al þe goddesse aboue celestial
Made in his paleis most imperial: 467

22.

To ȝov my ladi, vpholder of my life, 468
Meekly I thank you for your gracious promise, Mekeli I þanke, so as I mai suffice,
That ȝe list nov, with hert ententif,
So graciousli for me to deuyse, and while I live I will sacrifice at your yearly feast. That while I liue, with humble sacrifise, 472
Vpon ȝ*our* auters, ȝ*our* fest ȝere bi ȝere,
I shal encense casten in þe fire. 474

23.

For of ȝoure grace I am ful reconsiled 475
For I now have joy and ease, From euere trouble vnto Ioy & ease,
That sorois al from me ben exiled, as you deign to appease my pain. *Siþ ye, my ladi, list nov to *appese
Mi peynes old, & fulli my disease 479
Vnto gladnes so sodeinli to t*urne*,
Hauyng no cause from h*ennes* forþ to mo*urne*. 481

24.

For as you bind him to my service who loves me best, For siþin ȝe so mekeli list to daunte 482
To my seruyce him þ*at* loueþ me best,
And of ȝ*our* bounte so graciousli to graunte,
That he ne shal varie, þouȝe him list,
Wherof myn hert is fulli brouȝ[t] to rest: 486

Heading in F and B before l. 461: Oracio amantis supradicte; in S: La Orysoune del amant. 461. high] hight P. 462. goode] goddes P. þe] ye L. 463. þat] Though P. ȝour] om. P. you L. beaute] om. T. L. vitte P. bountee S. eny] om. Pr. vice] wyse F. wise L. 464. Whilom] Somtyme w. b. at þe] atte C. W. W2. at w. 465. That] Whyche S. his hygh request] om. T. P. 466. aboue] of loue S. 469. þanke] thank you P. 470. That] What G. S. nov with hert] with hert now P. hert] her F. B. ententif] retentyff S. 471. to] vn to S. 472. while I liue] lyue whyle W2. w. 473. Autours L. 474. in] in to G. Pr. 475. of] in L. 476. euere] euer S. vnto] and to F. 477. from me ben] ben fro me P. S. Pr. 478. Siþ ye] Wiþ þe T. P. ye my ladi] þat you S. nov] om. w. b. thus sodeynly S. appese] peese S. haue peas T. P. 479. old] alle S. 480. Vnto] In to S. so sodeinli] so wondurfully S. to t*urne*] to forne W2. toforne w. 481. forþ] om. P. 482. siþin] sith B. sithins S. 483. þat] om. P. loueþ me] I love F. B. G. S. b. 484. to] om. G. 485. varie] tary L. 486. brouȝt] brouȝ T. hente S. to] in F.

Digitized by Google

For nov and eu*er*, o ladi myn benygne, — I resign my heart and will
That hert and wil to ȝow hole I resigne. 488 to you,

25.

Thanking yow w*ith* al my ful hert, 489 thanking you that you have thus subjected him to me:
Þat, of ȝoure g*r*ace and visitacio*un*,
So humb[e]li list him to conuert
Fulli to bene at my subiecciou*n*,
W*ith*-oute chau*n*ge or t*r*ansmutacio*un*, 493
Vnto his *last: [now] laude and reu*er*ence — now laud and reverence be
Be to youre name and [to] yo*ur* excellence. 495 to your name.

487. o] now B. om. S. 488. wil] al F. B. G. S. to ȝow hole I] hol I to ȝow G. I hooly to you Pr. hole] om. P. 490. of] om. S. and] and god P. 492. to] om. w. to bene at] in to b. bene] ben hole P. 493. W*ith*-oute] With eny P. 494. Vnto] Now vn to S. last now] lust T. L. life P. now laude] ioye S. 495. Be] Be euer b. 2d to] om. T. P. L. to yo*ur*] om. Pr.

Between 495 and 496 the following three stanzas are interpolated in F. B. G. S:

25 a.

And in despit platly of hem alle — 1 I shall cherish him
That ben to love so con*t*raryous,
I shal hy*m* cherice, what so eu*er*e falle,
That is in love so pleyn & vertuous,
Maugre alle tho that ben so desyrous — 5 spite of all who would harm us
To spekyn vs harm, tho*urgh* grochy*n*g & envye
Of thilke serpent I-callyd Ielosye. 7 through Jealousy.

25 b.

And for hem, lady, ȝif I durste preye, — 1 I pray you
Menynge no vengeau*n*ce, but correccyou*n*,
To chastyse he*m* w*ith* torment, or they deye, — chastise them for their untruth
For here vntrouthe & fals suspecyoun,
That deme the werste in here opynyou*n*, — 5
W*ith*-oute desert, wherfore that ȝe vouche
To ponysshe he*m* dewely for here male bouche. — 7 and 'male bouche,'

25 c.

So that they may stondyn In repref — 1 that they may be a reproof to all lovers,
To alle loueris for here cursedenesse,
W*ith*-outyn mercy forsakyn at myschef,
Whan hem lyste best han helpe of here distresse,
And for here falshed & here doubilnesse — 5 as are jays, pies, lapwings and owls to birds.
Had In dispit, ryght as a-mong foulys
Ben Iayis, Pyis, Lapwy*n*gis & these Oulys. 7

25 a. 5. so desyrous] derysyous S. 7. thilke] þat ilk S. I-callyd] cleped S. 25 b. 6. that ȝe] we S. 7. dewely] om. S. 25 c. 1. So] To S. 2. To] Un to S. 4. helpe] mercy S. 5. 2d here] for hir S. 6. Had] And S. a-mong] amonges F. amonge þes S. 7. Iayis Pyis] pyes Iayes F. B. Lapwy*n*gis] þees lapwynges S.

Digitized by Google

26.

This is the substance of my request,
This al and some & chefe of my request, 496
And hool substaunce of *my ful entent, thanking you for grace to conquer him.
Yow þankyng euer of 3our graunt & hest,
Boþ nou and euer, þat 3e me grace haue sent
To conquere him þat neuer shal repent 500
Me forto serue & humbli to please,
As final tresur *of myn hertis ease.' 502

27.

Then Venus cast down into the lady's lap hawthorn branches,
And þan anon Venus cast adoune 503
Into hir lap, braunchis white & grene
Of haw[e]thorn, þat wenten enviroun
Aboute hir hed, þat ioi it was to sene,
And bade hir kepe hem honestli & clene— 507
which should never fade.
Which shul not fade ne nevir wexin old,
If she hir bidding kepe as she haþ told. 509

28.

Saying: 'Do as these branches teach you:
'And as þese bow3is be boþ faire & swete, 510
Folowiþ þeffect þat þei do specifie:
This is to sein, boþe in cold & hete,
Be unchanging like these leaves,
Beþ of oon hert & of o fantasie,
As ar þese leues, þe which mai not die 514
which no storm can kill.
þuru3 no dures of stormes, þat be kene,
No more in winter þen in somer greue. 516

496. This] This is P. L. S. of] om. L. 497. my] myn T. my ful] all my hole b. ful] hole T. P. hoole L. 498. Yow þankyng] Thanking you S. euer] om. b. 499. me grace haue] grace me P. haue] om. Pr. 500. neuer shal] shal neuer S. 501. Me] and F. forto] to S. humbli] meekly S. to] for to S. L. Pr. 502. of] to T. Between ll. 502 and 503 in F: ffinis oracionis. 504. braunchis] Roses F. B. G. S. white] both white P. greue] rede F. B. G. S. 505. Of hawethorñ] So fressh of hewe F. B. G. And fresshe of hewe S. þat] that it G. 506 reads in F. B. G. S: In compas wyse even [evere F, euer B] aboute hir hede. it] om. Pr. 507 omitted in S. honestli & clene] of hir goodelyhede F. B. G. & clene] om. P. 508. shul] shuld P. L. shold Pr. 509. kepe] folowe F. B. G. S. she haþ] I have G. 510 reads in G. S: And so as 3e ben callyd Margarete. þese] the L. be] om. b. 511. þeffect] þe feythe S. þei do] it doth G. hit doþe S. 512. is] om. W2. w. b. &] and in L. 513. Beþ] Euer S. Be ye Pr. & of o fantasie] as is the daysye G. S. 514. As ar þese leues] I lyche fresch G. S. ar] be L. þe] om. S. L. Pr. which] whiche þat S. mai] many W2. 515. þuru3] By Pr. dures] distresse L. dures of stormes] stormys of durys G. stormes ne duresse S. þat] how it S. kene] lene G.

Digitized by Google

29.

Riȝt so bensaum*p*le, for wele or for wo, 517 Even so, in weal and woe,
For ioy, t*ur*ment, or [for] adu*er*site,
Wherso þ*at* fortune fauo*ur* or be foo,
For pouert, riches, or prosp*er*ite,
That ȝe youre hert kepe in oo degre 521 let your heart be constant in
To loue him best, for noþing þ*at* ȝe feine, love for him.'
Whom I haue bound so lowe vndir ȝoure cheine.' 523

30.

And w*ith* þat worde þe goddes shoke hir hede, 524 Then the goddess was silent,
And was in peas, and spake as þo no more.
And þ*er*w*ith*al, ful femynyne of drede, and the lady answered:
Me þouȝte þis ladi sighen gan ful sore,
And said again: 'Ladi þ*at* maist restore 528 'Goddess, to du your will de mieux
Hertes in Ioy from her adu*er*site, en mieux
To do ȝoure will de mieulx en mieulx magre.' 530 m' agrée.'

Thus eu*er* sleping and dremy*n*g as I lay, Thus dreaming on, I saw W*ith*in þe tempil me þouȝt[e] þ*at* I sey 532 in the temple great press of folk,
Gret pres of folk, w*ith* murmu*r* woudirful,
To *croude and *shove—þe tempil was so ful—
Euerich ful bise in his owne cause,
That I ne may shortli in a clause 536
Descriuen al þe Rithes & þe gise,
And eke I want kunnyng to deuyse,
Hou som þ*er* were w*ith* blood, encense & mylk, making offerings

517. Riȝt so] Right B. So S. 1st for] of C. W. W2. w. 2d for] om. L. Pr. 518. t*ur*ment] turnement G. for] om. T. F. B. 519. Wherso] Whe þer þat S. Whether so Pr. þ*at*] om. Pr. be] els b. 522. feine] seyn P. fyne S. C. 523. Whom] Who L. so lowe vndir] om. P. 525. þo] than b. 526. ful] om. b. as S. femynyne] memynyne P. drede] degre G. 527. þis] the w. b. sighen] to sighe b. gan] can L. 528. restore] þer fore S. 529. in] to F. B. G. S. b. Ioy] saue S. from] for G. 530. will—magre] byddyng humblement magre F. B. G. S. wyll (wylll w.) better & better after my gre w. b. After line 530 T and L have: Explicit prima pars (.I. p*ar*te L.). Icy co*m*mence le secund p*ar*ti (seconde p*ar*ty L.) de la soñge. F and B: Et cest le ffyne del primer parte Et ycy co*m*mence la secoñde p*ar*te del songe. G: Yci comence la secunde p*ar*tye de la Chaunsoñ. S: And þus endeþe þe first partye of þe dreem and filowyng begynneþe þe secound p*ar*tye. Lines 531—596 omitted in G. 531. Thus] This P. Thus eu*er*] þer I was S. and] om. Pr. 532 omitted in P. þ*at*] om. Pr. 533. pres] preces W2. w. part S. w*ith*] om. W2. w. 534. To] Who b. To croude] So heve S. croude] bronte T. L. brounte P. shove] showe T. 535. in his] iu W2. 536. ne may] myght P. a] om. P. 537. Descriuen] Dysceyue w. Rithes] rightes P. ryȝtis B. ryte S. 538. eke I want] al þestates þe S. 539. þ*er* were w*ith* blood] there that blede L. om. P. blood] golde b.

Digitized by Google

to the goddess,

And som with floures sote & soft as silk,
*And some with sparovis & dovues faire & white,
That forto offerin gan hem to delite
Vnto þe goddes, wiþ sigh & with praier, entreating release from their pains,

Hem to relese of þat þai most desire;
That for þe prese, shortli to conclude,

Leaving the crowd,

I went my wai for þe multitude,
Me to refressh oute of þe prese allone.
And be my self me þou3t, as I gan gone
Wiþ-in þe Estres & gan awhile tarie,

I saw a man walking in solitude and complaining.

I saugh a man, þat welke al solitarie,
That as me semed for heuines and dole
Him to complein, þat he walk so sole,
Wiþ-oute espiing of eni oþir wi3t.
And if I shal descryuen him ari3t,

Were it not for his heavines, he seemed the very model of a man.

Nere þat he hade ben in heuynes,
Me þou3t he was, to speke of semelynes,
Of shappe, of fourme, & also of stature,
The most passing þat euir 3it nature
Made in hir werkis, & like to ben a man;
And þerwith-al, as I reherse can,
Of face and chere þe most gracious,
To be biloued, happi and Ewrous.
But as it semed outward *by his chere,

But, for lack of his desire, he made lamentation,

That he compleyned for lak of his desire—
For *by himself, as he walk vp & doune,
I herd him make a lamentacioun,

540. floures] om. L. 541. And] An T. faire &] om. Pr. 542. offerin] om. w. to] om. F. B. Pr. 543. wiþ sigh] om. P. sigh] sight S. with] om. Pr. 545. for] for to P. prese] price L. Lines 545—548 read in b:

And shortely this thyng to conclude
So great and huge was the multytude
That I was fayne out of the preace to go
And as I was alone with me no mo.

546. I] It P. my] ne P. for þe] from þat S. 547. to] for to C. W. W2. w. þe] om. w. 548. me þou3t] om. S. as] as þat S. gan] can S. ded P. 549. gan] I gan P. 550. I saugh] I was wel ware of S. þat welke] om. S. 551. semed] semeth W. W2. and dole] om. P. 552—555 omitted in P. 552. þat] om. b. sole] hole L. 554. if] covered by a spot in the parchment in T. 555. Nere] þer S. Nere þat he hade] Yf that he had not Pr. þat] om. L. 557. 1st Of] and F. 2d of] and F. B. L. fourme] striue (?) P. 558. þat euir 3it] yit þat S. 559. hir] hys P. 560. þerwith-al] therwyth F. 561. þe] om. B. 562. To be biloued] ffor to be lwfyd P. 563. as] om. b. semed] om. P. outward] outwardes S. by] in T. 565. by] in P. by himself] bym self T. himself] my self L.

Digitized by Google

And seid: 'Allas! what þing mai þis be,
That nou am bound, þat whilom was so fre,
And went at laarge, at myn eleccioun:
Nou am I cauȝt vnder subieccioun,
Forto bicome a verre homagere
To god o[f] loue, where þat, er I come here,
Felt in myn hert riȝt nouȝt of loues peine;
But nov of nwe within his fire cheyne
I am enbraced, so þat I mai not striue
To loue and serue, whiles þat I am on lyue,
The goodli fressh, in þe tempil yonder
I saugh riȝt nov, þat I hade wonder,
Hou euer god, forto reken all,
Myȝt make a þing so celestial,
So avngellike on erþe to appere.
For wiþ þe stremes of hir eyen clere
I am Iwoundid euen to þe hert, þat fro þe deþ, I trow, I mai not stert.
And most I mervaile þat so sodenli
I was Iȝolde to bene at hir merci,
Wherso *hir list, to do me lyue or deie:
Wiþ-oute more I most hir lust obeie
And take mekeli my sodein auentur.
For siþ my life, my deþ, and eke my cure
Is in hir hond, it would[e] not auaile
To gruch agein; for of þis bataile
The palme is hires, & pleinli þe victorie.
If I rebelled, honour non ne glorie

and said:
'Alas! how am I, who before
was so free, now bound in Cupid's fiery chain!
Now am I forced to serve her whom I saw in the temple yonder, that angelic
creature.
Her eyes have wounded me
to the death.
I am forced to obey her;
it avails not to murmur:
for she is plainly victor
in this battle.

567. þing] om. P. 568. That nou am] Nowe am I b. nou am] am now F. I am now B. whilom] somtyme S. so] om. Pr. 570. Nou am I] Nowe I am S. And now y P. subieccioun] obieccion F. B. 571. bicome] be bounde F. B. 572. god] the god b. of] o T. þat] om. Pr. come] kan F. 573. riȝt] om. Pr. 574. his] þe S. hur C. her W. W2. w. fire] verrey S. 576. loue and serue] serue and loue Pr. whiles] whyle S. L. Pr. þat] om. L. Pr. 577. The goodli] þat feyre S. in] wight in S. which in F. B. tempil] cherche P. 578. I saugh riȝt nov] Right nowe I saughe S. wonder] gret wonder S. 579. Hou] þat S. forto] as for to S. 580. Myȝt] Koude S. 581. on] in S. to] for to S. 582. wiþ] within W2. w. b. stremes] percyng F. B. S. 583. Iwoundid] woundid B. S. Pr. euen] I weene S. to] vn to F. B. P. L. so to S. 584. I trow] om. S. Pr. stert] astert S. Pr. 586. Iȝolde] yolden S. so yolde Pr. at] in F. yn B. 587 and 588 transposed in C. 587. Wherso] Wheber S. Whether that Pr. hir] him T. she Pr. to do me] me to Pr. 588. more I] om. P. most] mot S. 591. woulde] wol L. wyl P. wil Pr. not] nothyng b. 592. agein] om. P. of] om. P. 593. pleinli] playne b. 594 reads in S: As hole subiet / for hirs is al þe glorye. rebelled] rebell P.

Digitized by Google

I myȝt[e] not, in no wise, acheue.
I yield myself: I cannot war with her. Siþ i am yold, hou shuld I þan preue
To gif a werre—I wot it wil not be—
Thouȝ I be loos, at laarge I mai not fle.
Why dost thou wound me so, O god of love! O god of loue, hov sharp is nov þin arowe!
Hou maist þou nov so cruelli & narowe,
With-oute cause, hurt[e] me and wound,
And tast non he·le, my soris forto sound!
As a bird is caught by a snare— But lich a brid, þat fleith at hir desire,
Til sodeinli within þe pantire
She is Icauȝt, þouȝ she were late at laarge—my barge is driven from its track by tempest. A nwe tempest for-casteþ now my baarge,
Now vp nov dovne with wind it is so blowe,
So am I *possid and almost ouerþrowe,
Fordriue in dirknes with many a sondri wawe.
Alas! when shal þis tempest ouerdrawe,
To clere þe skies of myn aduersite,
Alas! the loo lstar is hidden from me, The lode ster when I [ne] may not se,
It is so hid with cloudes þat ben blake.
nor can I foresee the end of this torment— Alas when wil þis turment ouershake?
I can not wit, for who is hurt of nwe
And bledip inward, til he wex pale of hwe,
the hurt being new and the harms of Cupid unknown to me: And haþ his wound vnwarli fresah & grene,
And is not koupe vnto þe harmes kene
Of myȝti Cupide, þat can so hertis davnte
That no man may in your werre him vaunte

595. myȝte] might it S. not] om. b. no] ony Pr. wise] maner wyse b. 597. Here G begins again. gif] gyune F. B. G. S. gif a werre] renne awey Pr. a werre] awerry P. I wot] y wys F. B. G. S. be] ybe S. 600. maist] mightest S. nov] om. S. cruelli] pryuely S. &] and so Pr. & narowe] an arowe P. 602. soris] sorowes L. S. Pr. forto] to Pr. sound] founde P. Pr. 605. Icauȝt] caught G. S. Pr. she were late] late she was Pr. were] was F. late at] let a S. 606. nwe] sodeyne S. now] new F. nyw B. hath P. om. L. 607. it] om. G. so] om. P. 608. possid] passid T. pressid G. tossed w. b. 609 and 610 are omitted in L. 609. Fordriue] Far dryuen b. ffor throwe S. with] of Pr. a sondri] sondry Pr. sturdy F. B. G. S. 610. þis] þe S. ouerdrawe] to me dawe F. B. G. slake lawe S. 611. To] So S. skies] skye is S. 612. when] whan that C. what that W. W2. w. I wote b. ne] om. T. b. hym P. not] om. C. W. W2. w. 613. ben] ben so P. 614. wil] shal F. B. G. S. ouershake] overslake L. S. Pr. 615. for] but G. 616 omitted in P. til] ryl W2. ryll w. wex] be S. 617. vnwarli] wardly W2. inwardly w. b. 618 reads in S: Euer unholpen / more kene and kene. is] yt F. hit is L. Pr. koupe] knowen W. W2. w. b. vnto] to F. B. G. harmes] armys P. 619. þat] which S. can] om. F. B. can so] cause P. davnte] daunce (?) F. 620. may] om. w. b. your] his Pr. werre] werrys G. him] dare hym w. b. vaunte] avaunte S. awaunt P. avaunce (?) F.

Digitized by Google

To gete a pris, but oonli bi mekenes— against him none prevail except through meekness.
For þere ne vaileþ strif ne sturdines—
So mai I sain, þat with a loke am yold,
And haue no power to stryue þouȝe I would. 624
Thus stand I euen bitwix life and deþ Thus I stand between life and death,
To loue & serue, while þat I haue breþ,
In such a place where I dar not pleyn,
Lich him þat is in *tur*ment & in pein, 628
And knoweþ not, to whom forto discure; not knowing to whom to discover my torment.
For þere þat I haue hoolly set my cure,
I dar not wele, for drede & for dau*n*ger,
And for vnknowe, tellen hou þe fire 632
Of louis brond is kindled in my brest.
Thus am I m*ur*drid & slain at þe lest.
So p*re*ueli *with*in *myn [owne] þouȝt.
O ladi Venus, whom þat I haue souȝt, 636 O lady Venus, teach me what is best to do:
So wisse me now what me is best to do,
þat *am distrauȝt *with*in my self[en] so,
That I ne wot what way for [to] turne,
Sauf be my self solein forto mo*ur*ne, 640
Hanging in balau*n*ce bitwix hope & drede, I hang in the balances between Hope and Dread.
W*ith*oute comfort, remedie or rede.
For hope biddiþ p*ur*sue & assay;
And drede againward answeriþ & saiþ nai; 644
And now wiþ hope I am *set on loft, Hope lifts me up,
But drede and dau*n*ger, hard & noþing softe,
Haue ouerþrowe my trust and put adoune;
Nou at my laarge, nou feterid in p*ri*sone, 648

621. gete] grete F. a] hym S. 622. vaileþ] awalith P. 2d ne] nor b. 624. þouȝe] thorgh F. 625. euen] euer L. Pr. bitwix] betwene P. S. b. 626. while] while while P. þat] om. S. C. W. W2. w. I haue] me lasteþe S. 627. dar] ne dar F. B. 629. forto] to Pr. 630. þat] as F. B. b. hoolly] hyely S. 631. wele] were P. &] ne G. Pr. & for] of foule S. 632. hou] ȝow G. S. 633. is kindled] unkyndeld S. 634. am I] y am P. at þe] atte C. W. W2. w. 635. So] Thus S. *with*in] with F. B. G. S. myn] my T. owne] powre P. om. T. L. Pr. 636. ladi Venus] Venus lady F. B. G. S. whom] to whom F. B. þat] om. Pr. haue] haue often P. souȝt] thought F. B. 637. 2d me] om. G. S. me is] is me P. 638. am] I am T. P. L. *with*in] with S. Pr. selfen] selven F. B. selvyn G. so] loo W2. w. lo b. 639. ne] om. P. for] om. S. b. to] om. T. 640. solein] sodeynly G. alone b. forto] to G. 641. bitwix] betwene G. S. b. 642. or] & G. 643. biddiþ] me bideþe S. p*ur*sue] om. P. 644. And] om. G. drede againward] agaynward drede Pr. & saiþ] om. Pr. 645. now] so now P. om. L. set] Iset T. F. L. 646. hard] om. S. 647. Haue] Hath Pr.

Digitized by Google

Nov in *tur*ment, nov in souerein glorie,
Nou in paradise & nov in *pur*gatorie, but Dread and Danger draw me back. As man dispeired in a double *were,
Born vp wiþ hope, & þan anon dau*n*ger 652
Me drawiþ abak, and seith it shal not be.
When I am bold to ask mercy, For where as I, of myn aduersite, Am *bold somwhile merci to requere, then comes Despair and dismays me. þan comeþ dispeire & gi*n*neþ me to lere 656
A nwe lesso*un*, to hope ful contrare—
Thei be so diuers þei would do me varie—
And þus I stond dismaied in a trau*n*ce:
For whan þ*at* hope were likli me tauau*n*ce, 660
For drede I tremble and dar a woord not speke.
But indeed if I disclose not my harms to her, And if it so be þ*at* I not oute breke
To tel þe harmes, þ*at* greuen me so sore,
But in *myself encrese hem more & more, 664
And to be slain fulli me delite,
she is not to blame for my death. þen of my deþ sho is noþing to wite;
For but if she my constreint pleinli knwe,
Hou shuld she euer opon my payn*is* rwe! 668
Thus Hope oft moves me to tell her my griefs; Thus oft[e] tyme w*ith* hope I am I-mevid
To tel hir al of þ*at* I am so greued,
And to ben hardi on me forto take but Dread answers back: better to die To axe m*erci*; but drede þan doþ awake, 672
And *þurgh wanhope answeriþ me again,
þ*at* bettir were, þen she haue disdeyne,

649. 2d nov] and now F. B. G. S. in souerein] soone in S. souereiu] sodeyn G. 650. Nou] om. F. B. 651. man] a man P. b. double] doufull L. were] werre T. P. S. W. W2. w. b. where F. B. 652. þan] om. P. 653. not] om. F. B. 654. I] þat S. 655. bold] hold T. P. L. somwhile] sumwhat F. some tyme S. B. 656. gi*n*neþ] begynneth W. W2. w. b. 657. ful] al S. ful the Pr. 658. would] wol L. wil Pr. 659. I stond] staund y P. 660. þ*at*] om. P. W2. w. b. likli] like L. lyke b. tauau*n*ce] to vaunce B. avaunce F. 661. tremble] trowe S. and] I S. b. a woord not] not on worde S. b. a] one C. W. W2. w. 662. it] om. F. B. so be] be so S. I] om. P. 664. myself] myschef T. encrese] lencrece W2. w. hem] om. P. 665. fulli] me fully L. me] my P. 666. þen] Whan L. Pr. noþing] noght F. B. 667. my] the W. W2. w. b. knwe] knowe W. W2. w. b. 668. opon] on Pr. payn*is*] harmes F. B. G. 669. ofte tyme] oftymes P. ofte tymes F. B. offt tymes S. w*ith* hope I am] I am w*ith* hope G. I-mevid] meved S. C. W. W2. w. moued b. Imourned L. 670. of þ*at*] how Pr. so greued] grevid G. Pr. agreved P. S. 672. drede þan] then drede B. þan doþ] doith than L. doth me thenne Pr. 673. þurgh] þouȝ T. thought P. than L. C. b. thenne W. W2. w. wanhope] whe*n* P. 674. were] is P. þen] that S. W. W2. w. b. haue] had F. B. S. shuld hawe P.

Digitized by Google

To deie at onys, vnknow of eny wiȝt.
And þere-with[-al] *bitt hope anon ryȝt
Me to *be bold, to prayen hir of grace;
For siþ al vertues be portreid in hir face,
It were not sitting þat merci were bihind.
And riȝt anone *with*in my self I finde
A nwe ple brouȝt on me with drede, þat me so maseþ þat I se no spede,
Bicause he seith, þat stoneiþ al my bloode,
I am so symple & she is so goode.
Thus hope and drede in me wil not ceasse
To plete and stryue myn harmes to encrese.
But at þe hardest ȝit, or I be dede,
Of my distresse siþ i can no rede,
But stond[e] dovmb stil as eni stone,
Tofore þe goddes I wil me hast anone,
And *com*plein *with*oute more sermon;
þouȝ deth be fin & ful conclusiou*n*
Of my request, ȝit I will assai.'
And riȝt anoñ me þouȝ[te] þat I say
This woful man, as I haue memorie,
Ful lowli entre into an oratorie,
And knelid [a]douñ in ful hu*m*ble wise
Tofore þe goddes, and gan anon deuyse
His pitous quarel wiþ a doleful chere, Sayyng riȝt þus, anone as ȝe shul here:

than he disdained by her.

Hope makes me look for mercy;

but Dread urges my simpleness against her excellence.

But at all events

I will haste to the goddess and complain, though death result from my request.'

Then methought, this man entered an oratory, and kneeling before the goddess, said:

675. at onys] anoon S. of eny wiȝt] to my wit S. 676. al] om. T. P. L. bitt] bitt*ir* T. but F. L. om. S. ryȝt] yit S. 677. to be bold] gan beholde S. be bold] bihold T. be holden P. be holde G. 2d to] and Pr. 678. For] And L. Pr. portreid] portured L. 679. merci] pyte Pr. 681. brouȝt] y broght P. with] by L. 683. seith] seeþe S. sayd W. W2. w. b. þat] om. S. stoneiþ] astonyeth b. astonyed S. 684. 1st so] to F. B. G. S. 2d so] to F. B. knowe so S. 685. Thus] þis S. 686. to] lo w. b. encrese] peese S. 687. at—or] yit doutelesse or þat S. þe] om. Pr. I] om. P. 688. siþ] such F. 689. dovmb] doun W. W2. w. dome b. 690. Tofore] Before S. b. I wil] as I P. 691. And] And me F. B. G. S. *with*oute more] with more pleyne S. 693. I will] wil I G. wol I hym S. 694. And] om. P. þouȝte] þouȝ T. þat] om. Pr. 695. woful] offulle P. deolfull S. as] as þat S. haue] haue made b. 696. In the margin of F and B: Verba sõmpni*an*tis. lowli entre] lwfly entred P. into] in F. B. an] the F. B. G. S. 697. knelid] kneling S. adouñ] doun T. S. in] with S. ful] alle G. S. 698. Tofore] Before S. b. gan] om. P. 700. þus] this C. anone] om. Pr. Before 701 the following headings are found: Supplicacio amantis F. B. G. þe supplicacioñ of þe Louer S. The compleynt of the man Pr. Compleynt of the man (?) P (later hand).

Digitized by Google

31.

'O Cytheree, who gladdenest all Cirrea,

'Redresse of sorow, o Citheria, 701
That wiþ þe stremes of þi plesaunt hete
Gladest þe contre of [al] Cirrea,
Where þou hast chosen þi paleis & þi sete, whose beams are washed in the well of Helicon: have pity on my tale.

Whos briȝt bemes ben wasshen and of[t] wete 705
In the riuer of *Elicon þe well:
Haue nou pite of þat I shal here tell. 707

32.

And, of your grace, deign to redress my mortal woe,

And not disdeyneþ of ȝour benignite, 708
Mi mortal wo, o ladi myn, goddes,
Of grace & bounte and merciful pite,
Benig[ne]li to helpen and to redresse;

though words fail me to express it.

And þouȝ so be I can not wele expresse 712
The greuous harmes þat I fele in myn hert,
Haueþ neuer þe les merci of my smert. 714

33.

Clear light of heaven,

This is to sein: o clere heuens liȝt, 715
That next þe sonne cercled haue ȝour spere,

since you hurt me by the influence of your beams,

Siþ ȝe me hurten wiþ ȝour dredful myȝt
Bi influence of ȝour bemys clere,
And þat I bie ȝour seruise nov sodere, 719 be gracious and shape a remedy.

As ȝe me brouȝt into þis maledie,
Beþ gracious and shapeþ remedie. 721

34.

For you alone can help: you know my pain.

For in ȝow hoolli liþ help of al þis case, 722
And knowe best my sorow & al my peyne:
For drede of deþ hou I ne der, allas!

701—714. These two couplets have, in B, been closely interlined with what seem arbitrary corrections and notes, which have since been partly erased and rendered illegible. 701. Redresser S. sorow] sorowful F. G. S. o] o thow P. 702. þe] thy F. thi P. 703. þe] al P. contre] contrees F. B. G. S. Court L. mounte Pr. al] om. T. P. L. 704. hast] haddest L. 2d þi] om. Pr. 705. briȝt] brightful S. oft] of T. om. Pr. 706. In] Wiþin F. B. G. S. Elicon] eleccion T. 707. here] now L. þe S. om. G. you Pr. 708. disdeyneþ] dysdeyn P. b. desdayne ye C. W. W2. w. 709. o] om. F. B. G. S. myn] and F. B. G. S. 710. merciful] of mercyful P. 711. Benigneli] Benigli T. 1st to] om. b. 2d to] om. F. B. G. S. 714. þe] yet the Pr. merci] pite P. 715. heuens] heuynessh F. heuenyssh B. 716. spere] light S. 718. influence] infulgence W2. w. ȝour bemys] Beemys þat been S. 720. þis] his W2. 721. Beþ] Be ye Pr. and shapeþ] to shape F. G. S. shapeþ] shape ye C. W. W2. w. shape a b. 722. hoolli] only G. al] om. F. B. þis] the P. case] care W. W2. w. b. 723. knowe] knowyth P. sorow] sore F. B. G. S. peyne] pyne G. P. 724. hou] now P. that B. ne der allas] alas ne dare b.

Digitized by Google

To axen merci ones ne me compleyne.
Nou wiþ ȝoure fire hire hert[e] so restreyne,
With-oute more, or I deie at þe lest,
That she mai wete what is my requeste:

35.

Hov I noþing in al þis world desire,
But forto serue, fulli to myn ende,
That goodli fressh, so womanli of chere,
With-oute chaunge, while I haue life & mynde;
And þat ȝe *wold me such grace send
Of my seruyse, þat she not disdeyne,
Siþen hir to serue I may me not restreyne,

36.

And siþ þat hope haþe ȝeue me hardines
To loue hir best and neuer to repent,
Whiles þat I lyue, with al my bisenes
To drede and serue, þouȝ daunger neuer assent.
And hereopon ȝe knowen myn entent,
Hov I haue *vowed fulli in my mynde
To ben hir man, þouȝ I no merci finde.

37.

For in myn hert enprentid is so sore
Hir shap, hir fourme, and al hir semelines,
Hir port, hir chere, hir goodnes more & more,
Hir womanhede, & eke hir gentilnes,
Hir trouth, hir faiþ & hir kynd[e]nes,
With al vertues, Iche set in his degre;
There is no lak, saue onli of pite.

725. To axen] Aske b. ones] only G. ne] om. F. B. G. me] to S. 726. fire] om. b. hire] om. W. W2. w. b. herte] dart b. restreyne] constrayne Pr. 727. at þe lest] at last P. atte laste W. W2. 730. forto] to S. fulli] holly and truwely S. 732. &] or P. 733. ȝe] I P. wold] wil T. wulle P. me] om. Pr. grace] a grace F. B. G. S. send] nowe seende S. 735. I may me not] may I me nought S. me not] not me Pr. restreyne] refreyne L. F. G. Before 736 S inserts: With oute more / er I dye at þe leest (= line 727). 736. And siþ þat] Sith S. And] Alas b. haþe] haue L. haþe ȝeue me] me hath yeue Pr. (me hath yeue yeue W2). me] me al þis S. 737. neuer to repent] me neuer restreyne S. 738. Whiles] while F. B. 739. daunger] om. P. 740. ȝe knowen] to knowe P. Instead of ll. 741 and 742 S has: So let me neuer with daunger more be shent. 741. vowed] woid T. sewyd (?) P. my] om. P. 742. finde] om. P. 744. al] om. P. 746. eke] al F. B. 747. Hir trouth hir faiþ] Hire faith hire trouthe L. 3d hir] al P. all hir B. eke hir L. S. kyndenes] sikyrnesse B. 748. Iche] she P. his] her Pr. hir P. 749. saue] but F. B. G. S. sauyng C. W. W2. w. of] om. B.

Digitized by Google

38.

her grave demeanour, her benign look,

Hir sad demening, of wil not variable,
Of looke benygne & roote of al plesaunce,
And examplaire to al þat wil be stable,

her wit,

Discrete, prudent, of wisdom suffisaunce,
Mirrour of wit, ground of gouernaunce,

her beauty.

A world of beaute compassid in hir face,
Whose persant loke doþ þuruȝ myn hert[e] race;

39.

Besides, she is faithful, bounteous,

And ouer þis secre & wondre trwe,
A welle of fredome, and riȝt bovntevous,
And euer encresing in vertue nwe & nwe,

gracious and humble:

Of spech goodli and wonder gracious,
Deuoide of pride, to pore not dispitous,
And if þat I shortli shal not feyne, mercy alone is wanting.

Saue opon merci I noþing can compleyne.

40.

No wonder then that I dread to ask grace of her.

What wonder þan þouȝ I be wiþ drede
Inli supprised forto axen grace
Of hir þat is a quene of womanhed?
For wele I wot, in so heigh a place

I will rather lowly endure my woe, till she pity me.

It wil not beñ; *þerfor I ouerpace,
And take louli what wo þat I endure,
Til she of pite me take vnto hir cure.

41.

I vow, whatever she decides, to take it humbly.

But oone *avowe pleinli here I make,
That whebir so be she do me lyve or deye,
I wil not grucch, but humble it take,

750. demening] demyng S. 751. Of] and F. B. benygne] kunnyng S. al] om. B. 752. And] An B. G. And an P. to] of S. wil be] ben F. B. G. S. 753. prudent] prudence w. kunnyng S. 754. ground] growed F. 757. And ouer þis] Et euer thus P. And euer ful S. secre & wondre] wonder secrete and Pr. wondre] wondurfully S. 758. A] om. F. B. of] om. P. 759. And euer] Alwey S. vertue] vertus P. 760. wonder] right b. 761. Deuoide] Alvoyde S. to] of G. not dispitous] folkes pitous S. 762. And] So F. B. G. S. if] om. G. if þat] þat if S. I shortli] I corrected to shortly I B. 763. I noþing] nothyng I b. noþing can] can no thyng G. S. can] om. F. B. Pr. 764. þan] þat S. be] om. b. 765. supprised] suppressid G. oppressed S. axen] axely w. 766. a] om. Pr. 767. wot] wot that G. S. 768. wil] wolde F. þerfor] þerfro T. F. 769. And] Et P. þat] om. P. S. Pr. 770. she] ye G. S. me take] take me P. vnto] in to G. S. to P. Pr. hir] youre G. S. 771. avowe] avove T. here] hir P. here I] I here S. 772. so be] be so P. om. S. she do] doth P. or] or ellys S.

Digitized by Google

And þank[e] god, & wilfulli obey;
For, be my trouth, myn hert shal not reneye,
For life ne deþ, merci *ne daunger,
Of wil and þouȝt to ben at hir desire,

42.

To bene as trwe, as *was Antonyus
To Cleopatre, while him lasted breþe,
Or vnto Tesbe ȝung[e] Piramus
*Was feiþful found, til hem dep*ar*tid deþe:
Riȝt so shal I, til Antropos me sleiþe,
For wele or wo, hir faithful man be found,
Vnto my last, lich as myn hert is bou*n*de,

43.

To loue aswel as did Achilles
Vnto his last þe faire Polixene,
Or as þe gret famous Hercules,
For Dianyre þat felt þe shottes kene—
Riȝt so shal I, y sei riȝt as I mene,
Whiles þat I lyve, hir boþe drede and serue,
For lak of merci þouȝ she do me sterve.

44.

Nou ladi Venus, to whom noþing vnknowe
Is in þe world, I-hid ne not mai be—
For þere nys þing, neþir heigh ne lowe,
Mai be concelid from ȝ*our* privete—
Fro whom my menyng is not nov secre,
But witen fulli þat myn entent is trwe,
And lich my trowth nov on my peyn[e] rwe.

775 My heart shall never renounce her service.
777
778 As Antony was true to Cleopatra, and Pyramus to Thisbe,
782 so will I be to her, until death.
784
785 As Achilles loved Polyxena, and Hercules Dejanira,
789 so will I serve her.
791
792 Now, lady Venus, to whom nothing in the world is unknown, 796
798 take pity on my pain.

774. And] Et P. wilfulli] humbelly S. wyllingly b. 775. my] om. P. shal] om. P. shal not] ne shal G. not] neuer Pr. reneye] revey B. 776. 1st ne] nor G. 2d ne] nor T. L. G. 777. and þouȝt to] ne trouthe but S. to] om. G. 778. was] euer was all except G. S. 779. lasted] lestyth G. lasteth C. 780. vnto] to P. S. Piramus] priamus P. 781. Was] That was all except G. S. hem] hym P. hy*m* F. G. him B. S. 782. Antropos] Atropos b. 784. my last] last end P. 785. To] And G. S. 787. Or] Er S. 788. For—felt] Whiche felt of loue S. Dianyre] Deyanne G. þat] om. G. shottes] shott Pr. kene] sharp̄ and keene S. 789. I, y] y P. I S. Pr. riȝt] om. P. S. euyn b. riȝt as] om. L. as] as þat S. 790. Whiles] While G. S. Pr. þat] om. B. I lyve] lyfe P. hir] om. P. boþe drede] drede most S. 792. Nou] O P. vnknowe] is vnknowe P. 793. Is] om. P. þe] thys F. B. I-hid] hid C. hyde W. W2. w. om. b. not] naught L. nought S. Pr. 794. nys] ne is G. is no S. neþir] so S. ne] ne so S. 796. Fro] ffor G. menyng] meuyng W2. w. not nov] nowe not S. 797. þat] om. P. 798. nov on] vp on G. peyne] peynes P. G. S.

Digitized by Google

45.

For more of grace þan presumpcioun 799
I axe merci, and not of duete,
In lowly humbleness I ask you, Of louli humblesse, wiþoute offensioun,
That ȝe enclyne, of ȝ*our* benygnyte,
Y*our* audience to myn humylite, 803 of your grace, to grant me release. To graunt[e] me, þat to ȝov clepe & calle, Somdai relese ȝit of my paynes alle. 805

46.

As you hold in your hand the reward for true lovers, And siþ ȝe haue þe guerdon & þe mede 806
Of al louers pleinli in ȝ*our* hond,
Nou of [your] grace and pite takeþ hede
Of my distresse, þ*at* am vndir ȝ*our* bond
So lovli bound, as ȝe wele vndirstond: 810 so let me there find my health, where first I was wounded. Nou in þ*at* place, where I toke first my wo*und*,
Of pite sufferiþ my helth mai be found— 812

47.

That lich as she me hurt[e] wiþ a siȝte, 813
Riȝt so w*ith* helpe let hir me sustene,
As the rays of her bright eyes once pierced my heart, And as þe stremes of hir eyȝen briȝt
Whilom myn hert, w*ith* wo*und*is sharp & kene, Thuruȝ perced haue, and ȝit bene fressh & grene: 817
so let her now succour me. So as she me hurt, nou let hir me socoure,
Or ellis certein I mai not long endure. 819

48.

For lak of speech, I can say no more; For lak of spech I can sey nov no more: 820
I haue mater, but [I] can not plein;
Mi wit is dulle to telle al my sore;

799. þan] than of L. Pr. 800. not] no thing Pr. of] om. P. 801. louli] lowe G. S. louli humblesse] lwflynesse P. humblesse] humblenesse L. b. offensioun] transgression b. 803. to] vnto Pr. 804. me] hit me S. þ*at* to ȝov] it for whiche b. clepe] I clepe Pr. 805. Somdai] Sumdelle (?) L (effaced). Somdai—of] Yit ye releesse some day S. ȝit] om. B. P. b. 806. And] An S. 808. your] om. all except G. S. takeþ] take P. take ye Pr. 809. am] I am L. 810. wele] wil S. 811. Nou] om. Pr. toke] take P. 812. Of] ffor P. sufferiþ] suffre ye Pr. helth] helpe G. S. Ioy P. found] now found P. 813. lich] om. S. me hurte] myn herte G. hurt me b. hurt me first S. 814. helpe] helth Pr. hir me] me her Pr. 815. eyȝen] euen w. 816. Whilom] Somtyme w. b. Whilom corrected by a later hand into Entred L. 817. haue] hath P. and] that G. S. 818. omitted in P. she] om. L., supplied by a later hand. 1st me] om. G. S. nou] so S. om. Pr. 2d me] expunged in L. socoure] sature G. 819. not long] nowhile G. S. 820. nov] om. P. you Pr. 821. mater] gret mater S. no mater b. 2d I] om. T. plein] complayne b.

Digitized by Google

A mouth I haue, & ȝit for al my peyne,
For want of woordis I may not nov atteyne — 824 words fail me to tell half my heart's grief.
To tell[en] half þat doþ myn hert[e] greue,
Merci abiding, til she me list releue. 826

. 49.

But þis theffecte of my mater finalle: 827 Finally, I ask release, in death or mercy;
Wiþ deþ, or merci, reles forto finde.
For hert, bodi, þought, life, lust and alle,
Wiþ al my reson and alle my ful mynde, for my whole being is
And fiue wittes, of oon assent I bind 831 bound to her for ever.
To hir seruice, wiþ-outen eny strife,
And make hir princesse of my deþ or life. 833

50.

And ȝov I prai of routh and eke pite, 834 O lady Venus,
O goodli planet, o ladi Venus briȝt,
That ȝe ȝoure sone of his deite—
Cupid I mene, þat wiþ his dredful myȝt so kindle her heart, through your son Cupid,
And wiþ his brond, þat is so clere of liȝte, 838
Hir hert[e] so to fire and to mark,
As ȝe me whilom brent[e] with a spark: 840 even as you have done mine;

51.

That euenlich, and with þe same fire, 841
She mai be het, as I nov brenne & melt,
So þat hir hert be *flaumed bi desire, that her heart be inflamed as mine is;
That she mai knowe bi feruence hou I swelt;
For of pite pleinli if she felt 845 for then I might hope for grace.'
The selfe hete þat doþ myn hert enbrace,
I hope of rouþe she would do me grace.' 847

824. of] om. L. 825. half] al P. G. 826. she] ȝe G. yow S. me list] list me P. list S. 827. But þis] Þis is S. þis] thus L. mater] preyer G. S. 828. or] of S. 829. þought, life, lust] lyfe lust thoght P. life, lust] lust lyf G. 830. reson] resort P. alle] om. P. G. S. 831. fiue] myne fyve G. S. of] with G. 833. And] To G. S. hir] om. L., supplied by a later hand. of] ouer L. or] and L. P. G. S. 834. And ȝov I prai] Beseche I yowe S. ȝov] now Pr. of] for P. eke] of S. ek of G. 835. O] om. G. S. 836. ȝe] om. S. sone] soñ pray P. 839. Hir] om. W2. w. Myn b. so] lyst so b. mark] make P. 840. ȝe me whilom] whilhom ȝe me G. S. whilom] somtyme w. b. brente] henten S. 841. euenlich] lyke wyse W. W2. w. b. 842. be het] be it w. by it b. het] hit C. W. W2. I] om. P. 843. flaumed] bavmed T. L. P. bi] with L. Pr. 844. bi] wiþ G. S. I] om. L., inserted later. 845. For of pite] She wolde me pitie b. of] om. W2. w. 847. would] will Pr. At the close of stanza 51 F and B have in the margin: ffinis oracionis; besides this, B has in a later hand: h^{c} vsq*ue* nescio quis.

Digitized by Google

52.

And therewith Venus looked benignly on this man,

And þer*with*al Venus, as me þouȝt, 848
Toward þis man ful benyg[ne]li
Gan cast hir eyȝe, liche as þouȝ she rouȝt

and said:

Of his disease, and seid ful good[e]li:

'Thy humble obedience deserves my help.

'Siþ it is so þat þou so humb[e]lie, 852
Wiþ-oute grucchyng, oure hestis list obey,
Toward þin help I wil anoñ puruey. 854

53.

And Cupid, too, shall help,

And eke my sone Cupide, þat is so blind, 855
He shal ben helping, fulli to per*four*me
ȝour hole desire, þat noþing behind
Ne shal be left: so we shal refourme
The pitous com*pleint*, þat makiþ þe to mo*urne*, 859 that thy lady may relieve thy smart.

That she for whom þou soroist most in hert,
Shal þuruȝ hir merci relese ad þi smert, 861

54.

Whan she seþ tyme þuruȝ oure *pur*ueaun*ce*. 862

Be not too hasty:

Be not to hasti, but suffre alway wele:
For in abidyng þuruȝ lowli obeissaun*ce*
Liþe ful redresse of al þat ȝe nov fele,

she will be true as steel to you, if you only bide your time.

And she shal be as trw as eny stele 866
To ȝowe allone, þuruȝ oure myȝt & grace, ȝif ȝe lust mekeli abide a litel space. 868

55.

But understand, all her love shall be grounded in honesty;

But vndirstondeþ þat al hir cherisshing 869
Shal ben grovndid opon honeste,
That no wiȝt shal, þurugh euil com*passing*,

In b, before stanza 52, is the heading: The author; in B. F: Responsio Veneris. 848. þer*with*al] ther with P. Venus as] right as þat S. 849. Towardes F. B. L. S. Pr.—benygli T. benigly P. 850. hir] an P. þouȝ] om. G. that S. Pr. (exc. b.) rouȝt] reugh P. 851. goodeli] in goodely S. 852. þou] you b. 853. obey] tobeye G. weye F. 854. Towar G. Towardes L. S. þin] your G. S. b. I wil anoñ] anon I wyl G. S. 855. eke] also W. W2. w. b. so] om. L. G. 856. He] om. b. 857. behind] be behynd P. L. Pr. G. S. 858. left] kept S. 859. The] This Pr. þe] you b. 860. That] And b. þou soroist] ye sorowe b. 861. þi] your b. 862. seþ] seyth P. oure] your S. her w. b. 863. to] om. P. alway] althing Pr. 864. in] om. P. lowli] lwfly P. 865. ful] om. S. 867. þuruȝ] by Pr. oure] youre S. hyr G. 868. ȝe lust mekeli abide] humbully ye byde S. mekeli abide] byde G. abyd mekly P. 869. vndirstondeþ] vnderstande ye Pr. 870. ben] be so S. so ben G. grovndid] ground P. honeste] al honestee S. 871. þurugh euil] by ony Pr. com*passing*] rehercyng W. W2. w. b.

Digitized by Google

*Demen amys of hir in no degre:
For neiþer merci, rouþe, ne pite
She shal not haue, ne take of þe noñ hede
Ferþer þen longiþ vnto hir womanhede.

56.

Beþe not astoneid of no wilfulnes,
Ne nouȝt dispeired of þis *dilacioun;
Lete reson bridel lust bi buxumnes,
Withoute grucching or rebellioun;
For ioy shal folov al þis passioun:
For who can suffre turment & endure,
Ne mai not faile þat folov shal his cure.

57.

For toforn all she shal þe louen best:
So shal I here, withoute offencioun,
Bi influence enspire[n] in hir brest,
In honest wise, wiþ ful entencioun,
Forto enclyne, bi clene affecciou*n*,
Hir hert fulli on þe to haue rouþe,
Bicause I know þat þou menyst trouþe.

58.

Go nov to hir, where as she stant aside,
Wiþ humble chere & put þe in hir grace,
And al biforne late hope be þi guide,
And þouȝe þat drede would[e] with þe pace,
It sitteþ wel; but loke þat þou arace
Out of þin hert wanhop & dispaire,
To hir presence er þou haue repaire.

never shall she outstep the bounds of womanhood.

Let reason bridle desire;

cure crowns patient endurance.

She shall love thee best:

so will I influence her to pity thee.

Go now to her,

guided by 'Hope'— and even 'Dread'—

but banish 'Despair.'

872. Demen] Semen T. P. Seyen L. of hir] om. G. no] nomaner G. 873. For] But G. S. ne] nor G. Pr. 874. haue ne take] tak ne haue P. of] at G. þe] ȝow G. S. b. 875. vnto hir] to P. 876. Beþe] But P. Be Pr. 877. Ne] Be P. Ne nouȝt] Nor b. dispeired] dispayer P. þis] þe S. dilacioun] dillusioun T. P. dissolucion L. Pr. 879. or] or ellys S. 880. filowe S. 881. who] om. B. 882 reads in b: May nat fayle at length to optayne pleasure. Ne] He F. B. þat] but Pr.—filowe S. felowe F. 883. For] om. S. toforn] before b. all] alle oþer S. þe] ȝow G. S. 884. I] ye P. 885. hir] my S. 886. wiþ] and w. b. 887. clene] full P. 888. fulli] holly b. þe] ȝow G. S. 889. þat] om. P. þou menyst] ȝe mene G. S. trouþe] but truthe S. 890. where] were L. om. S. as] om. L. w. b. she] he W. om. W2. stant] standes w. standeth b. aside] side L. 891. put] pite P. 892. al] om. L. biforne] to forn G. late] loke L. be] by L. 893. And] ffor S. þe] his P. pace] face b. 894. þou] yow P. 895. wanhop] hope P. 896. repaire] any repeyre S.

Digitized by Google

59.

'Mercy,' And merci first shal þi wai[e] make, 897
'Honest Meaning,' And honest menyng aforn do þi message,
To make merci in her hert awake;
'Secretness' and 'Humble Port' shall smooth thy way; I, too, will favour thee. And secrenes, to furþer þi viage,
Wiþ humble port to hir þat is so sage, 901
Shul menes ben, & I myself also Shal þe fortune er þi tale be do. 903

60.

Go forth at once: Go forþe anon, & be riȝt of goode chere: 904
For specheles noþing maist þou spede;
Be goode of trust, & be noþing in were,
with my help, she shall at least grant thee a hearing. Siþ I myself shal helpen in þis nede;
For at þe lest, of hir goodlihed, 908
She shal to þe hir audience enclyne,
And lovli þe here, til þou þi tale fyne. 910

61.

Fore wele þou wost, ȝif I shal not feine, 911
Thou must speak out; Without spech þou maist no merci haue:
For who þat wil of his preve peine for there is no cure, Fulli be cured, his life to help & saue,
He most mekeli oute of his *hertis graue 915 unless thou discover thy wound to the leech. Discure his wound, & shew it to his lech,
Or ellis deie for defaute of spech. 917

62.

In mischief one must seek help; For he þat is in myschef rekeles 918
To sechen help, I hold him but a wrecch;
And she ne mai þin hert[e] bring in peas,
But if þi compleint to hir hert[e] strecch.

897. shal þi waie] þy wey shal redy S. 898. menyng] mevyng G. menne w. meane b. 899. make] do P. merci] pyte Pr. 900. secrenes] sikurnesse S. to] tor P. viage] vysage S. message L. 901 omitted in L, but added by a later hand. 902. I] om. P. 903. fortune] forne w. forther b. er] and P. þi] al þy S. tale] calour (?) P. 904. riȝt of goode] of ryght good F. B. L. b. right good of C. W. W2. w. 905. noþing] for no thyng G. S. maist þou] may you W. W2. w. may ye b. 908. at þe] atte C. W. W2. at w. P. lest] last P. 909. to þe] the to P. to—audience] hire audience to the L. 910. lovli] lowe the C. þe] to B. om. G. S. þe here] to her Pr. here] hir S. til] tell b. 911. wost] knost P. wyst G. wotest w. wottest b. ȝif] yeft P. 912. þou—haue] than no mercy maist hawe P. 914. Fulli] ffullyche G. be cured] to be recured P. 915. He] om. b. hertis] hurtis T. herte G. w. b. hert F. B. L. C. W. W2. 916. to] om. C. W. W2. w. 917. deie] to die P. 918. he] om. L. rekeles] and is rekelees b. 919. sechen] seche hym P. but] om. Pr. a] om. L. 921. if] om. G. S. to] vnto G. hir] thyn L. herte] erys G. S.

Digitized by Google

Wouldist þou be curid, & wilte no salue fecch, 922 without salve, thou canst
It wil not be: for no wiȝte may atteyne not be cured.
To come to blis, if he lust lyue in peyne. 924

63.

Therfore at ones go in humble wise 925 Therefore Tofore þi ladi & louli knele adoun, kneel lowly before thy lady;
And in al trouth þi woordis so deuyse,
That she on þe haue compassioun:
For she þat is of so heigh renoun 929 and she shall
In al vertues as quene & souerain, have pity on thy pain.'
Of womanhed shal rwe opon þi pein.' 931

And whan þe goddes þis lesson hade him told, 932 When the goddess ended,
Aboute me so as I gan bihold,
Riȝt for astoneid I stode in a traunce,
To *seen þe maner & þe covntenaunce the countenance of this
And al þe chere of þis woful man, 936 man was woeful to see:
That was of hwe deedli pale & wan,
Wiþ drede supprised in his owne þouȝt,
Making a chere as *þouȝ he rouȝt[e] nouȝt
Of life ne deþ, ne what so him bitide: 940
So mych fere he hade on euere side, so feared he
To put him forþe forto tel his peyne to lay his case before his lady.
Vnto his ladi, oþer to compleyne,
What wo he felt, turment or disease, 944
What dedli sorov his hert[e] did[e] sease,
For rouþe of which his wo as I endite, For very ruth Mi penne I fele quaken as I write. I feel my pen quake, 922. þou] then F. not S. wilte] lyst G. S. no] not L. B. nocht P. fecch] seche F. 923. not be for] not be nocht be P. 924. he] him S. 925. go] go forth Pr. 926. Tofore] By fore S. Before b. adoun] and a doun W2. þi] this G. 928. on þe] of the may G. S. 929. of so heigh] so hye of S. 931. opon] on Pr. of P. After 931 in F. B: Huc [Hic B] usque verba Veneris. Heading before 932 in B. F: Verba sompniantis; in b: The author. 932. him] om. S. Pr. 933. so as] so C. W. W2. w. as b. I gan] gan I w. gan] cane S. 934. for] as for F. B. P. L. sore S. b. so C. W. W2. w. I] om. C. W. W2. w. in] as in F. B. G. S. 935. seen] sein T. seyñ P. &] of L. 2d þe] om. C. W. W2. w. covntenaunce] gouernaunce G. 937. deedli pale &] pale and dedly S. 938. supprised] oppressid S. in his owne] inly in his G. oonly in his S. 939. a] his S. om. Pr. þouȝ] þat T. S. he] hym G. S. rouȝte] recched S. cared b. 940. 1st ne] nor F. B. P. G. 941. he] him L. on] in G. 942. him] hem S. forto] to C. 943. oþer] or els b. 944. he] him L. felt] lete W2. ledde w. b. or] and P. b. 946. his wo as I] of his wo to S. wo as] wooes W. W2. w. b. 947. quaken] qwakyng S. L. write] now write P.

Digitized by Google

Of him I had so gret compassioun, 948
as I rehearse his lamentatiou. Forto reherse his weymentacioun,
That, wel vnnepe þouȝ with my self I striue,
I want connyng, his peynes to discryue.
Allas! to whom shal I for help[e] cal? 952
Not the Muses, helpers in joy, may I now invoke, Not to þe Musis, for cause þat þei ar al
Help of riȝt in ioi & not in wo,
And in maters þat þei delite also,
Wherfore þei nyl directe as nov my stile, 956
Nor me enspiren, allas þe hard[e] while!
but Tisiphone and her sisters. I can no ferþer but to Thesiphone
And to hir sustren forto help[e] me,
That bene goddesses of turment & of peyne. 960
Now let your tears rain into my ink, Nou lete ȝoure teris into myn inke reyne,
With woful woordis my *paper forto blot,
This woful mater to peint[e] not, but spotte, that I may relate the complaint of this man, To tell þe maner of þis dredful man, 964
Vpon his *com*pleint, when he first bigan
To tel his ladi, when he gan declare
His hid[de] sorois, and his euel fare,
That at his hert constreyned him so sore, 968 which ran thus: Theffecte of which was þis with-oute more:

64.

'Princess of youth, 'Princes of iouþe, & flour of gentilesse, 970
Ensau*m*ple of vertue, ground of curtesie,

949. Forto] þat to S. his] his gret P. weymentacioun] lamentacion b. 950, 951 read in b:

Ye / though I with my selfe stryue
Unneth my connyng may his paynes discryue

950. wel] om. C. W. W2. w. vnnepe] I wot S. with my self I] I with my silf C. 951. want] lacke w. 952. to—helpe] for help to whom shall I B. 953. for cause] by cause G. b. þat] om. F. B. Pr. ar] om. S. ben Pr. al] nere all b. 954. Help] Helpynge F. B. G. Helpen S. 955—957 om. in P. 955. þei] om. F. B. G. S. 956. nyl] wil nat G. nyl not S. directe as nov] as now directe Pr. nowe dyrect S. as] om. G. 957. allas] but allas F. 958. I] And G. S. no] no more P.—Physyphonee S. 959. sustren—me] suster to calle help vpon C. W. W2. w. b with the variation susters. 960. goddesses of] goddesse nt P. goddes L. 2d of] om. C. W. W2. w. 962. woful] peynfull S. paper] pauper T. 963. to peinte not] not to peynte B. C. b. not peynt S. but] to P. but to S. 964. dredful] woful P. 966. when] and howe b. gan] began L. 967. sorois] sorowe P. 968. That] Whiche S. at] om. W2. w. b. his] is W2. him] om. Pr. 969. þis] thus L. After 969 is in F. B the rubric: The supplicacion of the man to hys (his B.) lady; S has in the margin: Balade of þe lover. 970. Princes] Pryncisses P. 971. Ensaumple] A ensample P. Ensamplier L.

Digitized by Google

Of beaute rote, quene & eke maistres — queen and mistress of all
To al women hou þei shul hem gie, — women,
And soþefast myrrour to exemplifie 974
The riȝt[e] wei of port & womanhed:
What *I shal sai of merci takeþ hede— 976 list to my request.

65.

Biseching first vnto ȝoure heigh nobles, 977 With quaking heart I beseech your help;
Wiþ quaking hert of myn inward drede,
Of grace and pite, & nouȝt of riȝtwisnes,
Of verrai rouþe, to help[en] in þis nede:
That is to saie, o wel of goodlihed, 981 I do not dread death, if only you hear me.
That I ne recch, þouȝ ȝe do me deie,
So ȝe list first [to] heren what I saie. 983

66.

The dredful stroke, þe gret[e] force & myȝt 984 Cupid has so smitten me,
Of god Cupide, þat no man mai rebel,
So inwardli þuruȝ out myn hert[e] riȝt
I-persid haþ, þat I ne mai concele — that I cannot conceal my Myn hid[de] wound, ne I ne may apele 988 wound.
Vnto no grettir: þis myȝti god so fast
Yow [for] to serue *haþ bound me to my last, 990

67.

That hert and al, without strife, ar yolde, 991 I have surrendered to your service,
For life or deþ, to ȝoure seruise alone,
Riȝt as þe goddes myȝti Venus would: — as Venus, on Toforne hir mekeli when I made my mone, — hearing my complaint, constrained
She me constreyned, without chaunge, anone 995

972. beaute] bountee S.—magistresse P. 973. shul] shuld F. B. G. 974. And] þe S. to exemplifie] goode texemplyfye S. 975. of] to þe S. &] in G. of S. and of L. Pr. 976. I shal] shal I T. L. takeþ] take ye Pr. Between 976 and 977 no interval marking the division of the stanzas in C. W. W2. w. (because the same rhymes recur?). 977. first] om. w. b. vnto] to P. heigh] gowd P. 978. inward] vnware S. 979. nouȝt] om. b. 980. in] om. W. W2. w. b. 981. That] This G. S. Pr. 983. ȝe] you S. to] om. T. 985. god] gowd P. good W2. w. om. b. þat no man] ayenst whom non P. b. 986. out] om. L. P. 987. I-persid] y presed F. concele] cancelle S. 988. hidde] hovyn S. ne] nor F. B. G. S. ne may] may not P. 989. þis myȝti god] his mightyhed S. 990. for] om. T. P. L. Pr. haþ bound me to] me haþ bound vnto T. L. hath me bound vnto Pr. me to] vnto F. B. G. S. 991. That] My w. b. al—ar] body hole is to you S. 992. or] and L. 993. goddes myȝti] mighty goddesse S. 994. Toforne] Before b. 995. anone] in oone F. B. G. S.

Digitized by Google

me to do, To 3oure seruise, & neuer forto feyne,
*Where so *ye list to do me ease or peyne. 997

68.

so that I can only cry mercy. So þat I can noþing but merci crie 998
Of 3ov my ladi—& chaungen for no nwe—
That 3e list goodl[i], tofore [er þat] I dey3e,
Of verrey rouþe opon my peynes rwe.
Verily, if you knew all, you would have pity. For be my trouþe, & 3e þe soþe knwe, 1002
What is þe cause of myn aduersite,
On my distres 3e would haue pite. 1004

69.

For I will be true and humbly devoted to you, For vnto 3ow trwe & eke secre 1005
I wole be found, to serue as I best can,
And þerwith-al as lowli in ich degre as ever man was to his lady. To 3ow *allone, as euir 3it was man
Vnto his ladi, from þe tyme I *gan, 1009
And shal so forþe, *with*outen eny slouþe,
Whiles þat I lyue, bi god & be my trouþe. 1011

70.

I would rather die than offend you. For leuyr I had to dei[e]n sodeinli, 1012
Than yow offend in any maner wise,
And suffre peynes inward priueli,
Than my seruise 3e shuld as nov despise.
For I ri3t nou3t wil asken in no wise, 1016
Take me as your servant; But for 3oure seruau*n*t 3e would me accepte,
And, whan I trespace, goodli me correcte, 1018

71.

And forto graunt, of m*e*rci, þis praier, 1019
Oonli of grace and womanl[i] pete, teach me Fro dai to dai þat I my3t[e] lere

997. Where so] Wheþer S. Where so euer T. P. L. Pr. ye] yow T. F. B. S. do me] me do P. me] om. L. 999. chaungen] chaunging S. 1000. 3e] you S.—goodl T. tofore] before b. byseen S. er] om. P. er þat] om. T. 1001. rwe] knewe W2. 1002. &] yef P. if L. b. þe soþe] my peynes Pr. 1003. What is þe cause] And what the cause is b. 1004. On] Of S. L. Off P. distres] disese G. S. Pr. 1006. wole] wold P. found] bounde S. 1007. lowli] low G. S. 1008. allone] ben allone T. L. P. Pr. was] ded P. 1009. þe tyme] tyme þat S. I] the world P. gan] began T. L. P. S. Pr. 1010. shal so] so shal G. S. so] be B. 1011. Whiles] Whyle b. 1012. leuyr—to] I had leuer b. 1013. offend] offence W2. w. 1014. inward] Inwardes S. 1015. my—nov] as now my seruice ye shull P. 3e shuld as nov] as now ye shold Pr. ye shulden nowe S. 1017. would] wol L. 1018. goodli me] me goodely to S. 1019. þis] the L. Pr. 1020. womanl T. 1021. lere] beter lere S.

Digitized by Google

3ow forto please, & þerwith-al þat 3e,
When I do mys, list [for] to teche me,
In 3oure seruyse hou þat I mai amende
From hens-forþe, and neuyr 3ow offende.

how to please you,
and how to amend, if I do amiss.

72.

For vnto me it doþ inou3 suffise,
That for 3oure man 3e would me reseyue,
Fulli to ben, as 3ou list deuyse,
And as ferforþe *my wittes con conceyue,
And þerwithal, lich as 3e perseyue
That I be trwe, to guerdone me of grace,
Or ellis to punyssh aftir my trespace.

For I am content to be your servant:
reward or punish me as I deserve.

73.

And if so be þat I mai not atteyne
Vnto 3our merci, 3it graunteþ at [þe] lest,
In 3our seruice, for al my wo & peyne,
That I mai dei3en aftir my bihest.
This is al & som, þe fine of my request:
Oþir with merci 3our seruant forto saue,
Or merciles þat I mai be graue.

And if I cannot obtain your mercy,
then let me die in your service.
This is the whole of my request.'

74.

And whan þis benygne, of hir entent trwe,
Conceyued haþ þe compleint of þis man,
Ri3t as þe fressh rodi rose nwe
Of hir coloure to wexin she bigañ;
Hir bloode astonyed so from hir hert[e] *ran
Into hir face, of femyny[ni]te:
Thuru3 honest drede abaisshed so was she.

When this benign lady heard this,
she waxed red as a rose,

1023. for] om. T. G. S. 1024. I] ye L. 1027 omitted in P. 1028. 3ou] ye G. P. W. W2. w. b. deuyse] to devise G. S. 1029. And] Ryght F. B. G. S. my] as my all except F. B. G. S. con] may F. B. G. S. P. 1030. perseyue] preue C. W. W2. w. me preue b. 1031. That I] To b. I] ye P. me of] of your G. S. 1032. to] om. G. me P. S. 1034. at þe] at T. atte F. W. W2. w. att B. me at L. P. 1035. peyne] pyne P. 1037. is] om. F. B. G. þe] and P. om. S. request] beheest S. 1038. Oþir] Outher C. Eyther W. W2. w. b. Oonly S. forto] to Pr. 1039. I] he G. S. graue] begraue Pr. grace F. P. In the margin opposite 1040: The answere of hys lady F. 1040. And] om. S. trwe] so trewe G. S. 1041. haþ] had P. 1044. ran] it ran T. P. W. W2. w. b. 1045. femynyte T. F. B. pure femynite P. verray femynyte L. Pr. 1046. so] om. Pr.

Digitized by Google

75.

and humbly and benignly glanced at him,

And humb[e]lle she gan hir eiȝen cast 1047
Towardis him, of hir benygnyte,

in abashed silence;

So þat no woord bi hir lippes past
For hast *nor drede, merci nor pite.
For so demeyned she was in honeste, 1051
That vnavised noþing hir astert:
So mych of reson was compast in hir hert— 1053

76.

till at last, in pity, she spoke:

Til, at þe last, of rouþe she did abraide, 1054
When she his trouþe and menyng did[e] fele,
And vnto him ful goodli spake & seide:

'With all my heart I thank you for your offer.

'Of ȝoure [be]hest and of ȝour menyng wele,
And ȝoure seruise so feiþful eueredel, 1058
Which vnto me so lowli now ȝe offre,
Wiþ al my hert I þanke ȝow of ȝoure profir— 1060

77.

You must needs speed the better for your virtuous intent;

That for as mych as ȝoure entent is sette 1061
Oonli in vertu, I-bridelid vnder drede, ȝe most of riȝt nedis fare þe bette
Of ȝoure request, and þe bettir spede.

but I can grant nothing more than Venus will allow;

But as for me, I mai of womanhede 1065
No ferþir graunt to ȝov in myn entent
Thanne as my ladi Ven*us* wil assent. 1067

78.

for I am bound to obey what she ordains.

For she wele knowiþ I am not at my laarge 1068
To done riȝt nouȝt but bi hir ordinaun*c*e;
So am I bound vndir hir dredful charge,
Hir lust to obey w*ith*oute variaun*c*e.

1047. gan] began L. Pr. 1048. Towarde b. of] right of S. 1050. 1st nor] ne T. S. 2d nor] ne L. S. Pr. 1052. That] Than P.—vnaduysed C. b. vnduysed W. vndeuysed W2. w.—no thyng no thyng P. noþing hir] hir nothyng myght G. hir astert] fro her stert Pr. 1053. compast] composed b. hir] om. W. W2. w. 1054. at þe] atte C. W. W2. w. F. at B. of rouþe] so moche b. rouþe] whiche C. W. W2. w. 1055. his] is C. menyng] meuyng w. dide] well dyd b. 1056. 1st And] That b. vnto] to G. S. spake &] thus she b. 1057. 1st Of] And of B. behest] behestes S. hest T. 2d of] om. G. S. Pr. 1058. ȝoure] of yowr P. 1059. vnto] to L. 1060. of] for b. 1061. That] And b. om. S. as mych as] so muche as L. so moche C. W. W2. w. sette] y sette P. 1062. in] on S. b. I-bridelid] brydeld S. 1063. fare] fayr P. 1066. to] om. S. 1067. as] om. P. assent] ful assent S. 1068. am] nam S. 1069. bi] at G. 1070. bound] drowned Pr. 1071. to obey] to him S.

Digitized by Google

But for my part, so it be plesaunce
Vnto þe goddes, for troupe in 3our emprise,
I 3ow accepte fulli to my seruyse.

But, for my part, I fully accept you.

79.

For she myn hert haþ in subiecciou*n*,
Which holi is 3oures and neue*r* shal repent,
In þou3t nor dede, in myn eleccioun:
Witnes on Venus, þat knoweþ myn entent,
Fulli to obei hir dome and Iugement,
So as hir lust disposen and ordeyne,
Ri3t as she knoweþ þe trouth of vs tweyne.

My heart is wholly yours and will ever be:

but yet, as Venus disposes, I must obey.

80.

For vnto þe time þat Venus [list] prouyde
To shape a wai for oure hertis ease,
Boþe 3e and I mekeli most abide,
To take a[t] gre, & not of oure disease
To grucch agein, til she list to appese
Oure hid[de] wo, so inli þat constreyneþ
From dai to day & oure hert[es] peyneþ.

For until she deign to appease our inward woe, we must meekly abide.

81.

For in abiding, of wo & al affray—
Whoso can suffre—is founden remedie,
And for þe best ful oft is made delay,
Er men be heled of hir maladie;
Wherfore, as Venus list þis mater to guie,
Late vs agreen & take al for þe best,
Til her list set oure hertes boþe at rest.

For in abiding is found remedy for woe:

let us surrender ourselves to Venus' will;

1072. pleaunce w. 1074. fulli] in P. 1076. holi] hol G. hole S.—repete w. 1077. 1st In] And in G. nor] nen S. 1078. on] of G. 1079. to obei] to beye W2. w. b. to byde S. 1080. hir] she G. P. 1081. Ri3t] Lych G.S. vs] bothe vs G. S. 1082. vnto] vn P. þe] om. G. S. list] om. T. P. F. B. 1084. mekeli most] most nedes þe tyme S. 1085. at gre] agre T. in gree S. L. of] at G. for S. b. 1086. agein] agrayne b. til] til that Pr. 2d to] om. B. S. b. appese] hawe pece P. 1088. &] so S. and of P. hertes] hert T. peyneþ] pleyneþe S. peyryth G. 1089. al] om. L. 1090. Whoso] Who that G. S. b. Who P. is founden] fyndeþe S. b. 1091. ful oft is] is ofte P. G.—dely G. 1092. Er] Er that P. men] man W2. w. be heled] beheled W. behelde W2. w. 1093. list þis mater] this mater lest G. þis] the b. to] om. S. b. 1094. take] om. L. al] al thing S. al for] for al P. 1095. her] sche G. S. set—boþe] owre both hertes sett P. oure—boþe] bothe our [w: out] hertes Pr. at] in Pr.

Digitized by Google

82.

for she can unite lovers.

For she it is þat bindeþ & can constreyne 1096
Hertes in ooñ, þis fortunate planete,
And can *relesen louers of her peyne,
To turne fulli hir bitter into swete.

Now, blissful goddess, befriend us from thy starry seat.'

Nou blisful goddes, doun fro þi sterri sete, 1100
Vs to fortune, caste 3our stremes shene,
Like as 3e cnow þat we troubþe mene.' 1102

83.

And then I saw these lovers pass before the goddess,

And þerwithal, as I myn eyȝen cast 1103
Forto perceiue þe man*er* of þese twein,
Tofore þe goddes mekel[i] as þei past,

who linked their hearts together with a golden chain,

Me þouȝt I saw, with a golden cheyne,
Venus anoñ enbracen & constrein 1107
Her boþ[e] hertes, in oon forto perseuer,
Whiles þat þei liue and neu*er* to desseuer. 1109

84.

saying: 'My daughter,

Saiyng riȝt þus with a benygne chere: 1110
'Siþ it is so 3e ben vndir my myȝt,
Mi wille is þis, þat 3e, my douȝter der*e*,

of your grace, receive this man.

Fulli accepte þis man, *as hit is riȝt,
Vnto 3our grace anoñ here in my siȝt, 1114
That euer haþ ben so louli 3ou to serue:
It is goode skil 3our þank þat he desserue. 1116

85.

It is fitting that you should cherish him,

Your honour*saue, and eke 3our womanhed, 1117
Him to cherissen it sittiþ 3ov riȝt wele,
Siþ he is bound, vnder hope & drede,
Amyd my cheyne þat maked is of stele;

1096. it] om. L. Pr. is] om. b. bindeþ] biddeth L. constreyne] destreyne S. 1098. relesen] recou*er* P. plesen T. F. B. 1099. To] And to P. into] vn to G. b. 1100. fro þi sterri] streght from þy S. 1101. Vs] Vn G. 1104. twein] sweyne W2. w. 1105. Tofore] Before S. b.—mekel T. þei] the P. F. 1106. a golden] of golde a S. In the margin of F, opposite ll. 1104—1106: Corda amboru*m* amanciu*m* cathenata per venerem. 1107. enbracen] enbrased P. enkrace b. 1108. bothis G. boþer S. boþe hertes] hertes both P. 1109. Whiles] Whyle b. liue] haue lyue L. to] for to S. desseuer] disserue F. 1110. In the margin of F: Verba veneris ad amantes. 1111. 3e] that ye P. they G. S. 1112. þis] thus Pr. 1113. Fulli] Ful C. W. p. W2. w. as hit is] at his T. F. B. 1116. he] ye L. 1117. eke] also W. p. W2. w. b. 1118. riȝt] om. P. 1120. Amyd] And with S. maked] forged G. L. Pr. maked—stele] is golde yche dele S.

Digitized by Google

3e must of merci shape þat he fele — 1121 — and be gracious to him.
In 3ov som grace for his long seruise,
And þat in hast, like as I shal deuyse. — 1123

86.

This is to sein: þat 3e taken hede, — 1124 — Consider how, for all his faithfulness,
Hou he to 3ov most faiþful is & trwe
Of al 3our seruauntis, & noþing for his mede
Of 3ov ne askiþ but þat 3e on him rwe; — he only asks your pity:
For he haþe *vowid to chaunge for no nwe, — 1128 — he has vowed never to change.
For life nor deþ, for ioy[e] ne for peyne—
Ay to ben 3ours, so as 3e list ordeyne. — 1130

87.

Wherfore 3e must—or ellis it were wrong— — 1131 — Wherefore, admit him to your favour;
Vnto 3our grace fulli hym receyue,
In my presence, bicause he haþ so long
Holli ben 3oures, as 3e may conceyue
That, from 3oure merci nov if 3e him weyue, — 1135 — else I must record cruelty against you.
I wil my self recorden cruelte
In 3oure.persone, & gret lak of pite. — 1137

88.

Late him for trouth þen find[e trouth] agein; — 1138 — Let grace be his guerdon;
For long seruice guerdone him with grace,
And lateþ pite wei[e] doun his pein;
For tyme is nov daunger to arace — root 'Danger' out of your
Out of 3oure hert, and merci in to pace; — 1142 — heart, and let 'Mercy' enter.
And loue for loue would[e] wele biseme
To yeve agein, and þis I pleinli deme. — 1144

1121. 3e] She S. of merci shape] nedys of mercy P. he] ye W2. w. b. 1122. for] of Pr. 1123. like] om. P. 1125. Hou] How þat G. most] oft W. p. W2. w. is] it W. p. W2. om. w. hath ben b. 1127. ne] he b. þat] om. Pr. rwe] to rue b. 1128. haþe vowid] vowed hath L. Pr. vowid] woid T. 1129. nor] ne P. F. Pr. ne] nor G. ner L. no B. 1130. Ay] As W2. w. b. 3e] yowe S. 1131. 3e] yow S. 1132. fulli hym] him fully to S. 1133. he] that he L. 1135. 3oure] om. w. b. nov] om. G. Pr. 3e] I S. weyue] reve P. 1138. for] so S. for his L. Pr. þen] om. P. G. S. b. þen finde] fynde than C. W. p. W2. w. finde trouth] trouthe fynde G. 2d trouth] truwe S. om. T. F. B. L. C. W. p. W2. w. 1139. with] om. P. 1140. lateþ] late ye C. late your W. p. W2. w. b. weie doun] awey doon S. 1141. to arace] for tarace G. for to race S. vp to race P. 1142. Out] But S. pace] space W. p. W2. w. b. 1143. And] ffor P. woulde] It wel G. hit wolde S. world C. biseme] seeme S. 1144. þis] thus L. P. G. S. I] om. S.

Digitized by Google

89.

I will stand surety for his dutifulness.

And as for him, I wil bene his borow 1145
Of lowlihed and bise attendaunce,
Hou he shal bene, boþ at eue & morov,
Ful diligent to don his obseruaunce,
And euer awayting ȝou to do plesaunce; 1149

And thou also, my son, list to my counsel.

Wherfore, my sone, list & take hede
Fulli to obey as I shal þe rede. 1151

90.

First, be faithful and humble;

And first of al, my wil is þat þou be 1152
Feiþful in hert and constant as a walle,
Trwe, humble and meke, & þerwithal secre,
Withoute chaunge in parti or in al;

In every trouble let thy heart be rooted in steadfastness.

And for no turment, þat þe fallen shal, 1156
Tempest þe not, but euer in stidfastnes
Rote þin hert, and voide doublenes. 1158

91.

For thy lady's sake,

And forþermore, haue in reuerence 1159
Thes women al for þi ladi sake,
And suffre neuer þat men *hem don offence,

revere and defend all women.

For loue of oon; but euermore vndirtake
Hem to defend, wheþer þei slepe or wake, 1163
And ay be redi to holden champartie
With al[le] þo, þat to hem haue envie. 1165

92.

Be courteous, fresh and seemly;

Be curteis ay and lowli of þi spech 1166
To riche and poure, ai fressh & welbesein,

help all true lovers;

And euer bisie, weies forto sech
All trwe louers to relese of her peyne,

disdain no one;

Siþ þou art oon; and of no wiȝt haue disdein— 1170

do not vaunt thyself of being cherished.

For loue haþ pouer hertis forto daunt—
And neuer for cherisshing þe to mych auaunte. 1172

1145. for] for for F. 1146. bise] lowly S. 1147. he] hit S. at] om. Pr. eue] even S. &] & at G. 1149. ȝou] om. S. to] for to F. B. L. G. S. do] om. p. 1150. list] listen P. L. F. B. Pr. hede] good hede G. 1151. to obey] obeye S. 1152. þat] at P. thys that F. B. þou] ye G. S. 1154. and] om. B. Pr. 1155. or] and b. 1156. fallen shal] may befall b. 1160. ladi] ladyis G. ladyes S. 1161. hem don] do þem T. L. b. do hem S. 1162. but] om. P. euermore] ever wher S. euer w. b. 1163. wheþer þei] wherso thow G. 1164. And] But G. S. to] for to P. champartie] truwe partye S. them party L. Pr. 1165. With] Ayenst Pr. þo] om. P. those b. 1166. ay] eke F. B. 1167. ai] om. S. Be b. 1168. euer] euery P. 1170. and] om. G. S. 1172. And] om. S. neuer for] for no G. S. þe] neuer G. S. to mych] to S.

Digitized by Google

93.

Be lusti eke, deuoid of al tristesse, 1173 Be devoid of melancholy,
And take no þouȝt, but euer be Iocond,
And nouȝt to pensif for non heuynes;
And with þi gladnes let sadnes ay be found; yet earnest in thy gladness;
When wo approcheþ, lat myrþ most habound, 1177 be mirthful even in woe,
As manhod axeþ; and þouȝ þou fele smert, and do not wear thy Lat not to manie knowen of þin hert. 1179 heart upon thy sleeve.

94.

And al vertues biseli þou sue, 1180 Seek virtue,
Vices eschew, for þe loue of oon; eschew vice;
And for no tales þin hert[e] not remue: take no heed
Woorde is but winde, þat shal sone ouergoñ. of tales;
What euer þou here, be dovmb as eny stoñ, 1184
And to answere to sone not þe delite; answer not
For here she standeþ þat al þis shal þe quite. 1186 hastily.

95.

And where þou be absent or in *pr*esence, 1187
None oþirs beaute lat in þin *herte myne, Give place to Siþ I haue *ȝyue hir of beaute excellence, no other's Aboue al oþir in vertue forto shine; beauty in thy
And þenk *in fire hoū men ar wont to fyne 1191 heart.
This purid gold, to put it in assay: Gold must be
So þe to preue, þou ert put in delay. 1193 purified by fire, and thou by delay.

96.

But tyme shal come þou shalt for þi sufferau*n*ce 1194 In due time thy endurance shall be
Be wele apaide, and take for þi mede paid with Thi liues Ioy and al þi suffisau*n*ce, thy life's joy;

1173. deuoid] al voyde S. voyd Pr. al] om. S. 1174. euer] ay G. 1175. And nouȝt to] Ne be not S. 1177. approcheþ] approched C. myrþ] mercy G. 1178. axeþ] axid C. 1179. manie] fele S. 1180. biseli þou] besye the to G. S. þou sue] ensue b. 1181. eschew] eschuwe ay S. 1182. And] Ne S. not] ne S. þin—remue] let not thy hert renue P. remue] remeve G. reneve W. W2. w. b. 1183. Woorde] Wordis L. þat] hit S. shal sone] sone shal G. ouergoñ] be gone w. begone b. 1185 reads in S: And soone to aunswere þat þou þe not delyte. not] do nat b. na P. þe] om. G. 1186. al þis shal] shall alle P. 1188. oþirs] other b. herte myne] hertes mynd T. 1189. ȝyue] om. S. ȝyue hir] hir ȝyue T. F. B. L. beaute] bountee S. 1190. in—shine] euer to be thyne b. vertue] beaute B. G. 1191. þenk] þenk þat T. P. F. B. L. in fire hou] hou in fyre Pr. ar] ben S. wont] wone G. 1192. in] at G. S. 1193. þe to preue] to the proue Pr. 1194. But] And S. 1195. take] thanked S. 1196. þi] this P.

Digitized by Google

So þat goode hope alway þi bridel lede.

'Despair' and 'Dread' be far from thee.

Lat no dispeire hindir þe with drede, 1198
But ay þi trust opon hir merci grovnd,
Siþ noon but she may þi sores sound. 1200

97.

Eche houre and tyme, weke, dai and ȝere, 1201

Never vary;

Be iliche feithful, and varie not for lite;

abide patiently, and endure delay; for in the end thou shalt win her,

Abide awhile, & þan of þi desire
The time neigheth, þat shal þe most delite;
And lete no sorov in þin hert[e] bite 1205
For no differring, siþ þou shalt for þi mede
Reioise in pees þe floure of womanhede. 1207

98.

who is this world's light, the star of beauty, the empress of thy heart.

Thenk hou she is þis wor[l]dis sonne & liȝt, 1208
The sterre of beaute, flour eke of fairnes—
Boþe crop and rote—and eke þe rubie briȝt
Hertes to glade Itroubled with derknes,
And hou I haue made hir þin hertes emperesse: 1212

Take him, daughter, by the hand,

Be glad þerfore to be vndir hir bonde.
Nou come nere, douȝter, & take him bi þe hond, 1214

99.

that he may be glad after his torment.

Vnto þis fyne þat, after al þe showres 1215
Of his turment, he mai be glad and liȝt,
W[h]an, þuruȝ youre grace, ȝe take him to be ȝoures
For euermore, anon here in my syȝt;
And eeke also I wil, as it is ryȝt 1219

Kiss him here in my presence;

*Without*e more his langour forto lisse,
In my presence anoñ þat ȝe him kisse— 1221

100.

That *þere mai be of al ȝoure old[e] smertis 1222
A ful relese vndir ioy assured;

1197. þat] shal S. alway] ay S. þi] the p. 1199. opon] on b. 1200. may] ne may G. sores] sorowes L. P. sorowe Pr. 1201. 1st and] om. b. weke] and euery S. dai] om. p. 1202. iliche] ay liche L. eylyche P. lyche G. S. liche C. lyke W. p. W2. w. b. 1204. þat shal] þow shalt S. 1206. no] om. G. S. differring] desyring S. shalt] shall P. om. Pr. 1207. Reioise] Shal [Shalt b.] reioyse Pr. 1208. þis] þe S. worldis] wordis T. G. &] om. B. 1209. flour] the flour Pr. eke] and eke L. 1210. eke] ete w. 1211. Itroubled] doubeld S. 1212. haue] om. G. S. 1215. fyne] syn C. þe] þy S. these Pr. showres] sorowes L. 1216. his] thys F. hire L. 1217. Whan] Wan T. þuruȝ] by Pr. to be] to S. 1219. eeke also] firþermore S. also I wil] I wil also Pr. 1220. lisse] lesse P. 1222. þere] here T. P. B. F.

Digitized by Google

And þat oo lok be of 3oure boþe hertes — your hearts shall be locked in one
Shet with my key of gold so wel depured,
Oonli in signe þat 3e haue recured 1226 by my golden key.
3oure hole desire here in þis holi place,
*With*in my temple, nou in þe 3ere of grace. 1228

101.

Eternalli, be *bonde of assuraunce, 1229 The knot is for ever knit:
The cnott *is knytt, which mai not beñ vnbovnd,
That al þe goddis of þis alliaunce, all the gods bear record
Sat*ur*ne, & Ioue, & Mars, as it is fovnde,
And eke Cupide, þat first 3ou did[e] wounde, 1233
Shal bere record, & *euermore be wreke and will take vengeance on
On which of 3ou his troupe first dope breke: 1235 whichever is untrue.

102.

So þat bi aspectes of hir fers[e] lokes, 1236 The culprit shall be erased out of my books.
Wiþ-oute merci, shal fal[le] þe vengeaunce
Forto be raced clene out of my bokes,
On which of 3ow be found[e] variaunce.
þerfore atones setteþ 3o*ur* plesauns 1240 Therefore be ever of one accord;
Fulli to ben, while 3e haue life and mynd,
Of oon accord vnto 3oure lyues ende, 1242

103.

That, if þe spirit of nvfangilnes 1243 that, if newfangledness and doubleness assail,
In any wise 3oure hertis would assaile,
To meve or stir to bring in doubilnes
Vpon 3o*ur* troupe to giuen a bataile,
Late not 3oure corage ne 3oure force fail, 1247 your courage and force may not fail:
Ne non assautes 3ov flitteñ or remeve:
For vn-assaied men may no troupe preue. 1249 truth must be proved.

1224. of] on S. 1225. so wel] wel G. depured] pured Pr. 1226. haue] ben S. 1227. hole] om. P. in] right in L. 1228. in þe] þis S. þe] this L. 1229. Eternalli be] Ye be eternally b. be bonde of] ben bounde & G. bonde] bounde T. P. L. Pr. S. 1230. is] 3e T. F. B. L. is knytt] om. P. which] the wheche G. that Pr. 1231. goddis] knottys G. 1232. 1st &] of F. om. Pr. Ioue] Iuno L. w. Iuue b. 2d &] as P. 1233. eke] þowe S. 3ou dide] did you L. Pr. ded yow P. did him S. 1234. euermore] ouermore T. L. C. be wreke] bewreke S. C. 1235. On] Of S. his] þeyre S. doþe] to S. om. Pr. 1236. bi] om. S. aspectes] the aspectes P. L. þaspectes S. hir] his P. G. ferse] first S. fair C. fyry W. W2. w. b. 1237. Wiþ-oute] With S. þe] to B. te G. þe foule S. vengeaunce] variance P. 1239. On] In G. S. founde] found of Pr. 1243. nvfangilnes] reproued Ialousnesse S. 1244. 3oure hertis would] wolde youre hertes S. 1245. or] and L. 1246. giuen] gynnyn G. 1247. ne] ner L. 1248. Ne] Ner L. Nor Pr. assautes] assayis G. or] nor G. 1249. men may no] may no man P. no man may L. Pr.

Digitized by Google

104.

For white is whitter when set by black; sweet is sweeter after bitterness:

For white is whitter, if it be set bi blak, 1250
And swete is swettir eftir bitternes,
And falshode euer is drive & put a-bak,
Where troupe is rotid *with*oute doubilnes;

without proof is no security.

Wiþ-out[e] prefe may be no sikirnes 1254
Of loue or hate; and þ*er*for of ȝow t[w]oo
Shal loue be more, þ*at* it was bouȝt with wo. 1256

105.

Everything is more prized when dearly bought; love is surer when won with woe.

As euere þing is had more [in] deinte, 1257
And more of pris, when it is dere bouȝt;
And eke þ*at* loue stond more in surete,
When it tofore with peyne, wo & þouȝt
Conquerid was, first when it was souȝt; 1261
And euere conquest haþ his excellens,
In his p*ur*suite as he fint resistence: 1263

106.

So love will be sweeter to you,

And so to ȝow more sote and agreable 1264
Shal loue be found—I do ȝou plein assure—because you suffered patiently;

Wiþ-oute grucching þat ȝe were suffrable
So low, so meke, pacientli tendure,
That al atones I shal nov do my cure 1268

I will bind your hearts together for ever.

For nov and euer ȝ*our* hertis so to bynd,
That nouȝt but deþ shal þe *knot vnbynd. 1270

107.

To make it short—be

Nou in þis mater what shuld I lengir dwel? 1271
Comeþ [off] at ones, and do as I haue seide.

1250. bi] wyth P. 1252. falshode] falsenes P. S. euer] om. S. euer is] is neuer L. 1253. rotid] rote P. doubilnes] om. W2. falsnes w. b. 1254. may] ther may Pr. be no] not be S. 1255. or] nor, G. S. and P. 1256. loue] om. P. þ*at*] sith S. for Pr. was] is S. 1257. As] And Pr. more in] in more L. P. G. in] om. T. F. B. deinte] deute W. W2. w. dente b. 1258. bouȝt] Ibought P. aboght F. B. G. S. 1259. þ*at*] om. Pr. more in] in more L. 1260. When it] þat longe S. it] om. B. it is Pr. tofore] be fore P. b. peyne wo] wo peyne G. &] om. G. 1261. 1st was] is S. than b. first—was] whan hit is first S. souȝt] boght B. thought L. 1262. And] ffor S. 1263. he] it Pr. (it it W2.) 1264. And] Right S. sote and] sett P. 1265. Shal loue be] Loue shalbe b. loue] om. P. do] om. b. do ȝou plein] playnly you L. plein] pleynly S. (L.) Pr. assure] ensure L. sure S. 1266. þat] if b. þat ȝe] as he P. were] be b. 1267. So low so] Both lowe and b. pacientli] placently S. 1268. That] Than b. nov] om. P. nov do] do now Pr. 1269. ȝ*our*] you W2. bynd] bende G. fynde S. 1270. but] saf P. shal þe knot] the knot shal G. S. þe] y*our* P. knot] þnot with the þ scratched through T. 1271. In the margin of F: Conclusio verbor*um* Veneris. 1272. Comeþ] Come ye Pr. off] om. T L. Pr. haue] yow P.

Digitized by Google

And first, my douȝter, þat bene of bounte* well, — gracions to him, my daughter:
In hert and þouȝt be glad, and wele apaied
To done him grace þat haþ, & shal, obeid 1275
Iour lustes euer, and I wole for his sake
Of trouþe to ȝow be bou*n*de and vndertake.' 1277 I will stand surety for him.'

108.

And *so forþew*ith*, in *p*resence as þei stonde 1278 Then this lady took her servant by the hand,
Tofore þe goddes, þis ladi faire & wele
Hir hu*m*ble seruau*n*t *toke goodli bi þe honde,
As he toforne here mekeli did knele,
And kissed him after, fu[l]fillyng eueredele 1282 and kissed him,
Fro point to point in ful *þrifti *wise,
*As ȝe toforne haue Venus herd deuyse. 1284 as Venus had devised.

109.

Thus is þis man to ioy and al plesau*n*ce, 1285 Thus has this man found joy after pain:
From heuynes & from his peynes old,
Ful reconsiled, and haþ ful suffisau*n*ce
Of hir þat euer ment[e] wel, & would:
*That in goode faith, *and I tell[e] shuld 1289 thus are their hearts filled with inward mirth,
The inward myrþe dide hir hertis brace,
*For al my life it were to lit a space. 1291

110.

For he haþe wonne hir þat he loueþ best, 1292
And she to grace haþe take him of *pite;
And þus her hertis beþe boþe set in rest, and set at rest;
Wiþ-outen chaunge or mutabilite,
And Venus haþ, of hir benygnete, 1296 for Venus has bound them in one for ever.
Confermed all—what [shal] I lenger tarie?—
This tweyn̄ in oon̄, and neuere forto varie: 1298

1273. bene] is S. ar Pr. bounte] beute G. well] wele T. the welle P. 1274. hert] hete G. wele] om. P. 1275. haþ & shal] shal and hath P. Pr. & shal] so longe S. 1277. be bou*n*de and] by bounde I S. 1278. so forþew*ith* in] soforþe w*ith*in T. so forth within L. C. W. W2. w. so forth in b. stonde] dyd stande b. 1279. Tofore] He fore S. Before P. b. ladi] om. C. W. W2. w. 1280. toke] eke T. take F. 1281. toforne] before b. mekeli] om. P. knele] þer kneele S. 1282. fufillyng T. eueredele] om. B. 1283. þrifti] tristi T. tristy L. P. wise] vise T. 1284. As] And T. toforne] before b. haue] hade L. had W. W2. w. haue Venus] Venus haue G. S. 1286. 2d from] om. S. 1287. haþ] om. S. 1289. That] And T. and] þow T. if b. 1290. myrþe] merthis G. mirthes C. myrthes L. W. W2. w. myrtes b. Ioye S. dide] that dede G. S. P. b. hertis] hert L. 1291. For] Forþe T. F. B. In P. life] lyf to telle Pr. lit a] lytel F. B. P. Pr. 1292. loueþ] loued L. 1293. of] to T. 1294. beþe boþe] bothe ben G. in] at B. L. G. S. 1297. shal] om. T. shulde G. S. 1298. forto] to Pr.

Digitized by Google

111.

Therefore, laud and honour were given unto Venus and Cupid,

That for þe Ioy in þe temple aboute 1299
Of þis accord, bi gret solempnyte,
Was laude and honoure with-in and with-oute 3eue vnto Venus, and to þe deite

the Muses magnifying the goddess with their song.

Of god Cupide, so þat Caliope 1303
And al hir sustren in hir armonye
*Gunne with her song þe goddes magnyfie. 1305

112.

All did her reverence:

And al at ones, with notes loude & sharpe, 1306
Thei did her hono*ur* & her reuerence,

Orpheus touched his harp,

And Orpheus among hem with his harp
Gan strengis touch with his diligence, and Amphion did his best to please her.

And Amphiou*n*, þat haþe suche excellen*ce* 1310
Of musike, ay dide his bisynes
To please and queme Ven*us* þe goddes, 1312

113.

Oonli for cause of þe affinite 1313
Betwix þese twoo not likli to desseue*re*;

The lovers all prayed Venus that the love of these two might ever endure and increase.

And euere louer of lou3 & hei3 degre
Gan Venus pray, fro þens forþ & euer
That hool of hem þe loue may perseue*re*, 1317
Wiþ-oute[n] ende, in suche plite as þei gonne,
And more encrese þat it of hard was wonne. 1319

114.

So the goddess made a solemn promise,

And so þe goddes, hering þis request, 1320
As she þat knew þe clene entencio*un*
Of loþe hem tweyne, haþ made a ful bihest,
Perpetuelli, by confirmacio*un*,

1299. for þe] for b. in] wyth in P. aboute] aboue w. 1301. honoure] om. P. preysing S. with-oute] eke wyth out P. 1302. 3eue] Ioye S. vnto] to Pr. to] vnto L. 1305. Gunne] Can S. Sone T. L. F. P. Soon C. Swete W. W2. w. Gunne with her] With theyr swete b. her] om. L. C. song] songes Pr. magnyfie] to magnyfye S. W. W2. w. did magnifye C. 1307. 1st her] om. S. 2d her] om. w. b. 1308. Orpheus] or Phebus F.—amonges S. L. his] hir P. 1309. his] besy G. S. 1311. Of] In S. ay dide] dede ay ek G. 1312. and queme] and quene W2. the quene w. b. queme] quen P. þe] aud w. and b. 1313. for cause] bycause b. of] or P. þe] þis S. 1314. Betwix] Betwene b. Be twethe G. twoo] tweyne G. S. likli] lusty C. W. W2. w. 1315. lou3 & hei3] heigh and low P. b. 1316. Gan] Gunne G. pray] to pray L. 1317. hool—loue] ho the loue of hem G. loue] lyf S. 1318. in] wyt G. plite] wyse Pr. 1319. And] In S. 1320. so] om. Pr. þus S. 1322. haþ made a ful] made a Pr.

Digitized by Google

Whiles þat þei lyue, of oon affecciou*n* — 1324 — that their affection should last perpetually.
Thei shal endure—þer is no more to sein—
þat neiþer shal haue mater to *com*pleyne. 1326

115.

'So ferforþ euer in oure eternal se 1327 'Thus have the gods devised and concluded
The goddes haue, in *her presscience,
Fulli deuysed þuruȝ hir deite,
And holi concludid bi hir influence,
That þuruȝ hir myȝt and iust[e] *providence 1331 that their love shall continue for ever.'
The loue of hem, bi grace and eke fortune,
Wiþ-oute chau*n*ge shal euer in oon *contune.' 1333

116.

Of which[e] graunt, þe tempil enviro*u*n, 1334 And then, in the temple,
þuruȝ heiȝ confort of hem þat were *pr*esent,
Anone was gon[n]e with a melodius sowne, a ballad with melodious sound
In name of þo þat trouþ in loue ment,
A ballade nwe in ful goode entent, 1338
Tofore þe goddes with notes loude & clere, was sung before the goddess:
Singyng riȝt þus anon as ȝe shal here: 1340

117.

'Fairest of sterres, þat, wiþ ȝoure p*er*sant liȝt 1341 'Fairest of stars, whose radiant beams lighten hearts in love,
And with þe cherisshing of ȝoure stremes clere,
Causen in loue hertes to ben liȝt,
Oonli þuruȝ shynyng of ȝoure glade spere:
Nou laude and pris, o Venus, ladi dere, 1345 laud and praise be to you, O Venus.
*Be to ȝour name, þat haue *with*oute synne
þis man fortuned his ladi forto wy*n*ne. 1347

1324. Whiles] Whyle b. þat] om. P. Pr. lyue] loue B. of] by G. 1325. sein] fayne L. 1327. ferforþ] ferthermore L. euer] euermore Pr. oure] oon S. 1328. her presscience] oure *pr*esence T. P. F. B. L. Pr. hir heghe prescyence S. 1329. þuruȝ] in G. 1330 and 1331 transposed in P. 1330. holi] hol G. hoole S.—conclude b. hir] fynal G. S. 1331. þuruȝ] by Pr. myȝt] witt S. myth G. providence] prudence all except G. S. 1332. hem] hym p. eke] by S. 1333. euer in oon] euermore S. Pr. contune] tyme T. P. F (corrected later to tvne, by Stowe?). suvn B. 1336. gonne] gone T. p. goon W. W2. w. begun C. begon b. sowne] song P. 1337. In] An W2. w. In—þo] Namely of hem G. Namely of þoo S. þo] those b. 1338. in] with G. in—entent] with good avysement S. 1339. Tofore] Before S. b. with] of S. notes] note P. 1340. riȝt] om. F. þus] this C. W. p. W2. w. anon—shal] as ye shul affter S. 1341. þat] om. B. ȝoure] oour p. 1342. with] om. P. cherisshing] clerisshyng P. feyruesse S. ȝoure] youres L. stremes] beames b. 1343. in] to L. 1344. þuruȝ] by Pr. 1345. pris] preyse P. L. B. G. b. Venus ladi] lady Venus S. w. b. 1346. Be] We T. P. ffor S. 1347. forto] made to F.

Digitized by Google

118.

Bright Hesperus, helper of all lovers,

Willi planet, O Esperus so bri3t, 1348
þat woful hertes can appese and *stere,
And euer ar redi þuru3 3*our* grace & my3t
To help al þo, þat bie loue so dere,
And haue power hertis to set on fire: 1352 honour be to you from all present.

Honor to 3ow of all þat bene here-inne,
That haue þis man his ladi made to wynne. 1354

119.

Mighty goddess, day-star after night,

O my3ti goddes, daister after ny3t, 1355
Glading þe morov whan 3e done appere,
To voide derknes þuru3 fresshnes of 3*our* si3t, Oonli with twinkeling of 3oure p'esau*n*t chere:

we lovers all thank you for your favour to these two.'

To 3ov we þank, louers þat ben here, 1359
That 3e þis man—and neuer forto twyn—
Fortuned haue his ladi forto wynne.' 1361

With this heavenly melody in the temple

And with þe noise and heuenli melodie
*Which þat þei made in her armonye þuru3 oute þe temple, for þis ma*n*es sake, 1364

I awoke,

Oute of my slepe anone I did awake,
And for astonied knwe as þo no rede;
For sodein chau*n*ge oppressid so with drede
Me þou3t I was cast as in a trau*n*ce: 1368
So clene away was þo my remembrau*n*ce

sad at losing sight of this lady:

Of al my dreme, wher-of gret þou3t & wo
I hade in hert, & nyst what was to do,
For heuynes þat I hade lost þe si3t 1372

1348. Willi] Worthy b. so] lady S. 1349. can] canst b. stere] sterre T. 1350. ar] be S. þuru3] by Pr. 1351. þo] those b. 1352. power—set] pore hertis so offt sette S. hertis to set] to sette hert*is* L. on fire] affere G. a fere L. 1353. of] om. S. 1354 reads in S: þat þis man hane / fortuned his lady wynne. þis—to] made this man his lady P. 1355. O] And S. daister] day sterry P. 1356. 3e don'e appere] the sunne apperyth G. S. 1357. þuru3] by Pr. si3t] light G. S. w. b. 1358. w*ith*] of P.—twinkyng C. of—chere] as þat hit clerepe S. plesau*n*t] persau*n*t G. 1359 reads in S: Nowe we you thanken / þat yow seepe or herepe. To 3ov] Now alle G. 1361. Fortuned] Fortune C. Heading before 1362 in b: The author. 1362. And] Right S. melodie] maladye S. 1363. Which] W*ith* T. With L. C. W. p. W2. w. om. b. 1364. oute] om. L. 1365. Oute] Forthe b. 1366. And] As P. for] fer L. sore S. b. as þo] I than L. þo] than b. 1367. so] or S. om. L. Pr. 1368. Me þou3t I] My thought W. p. W2. w. I] om. L. was cast as] lay liggynge G. was ay ligging S. cast as] casted P. as] om. Pr. 1369. þo] than b. 1370. gret] frete W2. w. frette b. 1371. hert] my hert L. was] om. G. S. 1372. þat] for that C. W. p. W2. om. S. lost] elost S.

Digitized by Google

Of hir þat I, all þe long[e] nyȝt,
Had dremed of in myn auisioun:
Whereof I made gret lamentacioun,
Bicause I had neuer in my life aforne
Sei[n] none so faire, fro time þat I was borne;
For loue of whome, so as I can endite,
I purpose here to maken & to write
A litil tretise, and a processe make
In pris of women, oonli for hir sake,
Hem to comende, as it is skil & riȝt,
For here goodnes, with al my ful[le] myȝt—
Prayeng to hir þat is so bounteuo[u]s,
So ful of vertue and so gracious,
Of womanhed & merciful pite
This simpil tretis forto take in gre,
Til I haue leiser, vnto hir heiȝ renoun
Forto expoune my forseid visioun,
And tel in plein þe significaunce,
So as it comeþ to my remembraunce,
So þat her-after my ladi may it loke.
Nou go þi wai, þou litel rude boke,
To hir presence, as I þe comaund,
And first of al þou me recomavnd
Vnto hir & to hir excellence,
And prai to hir þat it be noon offence,
If eny woorde in þe be myssaide,
Biseching hir she be not euel apaied;
For as hir list, I wil þe efte correcte,
When þat hir likeþ againward þe directe:
I mene þat benygne & goodli of *face.
Nou go þi way & put þe in hir grace.

for never had I seen so fair a one before.

For love of her I purpose here to write a little 'process' in praise of women, praying her to accept this treatise,

until I can fully expound my vision.

Now go thy way, thou little book,

and recommend me unto my lady.

And if aught be missaid,

I will correct it.

Now put thee in her grace.

1373. þere in the margin, marked by a caret to be put before al S. 1375 omitted in F. 1376. in] om. S. aforne] beforn Pr. 1377. fro] syn the G. sith S. fro time þat] sith that C. W. W2. w. b. syth p. 1378. as] om. p. 1379. to write] wryte P. W. W2. w. b. wyrte p. 1380—1403 are missing in G. S. In their stead there is a long addition, the 'Compleynt,' in both these MSS. 1380. 2d a] om. Pr. 1381. pris] preyse P. praise b. women] woman P. F. 1383. goodnes] goddes P. fulle] om. Pr. 1385 omitted in F. B. 1386. Of] O L. 1389. Forto] ffor P. 1390. þe] om. F. 1391. So] om. Pr. to] vn to F. B. L. 1396. to] om. F. 1397. And] I F. þat] om. Pr. 1398. in þe be] be in the P. be] om. L. 1399. euel] wille P. apaied] payd b. 1400. hir] she P. efte] oft P. 1402. þat] the F. face] hir face T. P. B. F. L. —For the colophons in the MSS. and Prints, see the Introduction.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

APPENDIX I.

Compleynt.

[This ditty (595) or little book (622), given in MSS. G and S as a continuation of the Temple of Glass, was written by a lover to express his fee'ings, when he took leave of his mistress Margaret (the day's eye, 395); on the last day of March. In her presence, he cannot speak; she will not help him, or bid him do aught for her, tho' she sees his sorrow and love for her. On this March 31, the Sun rejoices because he'll spend the night with Diana; but the Poet has left his love. He reproaches March for its changes, and describes the charms of his Mistress. He appeals to Fortune to let his Margaret, the day's eye, whose beauty he praises, give him her grace and love in April, for he is hers only, till death; she is his joy, his heart's rest, but alas also the cause of his woe. For her, he is in a fever, first hot, then cold; he ever burns like the lamp of Albiston in Venus' shrine. Never had he felt such pain till this last of March, when he parted from his Love. So he writes her this Ditty to tell her his woe. He prays her to look at his little book; to tear it, if she will, with her soft hands: but rather look on it with her goodly face, and take heed of him, who is hers for ever.]

Allas for thought & inward *peyne,
That myn herte so constreyne,
With-oute reste day be day,
Euere sythe I wente a-way
Out of ȝoure syght, myn lady dere,
That there is no thyng that may stere
Myne dolful harmys nor myn wo,
That ben so fer on me go,
With-oute remedy or bote,
Euyn onto myn herte rote,
That wel I fele by myn smert
That I from deth may not astert;
And trewely that is lytyl woundyr,
Sythe that we are so fer asundyr,
Myn lyuys lust, myn hertys quene,
So fayr, so good vp-on to sene,
That by myn trouthe, wher so I be,
I fare, whan I may ȝow nat se,
As doth the fysch vp-on the stronde,
Out of the watyr brought to londe,
That spraulynge deyeth for dystresse:
Ryght so fare I for heuynesse,
Whan I of ȝow haue lost the syght.
More drery than the derke nyght
For wantynge of the sterrys clere,
Ryght so forderkyd is myn cheere,
Lych as asshis dede, pale of hewe.
So myn constreynt doth renewe,
And euere encresith more & more;
At myn herte it sit so sore,
Whan that I haue in remembraunce,
Myn owene souereyn suffysance,
How I of ȝow myn leue tok,
And in euery membre quok;
For verry wo & dystresse
Ne myghte [I] not a word expresse
Of al myn wo, allas the whyle!
For al myn olde peyntede style
Was clene a-gon & out of mynde:
For I ne coude a word not fynde
To speke to ȝow, I was so dul;
Fortune hath ȝoue me swich a pul
In ȝoure seruyse, that al is gon,
And mynne wittys, euery-chon,
Bothe tonge, speche & euery del,
Thow I recorde neuere so wel,
Whan I am come to ȝoure presence,
Farwel, speche & eloquence;
A tunge I haue, but wordys none,
But stonde mut as *any stone.
I fele smert, & can not pleyne,
So *hoot myn feuere in euery *veyne,

Title: Compleynt S. La compleyn G. 1. peyne] pyne G. 6. 2d that] which S. 7. dolful] woful S. harmys] harome S. nor] and S. 11. smert] hert S. 12 reads in S: þat nit to deþe wol me smert. 14. are] been S. 18. whan I may] if þat I S. 21. That] With S. deyeth] deþe S. 27. as asshis] Ashen S. 30. At] To S. it sit] hit smyteþe S. 33. leue] love S. 36. I] om. G. 37. wo] sorowe S. 40. not] om. S. 44. mynne] my S. 48. Farwel] ffor wille S. &] or S. 50. any] a G. 52. hoot] halt G. hoot myn feuere] am I hoote S. veyne] weyne G.

Digitized by Google

The wheche I haue so longe enduryd,
Wondyt but myn wou*n*de is curyd;
And 3ee, that myghte ben myn leche,
Ha*n* me for-nome tunge & speche,
Wit, & mynde, & al myn thought,
So that w*ith* me is left *ryght nou[g]ht,
But good wil only 3ow to serue,
W*ith*-oute chaung, tyl that I sterue.
God wot, I haue no more rychesse,
Ioye, merthe, nor gladnesse,
But fully theron for to thynke,
Wher so that I *wake or wynke,
For to a-swage myn inward smert.
For wel 3e wetyn that myn hert
W*ith* 3ow onbit & nat remeuyt[h],
And aftyr mercy eu*er*emor seuyth
In 3ow to fynde pete or grace,
Sum reuthe ek in 3ou*r*e goodly face.
And *er I deye for treuthe & drede,
Ay thynkynge on 3ou*r*e womanhede,
On 3oure beute & semelynesse,
Recordynge ay in myn distresse
3oure schap, 3oure forme, & 3oure glad chere,
Thow 3e ben there, & I am here,
Allas! thou*r*gh crewel auenture,
3oure schap, 3oure forme, & 3oure fygure
Amyd myn herte depeyntyd be:
By god, thow I may 3ou nat se,
The prent is there so depe I-graue;
And eu*er*emor schal so god me saue,
I 3ow ensure, by myn trouthe,
Thow that 3e neuere haue on me routhe,
Ne neuere no wele me do mercy,
3yt schal I seruyn, tyl I dey,
By god, on-to 3oure womanhede,
How eu*er*e it falle, that I spede;
Of whyche 3yf 3e han dysdeyn,
It *wolde double al myn peyn,
And castyn me in swich seknesse,
That I ne schulde, in sothfastnesse,
To helthe neuere a-geyn recure,
But eu*er*e in maledy endure
Vnto myn laste—thys is the trouthe—
For that 3e leste to haue no routhe
Vp-on 3oure seruau*n*t & 3oure man,
In al that euere I may or can.
And of on thyng, soth for to seyne,
I haue gret mat*er* to compleyne,
That 3e ne wolde, of al the tyme,
Nothyr at eue ne at pryme,
Comau*n*de me to do ryght nought,
Wherof I have so meche thought,
And ay castynge in myn fantasye,
How 3e, for ought I can espye,
Of myn servise have no deynte,
And seye: "allas what may this be?"
Astonyd so in al myn blod,
That I to symple—& 3e to good—
For 3ou*r*e worthy excellence,
That myn kendenesse yow doth offence,
Sythe 3e [ne] wele In word ne thought
3owere serwa*n*t bidde do ryght nought.
What have I gilt, allas, allas!
Othyr offendyt, in ony cas,
3ou*r*e womanhed* or 3ou*r*e heyghnesse,
Ageyn 3ou*r*e trouthe & gentillesse.
I-wis I se non othyr cause,
To telle shortly in a clause,
But only this that myn symplesse
Vnworthy is, to 3ou*r*e heighnesse
To do servise agreable.
Allas, allas, I am vnable

53. wheche] whiche seeknesse S. so'longe enduryd] longe dured S. 54. Wondyt] No wonder S. but] þat S. wou*n*de] hert S. 55. ben] best be S. 56. me for-nome] refft fro me boþe S. 57. 1st &] om. S. 58. ryght] ryth G. 62. nor] ne S. 64. Wher] Wheþer S. wake] slepe G. 67. abydeþe S.—remeweþe S. 68. suweþe S. 70. ek] ye haue S. goodly] om. S. 71. er] whan that G. treuthe &] thought er S. 73. beute] bountee S. 75. glad] om. S. 77. crewel] yuell S. 78. 3oure—forme] Yit ay your shappe S. 80. 3ou nat] not you S. 81. depe] sore S. 82. eu*er*emor] euer S. 85. 2d ne] om. S. me do] do me S. 86. seruyn] serue you S. 87. on-to] and to S. 89. 3yf] if þat S. 90. wolde] wele G. 93. To] Myn S. neuere a-geyn] ageyne neuer S. 96. 3e] you S. 98. I] he S. 99. of] om. S. 102. even S. 103. do] om. S. 105. in] om. S. 110. I] om. S. 2d to] so S. 112. kendenesse yow doth] lewdenesse doþe yow S. 113. 1st ne] om. G. 116. Othyr] Or you S. 117. or] othyr G. 118. Ageyns S. &] or S.

Digitized by Google

Of cunnynge—& non-suffysaunce—
To 3ow, myn lady, to don plesaunce,
And 3e ne wolde of crewelte
Onys [list] to comaunde me.
And 3it this vow to god I make,
How euere it be, that 3e it take,
To good or harm in ony wyse,
Herte, body, & myn servise,
Konnynge, wit, & dilygence,
Absent & In 3oure presence,
To 3ow I 3eve & to no mo,
Myn hertys quen, myn swete fo.
Pleynly it may non othyr be,
For lak of mercy thow that 3e
Me slen & don non othyr grace,
Wherso I be, in ony place.
For I am bounde of olde & newe
To 3ow a-lone to ben trewe,
And to no mo in al myn lyve,
Ageyn the whiche I ma[y] nat stryve,
Thow that I wolde, 3e *knowe it wel.
Wherfore doth awey the stel,
I mene the hardnesse of 3oure herte,
And letyth pete 3ow converte,
To clepe me 3oure owene man,
To serve forth, as I be-gan,
And 3oure servaunt me to calle,
And letyth nat swich vengeauns falle,
Myn hertys lady, vp-on me—
Preyinge of 3oure benygnete,
3if that 3e lyste myn lyf to save,
And me to kepyn from myn grave,
Me to comaunde hastely,
Of 3oure womanly mercy,
Of newe to don 3ow sum servise
By sum offys or sum empryse,
Wherwyth I myghte 3ow delyte.
The which[e] thyng but 3if 3e wryte,
As I have seyd, to biddyn me,
Myn herte shal neuere in ese be,
I 3ow ensure by myn trouthe.

Wherfore on me havith sum routhe,
And thynkyth, sythe I am 3oure man,
To serve as lowly as I can,
I can not demyn how that 3e
Of myn servise havyn deynte,
But 3e lyste bidde me a-mong
Sum servise to vndyrfong,
That may 3ow turne to plesaunce.
And ferthere hath in remembraunce,
Whanne I of 3ow tok last myn leve,
How sore that it dede me greve
That 3e me 3eve so meche large,
From 3ow to gon with-oute charge,
The wheche 3af my herte a wounde,
By myn cher as It was founde,
Of face bothe pale & dede,
Heviere than ony lede.
I trowe 3e dede it wel espye
By the castynge of myn eye,
And also by myn pytous lok,
And how that I for sorwe quok,
For lak of blod that hym with-drow
Vn-to myn herte thus In a swow:
I hadde almost ful sodeynly
I-falle there, & cause why
Was that I departe shulde
From thens where myn herte wolde
Fayneste abyde, & euere more shal,
Wher it is set, not part but al;
And I a word ne myghte speke,
Myn hyde sorwe to vnreke,
Wherof I was sumdel ashamyd;
For tho of newe was a-tamyd
To me of sorwe the bittyr tonne,
That to myn herte hath I-ronne
The sharpe lycour, so fel & egre,
More than eysel or venegre,
Whiche dede myn herte sore enbrace,
Whan I be-held 3oure goodly face,
Ful pytously as I forth *yede,
[Thenking on youre godelyhed;]

126. myn lady] dere hert S. 127. And 3e ne] If ye S. crewelte] youre curteysye S. 128. list] om. G. 129. 3it this vow] þat avowe S. 134. In] om. S. 135. 3eve] gaf S. 142. 2d to] for to S. 143. in] and S. 144. Ageyns S. 145. knewe G. 148. letyth] let S. 152. nat] om. S. 155. 3e] you S. myn lyf] me S. Lines 157—176 wanting in S. 177. 3eve] gaf S. 183. it] om. S. 187. hym] hit S. 190. I-falle] Haue fallen S. 192. where] when S. 193. euere more] euer S. 195. a] on S. 196. hyde] hertis S. vnreke] buwrek S. 205. yede] rod G. 206 omitted in G.

Digitized by Google

The body wente, the herte a-bod.*
So pytously with me it stod,
That, as me thoughte, thourw myn syde
A swerd of sorwe dede glyde,
That made me ful reufully
To loke thanne, so that I
Was lych a verry ded ymage.
It sene was in myn visage,
The sorwe that at myn herte sat,
Takynge non hed of this ne that,
Save by myn self, at good leyser,
A-syde that no man cam me ner,
To syghyn & to make mone,
And pytously *I gan to grone:
I felte so gret aduersite,
That it wolde non othyr be,
Wher-so me were lef or loth.
And with the sunne I was rygh[t] wroth
That he shon so bryghte & shene,
Whil that I felte so gret tene,
And that he shewede hym so bryght,
And of hyse bemys glad & lyght,
Whils I was in so gret trouble.
Myrthe made myn sorwe double;
For Ioye & sorwe a-cordyn nought;
No gladnesse to an hevy thought,
No laughtyr to hym that is in peyne.
For non acord may ben a-tweyne,
But they in herte & thought ben on
To parte, w[h]ere they ryde or gon,
Ioye & wo, euene a-lyche,
Whethyr they be pore or ryche.
Wherfore It sat me wondyr sore,
That Phebus alwey more & moore
So cler was shynynge In his spere,
Whils I so hevy was of chere,
Awaytynge, whan it wolde reyne,
With me to wepyn & compleyne
Myn hidde dol & drerynesse.
But cause, I trowe, of his gladnesse,
And that he was so frosch & gay,
In March vp-on the laste day,
Was for that he shulde mete
With Dy[a]ne in the aryete,
His owene lady & his quene,
And al the nyght to-gedere bene,
Ful merye as hy commyxtyoun,
And make non departycyoun,*
Þe nexst[e] day til hit be Eeve,
Þat Þe Moone takeÞe hir leve,
And to Þe whyte bulle hir dresse.
But I, allas, in hevynesse,
Þe same day of Marche Þe last,
But fro my lady sithe I past,
Of lyf, of dethe al cast in were,
Whas shyning of hir eyen clere
And comfort of Þe bright[e] lemys.
Of Þe sunne bright with his bemys,
Of hir looke so aungellyk,
Þat in Þis worlde is noon hir lyke,
Ne noon was, with-owten weene,
Heleyne neyÞer Polixene,
To reken alle hir semlynesse,
To hir of beaute ner feyrnesse,
And hir trouthe boÞe in feere,
Þat with my lady may appere,
For to Alayene my distresse,
To recomforten and redresse
My woful lyff to myrthe ageyne;
For Þer is noon suche for to seyne
In al Þis worlde, oonly but she,
That may til myn aduersite
Do remedy ne medecyne,
Saue she Þat may my sorowes fyne,
To seken out est and west,
I mene you, myn hertis rest,
Of whame Þis day in ful gret sorowe
I tooke my leve by Þe morowe,
Ful trist and hevy in weping,
And wonder sore of compleyning,

After 207 G has the line: And gan to louryn in myn hod. 209. thoughte] semed S. 210. A] Þe S. dede] did kerue and S. 212. thanne] vpon S. 213. a verry] verray a S. 214. It sene] A seen hit S. in] by S. 218. cam me ner] might me here S. 219. syghyn] cryen S. 220. And pytously] fful hevyly S. I] me G. 223. Wher-so] Wher so Þat S. 224. ryght] om. S. 229. Whils] Whyle S. 232. No] Ne S. an] haue S. 234. may ben] om. S. a-tweyne] bytween tweyne S. 235. herte & thought] thought and hert S. 236. To parte] No party S. 249. mete] Þanne meete S. 253. commyxtyoun] conjuccyoun S. 255—330 wanting in G (a leaf being cut out).

Digitized by Google

þe which may neuer out of mynde.
þus Marche haþe made an hevy eende,
And take his leve ful bitturly,
That wot no man so wel as I,
Ne is expert, what þis may meene,
But I alloone, þat al sustene,
With bone so hoote sette a fyre.
His crueltee, and woful Ire,
Allas þe whyle! hit wol me sloo,
Departing fro my swete foo.
O Marche, I may ful wel warye,
That art to me so contrarye,
Proving ay myn hevynesse,
As Iudith ful of doublenesse,
Wondurful, and ay vnstable,
Right dyuers and varyable:
Now canst þow Reyne, now shyne,
And so wrongely drawest þe lyne,
And al þy cours dost holde:
Nowe art þou hoot, now art þou colde,
Nowe canst þou loude and fully blowe,
Nowe smoothe and stilly bere þe lowe,
Now canst þou snewe, now canst þou hoyle,
And vs with stormes sore assayle;
Ful seeld in oon þou doost abyde,
Gret cause haue I þe to chyde,
þat hast þis day so gret delyte,
As hit wer verray for despyte
Of me, to ben so gladd and feyre,
Whylest my lyf hongeþe in despeyre
Of parting, al in dole and dred,
Frome þe floure of wommanhed,
Whiche haþe my lyff and deeþe in honde,
Boþe in water and in londe,
And is þe feyrest and þe best,
In whame yche vertue is at rest,
Bounte, youþe, and gentylesse,
Beaute, glad cheere, and semlynesse,
Wysdam, maner, and honestee,
Prudence and femynynytee,
Sykurnesse, and assuraunce,
Stylle porte, and gouvernaunce,
Lowlynesse, and al-so dred,
Sadnesse ymeynt with goodelyhed,
Trouthe, feyth, & stedefastnesse:
To alle exsaumple & maystresse
That lest in vertu for to lere;
To telle hire port & hire manere:
Large in refus & dangerous to take,
*Streytest of grant, ay redy to forsake,
Ferful euere to don a-mys,
Ful shamefast & sobre I-wys,
Merour of attemperaunce,
And rygh[t] demeur of dalyaunce;
Of worshepe, honour & mesure
She is the welle, I ȝow ensure;
Dotous of tuñgis, that ben large;
So hol in vertu is hire *charge,
In alle hire dedys vertuvous,
And [to] a coward *despitous,
As deth hatynge dyshoneste,
In here entent so clene is she.
How meche wit she can ek shewe,
Where as she lest, in wordys fewe!
There is no lak in no degre,
But of mercy & pete,
To sweche as ben in hyre seruyse.
Thus may I seyn in myn avise,
That d[i]eth thourgh hyre crewelte,
That leste not on-to me
Vnclose hyre lyppys for to speke.
Allas! she is to sore I-w[r]eke,
Sythe that she wele me nat comaunde,
Nor hyre centence countyrmaunde,
In here seruyse ne contune,
This day of March—allas, Fortune,
Thyn double whel that can so varye!
Thyn stormy cher may I wel warye,

331. Here G begins again. 334. telle] al S. 335. Large—&] Large yiving S. 336. Streytest] Streystest G. Streyt S. of] to S. ay redy] fayne S. 339. attemperaunce] attemporaltee S. 344. charge] corage G. 346. to] om. G. to a coward] a coward to S. despitous] amerous G. 347. As deth] Euer S. 349. How] om. S. ek] and hit S. 350. she] hir S. 354. myn avise] many wyse S. 355. That dieth] She doþe me S. 356. That] ffor she ne S. 358. I-wreke] I weke G. awreke S. 359. wele me nat] nyl me S. 361. ne contune] contynuaunce S. 362. This] þat S. allas Fortune] desfortunaunce S. 363. Thyn] In S. whel] wille S. 364 reads in S: Ellas my hert is ful sorye.

Digitized by Google

That whylom is so glad & lyght,
Now derk as is the donne nyght;
Now fayr & frosch & pleyn of face,
Now frounynd & devoyd of grace;
Now lau[g]hynge, & rygh[t] merye of cheere,
Now dedly pale & nothyng cleere;
Now bryghtere than the clere sonne,
Now blak as ben the skyis donne;
Now as the rose, frosch & newe,
Now as the netyl row of hewe;
Now canst thow sette men aloft,
And now hem plonchyn ful vnsoft,
Doun from hegh felycyte,
Swich is thyn mutabylite.
Now canst thow smyle, & make a mowe,
Whan men arn wel from the I-throwe:
Thus may I seyn, allas, allas!
That causeles, for no trespas,
Hast mad myn lady most souereyn
Myn symple seruyse to dysdeyn.
Allas, therby I wot ryght wel,
But thow turne a-geyn thyn whel,
To make me a-3en purchace
Mercy of hyre & getyn grace,
Ther is non othyr remedye,
But shortly this that I mot deye.
Now mercy, Fortune, & haue pyte
On myn grete aduersyte,
And on myn woful maladye.
And graunt[e] that the day[e]sye,
The wheche is callyd margaret,
So fayr, so goodly & so meke
Of flour, of stalk, of crop & rote,
So frosch, so benygne & so sote,
That may a-lone to myn langour
Don remedye, to myn socour,
And lyssyn al myn langvissynge,
Of whyche I am so compleynynge,
From day to day, with-oute socour,
For lakkynge of this frosche flour,
That hath in curys so gret fame,
And 'petyt confort' beryth the name.
For it can sonde & hele a-geyn
Hertys wondit, that fele peyn,
Whos croune is bothe whit & red,
The stalke euere grene & nevere ded,
In medewe, valeyis, hillys & clyf,
The whiche flour pleynly 3if
I myghte at leyser onys se,
And a-byde at lyberte,
Where as it doth so fayre sprede
A-geyn the sunne in euery mede,
On bankys hy a-mong the bromys,
Wher as these lytylle herdegromys
Floutyn al the longe day,
Bothe in aprylle & in may,
In here smale recorderys,
In floutys & in rede sperys,
Aboute this flour, til it be nyght;
It makyth hem so glad & lyght,
The grete beute to be-holde
Of this flour & sone onfolde
Hyre goodly fayre white levis,
Swettere than in 3ynge grevis
Is cheuyrfoyl or hawethorn,
Whan plente with hire fulle horn
Hyre sote baume doth out-shede
On hony-souklys in the mede,
Fletynge ful of sugre newe;

365. is] was S. 366. derk] in derknesse S. is the donne nyght] at midnight S. 367. fayr & frosch &] ful of flesshe nowe S. 368. devoyd] al voyde S. 369. ryght] om. S. of] om. S. 373. & newe] of huwe S. 374. of hewe] and nuwe S. 375. canst—men] sette in hope an hye S. 376. And] om. S. hem plonchyn] plungen me depe S. 377. from hegh] fer frome S. 378 reads in S: Curtesye per wantepe as semepe me. 380 reads in S: And when I not me overthrowe S. 386. turne] tarye S. 390. this that I mot] pat I may now S. 392. On] Of S. 393. on] of S. 395. callyd] cleped S. 396. & so meke] I you byhete S. 397. flour of stalk of] folke pe floure pe S. 399. a-lone] anoon S. 400. to myn] and eke S. 401. al] also S. langvissynge] langouryng S. 409. is] is ay S. 410. euere] ay S. 411. valeyis—clyf] in gardin in hil and dale S. 412 reads in S: Which is fresshe and neuer pale. 413 in S: If I might it at leyser se. 414. at] with S. 416. A-geyn] Ageyns S. euery] pe S. 417. a-mong] amonges S. 418. as] on S. these lytylle] pleyen pes S. 419. Floutyn] ffloutyng S. 420. Bothe in] So fresshe S. 422 reads in S: In pypes made of cerne spyres. 426. sone] sen S. 428. in 3ynge grevis] any rouhge grevys S. 429. Is] Or S. 431. sote] owen S. 432. On] To S.

Digitized by Google

Yit is ther non so frosch of hewe,
Nor half so fayr vn-to myn ye,
As is the lusty dayesye,
Whos frosche beute nygh me sleth.
For in hyre mercy [is] lyf & deth,
Ioye, helthe & euerydele,
That in short tyme, but I fel
Sum grace in this goodly flour,
I mot be ded of this langour.
*Yit god me sende this Aperylle
In syght therof to han myn fille,
More than I hadde in march now late,
Whan I tok leue now at the 3ate
Of this goodly day[e]aye,
With *sighing inward pryvylye,
I mene myn souereyn hertis rest,
For whom myn herte wele to-brest,
But she the rathere mercy shewe,
And Fortune ek, in wordys fewe,
Do here besynesse & cure,
To helpe to myn auenture.
Now help, Fortune, & have pete!
And help, myn owene lady fre,
For whom this pitous wo I make,
Sythe it is only for 3oure sake,
And for non othyr, by myn trouthe!
Now mercy, swete, & hauyth sum routhe!
That I may only at the leste
To 3ow fulfyllyn myn beheste,
And myn *avow & oth also,
To servyn 3ow in wele & wo,
Whil that I leue, & not departe,
Tyl dethis darte myn herte parte—
That I to myn reconfortynge
May han this charg be 3oure bedynge,
And by 3oure comaundement,
With al myn fulle beste entent
To ben 3oure man in euery thyng,
With-oute chaung or departyng,
And ouer this, ay newe & newe
Vn-to 3oure man, that is so trewe,
How dere of hym that it be bought,
Evene as it ly[e]th in *your thought,
With-oute feynynge or feyntyse,
To bidde & charge in ewery wise,
To don in Ioye, *or in disese
Euery thyng, that may ben ese
Vn-to 3ow, myn lady dere.
And letyth outwar[d] more appere
3oure inward hidde secrenesse,
So that 3oure tunge more expresse
Youre hertys wil & pryuite
Pleynly, myn lady, onto me,
That am 3oure owene man I-swore,
With herte & mouth & wil, wherfore
3e shulde nat so straunge be,
Sythe wel 3e wete, how that 3e
Of herte, body, good & al,
And euery thyng In specyal,
In verray trewe sothfastnesse
Ben souereyn lady & maystresse,
Myn wor[l]dely goddesse, & also
Myn Ioye, myn helthe & ek myn wo,
Myn fulle trust & myn grevaunce,
Myn seknesse, & myn hol plesaunce,
Myn myrthe & ek myn maledye,
Myn langour & ek myn remedye,
Myn hertys rest & perturbaunce,
Myn syghynge & myn suffysaunce,
Myn confort & contrycyoun,
Myn dol, *myn consolacyoun,
Myn laughynge & myn wepynge ek,
And cause whi that I am sek,
Myn though[t] a day, myn wach a nyght,

435. Nor] Ne S. fayr vn-to] fresshe to S. 438. For—is] In hir is mercy S. is] om. G. 439. helthe] boþe S. 442. mot] most S. 443. Yit] That G. this] in þis S. 444. fille] will S. 446. now] om. S. 447. Of] Al of S. 448. sighing] seyinge G. 450. herte] lyve S. to-brest] brek and brest S. 453. Do] Doþe S. 458. 3oure] hir S. 460. hauyth] om. S. 463. avow] awow G. oth] oþer S. 466 reads in S: Til deþe smyte me with his darte. 468. bedynge] bidding S. 473. ouer this ay] euery þus boþe S. 474 reads in S: My thought is sett hit nyl remuwe. 476. lyeth] is S. your] myn G. 477. fyntyse S. 478. ewery] any S. 479. or] othyr G. disese] destresse S. 480. ben] hym S. 488. wherfore] þerfore S. 489. shulde] shul S. 490. wete] wot S. 493. sothfastnesse] stidfastnesse S. 494. Ben] My S. 496. helthe] welthe S. 498. seknesse] sikurnesse S. myn hol] hole S. 500. ek] om. S. 503. confort] desport S. 504. myn] & myn G.

Digitized by Google

Myn dredful pes, myn glade fyght,
Myn quiete & myn busy werre,
Myn pensyfhed bothe nygh & ferre,
Myn softe salve, myn sharpe wounde,
Myn pley, myn penaunce most Iocounde,
Myn holsum drem whan that I slepe,
But whanne I wake, thanne I wepe;
Myn hertys Ioye, where ȝe gon,
And I in langeur ly alon,
Nothyr fully quik nor ded,
But al amasid in myn hed,
By-twixe hope & dred apeyrid,
Of myn lyf almost dispeyrid,
* By constreynt of myn greete penaunce,
And ofte I lay thus in a traunce;
Myn feuere is contynuel,
That me asayeth stoundemel,
Now hattere, than the verray glede,
And now as cold, with-oute drede,
As frost is in the wyntyr mone;
And thanne sodeynly & sone
For hete *and cold a-non I deye,
And thus forpossid *be-tween tweye,
Of hasty cold & sodeyn hete
Now I cheuere, & now I swete,
And now I am with cold I-shake,
And thanne a brennynge doth me take
Of fer, that may nat quenchid be
With al the watyr in the se.
Myn hete is so violent,
Wherwyth myn pitous herte is brent,
That may ben likkenyd to a ston,
Which is I-callyd albiston,
That onys whan it hath caught feer,
Ther may no man the flaumbe steer,
That it wel brenne aftyr euere,
And neuere from the fer disseuere,
So they acordyn of nature.
And for this ston may longe endure,
In fer to brenne fayr & bryght,
As sterrys in the wyntyr nyght,
I fynde, in Venus oratorye,
In hir worshepe & memorye,
Was mad a laumpe of this ston,
To brenne a-fore here euere in on,
For to queme the goddesse:
Ryght so myn lady & maystresse
Myn herte, as ȝe shal vndyrstonde,
Iferede with Cupidis bronde,
That hath—& shal bothe day & nyght—
So hot, so clerly & so bryght
Enflaumbid me, in wondyr wyse,
And only brend in ȝoure servise,
With-oute smoke of doubilnesse,
Chaung[e] or newfongylnesse.*
Qwyt of al, for wele or woo,
Saue of loue—þer ben no moo
þat may me lyf or dethe comaunde,
Pleynly þat is no demaunde;
And þer-fore, as ye willen hit be,
I mot obeye, at al degre.
And pleynely þus þe game haþe go,
Euer sith I parted yow fro,
Siþen, allas, I sayde amysse
Of oure departing last ywysse.
For sithen I had first a sight
Of youre peersand eyen bright,
þe sharp[e] poynt of Remembraunce
Mad[e] no disseueraunce,
þat hit naþe stiked in myn hert
Contynuelly, of Ioye or smert,
And not departed truwely.
But witteþe oon thing feythfully:
In al my lyf, sithe I was borne,
As felt I neuer suche peyne aforne,
Of no departing noon suche offence,
As whane I went from youre presence,
In Marche nowe þe last[e] day.
For euer sithe in suche affray

508. fyght] sight S. 510. pensyfnesse S. 512. penaunce] prudence S. 516. ly] lyve S. 519. By-twixe] Between S. apeyrid] enpeyred S. 520. Of] þat S. almost] is neghe S. 521. By] Myn G. 522. ofte] as S. lay] ley S. 523. is] is so S. 524. asayeth] assaylleþe S. 527. mone] morne S. 528. & sone] shyneþe þe sonne S. 529. and] of G. S. 530. be-tween] a twethyn G. 533 reads in S: And þanne with colde ageine I shake. 534. thanne a] affter S. 539. to] til S. 540. Which] þat S. I-callyd] clepid S. albiston] Alobastoun S. 541. That onys] þe whiche S. 556. bronde] honde S. 558. bryght] light S. 562. Chaunge] Chaunging S. 563 to end missing in G.

Digitized by Google

Myn hert haþe been, in sothefastnesse,
In suche annoye and duresse,
þat hit haþe brought me right lowe.
And for by-cause ye shal hit knowe,
My sighing and my woful care,
And euer sith howe I haue fare,
Al be I can not tellen al,
To you I wryte in specyal
A certaine dytee, þat I made,
And offt[e] syþes a balade,
þe whiche I made þe selff[e] day,
From you when I went away,
With þis compleynt here byfore,
And syþen howe I haue me bore,
Day and night, in youre service,
Beseching þat ye not despyse
þis litell quarell, but doþe grace
For to forgyve þis trespas,
If my worde amysse be spoke,
And or þat ye þer-on be wroke,
To casten fully in þe fyr,
I prey you first to maken cler
With a goode looke, and with no more.
And if hit shal be al to-tore,
With-outen mercy, and to-rent,
I prey yowe with my best entent,
þat with youre owen handes sofft
þat ye reende and brek it offt:
For youre touche, I dare wel seyne,
Wel þe lasse shal ben his peyne,
If ye may haue so myche grace, þat you list with goodely face
þer-on for to loken oones,
And to rede hit efft sones,
þer-on wel to beholde,
And þe litel book vnfolde,
Of þe storye þat ye take heede;
I desyre noon oþer mede.
And euer of mercy I you prey,
Whedir þat I lyf or deye.
þis is al and some, my lady dere,
And I youre man frome yere to yere.

Digitized by Google

APPENDIX II.

¶ Duodecim abusiones.

Rex sine sapiencia.
Dominus sine consilio.
Miles sine probitate.
Diues sine elemosina.
Senex sine religione.
Pauper superbus.
Episcopus sine doctrina.
Mulier sine castitate.
Iudex sine Iusticia. 3
Populus sine lege.
Seruus sine timore.
Adolescens sine obediencia. 6

Goo forth, kyng, reule the by sapyence; 7
Bysshop, be able to mynystre doctryne;
Lord, to treu counceyle yeue audyence,
Womanhed, to chastyte euer enclyne;
Knyght, lete thy dedes worshyp determyne, 11
Be rightuous, Iuge, in sauyng thy name;
Ryche, doo almes, lest thou lese blys with shame. 13

People, obeye your kyng and the lawe; 14
Age, be thou ruled by good religyon;
True seruaunt, be dredfull & kepe the vnder awe,
And thou, poure, fye on presumpcyon:
Inobedyence to yougth is vtter destruccyon. 18
Remembre you how god hath sette you, lo!
And doo your parte, as ye ar ordeynd to. 20

1. ¶ Rex b.—sapientia w. b.—Episcopus b. 2. Dominus b.—consilio W2. b. consilo w.—castistate W2. 3. probitate b.—iustitia b. 5. religiose W2. w. 6. Pauper b.—superbus b.—sine b.—obediencia W2. obedientia w. b. 7. Go w. ¶ Go b.—forthe b.—kynge w.—reull W2. rule w. b. 8. Bysshoppe b.—mynyster w. mynistre b.—doctrine w. 9. Lorde w. b.—trewe w. true b.—counsell w. counsayle b.—gyue w. b.—audience b. 10. Womanhede w. Wowanheed b.—chastite b. 11. lette w. let b. 12. ryghtwyse w. rightous b.—sauynge w. 13. do w. b.—lose b.—blysse w. b. 14. kynge w. 15. relygyon w. religion b. 16. Treu W2. Trewe w.—seruant b.—dredful w. dredefull b. 17. poore w. b.—fye on] defye b.—presumpcion b. 18. Inobedience b.—youth w. b.—distruction b. 19. you] om. b.—howe w. b.—set b.—lo] so b. 20. And] Than b.—do w. b.—part b.—are w. b.—ordeyned W2. w. b.

The Chaucer-Prints of 1561 and 1598 (fol. 336 d, in both), omit thou in l. 15, and have be for ar in l. 20. It would serve no purpose to give their orthographical variations.

Digitized by Google

NOTES.

LINES 1—3. The author seemingly wishes to represent himself in the light of a lover; at least his wofulness in going to bed and his wallowing to and fro is quite in accordance with Cupid's injunctions in the Rom. of the R. 2553—2564. See similar lines in Parl. of F. 88, 89, and cp. the 5th Statute in the Court of Love (l. 334). See also Ovid, Amores I, 2, 1—4; and note to l. 12 below.

1. thouȝt.] This word is common in the love-poetry of Lydgate's time in the emphatic meaning "heavy thought," "sorrowful meditation," "trouble"; cp. for instance: "take no þouȝt," T. of Glas 1174; "peyne, wo & þouȝt," ib. 1260; "gret þouȝt & wo," ib. 1370; "thought & inward peyne," Compleynt 1; "sorwe and thought," Falls of Pr. 207 c, Rom. of the R. 308, 2728, and Court of L. 990; "turment and thought," Frank. Tale 356; "care and thought," Troy-Book Cc$_4$ c; "thoght, pyne, and aduersitee," Kingis Quair 175, l. 2. Shakspere still frequently uses the word in this sense. Compare further:

"And thus to bedde I wente with thought my gest,"
Court of S. a$_2$ b;
"Devoyde of heuynesse and thoght," Reason and S. 271 b;
"For thought and woo pyteously wepynge," Troy-Book T$_2$ c;
"glad and mery . . . voyde of thought," Falls of Pr. 113 b.

constreint.] Occurs again in ll. 11 and 667; see also Compleynt 28 and 521. Very common in this context; see, for instance, Falls of Pr. 9 b: his [Jupiter's] constreint & his mortal distres; Troil. II, 776: joye, constreynte, and peyne; IV, 713: wo and constreynte. Cp. also note to l. 11. The reading compleynt in G and S is certainly wrong.

2. pensifhede.] The word occurs also in the Black Knight 102; De duobus Mercatoribus, MS. Hh. IV, 12, fol. 73 b; Reason and S. 237 b; Compleynt 510; print w replaces it by the modern pensyfnes.

3. To bed I went.] Similar beginnings of these "dreamers": Rom. of the R. 23; Court of S. a$_2$ b (see note to l. 1); Parl. of F. 88.

4—7. For the meaning of these lines see the Introduction, p. cxiv.

Titan (see l. 32) and Phebus are very common in Lydgate for the sun, Lucina for the moon. Cp. for instance, Troy-Book K$_3$ a:

"And Appollo is called eke Titan . . .
And he also ycalled is Phebus."

Life of our Lady, fol. a$_6$ a:

"she fayrer was to see (the Virgin)
Than outher Phebus platly, or Lucyne,
With hornes ful on (Caxton of) heuen whan they shyne."

See Koeppel, Story of Thebes, p. 73, l. 4.

4. "Lucyna . . . with hir pale lyght" comes also in the Troy-Book Ḋḋ$_1$ a; "Lucyna of colour pale and wan," ib. fol. A$_1$ d.

6. decembre.] Cp. Hous of F. 63, 111. Chaucer dreamt his wonderful dream of the House of Fame on the 10th of December.

Bradshaw's Life of Saint Werburge also begins "Amyddes Decembre," when "þale Lucyna" illuminates the earth.

8. derk Diane, ihorned.] Cp. "þe mone pale wiþ hir derke hornes," Boethius, ed. Morris 508.

Digitized by Google

11. Cp. Troy-Book S_6 b and U_3 c:

"For the constreynt of his hydde (dedely U_3 c) wo";

Ib. U_2 d: "Deuoyde of slepe for constreynt of his wo."

Ib. S_6 a: "Aye on his bedde walowynge to and fro,
For the constreynt of his hydde wo."

Falls of Pr. 201 a: "for constreint of her wo." Cp. note to l. 1.

12. waloing.] i. e. turning restlessly. The word occurs again, in the same meaning, in the Leg. of Good W. 1166:

"She waketh, walweth, maketh many a brayd . . .";

Wife of Bath's Tale 229:

"He walwith, and he tornith to and fro."

Rom. of the R. 2562: "And walowe in woo the longe nyght."

Compare also the quotation in the preceding line, from the Troy-Book, fol. S_6 a; further, the expressions: "walow and wepe," Troil. I, 699; "for-wakit and for-walowit," Kingis Quair 11, 1. Similar expressions referring to the restless state of lovers during the night are:

Rom. of the R. 4132: "Long wacche on nyghtis, and no slepinge . . .
With many a turnyng to and froo";

Troil. II, 63: "And made ar it was day ful many a wente";

Dunbar, ed. Laing, I, 68, l. 213:

"Than ly I walkand for wa, and walteris about."

Cp. the note to ll. 1—3.

13, 14. Cp. Troy-Book Cc_2 b:

"And with theyr songe, or he take kepe,
He shall be brought in a mortall slepe." (Ulysses and Sirens.)

"Take kepe" = take heed, a very common expression; cp. Chaucer's Prol. to the Cant. Tales 398, 503; Knight's Tale 531, etc.

Line 14 struck Hill, De Guileville . . . compared with . . . Bunyan, p. 35, as being similar to Canto I, 10, of the Inferno; see the Introduction, p. cxliv.

15, 16. Cp. Hous of F. 119, 120:

"But as I sleep, me mette I was Within a temple y-mad of glas."

This seems to have suggested the title of our poem. See further Pope's Temple of Fame, ll. 132—134:

"The wall in lustre and effect like glass,
Which o'er each object casting various dies,
Enlarges some, and others magnifies."

Cp. also Falls of Pr. 105 b:

"Whose temple is made of glas & not of stele" (Fortune's), and The Isle of Ladies, l. 72, 751.

17. I nyste how.] Cp. Piers Pl., l. 12:

"That I was in a wildernesse, wist I neuer where;"

further Court of S. a_8 b:

"Thus brought on slepe my spyryte forth gan passe,
And brought I was, me thought, in a place deserte,
In wyldernes; but I nyst where I was."

The expression occurs also in the Hous of F., l. 1049.

18. (as) bi liklynesse.] Cp. Falls of Pr. 9 d:

"which, as by likelines,
Was a place pleasant of larges."

The expression occurs also Troy-Book H_3 a; M_3 c; P_6 a; Cc_6 c; Assem. of Gods c_6 b; Edmund I, 464; Pilgrim. 161 b; 173 a:

"A womman as by lyklynesse."

Or may we read "likënesse," as the reading of MSS. T. F. B. L suggests?

Ll. 19—34. Stephen Hawes seems to have had these lines in his memory when he wrote the passage in the Pastime of Pl., quoted on page cxxix.

19. Hous of F. 1130: "A roche of yse, and not of steel" (see Introduction, p. cxxiii).

Digitized by Google

A curious, indirect mode of expression. Cp. Falls of Pr. 93 c:

"This Erebus hath, of yron, not of stone,
For auarice built a foule great citie."

Ib. 105 b: "Whose temple is made of glas & not of stele" (Fortune's), a symbolism which is explained by Falls of Pr. 127 b:

"Fortunes fauours be made—who loke wele—
Of brotill glasse, rather than of stele."

Cp. further, Reason and S. 278 b:

"And the poyntes of eche hede
Nat of Irēn, but of lede."

St. of Thebes 356 b: "In a Cope of blacke, and not of grene."

roche.] Similarly Hous of F. 1115, 1116:

"How I gan to this place aproche
That stood upon so high a roche."

The Castle of Sapience (Court of S. e_2 a) stands also on a "roche"; Nimrod's tower, Falls of Pr. 5 b, is

"Like to a mountaine bilt on a craggy roche."

Many of Hawes's towers or castles stand "on a craggy roche," so the Tower of Geometry, Chapter XXI; the Tower of Correction, Chapter XXXII, etc.

21, 22. Cp. Troy-Book B_4 d:

"fresshe ryuers, of which the water clene
Lyke cristall shone agayne the sonne shene."

Douglas, ed. Small, I, 50, 14: "Agane the sone like to the glas it schone."

29. estres = "inner parts" of a house. See Skeat, Leg. of Good W., note to l. 1715. The word occurs again in l. 549; Falls of Pr. 74 b; Reason and S. 280 a, 282 a; Knightes Tale 1113; Reeves Tale 375; Rom. of the Rose 1448, 3626, etc.

30—32. Similar expressions in Life of our Lady h_1 b:

"I fynde also that the skyes donne,
Whiche of custome curteyne so the nyght,
The same tyme with a sodayn sonne
Enchaced were that it wexid al light,
As at mydday whan phebus is most bright" (at the birth of Christ).

Falls of Pr. 160 d: "Though it so fall, sometime a cloudy skye
Be chased with wynd afore y^e sunne bright."

skyes donne] very frequent expression; see, for instance, Falls of Pr. 193 b; Albon II, 1131; Pilgrim. 58 b; Compleynt 372; Flour of C. 115; Departing of Th. Chaucer, etc.

33. The wipin is somewhat anticipating, as Lydgate first tells us of his entering into the temple in l. 39.

36. Of similar construction to our Temple of Glas is the Palace of Priam in the Troy-Book, fol. F_3 a (repeated on fol. R_4 a, and alluded to in the Court of S. e_4 b):

"He made it bylde, hye vpon a roche . . .
The syght of whiche, iustly circuler
By compase cast, round as any sper."

In this case the monk gives us also the exact dimensions, and shows off his knowledge of geometry:

"And who that wold the content of y^e grounde
Truely acounte, of this place rounde,
In the theatre firste he muste entre,
Takynge y^e lyne y^t kerueth thorugh the centre,
By gemetrye, as longeth to that art,
And trebled it, with the seuenthe part. . ."

So our monk had an inkling of the Archimedean value of $\pi = 3\frac{1}{7}$.

37. In compaswise.] So again Falls of Pr. 154 d:

"In cumpas wise closed him without."

We have several times "In compas rounde" in Lydgate; for instance: Albon I, 358: "in compas rounde and large"; Black Knight 39: "a parke, enclosed with a wal In compas rounde." So also in the Rom. of the R. 4183 : "The tour was rounde maad in compas." Cp. also Knightes Tale 1031 : "Round was the schap, in maner compaas."

Digitized by Google

bentaile.] entaile here seems simply to mean "forme," "shape"; in which meaning it is not uncommon in Lydgate, cp. Reason and S. 226 b:

"Of entayle and of fassoun Lyche the blade of a fawchoun" (a sword);

a little lower down Lydgate says that Hercules, Hector, or Achilles

"had no swerd of swich entaylle;"

further, Falls of Pr. 68 a: "craggy roches most hidous of entaile;" Ib. 174 d: (yron barres) "Brode of entayle, rounde and wonder long;" Albon I, 256: "harnesse of plate and maile, Curiously forged after moost fresshe entaile;" Albon I, 242: "Ther was one of stature and entaile, (Amphibalus)
As ferre as kinde coulde her crafte preuaile;" Edmund I, 659, speaks of God's "disposicioun most vnkouth off entayle;" Pilgrim. 271 a: "And made hym ffyrst off swych entaylle" (the carpenter his idol);
Story of Thebes 357 b: (walles) "Passyng riche, and roiall of entaile." Cp. also Rom. of the R. 3711: "This lady was of good entaile" (Venus).

39. wicket.] These "dreamers" usually find access to their Castles and Palaces and Temples through such "wickets"; cp. Hous of F. 477; Rom. of the R. 528—530:

"Tyl that I fonde a wiket smalle
So shett, that I ne myght in gon,
And other entre was ther noon."

Compare with this the version in Reason and S. 268 b:

"Til he fonde a smale wiket,
The which ageyn[e]s him was shet,
And fonde as thoo nooñ other weye."

Further, Pilgrim. 9 b:

"And ther I sawh a smal wyket Ioynynge evene vp-on the gate."

See the Introduction, Ch. IX, § 3, p. cxxiii.

as fast.] This pleonastic prefix as is very common, especially before adverbs: as faste Troil. II, 657, 898, 1358; Chan. Yem. Tale 94; Troy-Book G, d; Reason and S. 281 a; as swythe Man of Lawes Tale 539; Chan. Yem. Prol. 383; Chan. Yem. Tale 19, 183, 283, 298, 325, 415; De duob. Merc., fol. 60 b; Reason and S. 282 b; as blive Court of L. 1441; Fame 1106; Troil. II, 1513; Troy-Book Y, c; as here Doctoures Tale 103; as now Troil. III, 584; Shipm. Tale 52; Melibe, p. 178, etc.

44. depeint] p.p. = depeinted. The line is of type C; the full form depeinted would make it of type A. The contracted form of the p.p. occurs again in ll. 89, 137, 275, in the last case rhyming with meint. Similarly, depeynt : seynt, Pard. Tale 488. Cp. also Isle of Ladies 712.

45. ful many a faire Image] Cp. Court of Love 230.

46, 47. The division of lovers according to their age is carried out at some length in the Kingis Quair, stanza 79, etc.; see also the Court of L., and compare Troy-Book M, a: "Lyke theyr degrees, as they were of age."

50. billes.] These lovers' "billes," presented to the pitiless loved one or to the Queen of Love herself, when she holds her "high parliament," occur in many poems of Chaucer and his school; cp. again ll. 317, 333, 368 of the Temple of G.; further March. Tale 693, 708; Kingis Quair 82, 6, etc.; Isle of Ladies, l. 920, etc.; Assem. of Ladies, passim; Court of Love 577, 839, 916; Parl. of Love 83; Lancelot of the Laik, Prol. 142; Hawes's Pastime of Pl., Chap. XXIX (ed. Wright, p. 142):

(lovers) "Whiche in the temple did walke to and fro,
And every one his byll did present
Before Venus in her hyghe parliament."

Digitized by Google

Cp. also Chaucer's Compl. to Pite 43:

"A compleynt hadde I, writen, in my hond,
For to have put to Pite as a bille."

53. Venus is often thus represented, see Hous of F. 130—133:

'Hit was of Venus redely,
This temple; for, in portreyture,
I saw anoon-right hir figure
Naked fletinge in a see."

Knightes Tale 1097, 1098:

"The statu of Venus, glorious for to see,
Was naked fletyng in the large see."

Troy-Book K_4 b:

"And she stant naked in a wawy see."

In the Troy-Book, sign. G_8 b, this is symbolically interpreted (according to Fulgentius):

"And therfore Venus fleteth in a see,
To shewe the trouble, and aduersytee
That is in loue, and in hir stormy lawe
Whiche is byset with many sturdy wawe," etc.

Fulgentius (ed. Muncker), p. 72, says: "Hanc etiam in mari natantem pingunt, quod omnis libido rerum patiatur naufragia."

55—61. Dido was a favourite and often-quoted figure in mediæval times, owing, of course, to the pathetic treatment of her story by Virgil. Compare Chaucer's Legend of Dido, and the Prologue to the Legend 263; Hous of F. 140—382; Duchesse 731—734; Parl. of F. 289; Rom. de la R., ed. Méon, l. 13378, etc.; Gower, Confessio, Book IV (ed. Pauli, II, 4 etc.); Court of L. 231; Intelligenza 72, 3 and 4. Lydgate has treated Dido's story in the Falls of Pr. II, 13; cp. further, for Dido and Aeneas, Falls of Pr. 139 d; Reason and S. 261 b; Edmund I, 275; Black Knight 375; Troy-Book U_8 b, Bb_8 a; Life of our Lady a_3 b, l_1 a; Flour of C. 211. There was another version of Dido's story current in the Middle Ages, according to which Dido put an end to herself, in order to escape another marriage and remain faithful to her dead husband. See Falls of Pr. 51 c and their original, Boccaccio De Casibus II, 10; see also Körting's Petrarca, p. 505 and 661; Triumphes of Petrarch, edited for the Roxburghe Club, by Lord Iddesleigh, Preface, p. vi; Koeppel, Falls of Pr., p. 93, to whom I am indebted for most of the last-given dates. In our passage, as in Reason and S., Lydgate follows the common version, according to Virgil. Aeneas, as arch-traitor to Troy, plays no very creditable part in the Troy-Book, see sign. Y_2 c, Y_3 c and d; Aa_6 b; he is also sharply rebuked for his faithlessness to Dido in the Troy-Book, Bb_3 a:

"And how that he falsede (Pynson falsehede) the quene,
I mene Dido, of womanhede floure,
That gaue to hym hir rychesse and treasoure . . . .
But for all that how he was vnkynde—
Rede Eneydos, and there ye shall it fynde;
And how that he falsely stale away,
By nyght tyme, whyle she a bedde lay."

57. "And tak thyn aventure or cas." Hous of F. 1052.

59. Troy-Book D_3 a:

"And how that he was false and eke vnkynde
For all his othes . . ." (Jason).

60. The words "alas, þat euer she was borne" agree with Leg. of Dido 385:

"That I was born! allas! what shal I do?"

and with Hous of Fame 345:

"O, welawey that I was born!"

But, at the same time, the exclamation: "alas, that (ever) I was borne," is in poems of that time so commonly put into the mouth of those in extreme distress that Lydgate need not here have copied from either of these two poems; see Knight's Tale 215, 365, 684; Manne. Tale 169; Reeves T. 189; Doctors T.

Digitized by Google

215; Shipm. T. 118, 119; Frankel. Tale 725, 814; Duchesse 566, 686, 1301; Troilus III, 255, 1024, 1374; V, 690, 700, 1276; Cleopatra 79; Thisbe 128; Cuckoo and Night. 208; Isle of Ladies 1611, 1643; Black Knight 484; Halliwell, M. P., p. 115. In Duchesse 90, Monk's Tale 439, and Legend of Adriane 302, with slight variation: "Alas . . . that (ever) I was wrought!" Compare also the Pastime of Pleasure, Chapter XXXII, where Godfrey Goblelive gives vent to this exclamation, when whipt by Correccioun (ed. Wright, p. 156).

62. The story of Medea and Jason is given at great length in the Troy-Book, Book I, Chapter V, VI, VII (the description of Medea, etc., Troy-Book B_4 b, is by no means the least of Lydgate's poetical achievements); again, in the Falls of Pr. I, 8, and in the Confessio Amantis, Book V (ed. Pauli II, 236 etc.). Jason is sharply lectured by the monk for his inconstancy in the Troy-Book D_1 b—D_1 c.—See further mention of Jason or Medea Black Knight 372, 373; Story of Thebes 371 b; Flour of C. 214; Reason and S. 261 b; Æsop 4, 100; Legend of Hypsipyle and Medea, beginning; Prologue to the Legend 266; Squieres Tale II, 202; Man of Law's Prologue 74; Hous of F. 400, 1271; Duchesse 330, 726; Rom. de la R. 13432, etc.; Intelligenza 73, 3. Medea is mentioned, with Circe, as an enchantress in the Knightes Tale 1086.

63. falsed = deceived; see Troilus III, 735, 757; Anelida 147; Duchesse 1234, etc.

64—66. Adoun.] Compare Falls of Pr. 32 a; Black Knight 386—388; Knightes Tale 1366; Troilus III, 671. Lydgate has also the form Adonés, rhyming with peerelés (Falls of Pr. 32 a), and Adonydes, Reason and S. 252 b. The prints corrupt the name into Atheon, which could only mean Actæon; see Knightes Tale 1445. The Italian form Ateone occurs in Frezzi's Quadriregio I, 4, 137, and Taccone wrote a drama Atteone (see Gaspary II, 216). The story of Actæon is given by Gower I, 53 and alluded to in the Black Knight, ll. 94—98.

67—69. Penelope.] See Gower, Book IV (Pauli II, 6 etc.), and list at the end of the Confessio (Pauli III, 363); Rom. de la R. 8693. High praise is bestowed on Penelope's faithfulness in Troy Book Cc_2 c and d; see, further, Trionfo d'Amore III, 23; Duchesse 1081; Legend, Prologue, 252; Anelida 82; Man of Lawes Prol. 75; Frankel. Tale 707; Troilus V, 1792; Intelligenza 74, 5. See also, further on, l. 407; Flour of C. 203.

69. pale and grene.] Frequent formula; see Duchesse 497, 498; Anelida 353; Troy-Book H_6 b: "Now pale and grene she wexyth of hir chere."

70. aldernext.] Similarly alderlast 247. Alder, of course, is O.E ealra, of all; Lydgate has even "for our alder ease," Troy-Book Y_3 a; "of theyr alder sorowe," ib. Y_6 d; in theyr alder syght, Albon II, 888.

70—74. Alceste.] On Alcestis, her transformation into a daisy, and the poetical worship of that flower, see Skeat, Leg. of Good W., p. xxii, etc.; Minor P., p. xxv; ten Brink, Geschichte der engl. Litter., II, 115; Morris, Prologue, XVIII; H. Morley, English Writers, 2d. ed., V, 133. Compare particularly the Prologue to the Leg. of Good W.; Confessio Amantis, book VII (ed. Pauli III, 149), and list at the end (III, 364); Court of L. 105, etc.; Lydgate's Minor P., p. 161 (Halliwell); Falls of Pr. 37 b; Secreta Secretorum (Ashmole 46), fol. 127 a:

> "Whan the Crowne of Alceste whyte and Red,
> Aurora passyd, fful ffresshly doth appere,
> For Ioye of which with hevenly nootys Clere
> The bryddes syngen in ther Armonye,
> Salwe that sesoñ with sugryd mellodye."

See further, Troilus V, 1540, 1792; Frankel. Tale 706; Lancelot of the Laik, Prol. 57; Flour of C. 198; Add. MS. 29729, fol. 157 a; Compleynt 394—437; Occleve, Letter of Cupid, stanza 6 from end; Flower and Leaf 348. Compare further, note to l. 510. As is well known, the story of Alcestis has often been treated in poetry and music; in modern times by Hans Sachs, Hardy, Quinault, Wieland, Herder, Handel, Gluck, etc.; see G. Ellinger, Alceste in der modernen Litteratur. For the mention of Alcestis, and poetical treatments of her story, in ancient times, see Sandras, Étude sur Chaucer, p. 58. In the following words "Ce sujet que la science moderne croit retrouver dans la vieille littérature de l'Inde," Sandras alludes, I suppose, to the beautiful Savitryupakhyana in the Mahabharata.

Digitized by Google

75, 76. Grisildis.] This is, of course, from the Clerkes Tale. The story comes, as is well known, from Boccaccio and Petrarch. has been painted by Pinturicchio, and again treated by Radcliff, Dekker, Chettle and Haughton, Hans Sachs, Lope de Vega, Halm, etc. Compare F. v. Westenholz, Die Griseldissage. Griseldis is also mentioned in Lydgate's Bycorne 87; Flour of C. 199; Add. MS. 29729, fol. 157 a; Falls of Pr. A_3 a; 60 b; 99 a (where Lydgate mentions Petrarch's treatment), and again in our Temple of G. 405. Also in MS. Ashmole 59, fol. 53 a:

"Gresylde whylome sheo hade gret pacyence,
As it was proeved far vp in Ytayle."

Further, in Feylde's Controversy (twice), etc.

77—79. Isolde.] Confessio, Book VI (Pauli III, 17). Tristram and La Bele Isolde head Gower's list in Book VIII. See also Trionfo d'Amore III, 80, 82; Parl. of F. 290; Hous of F. 1796; Leg. of Good W., Prologue, 254; Black Knight 366; L. Lady l_1 a; Le Dit du bleu chevalier 299; Intelligenza, 72, 7.

80, 81. Pyramus and Thisbe.] Mentioned again, l. 780. Compare particularly Reason and S. 256 b, where the story is told; further, Leg. of Thisbe, and Prologue 261; Parl. of F. 289; March. Tale 884; Confessio, Book III (Pauli I, 324, etc.), and list in Book VIII; Trionfo d'Amore III, 20; Troy-Book X_3 d; Black Knight 365: "yonge Piramus," see Temple of G., l. 780; Le Dit du bleu Chevalier 242, 243.—Of course I might mention Ovid, Shakspere, etc.

81. him Piramus.] With respect to this combination of pronoun and proper name, see l. 123: hir Almen; 130 him Mercurie; Black Knight 368: of him Palemoune; Troilus III, 834: she Cryseyde; Non. Prestes Tale 574: he Iakke Straw; ib. 321: Lo hire Andromacha; Knightes Tale 352: him Arcite; Duchesse 286: he mette, king Scipion; March T. 124: him Oliphernus; ib. 129: him Mardoche; Boethius 293: hym Trigwille, etc.

82—85. Theseus.] See Leg. of Ariadne, and Gower's Confessio, Book V (ed. Pauli II, 302, etc.); Hous of F. 405, etc; Knightes Tale, 122; Falls of Pr. 8 c; 14 b; 23 c.

84. Dedalus.] Hous of F. 919, 1920 (see Skeat's note); Duchesse 570; Rom. de la R. 5241; Falls of Pr. 86 c. The Story of Dædalus and Icarus is given in Reason and S. fol. 259 a and b.

for-wrynkked.] Leg. of Ariadne 127:

"for the hous is crinkled to and fro,
And hath so queinte weyes for to go."

Falls of Pr. 14 a: "Labirinthus, diuers and vncouth, Ful of wrincles and of straungenesse."

Reason and Sens., fol. 251 b:

"For this the house of Dedalus . . . .
It is so wrynkled to and fro."

Chaucer's Boethius, ed. Morris, 2981: "Þat hast so wouen me wiþ þi resouns. Þe house of didalus so entrelaced. Þat it is vnable to ben vnlaced."

86—90. Phyllis and Demophoon.] Their story was very popular in the Middle Ages; see Chaucer's Leg. of Phyllis, and Prologue, 264; Man of Law's Head-Link 65, and Skeat's note; Hous of F. 388—396; Duchesse 728; Rom. de la R. 13414—13417; Dante, Paradiso IX, 100; Trionfo d'Amore I, 127; Falls of Pr. 37 a; Reason and S. 261 b; Flour of C. 204; Gottfried von Strassburg, Tristan 17193; Dirk Potter's Minnen loep I, 325, etc.; Al. Chartier, "L'Hospital d'Amours." Lydgate represents here, and Black Knight 68—70, Phyllis as hanging herself on a filbert-tree. This seems to originate in Gower's Confessio, Book IV (ed. Pauli, II, 30):

"That Phillis in the same throwe
Was shape into a nutte-tre,
That a'le men it mighte se;

Digitized by Google

And after Phillis philliberd
This tre was cleped in the yerd."

See Skeat's Etymological Dictionary, under filbert, and Webster. This version is not, as far as I know, borne out by the classics. Ovid, Heroides II, gives no particular tree (nor does Chaucer); see further the short account in Hyginus (59 and 243, not quite consistent with each other). According to a tradition given by Servius (ad Virg. Ecl. V, 10) Phyllis was changed into an almond tree, which tree seems to be meant in Pliny 16, 45; Palladius, De insitionibus 61, and 97; and Culex, ll. 130, 131; cp. Spenser's translation:

"And that same tree in which Demophoon,
By his disloyalty lamented sore,
Eternal hurt left unto many one."

We read further in Rolland's Court of Venus, book III, 30:

"The Quene Phillis, and luif to Demophoon,
And in ane tre scho was transfigurat,
[Q]uhen he on sey be storme was tribulat."

Our version with the filbert tree, however, seems to have sprung from one of Virgil's Eclogues (VII, 63):

"Phyllis amat corylos; illas dum Phyllis amabit, Nec myrtus vincet corylos, nec laurea Phoebi."

92, 93. Paris & Eleyne.] See particularly Troy-Book II, Chapter XIII, where the rape of Helen is narrated in detail. See also Duchesse 331; Parl. of F. 290, 291; Legend, Prologue 254; Hous of Fame 399; Squieres T. II, 202; Man of Law's Prologue 70; March. Tale 510; Troil. I, 62, 455; V, 890; L. Lady a, b; l, a; Flour of C. 191; Albon I, 475; Intelligenza 71, l. 8.

Line 93 occurs nearly word for word in the Troy-Book: H, b:

"This fayre Eleyne, this fresshe lusty quene."

94, 95. Achilles and Polyxena.] Troy-Book IV, Chapter XXXII, tells how Achilles was treacherously slain in Troy; see also Falls of Pr. I, 21. Cp. further Duchesse 1067 (and Skeat's note); Parl. of F. 290; Legend, Prologue 258; Troil. I, 455; Black Knight 367; Flour of C. 190; T. of Glas 785 and 786; Intelligenza 72, l. 2 and 273, r. 2.

97—99. Philomene.] See Chaucer's Leg. of Philomela; Gower, book V (ed. Pauli, II, 313, etc.); also Troil. II, 64—70; Falls of Pr. 9 a; Black Knight 374; Kingis Quair, stanza 55. The above form of the name, instead of Philomele, is common in the Middle Ages, not only in England. There was, for instance, a Hist. of Felix and Philomena, acted 1584 (interesting with respect to The Two Gent. of Ver.); the name of the maid in Ayrer's Pelimperia is Philomena; Lope de Vega wrote a Philomena, and Gascoigne a Complaint of Philomene. In the Kingis Quair 62, 1, Philomene rhymes with quene (see Skeat's note); ib., 110, 3 with schene; in Lydgate, Falls of Pr. 9 a, with cleane; Gower rhymes the name with tene, betwene, sene, grene, mene; Andrew of Wyntoun (Cronykil II, 1013) with kene; Pulci, Morgante maggiore I, 3, 1 with pena.

100, 101. Lucrece.] See Livy I, 57—59; Ovid, Fasti II, 721—852 (and, of course, Shakspere, Thomas Heywood, etc.). Chaucer has also treated the story in the Leg. of Luc.; cp. also the Prologue 257, and Skeat, Legend, p. xxxi; St. Augustine, De civ. Dei, caput XIX; Gesta Rom., Tale 135; Gower, Confessio, book VII (ed. Pauli, III, 251 etc.), and, again, the list in the eighth book. Lydgate has treated the same story in the Falls of Pr. II, 5; and, again, III, 5 (see Koeppel, Falls of Pr. p. 66, 96). See further Life of our Lady a, b; Flour of C. 201; Edmund I, 277; and Lydgate's Poem on the Mar. of Humphrey and Jacqueline (MS. Add. 29729, fol. 158 b); further, Duchesse 1082 (and Skeat's note); Frank. Tale 669—672; Man of L. Prol. 63; Anelida 82; Rom. de la Rose 8649; Boccaccio, De claris Mul. 46.

100. The expression: to halowe a feast occurs often; for instance, Troy-Book H, a; S, d; T, a; Falls of Pr. 14 b; 174 c, etc.

102—110. Palamon and Arcite.] This, of course, is from the Knightes Tale. Lydgate alludes to the same story again in the Black Knight 368, and Story of Thebes, fol. 372 d. Many of the expressions in our passage agree word for word with the Knightes Tale; cp. Kn. T. 219: He caste his eyen upon Emelya (see also 238); 13: eek hire yonge suster Emelye; 114: Emelye hire yonge suster schene; 177—179:

Digitized by Google

"Emelie, that fairer was to seene
Than is the lilie on hir stalke grene,
And fresscher than the May with floures newe;"

190: I-clothed was sche fressh for to devyse; 210: the fresshe Emely the scheene. Line 976 speaks of the "stryf and jelousye," l. 1926 of the "stryf and rancour" between the two brothers. If Shirley, in l. 82, speaks of Duc Theseus, it is quite in accordance with the Knightes Tale, where Theseus is often called "Duke," see l. 2, 15, 35, etc. We have a "Duke Theseus" also in the Falls of Pr. 15 a, 23 b, etc.; a "Duke Hannibal" in the Falls of Pr., a "Duke Moyses" in the Secreta Secretorum, etc.

105. These "castings of an eye" were very dangerous at that time; cf. Troy-Book Aa$_2$ b:

"Whan that he was wounded to the herte,
With the castynge oonly of an Eye" (Achilles).

De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 62 a):

"Cupides dart on me hath made arest,
The clere stremys of castyng of an eye:
Thys is the arow that causyth me (for) to deye."

See again ll. 231, 232, and compare Merciless Beaute, l. 1 etc., Troilus II, 534, etc.

110. Chaucer.] Lydgate is fond of introducing the name of his great "master" into his writings. Koeppel, St. Thebes, p. 78, has pointed out the instances in the Story of Th., and the Falls of Pr., namely St. Th., Prologue, fol. 356 a and b; fol. 377 c (Chaucer-edition of 1561); Falls of Pr., Prologue, fol. A$_2$ b, I, 6 (fol. 8 d), VI, 16 (fol. 164 c, Leg. of Antony and Cleopatra):

"Thyng once sayd by labour of Chaucer,
Wer presumpcion me to make agayn";

VIII, 6 (fol. 180 a); IX, 38 (fol. 217 c), to which II, 4 (fol. 46 a) and III, 18 (fol. 90 c) may be added. I have made note of the following occurrences in other works: Troy-Book N$_3$ a:

"And Chauncer now, alas! is nat alyue,
Me to refourme, or to be my rede;
For lacke of whom slower is my spede;
The noble Rethor, that all dyde excelle:
For in makynge he dranke of the welle
Under Pernaso, that the muses kepe,
On whiche hylle I myght neuer slepe
Unneth slombre, for whiche, alas, I playne."

See further ib., I$_4$ c and d (Story of Cryseyde); Q$_3$ d (Troilus); Dd$_3$ c; Court of S. a$_2$ a (see Introduction, p. cxxvii, note 1, together with Gower); Horse, goose, and sheep, 76 and 77 (see note to ll. 141, 142); Life of our Lady e, b:

"And eke my master chauceris now is graue . . ."—

(a well-known passage, see Morris's Chaucer I, 81); Flour of C. 236; Minor P. (Halliwell), p. 28 and 128; the Serpent of Division (see Miss Toulmin Smith's Gorboduc, p. xxi); Translation of Deguileville's First Pil., MS. Cott. Vit. C. XIII, fol. 256 b and 257 a (see Skeat, M. P., p. xlviii; Dr. Furnivall's Trial Forewords, pp. 13—15 and 100; Hill, pp. 8, 9).

Does "my maister" in Chorl and Bird, 380, also refer to Chaucer? The Court of S., fol. f$_1$ b, speaks of "Galfryde the poete laureate"; but this, I believe, refers to Geoffrey de Vinsauf, the highly-celebrated author of the Nova Poetria, not to Chaucer. Galfridus de Vinosalvo, also called "Galfridus Anglicus," wrote a didactic poem "De nova Poetria" (dedicated to Pope Innocent III.), a monody on the death of Richard I., and treatises on Rhetoric and Ethics (see Morley, English Writers I, 603 and 604). He is very frequently quoted by poets of that time, and celebrated for his "purpurat colours of rhetorike." Chaucer's humorous allusion to him in the Nonne Prestes Tale (l. 527, etc.) is well known. He is further unmistakably quoted by Bokenam, Prol. 83, etc. (Horstmann, Introduction, p. xi, is on the wrong track in believing that Chaucer is meant in this passage):

Digitized by Google

"Aftyr the sco'e of the crafty clerk
Galf.yd of Ynglond, in his newe werk,
Entytlyd thus, as I can aspye:
'Galfrid*us* anglic*us*,' in his newe poetrye," etc.

Cp. also "Galfryd of Ynglond" in I, 171, Chaucer being mentioned in addition, together with Gower and Lydgate, further on, l. 177.

The poem by the "Dull Ass" (cp. Introduction, p. cxlii) in MS. Fairfax mentions both, Chaucer and Geoffrey de Vinsauf, side by side (fol. 309 a):

"Cum oñ, Tulius, with sum of thy flouris;
Englesshe geffrey with al thy colourys,
That wrote so wel to pope Innocent;
And mayster Chauser, sours and fundement
On englysshe tunge swetely to endyte—
Thy soule god haue with virgynes white!—
Moral gower, lydgate, Rether and poete;
Ouide, stase, lucan of batylls grete" . . .

Chaucer and his older namesake are similarly put together in Little John (Speght's Chaucer, 1598, fol. c. ii):

"O cursed death, why hast thou those poets slain,
I meane Gower, Chaucer, and Gaufride."

It is thus extremely doubtful to me that the "Galfride" in the Court of Love (l. 11) is intended for Chaucer, as Skeat, Chaucer's Minor Poems, p. xxxii, maintains.

112—116. Phoebus and Daphne.] The story is alluded to in Reason and S. 236 a and 247 a, and told at length in the Confessio, book III (ed. Pauli I, 336), where Cupid "casts a dart throughout Phebus' heart"—

"Which was of golde and all a fire,
That made him many fold desire
Of love more than he dede.
To Daphne eke in the same stede
A dart of led he caste and smote,
Which was all colde and no thing hote."

In a similar way we have in the Kingis Quair, stanza 95, a reference to Cupid's different species of arrows, viz., of gold and steel, with the addition of silver ones, which, it seems, King James introduced on his own account. This fiction comes from the Rom. de la R., where (English Translation 918, etc.) Swete-lokyng, in attendance on Cupid, carries two bows, made of different kinds of wood, and two sets of five arrows, the first of which is of gold. Lydgate has introduced this into Reason and S. (MS. Fairfax 16, fol. 277 a, etc.); his first bow is made of ivory, the second black, full of "knottys" and "skarrys." The names of all ten arrows are given as in the Rom. de la R., and it is stated that the first set had heads of gold, the second of lead. Cf. also St. Thebes, fol. 363 b:

"That his [Cupid's] arowes of golde, and not of stele Yperced han the knightes hertes tweine."

Spenser also speaks of Cupid's "bow and shafts of gold and lead" (Colin Clout, l. 807), and we read in the Court of L. 1315 and 1316:

"The Golden Love, and Leden Love thay hight:
The tone was sad, the toder glad and light."

"The arrow of gold" occurs again in T. of Glas 445, and in Reason and S., fol. 236 a, where the story of Daphne is told. Cp. also Watson's sonnet 63, where the first book of Conrad Celtis's Odes is quoted. Barnfield, in his Tears of an affectionate Shepherd (Arber, p. 6), speaks of

"Death's black shaft of steel, Love's yellow one of gold."

Line 114, with its allusion to Cupid's envy, is explained by the following passage from Troy-Book K$_3$ a, which speaks of Apollo's victory over the dragon Python:

Digitized by Google

"For of Pheton he had the victorye,
Whan he hym slewe, to his encrease of glorye,
The great serpent, here in erthe lowe,
With his arowes and his myghty bowe,
Of whiche conqueste the great[e] god Cupyde
Hadde enuye, and euen thorugh the syde
He wounded hym, depe to the herte,
With y^e^ arowe of gold, y^t^ made hym sore smerte."

This goes back to Ovid, Metam. I, 452 etc.

The amours of Phœbus are also alluded to in Black Knight 358—364, and Troilus I, 659—665; the whole story of Phœbus and Coronis is given in Gower's Confessio I, 305 etc., and in Chaucer's Manciples T. (according to Ritson, a Fable of Lydgate, No. 46 of his list).

115. Daphne.] Diane, the reading of MSS. T. P. F. B, is of course wrong, as Daphne is meant; but perhaps I might have left the Dane of MS. G in the text; see Knightes T. 1204—1206:

"Ther sawgh I Dane yturned til a tree,
I mene nought the goddesse Dyane,
But Peneus doughter, which that highte Dane."

To discriminate between three names as similar as Diana, Danae, and Daphne was too much for the Middle Ages; so Dafne occurs for Danae in Edition B of Calderon's La Vida es Sueño III, 560. See further Troilus III, 677—679 (with the form Dane); Black Knight 64; Reason and S. 236 a (Fairfax MS. 16 has rightly Daphne); Court of L. 824: Dane = Danae; both names, Daphne and Danae, occur close together in Reason and S., with curious spellings in MS. Fairfax 16, fol. 247 a.

117—120. Jupiter and Europa.] See Leg. of Good W., Prologue 113; Troilus III, 673; Falls of Pr. I, 7; Reason and S. 247 a; Troy-Book A$_6$ d; Court of L. 823; Court of S. g$_2$ a:

"He come an oxe, and toke Europa, they sayd, Wherfore the bole they worshyp of theyr grace."

117. For Jove's cope, see the Introduction, Chapter X, p. cxl.

121—123. Amphitryon and Alcmene.] See also Gower's Confessio, Book II, ed. Pauli I, 242 (where Amphitryon supplants his friend Geta in the love of Alcmene). "Alcmenia" is also mentioned Court of Love 821.

124. for al his deite.] Similarly Troy-Book, A$_6$ d:

"for all his deyte (Jupiter and Alcmene)
He was rauysshed thurgh luste of hir beaute."

Falls of Pr. 9 b: "As he that was, for al his deitie, (Jupiter and Europa) Supprised in hert with her great beautie."

Troy-Book D$_6$ b: "Iubiter, for all his deyte, Upon Dyane (!) begat them all[e] thre."
(Helen, Castor and Pollux.)

Falls of Pr., fol. 8 b: (Isis) "enclined her heart vnto his deitie."

Cp. also Petrarch, Trionfo d'Amore I, 159, 160:

"E di lacciuoli innumerabil carco Vien catenato Giove innanzi al coro."

126—128. Mars & Venus.] Alluded to again in stanza 3 d. See further, Chaucer's Compl. of Mars, and Compl. of Venus, and Skeat's note, M. P., p. 274 (to the classical names given there, Lucian might be added); Gower's Confessio, Book V (ed. Pauli II, 148); Knightes Tale 1525; Troil. III, Proem 22; III, 675 ("Cyphes" in Morris must surely mean Cypris). Compare Reason and S. 254 a:

"the bed of Vulcanus,
Al with cheynes rounde enbracyd,
In the which he hath ylacyd
Hys wyf Venus and Mars yfere,
Whan Phebus with hys bemys clere
Discurede and be-wreyed al,

Digitized by Google

And al the goddys celestial
Of scorne and of derisioun
Made a congregacioun." . . .

In the Troy-Book, A$_1$ a the monk invokes Mars thus:

"Nowe for the loue of Vulcanus wyfe,
With whom whylom y^{t} were at myschef take,
So helpe me now, onely for hir sake."

Lines 127 and 128 are similar to ll. 621—623 of the Black Knight:

"For that joy thou haddest when thou leye
With Mars thi knyght, when Vulcanus yow founde,
And with a cheyne unvisible yow bounde."

Curiously enough, the monk is quite on the side of the guilty couple; see Reason and S. 254 a; Black Knight 389—392:

"But Vulcanus with her no mercy made,
The foule chorle had many nyghtis glade,
Wher Mars, her worthy knyght, her trewe man,
To fynde mercy comfort noon he can."

In the Troy-Book, K$_4$ d, he vents his spite on Phoebus, who awoke them, thus:

"And for that he so falsely them awoke,
I haue hym sette laste of all my boke."

129—136. Mercury and Philology.] This alludes to Martianus Capella's work, De Nuptiis Philologiæ et Mercurii, which was much read in the Middle Ages (see Warton-Hazlitt III, 77; ten Brink, Chaucer-Studien, p. 99; Koeppel, St. Thebes, p. 25 and 74; Skeat, M. P., p. 344). Chaucer mentions him, March. Tale 488; Fame 985; so does Bennet Burgh in an Epistle to Lydgate, MS. Add. 29729, fol. 6 a. See further, Story of Thebes, fol. 360 a and b, and Falls of Pr. 67 d:

"Mercury absent and Philologie."

Edmund I, 99: "For Mercurie nothir Philologie,
To-gidre knet and ioyned in mariage,
Withoute grace may haue noon auauntage."

A similar passage to that in our text occurs in Lydgate's poem on the marriage of Duke Humphrey and Jacqueline of Holland, Stowe's MS. Addit. 29729, fol. 160 a:

(and Hymenæus, thou) "Make a knott, feythfull and entiere,
As whylome was betwene phylogonye (!)
And Mercury eke, so hyghe aboue y^{e} skye,
Wher y^{t} Clye, and eke Calyope,
Sange w^{t} hir sustren in nombre thryes thre."

132. god of eloquence.] The article, as supplied by the Prints, is not necessary; see again, l. 572: "To god of loue"; so also Troil. I, 967; Black Knight 304; Rom. of the Rose 3289. Mercury is very commonly called the "god of eloquence" by Lydgate; cp. for instance, Assembly of Gods b$_2$ b:

"In eloquence of langage he passed all the pake."

Troy-Bk. G$_3$ a: "The sugred dytees, by great excellence,
Of rethoryke, and of eloquence,
Of whiche this god is soueraygne & patrowne."

Ib. G$_3$ b: "This god of eloquence kynge."

Ib. K$_2$ d (Mercurius):

"That in speche hath moste excellence,
Of rethoryke, and sugred eloquence,
Of musyke, songe and Armonye
He hath lordshyp, and hole the regalye."

St. Thebes 357 a: "Marcurie, God of eloquence."

Secreta Secr. 124 b: "In Rethoryk helpith Mercuryus."

Falls of Pr. 67 a: "Wynged Mercury, chief lord and patron
Of eloquence, and of fayre speakyng."

Ib. 168 b: "Mercury, God of eloquence."

See particularly the description of Mercury in Reason and S. 225 a, etc.

Digitized by Google

Compare also the Interpretation of the names of the gods and goddesses, prefixed to the Assembly of Gods, where "Marcuryus" is called the "God of langage." Cf. further Dunbar, Golden Targe 116, and Lyndsay's Dream, 393:

"Than we ascendit to Mercurious,
Quhilk Poetis callis god of Eloquence,
Rycht Doctourlyke, with termes delicious,
In arte exparte, and full of sapience."

136. Istellified.] Occurs frequently; see Hous. of F. 1002; Legend, Prologue 525; Troy-Book B, c (referring to Callisto); ib. I, b (Castor and Pollux); Falls of Pr. 65 a (Romulus); ib. 107 b (Alexander), etc. In our passage the word scarcely means "placed as a star in the firmament," but "received into heaven and there glorified"; cp. Pilgrimage, MS. Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 48 a:

[Cyprian] "is in heuene stelleffyed,
And with seyntis gloreffyed."

The French original here has only: "Et est ou ciel glorifie."

Cp. also Skelton, Garland of Laurel 961:

"I wyll my selfe applye . . . .
Yow for to stellyfye."

137—142. The story of Canace is the subject of the unfinished Squieres T. Waldron, as quoted by Park in Warton-Hazlitt III, 63, note 3, seems to think that our passage proves that Chaucer wrote more of this Tale than is now existing; but the passage hardly bears out this supposition: ll. 138—140 are sufficiently illustrated in Chaucer's Tale; with ll. 141 and 142 compare Squieres T., II, 317—320:

"And after wol I speke of Algarsif,
How that he wan Theodora to his wif,
For whom ful oft in great peril he was,
Nad he ben holpen by the hors of bras."

MS. Ashmole 53 gives John Lane's continuation of the Story; on the back of the last leaf 81, Ashmole has written ll. 137—142 of the T. of Glas (see Dr. Furnivall's edition, p. 237). Spenser's version of part of the Story in the Faerie Queene, Book IV, is well-known; cf. also Milton's Penseroso:

"Or call up him that left half told
The story of Cambuscan bold,
Of Camball, and of Algarsife,
And who had Canace to wife,
That own'd the virtuous ring and glass;
And of the wondrous horse of brass,
On which the Tartar King did ride."

This Canace is mentioned again by Lydgate in Flour of Curtesie, l. 206. The magic mirror of Canace occurs also in Douglas's Palice of Honour I, 57, 11 (ed. Small):

"Or ȝit the mirrour send to Canace, Quhairin men micht mony wonders se."

Not to be confused with this Canace is the other Canace, whose story is told in Ovid's Heroides, ep. XI. Gower introduced it at the beginning of Book III of the Confessio, and Chaucer's allusion to it in the Man of L.'s Prologue, l. 77, etc., is well known. It has been advanced that Chaucer meant, in this passage, rather to humour his "moral" friend than to censure him; a further argument in favour of this opinion would be that our monk also did not take exception to this story, but introduced it at great length into the Falls of Pr. (I, 22 and 23), evidently, moreover, making use of this very narrative of Gower's (see Koeppel, Falls of Pr., p. 98). This story from the Falls of Pr. is very highly praised by Gray in his article on Lydgate (Works, ed. Matthias II, 66, 67), and is also the very one selected in Thomas Campbell's Specimens of the British Poets, p. 15. See also Legend, Prologue 265, and Thomas Feyldo's Controversy. Gottfried von Strassburg mentions this Canace also (Tristan 17194); so does Petrarch in the Trionfo d'Amore II, 181—183, and Skelton, Garland of Laurel 934; Sperone Speroni wrote a drama Canace.

There is a third person with the very similar name Candace, connected with the Alexander-Saga; she is mentioned, Parl. of F. 288; Ballade on Newefangelnesse, l. 16; Gower, Confessio, Book V (ed. Pauli, II, 180). Cp. further Thomas Feylde's Controversy, fol. B$_4$ b, where "Candacys" is mentioned; MS. Ashmole 59, folio 52 b:

Digitized by Google

"And ryche was eeke þe faire qwene Candace."

Life of our Lady, l$_1$ a: "Riche candace of ethyope quene."

The last line reminds one at once of Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, whose eunuch Philip baptized (Acts viii, 27). According to Pliny (VI, 35), "Candace" was a transmitted title of the Ethiopian queens; cp. also Strabo XVII, 820, Dio Cassius 54, 5, and Suidas. For the story of Alexander, Candace, and her son Candaules, see especially, Wars of Alexander, l. 5090, etc. (ed. Skeat, p. 257); Kyng Alisaunder, ed. Weber, p. 305, etc.; Intelligenza 229, etc.: Li Romans d'Alixandre, by Lambert li Tors and Alexandre de Bernay, ed. Michelant 371, etc.; 380, etc. This story goes back to the Pseudo-Callisthenes III, 18, etc.—Calderon, in La Sibila del Oriente, has a King Candaces of Egypt, reigning at the time of Solomon.

138. For the magic power of Canace's ring, see Squieres Tale I, 138, etc.; for that of the "stede of bras," ib., I, 107, etc.

139. ledne] = language; comp. Squieres T. II, 89, 90, 132; Albon II, 873; Warton-Hazlitt II, 58, note 2; Harl. 2251, fol. 229 a (A saying of the nightingale); Pilgrim. 22 b:

"A foul that was of colour blak,
And in hys lydene thus he spak."

Spenser, Colin Clout, l. 744; Intelligenza 3, 6:

"Udia cantar li augelli in lor latino."

141, 142. hir broþir.] Algarsif; see Squieres T. II, 317, etc. Lydgate has another allusion to the Squieres T. in Horse, goose, and sheep, l. 76, 77:

"Chawcer remembrith the swerd rynge & glasse Presented were vpon a stede of brasse."

144. mani a þousand.] Shirley, not content with this, makes it many an hundred thousand. But he is beaten by King James (Kingis Quair 78, 4), who has "mony a mylioun" of lovers, and King James, in his turn, is outdone by the Court of Love, l. 589, where we find "a thousand milion" lovers.

145. complein.] Very similar to the following list of complaints is the one in the Kingis Quair and also in the Court of L.; see the Introduction, Ch. ix, § 4.

147. Envie.] Personification from the Rom. de la R. (Rom. of the R. 248, etc.); Reason and S. 270 b; Pilgrim., fol. 223 b, etc. Sins of Envy fill the second Book of Gower's Confessio. See also Black Knight, l. 257, and 336:

"The more he was hindred by envye," and Flour of C. 84.

In the Assembly of Gods, b$_7$ b, Envy is introduced as one of the seven deadly sins, sitting on a wolf. Cp. further the description of Envy in the Court of Love, l. 1254, etc.

148. Ielousie.] Parl. of F. 252; Kingis Quair 87, 7; Reason and S. 280 b; Black Knight 663, and see the Rom. de la R., English Translation, l. 3820, etc. "Serpent Ialousie" occurs again, stanza 3 b and 25 a; in Troil. III, 788; in the Falls of Pr., fol. 124 a:

"Stiered by the serpent of false gelousye."

Similarly "a fals serpent, callyd Ignorance" occurs, Edmund III, 147; "serpent of doublenes," Falls of Pr. 21 c; "serpent of discorde," Troy-Book Y$_2$ b; "serpent of foryetfulnesse," Troy-Book A$_2$ a; "serpent of newfanglenes," Falls of Pr. 58 b; "the false serpent of discencion," Falls of Pr. 79 b; "serpent of high presumpcion," Falls of Pr. 82 a; "serpent of enuy," Falls of Pr. 141 a. The "Serpent of Division" is the title of a work by Lydgate.

149. yput aback.] So again l. 1252, Secreta Secret, fol. 111 a, etc.

151. In the Falls of Pr., fol. 99 a, Lydgate says that Ovid wrote:

"Ful many a pistle compleyning for absence."

He means, of course, the Heroides. In the Kingis Quair 93, the lovers also complain of "dissenerance."

Digitized by Google

153. Wicked Tongues.] Personification from the Rom. de la R. (English translation, ll. 3027, 3257, 3799, etc.); the French name Malebouche appears in stanza 25 b; in Flour of C. 84; Black Knight 260; Reason and S. 280 b; Flower and Leaf 580; in the Pilgrim., fol. 202 a and b. Compare l. 1182 of the T. of Glas; and stanza 3 a, 3. In the Black Knight, l. 207, we have

"false tonges, that with pestilence
Sle trewe men that never did offence."

Flour of C. 157: "Dredful also of tonges that ben large."
Falls of Pr. 91 a:

"But there is no poyson so wel expert nor preued,
As is of tonges the hateful violence,
Namely whan princes list yeue them audience."

Pilgrim. 121 b: "For ther ys addere nor serpent
So dredful nor malycyous,
As ys a Tonge venymous."

Troil. I, 38 speaks of them

"that falsly ben apeyred
Thorwgh wikked tonges, be it he or sche."

Ib. II, 785: "Also thise wikkede tonges ben so preste
To speke us harme" . . .

See also ib. II, 804, and V, 755 and 756, and cp. Mauncyples Tale 215—258. fals suspecioun.] Cp. Black Knight 505, and Flour of Curtesie 86.

154. This is a stock-line of Lydgate's; it occurs again in Troy-Book I_2 a, and Y_1 d; Falls of Pr. 57 c, and 147 d; cf. also Pilgrim. 206 b:

"For mercy nor remyssyoun."

Similarly, Falls of Pr. 39 a:

"Voyde of al mercy and remission."

Albon III, 873: "Without mercy of any remyssyoun";
ib. II, 418: "Without fauour or remyssyon."

156. Daunger.] He and Malebouche are (together with Shame) the guardians of the Rose-tree in the Rom. de la R., and frighten away those who intend to pluck the rose; Rom. of the R. 3015, etc.; 3130, etc. Cp. also Legd. of Good W. 160, and Skeat's note (to which, towards the end, the Court of S. might be added). This cruel "Daunger," the lover's principal opponent in the heart of his mistress, is very frequently introduced, as a more or less distinct personification, often together with his associates Disdeyn, Pride, Drede, as opposed to Pity and Grace. See, again, T. of Glas, l. 631, 646, 652, 739, 776, 1141; further, Parl. of F. 136; Troil. II, 384, 399, 1876;—Black Knight 13, 250; Falls of Pr. 31 b; Reason and S. 236 a; 238 b; 280 a (following closely the Rom. de la R.); 294 b; Flour of C. 81; Isle of Ladies, 472; Merciless Beaute 16; Court of Love 831, 973; Rt. of the Rose 1524. In Al. Chartier, Le Parlement d'Amour (ed. Tourangeau, 1617, p. 696), we read:

"Et sur icelle estoit montez (la porte) Dangier, pour y faire le guet."

Dangier occurs also frequently in the same poet's Hospital d'Amours. In Skelton's Bowge of Court (l. 69), Daunger is "chyef gentylwoman" to Dame Saunce-pere.

Disdain.] A similar personification to Daunger. He is "chambreleyne" to the lady of the Black Knight (see that poem, l. 504); in the Court of Love, ll. 129 and 130, Daunger and Disdeyne are the chief councillors of King Admetus and Queen Alceste. In the Parlement of Foules also, l. 136, Disdayn and Daunger are mentioned together. Cp. also Bowge of Court, l. 140.

159—161. poverte.] Cp. the Rom. of the R. 450 etc., and Reason and S., fol. 270 b. "Poverty" is also a personification in the Falls of Pr., disputing with Fortune (Book III, beginning). Cp. further Court of L. 1137—1139:

"And as I yede, full naked and full bare
Some I beholde, lokyng dispiteously
On poverte, that dedely caste here ye."

Kingis Quair, 87, 4: "Sum for desyre, surmounting thaire degree."

Digitized by Google

161. Perhaps in open (reading of G and S) is right; cp. Falls of Pr. 47 c:
"To you in open my gylt I wil confesse."
Æsop 2, 124 "shewid in opyn."

162. wanting.] Wanting in what? In means? or good looks? Cp. Court of Love 1161—1163. In the Kingis Quair, stanza 87, l. 7, there are also some who complain "for to moch."

165. Kingis Quair 87, 5: "Sum for dispite and othir Inmytee."

166—168. Kingis Quair 136, 1, 6, 7:
"Fy on all suich! fy on thaire doubilnesse! . . .
That feynen outward all to hir honour,
And in thaire hert hir worschip wold devoure."
Kingis Quair 137, 4—7: "for quhich the remanant,
That menen wele, and ar nogȝt variant,
For otheris gilt ar suspect of vntreuth,
And hyndrit oft, and treuely that is reuth."

169—174. The same sentiment is expressed in the Legend of Hypsipyle 17—21, and in the Black Knight, ll. 412, 413. Cp. further Duchesse 1024, etc., and Skeat's note, who quotes Gower, Book IV (Pauli II, 56), the Rom. de la R. 18499—18526, and Machault's Dit du Lion.—See also Kingis Quair 86, 7.

175—178. Richesse is again a personification in the Rom. de la R.; see the English translation, l. 1033; she is "porter" of Venus in Parl. of F. 261. Cp. also Rom. of the R. 5360, etc.

179 etc., and the similar complaints in 209 etc., may be compared to Kingis Quair 91 and 92, which speaks of people whose bodyes were
"bestowit so,
Quhare bothe thaire hertes gruch[en] ther-ageyne,"
for which "Thaire lyf was nogȝt bot care and repentance."
See ib., 92, 5—7:
"Off ȝong[e] ladies faire, and mony lord,
That thus by maistry were fro thair chose dryve,
Full redy were thaire playntis there to gyve."

180. peping.] "An imitative word, allied to pipe, to express the chirping of a bird." So says Professor Skeat in his note to the following line from the Kingis Quair 57, 6: "Now, suete bird, say ones to me 'pepe.'"
Cp. also Dunbar, ed. Laing I, 85, l. 64: "Quhen of the Tod wes hard no peip," and Lyndsay's Peder Coffeis 23: "Peipand peurly with peteouss granis."

182. croked Elde.] One of the pictures in the Rom. de la R.; see Rom. of the R. 349, and Reason and S., fol. 270 b. The expression "croked elde" occurs again Falls of Pr. 3 a; Rom. of the R. 4889; "croked age," Troy-Book T, a; Falls of Pr. 176 c; Reason and S. 289 a; S. of Thebes 360 b; Testament, Halliwell, p. 241, 246; Edmund III, 422; "age croked and lame" Falls of Pr. 18 b; "stale croked age" Falls of Pr. 67 d.

184, 185. May and January.] This is an allusion to the Marchaundes Tale, with the story of the ill-coupled old, gray January and fresh May. Lydgate himself has imitated this story in a poem printed by Halliwell (page 27—46), containing the story of Decembre and Iuly. Lydgate quotes Chaucer in this story (Halliwell, p. 28):
"Remembre wele on olde January,
Whiche maister Chaunceres ful seriously descryvethe,
And on fresshe May" . . .
King James has also an allusion to Chaucer's tale (Kingis Quair 110, 2):
"Eke Ianuarye is [vn] like vnto may."

186. Cp. Story of Thebes, fol. 370 b:
"Thus selde is sen, the trouthe to termine,
That age and youth drawe by O line."
Millor's Tale 43: "Men schulde wedde aftir here astaat,
For oelde and youthe ben otten at debaat."

Digitized by Google

189. Rom. of the R. 82:

"Than younge folk entenden ay
For to ben gay and amorous."

Ib. 1288. "For yonge folk wole, witen ye,
Have lytel thought but on her play."

Reason and S. 279 a: (these lusty folkes all—youth among them):

"nentende nyght nor day
But vn-to merthe and vn-to play."

The same is said of Cupid and Deduit in Reason and S. 268 a:

"The which entende never a day
But vnto myrthe and vn-to play."

189. Myrthe is "lord of the garden" in the Rom. de la R.; see Rom. of the R. 601, etc., and 817, etc.; and "Dame Gladnesse" is "his leef," ib. 848; but in the present passage we have hardly a prosopopœia. "Gladnesse" is personified in Reason and S. 274 b.

190. Rom. of the R. 3893, 3894:

"For he loveth noon hevynesse, (Bialacoil)
But mirthe and pley, and alle gladnesse."

191. Cp. Chaucer's Compleynt unto Pite 23:

"Allas! that day! that ever hit shulde falle!"

The repotition of þat is peculiar; but the best MSS. have it, and, without it, the metre is incomplete.

192. sugre and gal.] A frequent simile; compare, for instance, Falls of Pr. 24 d:

"Their pompous suger is meint with bitter gal" (of princes).

Reason and S. 248 b: "The sugre of hir drynkes all (Venus)
At the ende ys meynt with gall."

Pilgrim., fol. 2 a: "hyr sugre vnder-spreynt wyth galle" (Fortune's).

195. shape remedie.] See again l. 721; Story of Thebes, fol. 364 b; Albon II, 1289. The expression occurs frequently elsewhere in Lydgate; also in the Kingis Quair 102, 5:

"and shapith remedye
To sauen me, of ȝour benigne grace."

196—208. This passage seems to have served as a model to Kingis Quair 88—90, and Court of L. 1095, etc. (see also ib. 253). Compare particularly Kingis Quair 90, 3—7, with ll. 207 and 208 of our poem:

"Sum bene of thām that haldin were full lawe,
And take by frendis, nothing thay to wyte,
In ȝouth from lufe Into the cloistere quite;
And for that cause are cummyn recounsilit,
On thame to pleyne that so thām had begilit."

See further Kingis Quair 88:

"ȝone were quhilum folk of religioun," etc.

Very similar is also the passage in the Court of L., 1095—1136; particularly 1104—1106:

"Alas! . . . we fayne perfeccion,
In clothes wide, and lake oure libertie;
But all the synne mote on oure frendes be"
(see T. of Glas., ll. 204 and 208);

the "copes wide" (l. 204) are also found in Court of L. 1116, and the "tender youþe" (l. 199) in Court of L. 1111. Cp. further ll. 196 and 197 with Court of L. 1100:

"Se howe thei crye and wryng here handes white,
For thei so sone went to religion!"

and with Court of L. 1135:

"Thus leve I hem, with voice of pleint and care,
In ragyng woo crying full petiously."

The passage is quite in accordance with Lydgate's views on monastic life as

Digitized by Google

expressed elsewhere; see his Testament. In the Troy-Book Dd$_3$ b he represents himself as

"Usynge an habyte of perfeccyon,
Albe my lyfe accorde nat therto."

209—214. See above, under 179.

215—222. Cp. Kingis Quair 134:

"Bot there be mony of so brukill sort,
That feynis treuth In lufe for a quhile,
And setten all thaire wittis and disport
The sely Innocent woman to begyle,
And so to wynne thaire lustis with a wile."

Troilus II, 786: "ek men ben so untrewe,
That right anon, as cessed is hire leste,
So ceseth love, and forth to love a newe."

See also Fame 341, etc.

219. Anelida 251: "Upon me, that ye calden your maistresse."

220. entere] = entirely devoted; cp. Troy-Book C$_2$ d:

"Whiche is to me moste plesaunt and enteer."

The word is common in this sense; we have also a noun formed from it, with similar meaning, in Edmund II, 938:

"How gret enternesse they hadde vnto ther kyng."

The synonym hool is also used in the same way: trew and hool Troilus III, 952.

223. Similarly Troy-Book Q$_3$ c: "And into terys he began to rayne."

Falls of Pr. 16 d: "Like a woman that would in teres reyne."

Ib. 39 b: "I pray the not disdayne,
Upon my graue some teares for to rayne."

Cp. also Troilus IV, 818 and 845, and further on, l. 961 and note.

228. Falls of Pr. 13 b: "But she al turned to his confusion."

229. Black Knight 479:

"Mot axe grace, mercy, and pite,
And namely ther wher noon may be founde."

230. forth-bi pace.] So again Falls of Pr. 18 a; Rom. of the Rose 4096; Pard. Tale 206; Prior. Tale 117. To "passe (or come) forby," is also not unfrequent; see, for instance, Doct. Tale 125; Troilus II, 658, and cp. Skeat's note to l. 175 of Chaucer's Prologue to the Cant. Tales.

231, 232. See note to l. 105.

233. perauenture.] To be read as a trisyllable peraunter; so also, for instance, Troil. II, 921, 1373; III, 442. Cp., further on, l. 241.

234. The same sentiment occurs in the Compl. of Mars, l. 231:

"And that is wonder that so lust a king Doth such hardnesse to his creature."

See also Duchesse 467—469.

242. This lover evidently endeavours to carry out the 20th Statute of the Court of Love (namely, to seek his absent lady, see Court of L. 498—504); but his bump of locality would not seem to be sufficiently developed for the task.

244. Covetise is again to be found in the Rom. de la R., English translation, 181, etc.; and in the Assembly of Gods, c$_2$ b (riding on an "Olyfaunt"). It is the vice against which the Pardoner preaches with particular zeal; see the Pard. Prol. 188, 147. It is akin to "Avarice," treated by Gower in the 5th book of the Confessio. See further, Melibe, p. 152, and Lydgate's Serpent of Division, fol. A$_3$ a, which speaks of "that contagious sinne Couetousnes, intermedled with Enuie."

Sloth is the subject of Gower's 4th Book. This vice often occurs personified; we have, for instance, a description of Sloth in the Pilgrimage, fol. 210 a:

"My name ys ycallyd slouthe;
For I am slowh & encombrows,
Haltynge also and Gotows

Digitized by Google

Off my lymes crampysshynge,
Maymed ek in my goynge,
Coorbyd lyk ffolkys that ben Old,
And afowndryd ay with cold."

In the Assembly of Gods, c_2 b, Sloth rides on a "dull asse." See again, l. 379, 1010.—A subdivision of Sloth is "Idelnesse" (see the Confessio, book IV), very frequently personified and held up as a thing to be avoided. In the Roman de la Rose, "Idelnesse" is "porter" of the garden (see the Engl. Translation 531 etc., 593, 1273 etc.). She has the same function in the Knightes Tale, l. 1082, and frequently comes in Lydgate and Hawes. See also Melibe, p. 181; Sec. Nun's Tale 2; Faerie Queene I, 4, 18 etc.

245. hastines.] See note to l. 863.

248. crystal shield.] This attribute of Pallas is often spoken of; cp. Troy-Book G_3 b:

"And next venus, Pallas I behelde
With hir spere, and hir cristall shelde."

After these lines follows the interpretation of this symbol, according to Fulgentius, as given in the Introduction, p. cxxvii. Again, ib. K_4 a:

"And Pallas eke with hir cristall shelde."

ib., Z_2 a: "Whiche on hir brest haueth of cristall Hir shelde Egys, this goddesse inmortall."

ib., Z_4 a: "To fayre Pallas with hir Cristall shelde."

Lydgate again has the "shelde of Crystall clere" and its interpretation as:

"The shelde of fortytude and of pacyence," in the Court of S. e_7 a, and there also refers to Fulgentius, who says (ed. Muncker, p. 68): "Gorgonam etiam huic addunt in pectore, quasi terroris imaginem, ut vir sapiens terrorem contra adversarios gestet in pectore." See further, Reason and S. 218 b:

"In hir lyfte hande she had also
A myghty shelde of pacience,
Ther-with to make resistence
Ageyñ al vices out of drede" . . . .

Again, L. Lady i_8 a:

"It [the name of Jesus] is also the myghty pauyce fayre
Ageyn wanhope and dysperacion,
Cristal shelde of pallas for dispayre."

Assembly of Gods, b_2 a:

"She [Minerva] wered two bokelers, one by her syde,
That other ye wote w[h]ere; this was all her pryde" [namely, on her breast].

Compare also the following passage from Frezzi's Quadriregio II, 1, 40—42:

"Scolpita avea l'orribile Gorgone (Mincrva)
Nel bello scudo, ch' ella ha cristallino,
Il quale porta, e contro i mostri oppone."

The virtue of this shield is thus expressed (ib., II, xix. 40):

"O figlio mio, se adocchi
Per mezzo del cristallo del mio scudo . . .
Tu vederai il vero aperto, e nudo;
E non ti curerai dell' apparenza,
Alla qual mira l'ignorante, e rudo."

Cf. also Quadriregio II, XVI, 19, etc. See further, Peele's Arraignment of Paris IV, 1:

"because he knew no more
Fair Venus' ceston than Dame Juno's mace,
Nor never saw wise Pallas' crystal shield."

251 and 252. Parl. of F. 298:

"ther sat a quene
That, as of light the somer-sonne shene
Passeth the sterre, right so ouer mesure
She fairer was than any creature."

Digitized by Google

Flour of C. 113—116:

"Ryght by example, as the somer sonne
Passeth the sterre with his beames shene,
And Lucifer amonge the skyes donne
A morowe sheweth, to voide nightes tene" . . .

Machault, Fontaine Amoureuse (see Skeat, M. P., p. 259):

"Qui, tout aussi com li solaus la lune
Veint de clarté,
Avait-elle les autres sormonté
De pris, d'onneur, de grace, de biauté."

253, etc. Compare Story of Thebes, fol. 363 a:

"And like, in soth, as Lucifer the sterre (l. 253)
Gladeth the morowe at his vprising:
So the ladies, at her in coming, (ll. 282 and 283)
With the stremes of her eyen clere . . . . .
To al the Courte broughten in gladnesse."

Cp. also, further on, ll. 328—331 and 1348.

255. Testament, Halliwell, p. 244:

"May among moneths sitte lyk a queene."

257—261. Cp. Flour of C. 120—123:

"And as the Ruby hath the souerainte
Of riche stones, and the regalie;
And the rose, of swetnesse and beaute,
Of freshe floures, without any lye" . . .

For eloquent praise of the rose as the queen of flowers, see Dunbar's Thrissill and Rois, l. 141 etc.

259. L. Lady a, b:

"And as the Rubye hath the renoun
Of stones al and domynacion,
Right so this mayde, to speke of holynesse,
Of wymmen alle is lady and maistresse" (cf. l. 296).

Falls of Pr. 88 a: "so clere his renoune shone . . . .,
As doth a Rubye aboue eche other stone."

Edmund I, 977: "And as the Ruby, kyng of stonys alle, Reioiseth ther presence with his naturel liht."

Albon I, 298: "As amonge stones the Ruby is moost shene."

Reason & S. 294 a: "For this Royal stoon famous
Was a Ruby vertuous,
Which hath by kynde the dignite
Of stonys and the souereynte."

ib. 295 a: "the Rubye vertuous,
Which is a stoon Most plenteuous,
Of vertu, yif I shal nat tarye,
Preferred in the lapydarye,
With grace and hap a man to avaunce."

Ll. 265, 266 occur almost word for word in the Troy-Book H, a:

"So he meruayleth hir great semelynesse, (Helen) Hir womanhede, hir porte and hir fayrenesse."

267—270. Troy-Book H, a:

"For neuer afore ne wende he that nature
Coude haue made so fayre a creature:
So aungellyke she was of hir beaute,
So femynyne, so goodly on to se."

ib. S, d: (Achilles) "gan meruayle greatly in his thought,
How god or kynde euer myght haue wrought,
In theyr werkes, so fayre a creature."

Cp. also the description of Cryseyde, Troilus I, 100—105.

271. This line contains one of Lydgate's favourite phrases, "hair bright like gold-wire" (golden thread). Compare the following passages:

Digitized by Google

Troy-B. C_2 c: "His sonnysshe heer, crisped lyke golde were" (Jason).
ib. I_1 d: "Hir sonnysshe heer, lyke Phebus in his spere Bounde in a tresse, bryghter than golde were" (Cryseyde).
ib. I_6 a: "With lockes yelowe, lyke gold wyre of coloure" (Paris).
ib. S_5 d: "Hyr heer also resemblynge to golde wyere" (Polyxena).
ib. Q_3 c: "And eke vntrussed hir heer abrode gan sprede, Lyke to golde wyre, for-rent and all to-torne" (Cryseyde).
ib. Z_6 a: "With heer to-rent, as any golde wyer shene" (Polyxena).
ib. C_2 d: "With berde yspronge, shynynge lyke gold weer" (Jason).
Assembly of Gods b_2 b:
"Whoos long here shone as wyre of golde bryght" (Venus).
Chorl and Bird 59:
(a bird) "With sonnyssh feders brighter then gold were."
Reason and S. 223 b:
"Whos here as eny gold wyre shoñ" (Venus).
It seems that this expression was started by Lydgate; at least I cannot point to an earlier instance. We have the phrase again in the Kingis Quair 1, 4:
"tressis like the goldin wyre;"
it occurs in one of the Roxburghe Ballads (62, stanza 5):
"First is her haire like threds of golden wyre;"
cp. further, Henryson, Testament of Creseide 177:
"As golden wier so glittring was his heare" (Jupiter);
Lyndsay, Ane Satyre, 342:
"Hir hair is like the goldin wyre."
These two examples are also quoted by Henry Wood, Chaucer's influence upon King James I., p. 5, note.
Hawes, Past. of Pleasure, p. 79:
"Her heer was downe so clerely shynynge,
Lyke to the golde, late purifyed with fyre;
Her heer was bryght as the drawne wyre."
It is found in Spenser's "Hymn in honour of Beauty," stanza 14:
"That golden wire, those sparkling stars so bright, Shall turn to dust, and lose their goodly light;"
further in his Ruins of Time, stanza 2:
"A woman . . . Rending her yellow locks, like wiry gold, About her shoulders carelessly down trailing;"
more than once in the Fairy Queen; for instance, II, 3, 30, 1:
"Her yellow lockes, crisped like golden wyre" (Belphœbe);
cp. also ib. II, 4, 15, and II, 9, 19; in Gascoigne's Dan Bartholomew, stanza 9; and several times in Peele; see David and Bethsabe II, 2:
"Thou fair young man, whose hairs shine in mine eye Like golden wires of David's ivory lute" (Absalon), and, again, II, 3:
"His hair is like the wire of David's harp,
That twines about his bright and ivory neck."
Even Shakspere seems to allude to the phrase, in the Sonnets 130, 4:
"If hairs be wires, black wires grow on her head;"
cp. further King John III, 4, 64.
A passage in the Celestina has also this idea; Calisto praises his beloved Melibea thus: "Comienzo por los cabellos: ¿ vés tú las madejas del oro delgado que hilan en Arabia? Mas lindos son, y no resplandescen menos" (see the English translation in Dodsley-Hazlitt, I, 61). The notion of "golden," "sunnish" hair, as being ideal in colour, was common at the time; Chaucer also has it frequently; see Duchesse 858; Hous of F. 1387; Doctor's Tale, l. 37 etc. (Virginia); Knightes Tale 191, 1308, 1431; Wife of Bath's Prol. 304; Troilus IV, 708:
"Hire ownded here, that sonnyssh was of hewe."
ib. IV. 788: "Hire myghty tresses of hire sonnysshe heres."
See further, Kingis Quair 46, 2 (Lady Joan is described as having "goldin hair"), and Rom. of the R. 539 (Idelnesse); Court of Love 138, 654, 780;

Digitized by Google

Douglas's Palice of Honour I, 10, 22 (ed. Small); Dunbar, Golden Targe 61 and 62 (similar to Parl. of Foules 267, 268) and I, 61, l. 19 (ed. Laing):

"So glitterit as the gold wer thair glorius gilt tressis."

Troy-Book I_8 b: "Lyke golde hir tresses" (Andromache);

Story of Thebes 371 c:

"And gan to rende her gilte tresses clere."

Court of S. a_4 b: "She gan vnlace her tressed sonnysshe here" (Mercy).

Pur le Roy, Halliwell, p. 8:

"Lyke Phebus bemys shone her goldyn tresses" (and cp. p. 6, l. 18).

Falls of Pr. 13 b:

"Her father had a fatal heere that shone (Scylla and Ninus) Brighter then gold" (occurs again in Reason and S. 261 b);

Ib. 60 b: "Her here vntressed like Phebus in his sphere."

Ib. 119 b: "Her golden heere was al to-torne and rent."

Cp. also Ballad of the fair Rosamund (in Percy):

"Her crisped lockes like threads of golde Appeard to each man's sight."

I hope these passages will sufficiently prove that Shakspere had not to go to Italy for this idea. Some of the Italian paintings present to us, it is true, an exact illustration of this "hair like gold-wire;" especially those of the Venetian school, and many of Botticelli's.

272—277. Compare the description of Helen in the Troy-Book, H_3 a, which bears a striking likeness to our passage:

"Hir golden heer, lyke the sonne stremes
Of fresshe Phebus with his bryght[e] bemes,
The goodlyhede of hir fresshely face, (l. 273)
So replenysshed of beaute and grace, (l. 274)
Euen ennewed with quyckuesse of colour,
Of the rose, and the lylye flour,
So egally that nouther was to wyte,
Thorugh none excesse, of moche nor of lyte."

275. ennuyd.] See the passage quoted in the last note; also Life of our Lady a_8 a, where the Virgin is described as "ennewyd" with the "rose of womanly sufferaunce and the lily of chastity"; further Troy-Book C_2 b:

"But euer amonge, to ennewe hir coloure, (Medea's)
The rose was meynt with the lylye floure."

Reason and S. 217 a:

"And hir colour and hir hiwe
Was euere ylych[e] fresh and nywe" (Pallas).

Duchesse 906: "And every day her beaute newed."

Cp. also Calisto and Melibœa (Dodsley-Hazlitt, I, p. 62):

"Her skin of whiteness endarketh the snow,
With rose-colour ennewed;"

further, Skelton, Philip Sparrow 1003, 1032; Garl. of Laurel 985; also Garl. of Laurel 389, Phil. Spar. 775, and Dyce's quotations in the note to the last-named passage. See also the quotation from Skelton in note to next line.

276. L. Lady a_3 b:

"Whos chekes weren, her beaute for to eke,
With lilyes meynte & fressh[e] roses reed."

Skelton, Garland of Laurel 883:

"The enbuddid blossoms of roses rede of hew
With lillis whyte your bewte doth renewe."

Cp. also Doct. Tale 32—34.

279, etc. Compare ll. 267, etc.; and 578, etc. Similarly, Chartier, p. 695 (ed. 1617):

"Tant bien l'ont voulu apprester Dieu & nature à leur vouloir."

283. enlumynd.] It is a poetical idea that the Lady's beauty should "illu-

Digitized by Google

mine" the whole temple round about her. We have it again in Life of our Lady f$_2$ b:

"And as she entrid, a newe sodeyn light
All the place enlumyned enuyron"
(The Virgin in the stable at Bethlehem).

Similarly, King Horn, l. 391, 392:

"Of his faire siȝte
Al þe bur gan liȝte";

Dunbar, Thrissill and Rois 155—157:

"A coistly croun, with clarefeid stonis brycht,
This cumly Quene did on hir heid inclois,
Quhyll all the land illumynit of the licht."

Edmund III, 224: "a child . . . Which sholde enlumyne al this regioun."

Troy-Book C$_1$ c:

"That hir comynge gladeth all the halle" (Medea).

Intelligenza 15, 1:

"La sua sovramirabile bieltate
Fa tutto 'l mondo più lucente e chiaro."

Cp. also Reason and S. 204 b, etc.:

"the beaute of hir face, (Dame Nature)
The whiche abouten al the place
Caste so mervelous a lyght,
So clere, so percynge and so bryght . . .
That I ne myght[e] nat susteue
In hir presence to abyde,
But went[e] bak and stood asyde."

284, etc. Compare with these lines the very similar description of a lady in the Parliament of Love, 60 etc.

291. dalliaunce.] Very much the same as "beauparlaunce" in the Court of S. f$_1$ b, and "parladura" in the Intelligenza 7, 9. In Lydgate the word dalliaunce seems always to refer to speech; cp. Falls of Pr., fol. 53 b and 145 d: "(faire) speche and daliaunce," and I, 18, fol. 34 c:

"He axed was among great audience, (Xenocrates)
Why he was solayne of his daliaunce:
His aunswere was that neuer for scilence
Through little speaking he felt[e] no greuaunce."

Ib. 69 b: "Men with thee wyl haue no daliaunce" (Poverty).
Ib. 119 d: "Under a curtayn of double daliaunce."
Ib. 144 c: "Iohn Bochas sate & heard al her daliaunce."
Ib. 163 d: "Of Rethoriciens whilom that wer old,
The sugred language & vertuous daliaunce."
Ib. 197 a: "Through his subtill false daliaunce,
By craft he fyll into her acquaintaunce."

Albon II, 730, 731:

"Of Christis fayth and (of) his religion
Was theyr [talkynge] and theyr dalyance";

Ib. II, 1612: "theyr langage and theyr dalyance" . . .

In the Pilgrimage of Man, MS. Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 43 b, we have the lines:

"Though sche and I bothe two Hadde I-ffere longe dalyaunce," which are a translation of the French:

"Combien qua moy long parlement
Ait tenu" . . . (Barthole et Petit, fol. 63 b).

Ib. MS. Cott. Vit. C. XIII, fol. 10 a:

(Doctors and prelates) "By speche and by dallyavnce Techyng pylgrymes."

292. The beste tauȝt.] See p. lxix of the Introduction, and ten Brink § 246, end of note. L. 558 is doubtful (The mostë passing ?).

292, 293. well of plesaunce.] well is very common in this usage; cp. Wife

Digitized by Google

of Bath's Prol. 107 ; Sec. Nun's Tale 37, etc. ; so is mirrour (l. 294) ; see again, T. of Glas, ll. 754 and 974 ; Man of Law's Tale 68, etc.

295. secrenes.] This is the 2nd Statute in the Court of Love (l. 309) and always much commended in lovers ; see again l. 900 ; 757, 1005, 1154 ; Troil. III, 93, 429.—Ib. l. 245 :

"That firste vertu is to kepe tonge."

The same maxim occurs also in a poem of Lydgate's in the Harl. MS. 2255, fol. 150 a :

"And Catoñ wrytt in pleyn language,
The first vertu, whoo-so lyst it rede,
Keep your toñge froom al Outrage."

In the Kingis Quair, stanza 97, l. 3, "Secretee" is "chamberere" of Venus.

296. Troy-Book Y, c :

"Of women all lady and maystresse" (Penthesileia).

See again l. 972, and note to line 259. The expression "lady and maystresse" occurs also in the Pilgrimage 59 a ; Isle of Ladies 2003 ; Rom. of the Rose 5881 ; Douglas's Palice of Honour, ed. Small, I, 3, 17, and frequently elsewhere.

297. Life of our Lady a, a :

"If that hem lyst, of hyr they myght[e] lere" (the Virgin Mary).

Lere (O.E. lǽran) meant originally "to teach," as in l. 656 ; here and in l. 1021, it means "to learn." Vice-versâ, "leme" (O.E. leornjan) means also "to teach," for instance, Falls of Pr. 213 c. Similar to our passage is further Doct. Tale 107—110. In the Sec. Nun's Tale 92, Chaucer explains the name of St. Cecilia as meaning

"the way of blynde,
For sche ensample was by way of techyng."

299. grene and white]. This, the redactor of group A changed into in blak In red, as the green colour was considered the token of inconstancy, whilst blue signified faithfulness ; cf. Chaucer's Ballade on Newe-fangelnesse, of which the burden is :

"In stede of blew, thus may ye were al grene."

This is taken from Machault (ed. Tarbé, p. 56). See also Squieres T. II, 298, 299, and Skeat's note ; further, Court of Love 246, etc. ; Anelida 146, 330, and Skeat's note, where he quotes from Lydgate :

"Watchet-blewe of feyned stedfastnes, . . .
Meint with light grene, for change & doublenes."
(Falls of Pr., fol. 143 c.)

In the Rom. of the Rose 573, Ydelnesse is represented as wearing a coat of green colour ; in The Flower and the Leaf, the worshippers of the quickly fading flower are clad in green (l. 329, etc.).

But there was nevertheless no occasion to make the alteration in Group A. Thus, Alceste in Chaucer is "clad in real habit grene" (Legend, Prologue, 214) ; similarly Emelye in the Knightes T., l. 828, corresponding to Boccaccio's Teseide ; cp. canto XII, stanza 65 of that poem :

"ella fosse . . . riccamente
D'un drappo verde di valor supremo Vestita."

Diana's statue is "clothed in gaude greene," Knightes T. 1221, and Rosiall in the Court of L. 816, has a green gown on. In Edmund III, 115, we read :

"The wattry greene shewed in the Reynbowe Off chastite disclosed his clennesse."

Pilgrim. 12 b :

(Grace Dieu) "In a surcote al off whyt,
With a Tyssu gyrt off grene,
And Endlong ful bryht & shene" ;

the French original reads :

(sembloit) "Vestement avoir dor batu
Et cincte estoit dun verd tissu."

Ib., fol. 100 a : "thys skryppe . . . mot be grene, Wych colour—who so looke a-ryht—

Digitized by Google

Doth gret comfort to the syht,
Sharpeth the Eye, yt ys no dred."

Compare also Barclay, as quoted in Dyce's Skelton, p. xiv:

"Mine habite blacke accordeth not with grene,
Blacke betokeneth death as it is dayly sene;
The grene is pleasour, freshe lust and iolite;
These two in nature hath great diuersitie."

In the Castle of Perseverance, Truth is represented as wearing "a sad-coloured green"; see Skeat's note to Piers Plowman, C-text XXI, 120 (p. 406).

Kindermann's Teutscher Wolredner (Appendix, p. 19) has: "Grün gibt Freude / Ehre / Liebe und Hoffnung zu=erkennen." Green was, according to the astrology of that time, Venus's colour; see Morley, Eng. Writers, 2nd ed., V, 139; and cp. Love's Labour's Lost I, 2, 90: "Green, indeed, is the colour of lovers."

301. stones and perre.] Occurs again in l. 310. Lydgate has it often, for instance, Falls of Pr. 109 b; 128 c; 159 a; 170 d; 191 c; 198 c; "perre and stones" occurs in Falls of Pr. 183 c.

301, etc. Cp. Assembly of Ladies 257 c:

"Her gowne wel was embroudred certainly
With stones after her owne deuise,
In her purfil her worde by and by Bien & loyalement, as I coude deuise."

311. This is to sein.] Very frequent in Lydgate; it occurs again in ll. 426, 512, 715, 1124. Also in Chaucer, Squ. T. II, 186, 293; Prior. T. 48; Melibe, p. 146, 158, 159, 161, 163, 168; Pers. T., p. 266, 286, 289, etc.

þis benigne.] Occurs again, without a noun, in l. 1402. Cp. also Kingis Quair 42, 3: "that verray womanly."

312. For the motto see Flower and Leaf 548—550:

"For knightes ever should be persevering,
To seeke honour without feintise or slouth,
Fro wele to better in all manner thing."

Edmund I, 361: "Fro good in vertu to bettre he dide encresse."
Pilgrim. 291 b: "Fro good to bet alway profyte."

Lydgate seems to have some difficulty in explaining the motto; at any rate, he does so very awkwardly, which might point to its being the actual family-motto of some fair lady. Similar mottoes with comparatives are not rare; for instance: "Altiora peto," or "Excelsior." Numerous French mottoes are found in the Assembly of Ladies, but none like ours. Perhaps a negative counterpart to our present expression may serve to illustrate it further, Falls of Pr. 138 a:

"Fro better to worse she can so wel transmue [Fortune]
The state of them that wyll no vertue sue."

320. This line occurs word for word in the Troy-Book B, c. See also Compl. unto Pite 56:

"Theffect of which seith thus, in wordes fewe."

321. Similar in tone to this prayer is the one in ll. 701, etc.; 1341, etc.; Knightes T. 1363, etc.; the proem to Book III in Troilus; Kingis Quair, stanza 52, 99 etc.; Chapter XXX of the Pastime of Pleasure.

322, 323. With respect to this all-dominating power of Venus, Lydgate proposes the following etymology (Reason and S., fol. 265 a):

"Venus ys sayde of venquyssshing,
For she venquyssheth euery thing."

If this etymology should not be acceptable, there is another one, deriving Venus from venor (to hunt), Pilgrim. 128 a, and yet another, deriving Venus from venom (Reason and S. 248 b)!—See also note to l. 619.

322. Similar expressions, Leg. of Dido 121:

"Fortune that hath the world in governaunce;"

Doct. Tale 73: "That lordes doughtres han in governaunce."

Digitized by Google

Court of L. 1371: "The God of Love hath erth in governaunce."
Generydes (ed. Wright), 2049, 2050:
"The formest ward . . . . The kyng of Turkey had in gouernaunce."
Compl. of Mars 110: "she that hath thyn herte in governaunce."
Reason and S. 229 b: "Which hath loue in gouernaunce" (Venus).
There was, therefore, no need of Caxton's alteration.

323. Cp. Reason and S., fol. 222 b:
"And thorgh hir myght, which ys dyvyne,
She the proude kañ enclyne
To lownesse and humilyte" (Venus).

hauteyn.] The word is curiously corrupted in our best MSS., although it is not of rare occurrence; for instance, Pard. Prol. 44; Legend of good W. 1120; Rom. of the Rose 6104; Wyntoun, Cronykil V, 12, 271; De duob. Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 69 b):
"That whilom was in rychesse so hauteyñ" (rhyming with paine).
Magnus Cato: "Refreyne thy self, be nat hawteyne ne to hye" (Caxton reads haute, which we have also Falls of Pr. 138 b).
Reason and S. 275 a:
"For ther is nouther halt nor lame
So hawteyñ nor so surquedous . . .
But they must of diwe ryght . . .
Stonde vnder his obeyssaunce" (Cupid's).

325. Causer.] MS. G reads, in opposition to all other texts, Cause, which no doubt is wrong. We read also in the Compleynt of Mars, l. 46:
"The faire Venus, causer of plesaunce."

328. blissful.] Common epithet for Venus; see further on l. 1100; Knight's Tale 1357; Parl. of F. 113; Troilus II, 234, 680; III, Proem 1; III, 656, 663; IV, 1633; Kingis Quair 76, 6; 101, 6; Court of L. 580.

persant.] This does not seem to be a Chaucerian word; see Skeat, Why "The Romaunt of the Rose" is not Chaucer's, p. 446. It is common in Lydgate: in the T. of Glas it occurs again in ll. 756, 1341; we have it several times in the Black Knight (ll. 28, 358, 591, 613), and elsewhere; also in the Compleynt 574 (-and, I believe, does not here denote the northern participle, but is written for ant, aunt). The word occurs further in the Rom. of the Rose, ll. 2809 and 4179; Court of Love 849; Fairy Queen I, 10, 47, 5 etc. Cp. also Kingis Quair 103, l. 1.

328—331. With these lines compare ll. 253, 254, and 1355—1358.

331. woful.] MS. L and Prints read woful hertes, which is too much for the metre. Nor does grammar require it; cp. Man of Law's Tale 752:
"to whom alle woful cryen,"
and Chorl and Bird 249:
"Comfortith sorowful, and makith heuy hertis light."—
"voide" is similarly construed in L. Lady l. a:
"To voyde hem out of al derknesse."

Stanza 3 a, 3. Wekkede tongis.] See note to l. 153.
" 3 b. See note to l. 148.
" 3 c. fried in his owne grease.] Occurs in the Wife of Bath's Prologue, l. 487; see Hazlitt, English Proverbs, p. 258.
3 d. For Mars, Venus, and Vulcan, see ll. 126—128, and note; for Adonis, l. 64, and Black Knight 644.

341. The meaning of some of the lines in the Lady's complaint is not clear; the author makes her express her wishes in a very vague way.

342. Mi worship sauf.] Similarly Kingis Quair 143, 5: "Hir worschip sauf" = her honour being kept safe; and see ib. 142, 7, and Duchesse 1271. Cp. also Anelida 267: "My honour save"; the same expression occurs in Troil. II, 480; III, 110; and see T. of Glas 1117. In the Falls of Pr. 73 d we read:
"Iniury done or any maner wrong,
Agayn my worship or mine honestie" (Lucrece).

Digitized by Google

In Magnus Cato the expression "salvo tamen ante pudore" is paraphrased by:

"Ay sauyng thy worship and honeste."

346. Compare Rom. of the Rose 2424:

"And I abyde al sole in wo,
Departed from myn owne thought,
And with myne eyen se ryght nought."

348. Story of Thebes 363 b: "Atwene two hanging in a balance."
Edmund III, 477: "Thus atween tweyne hangyng in ballance."
Cp. also further on T. of Glas, l. 641.

350, 351. Compare Parl. of F. 90, 91:

"For bothe I hadde thing which that I nolde,
And eek I ne hadde that thing that I wolde."
Court of L. 988: "But that I like, that may I not come by;
Of that I playn, that have I habondaunce."

See also Compl. unto Pite 99, etc., and poem XXI in Skeat, Chaucer's Minor Poems, l. 47:

"For al that thing which I desyre I mis,
And al that ever I wolde nat, I-wis,
That fynde I redy to me evermore;"

further Boethius, 3 d prose of book III: "Nonne quia vel aberat, quod abesse non velles; vel adorat, quod adesse noluisses?"

356 and 357. heat and cold.] These lovers are constantly in extremes of temperature; see Troil. I, 420; II, 698; Complcynt 523, etc.

358. access = an attack of fever; cp. Troy-Book Aa$_6$ d; Falls of Pr. 172 d; 217 a; L. Lady g$_1$ a. Exceedingly common with these lovers; see Troil. II, 1315, 1543, 1578; Kingis Quair 67, 5; 144, 5; Skelton, Garland of Laurel 315; Cuckoo and Night. 39; Black Knight 136; De duobus Merc. fol. 62 b; Falls of Pr. 124 a:

"With loues axcesse now wer thei whote now cold."

In the Play of the Sacrament, l. 611, we have the word as a monosyllable axs, rhyming with laxe (see the Transactions of the Phil. Soc. 1860/61, Appendix):

"Who hat[h] y^e canker y^e collyke or y^e laxe,
The tercyan y^e quartane or y^e brynny[n]g axs."

sweltre and swete.] Rom. of the Ro. 2480:

"Though thou for love swelte and swete."

Similarly Miller's Tale 517.

362. Cp. Troil. II, 538, 539:

"And wel the hootter ben the gledis rede
That men hem wren with asshen pale and dede."
De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 62 a):
"I am I-hurt, but closed is my wond;
My dethes spere stykkyth in my brest;
My bollyng festryth that it may nat sond,
And yit no cicatrice shewith at the lest."
Flour of C. 26: "And though your lyfe be medled w^t greuaunce,
And at your herte closet be your wounde."
Soliman and Perseda (Dodsley-Hazlitt V, 296):
"And I must die by closure of my wound."

385. This line occurs again word for word further on in our T. of Glas, as l. 1295. Similar to it is line 639 of the Court of Love:

"Withoute offence of mutabilite."

388. According to Chaucer and Lydgate, Saturn is Aphrodite's father; see the Knightes Tale 1595, where Saturn addresses Venus "my deere doughter Venus"; further on, l. 1619, Saturn calls himself Venus's ayel. Lydgate's Reason and Sensuality (fol. 219 b etc., and 221 b etc.) tells the same story concerning Venus's birth, as Hesiod's Theogony, with the difference that the part of Uranus is given to Saturn, and that of Saturn to Jupiter. Comp. especially fol. 222 a:

"For writyng of poetis halt

Digitized by Google

That she roos of the foom most salt,
Which ryseth in the wawes felle,
That fynaly, as clerkes telle,
The See was moder to Venus,
And hir fader Saturnus."

Lydgate may have taken this from his favourite Fulgentius (ed. Muncker, p. 70). Cp. also Rom. of the Rose 5956—5959. Chaucer, however, calls Venus also "doughter to Dyon" (Troilus III, 1758), a version well-known from the Iliad. —The astrological influence of Saturn is the most baneful of all planets; see Troil. III, 667; Knightes T. 229, 470, and particularly 1595 etc.; Dunbar, Golden Targe 114; Kingis Quair 122:

"Or I sall, with my fader old Saturne,
And with al hale oure hevinly alliance (see T. of Glas, l. 1231)
Oure glad aspectis from thame writh and turne."

Lyndsay's Dream, 474:

"Tyll Sáturnús, quhilk trublis all the hewin
With heuy cheir, and cullour paill as leid" . . .

394. I suppose "a dropping mone" means a wet or misty moon, as portending rainy weather. Cp. Falls of Pr. 67 b:

"Of Diana the transmutacion,
Now bright, now pale, now clere, now dreping."

Some texts of the Temple of Glas also read drepynge, which, of course, is O.E. strong drêopan, whilst dropping comes from O.E. weak dropian.

395, 396. Cp. Troilus III, 1011—1015; further Guy of Warwick 11:

"The sonne is hatter affter sharpe schours . . . .
And affter mystys Phebus schyneth bright."

Troy-Book I, b: "For after stormes Phebus bryghter is."

Albon II, 1918: "as passed is the daungere
Of stormy weders, Phebus is most clere."

Piers Plowman, C-text XXI, 456, 457:

"After sharpest shoures . . . most sheene is þe sonne;
Ys no weder warmer þan after watery cloudes."

Spenser, A Hymn in honour of Love, ll. 277, 278:

"As after stormes, when clouds begin to clear,
The sun more bright and glorious doth appear."

Cp. also Boethius, De cons. phil., 2nd metre of book III.

397. "Joy cometh after whan the sorow is past."
Hawes, Pastime of Pl. (ed. Wright, p. 148).

398, 399. Rom. of the R. 2119:

"To worshipe no wight by aventure
May come, but if he peyne endure."

400 and 401. Similar sentiments in stanzas 104, 105.

401. That.] The same construction in l. 362, and Falls of Pr. 71 d:

"For more contrarye was their falling lowe
That they tofore had of no mischief knowe."

401. (a)waped and amate], frequent expression; see Black Knight 168; S. of Thebes, fol. 359 d; Troy-Book A_2 c, O_4 b, O_6 a, U_3 a, X_3 d; Pilgrim. 22 a, 298 b. awhaped alone occurs Troy-Book O_3 a; Falls of Pr. 39 b; Anelida 215; Legend, Prol. 132; Thisbe 109; Philomela 94; Gower and Spenser also have it. L and b read wrapped; cp. Miss Toulmin Smith, Gorboduc, p. 68.

403, 404. Very much the same is expressed in l. 1251. Cp. also Troil. I, 638:

"For how myght evere swetenesse han ben knowe
To hym that nevere tasted bitternesse?"

Court of S. a_2 a: "as tasted bytternesse
All swete thynge maketh be more precyous."

De duobus Merc. (Hh. IV. 12, fol. 60 a):

"But as to hem that hath I-tasted galle,
More agreable is the hony soote."

Digitized by Google

Court of S. a, b: "And ryght as swete hath his apryce by soure."
Surrey (Aldine Poets, p. 30): "by sour how sweet is felt the more."
Dunbar, ed. Laing, I, 89, l. 81:

"And how nane deservis to haif sweitness,
That nevir taistit bitterness."

The sentiment is reversed in the Rom. of the Rose 4138.

405. Grisilde.] See l. 75.

407. Penelope.] See l. 67.

dulle as an intransitive verb occurs Troy-Book I_1 b, M_1 b; Falls of Pr. 35 d, 105 b, 136 b, 159 d; Troilus IV, 1461; Rom. of the R. 4795. MSS. G and S read dwelle; similarly we have in MS. Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 88 b (Pilgrimage of Man):

"And after that sche lyste not dwelle,
But gan hir hanker vp to pulle."

409. Dorigene.] This is taken from the Frankeleynes Tale. Compare particularly Dorigene's Complaint, ll. 619—718. She is also mentioned in Flour of C. 192:

"Stedfast of herte, as was Dorigene."

411. Troil. I, 952: "And also joye is next the fyn of sorwe."

414. Pilgrim., fol. 101 a:

"For seyntys wych that suffrede so,
I wot ryht wel that they be go
To paradys, & Entryd in."

Isle of Ladies 941, 942:

"And saied he trowed her compleint Should after cause her be corseint."

419. þe maner and þe guyse.] Common formula; see, for instance, Troil. II, 916; Reason and S. 273 a, 281 a, etc.

421. The word emprise usually means "undertaking"; but it seems also to have the meaning "lore, teaching (cp. apprise), governance"; for instance:

"To folwe themprises of my professioun."
Testament, Halliwell, p. 257.

"For whilom he learned his emprise
Of his Maister, Amphiorax the wise." S. of Thebes 376 a.

Cupid's emprise comes often in the Rom. of the R., see ll. 1972, 2147, 2286, 4908; cp. further, Edmund II, 124, and Reason and S. 286 b:

"Who that ys kaught in his seruise,
And y-bounde to his emprise" (Love's).

424. Again a stock-line of our monk's, repeated in l. 879. It occurs also in the Black Knight, l. 554; Troy-Book Bb_1 d; L. Lady f_1 a. Similarly, Pilgrim. 183 b:

"Gruchchyng nor rebellioun,
Nor no contradiccioun."

431. in parti and in al], Formula, occurring again l. 1155; also in the Troy-Book H_5 a, N_4 c, X_5 c, Y_5 c; L. Lady c_6 b; Falls of Pr. 184 a; Albon I, 228.

436. See l. 838. Cp. also Reason and S., fol. 223 b:

(Venus) "hild also in hir ryght honde
Rede as a kole A firy bronde, Castyng sparklys fer a-broode," where, in the rubric, the following wise remark stands: "hoc fingunt poete propter ardorem libidinis." This passage is immediately followed by an interesting allusion to the Greek fire.

445. þe arow of gold.] See l. 112.

450. to eschew vice.] See l. 1181. The sentiment that true love is able to make the lover "eschew every sin and vice," is frequently met with in poems of this period; cp. Troilus I, 252; III, 1751—1757, and III, proem 24:

"Algates hom that ye wol sette a fyre, Thei dreden shame, and vices thei resigne."

Digitized by Google

See further Cuckoo and Nightingale 14, 151 etc., 191 etc.; Court of Love 598 etc., 1066—1078; Al. Chartier, Le Parlement d'Amour, ed. Tourangeau, p. 697:

"Car luy, qui n'a comparaison, Ne peut souffrir en son serf vice."

451. spice.] Cp. Falls of Pr. 115 b:

"And spoyled he was, shortly to specifye,
With al the spises of pride and lecherye."

Reason and S. 299 a:

(Idelnesse) "bryngeth in al maner spices
Of vnthryfte and al vyces." . . .

Cp. also Henry VIII., II, 3, 26:

"For all this spice of your hypocrisy," where Al. Schmidt rightly explains spice by taste, tincture. We have similar'y "spice of heresy" in Calisto and Melibœa, Dodsley-Hazlitt I, 58. Cp. also "a spyced conscience," in Chauc.'s Prol. to the Cant. Tales, l. 526, and Skeat's note.

455. crop and root.] Common formula of Lydgate's. See, further on, l. 1210; and Troy-Book A_2 b, A_4 d, G_2 c, G_4 c, H_4 d, I_3 c, I_4 d, O_3 a, Z_6 a, Aa_4 c, Dd_1 c; L. Lady b_6 a; Assem. of Gods b_7 b; S. of Thebes, fol. 360 d; Falls of Pr., fol. 8*a*, 30*a*, 75*a*, 116*d*, 199*a* (ground, chief, crop & roote); Leg. of Margaret 322; Reason and S., fol. 203 b, 205 b (where we hear that the "mevyng of the speres nyne" is

"both crop and roote
Of musyk and of songis soote"), 239 b, 289 b.

Cp. further, Compleynt 397; Troil. II, 348; V, 1245; Generydes, ed. Wright, l. 4940; Letter of Cupid, stanza 3 etc.

We have almost certainly to read trouthē.

460. orisoun.] Such addresses to heathen gods are often called orisouns in the style of this period (see also l. 696). The word occurs, for instance, in the same usage, in the Knightes T. 1403; Kingis Quair 53, 1 (in both cases addressed to Venus). In the Troy-Book S_2 b, "denoute orysons" are offered by the priests for Hector, etc.

462. of goode ȝit þe best.] Cp. the line

"For of al goode she is the beste lyvynge," which forms the burden of the ballad at the end of Cuckoo and Nightingale.

463, etc. The story is told in the Troy-Book, Chapter XII (Book II), and again in Reason and S.; see particularly fol. 228*a*—230*a*. Similar to our passage are the words of Mercury to Paris (Troy-Book G_3 d), where he tells him that the three goddesses

"Were at a feste, as I the tell[e] shall,
With all the goddes aboue celestyall, (cp. l. 466)
That Iubyter helde at his owne borde."

The story is again alluded to in the Assem. of Gods b_3 a.

Line 466 occurs also nearly word for word in Troy-Book N_4 c:

"To the goddes aboue celestyall."

Cp. also Reason and S., fol. 209 b:

"Lych to the goddys immortall,
That be above celestiall."

In Reason and S. 224 a, Venus holds the apple in her hand, as an attribute, and emblem of her victory.

472. See the similar vow of Anelida, at the end of Chaucer's poem, and that of Alcyone, Duchesse 114. In the Life of our Lady h_3 a we read:

"And with encence cast in the sencere
He dyd worshyp vnto the aultere" (Octavian).

Knightes T. 1393:

"Thy temple wol I worschipe evermo,
And on thin auter, wher I ryde or go,
I wol do sacrifice, and fyres beete."

See also ib. 1417, etc.; Court of Love 324, and T. of Glas 537, etc.

Digitized by Google

486. To bring to rest, to set in (at) rest, are common expressions; see, for instance, further on ll. 1095, 1294; Troil. II, 760; III, 917, etc.

490. Compare Lydgate's poem Wulfric, l. 8 (Halliwell, p. 72).

494, 495. Troil. III, 1224:

"laude and reverence
Be to thy bounte and thyn excellence!"

Stanza 25 a, 7. serpent Ielosye.] See l. 148.

Stanza 25 b, 7. Cp. Court of L. 582:

"And ponysshe, Lady, grevously, we praye,
The false untrew, with counterfete plesaunce."

For Malebouche, see note to l. 153.

Stanza 25 c, 6, 7. Cp. Squieres Tale II, 301—303; further Parl. of F. 346: "the scorning lay"; ib. 345: "the Iangling pye"; 347: "The false lapwing"; 343: "The oule eek, that of dethe the bode bringeth"; cp. Skeat's notes. "As the howle malicious" occurs in Secreta Secretorum, fol. 150 b (Burgh's part); see further, Troilus V, 319, 382. We also recall poems like The Owle and Nightingale, and Holland's Howlat. For the jay, see Man of Law's Tale 676: "thou janglest as a jay"; Chan. Yem. Tale 386: "chiteren, as doon these jayes"; Garland of Laurel 1262: "iangelyng iays." See further a poem in MS. Gg. 4. 27, fol. 9 a:

"ȝit in þe wode þere was discord
þourgh rusti chateryng of þe Iay;
Of musik he coude non acord.
Ek pyis vnplesaunt to myn pay,
þey iangeledyn & made gret disray."

Cp. further Pilgrim. 218 b:

"And Iangleth euere lyk a Iay,
A bryd that callyd ys Agaas."

For the pie, cp. further Reeves Tale 30: "proud and pert as is a pye"; March. Tale 604: "ful of jargoun, as a flekked pye." The pie is also enumerated among the disagreeable birds by Lyndsay, Papyngo 647.

496. This = This' = This is; occurs again l. 1037, where is is written in full in the MS. See Parl. of F. 411 (and Skeat's note) and 650; the contraction occurs also in Frank. Tale 161, 862; Sec. Nun's Tale 366; Troilus II, 363; IV, 1165, 1246.

505. hawethorn.] Venus is usually represented with a chaplet of roses; see Knightes T. 1102:

"And on hire heed, ful semely for to see,
A rose garland fresch and wel smel'yng."

Again, Fame 184:

"And also on hir heed, parde,
Hir rose-garlond whyte and reed."

Reason and S. 223 b:

"But she had of roses rede
In stede therof a chapelet,
As compas rounde ful freshly set."

So also Troy-Book K₁ b:

"And on hir hede she hath a chapelet
Of roses rede, full pleasauntly yset."

Troy-Book G₃ b we are told that the red roses mean:

"hertely thoughtes glade
Of yonge folkes, that be amerous."

Kingis Quair 97, 6 and 7:

"And on hir hede, of rede rosis full suete,
A chapellet sche had, faire, fresch, and mete."

Peele also, Arraignment of Paris I, 1, speaks of Venus's "wreath of roses."

In explanation of the monk here choosing hawthorn for Venus's garland, rather than roses, I may mention that the May-queen used to be crowned with hawthorn; it was also used in Greek wedding-processions, and the altar of

Digitized by Google

Hymen was strewn with it.—Hawthorn is mentioned in the Knightes Tale 650; Black Knight 71; Court of L. 1354, 1433; Rom. of the Rose 4002; Flower and Leaf 272; Kingis Quair 31, 5 ("hawthorn hegis knet"), and, similarly, Dunbar, ed. Laing, I, 61, l. 4; these passages form, however, no illustration to our line.

506. Cp. Troy-Book B_6 d:

"That to beholde a Ioye it was to sene."

510. MSS. G and S introduce here "Margarete" as the name of the Lady; their reading is certainly not the original one, as the two other MSS. of their group, F and B, preserve the old reading. The name Margarete was, no doubt, introduced in connection with the glorification of the daisy by Chaucer. See above, l. 70.

514 etc.] Cp. Flower and Leaf, ll. 551 etc.

524. Knightes Tale 1407: "But atte laste the statue of Venus schook."

525. was in peas = was silent. Similarly Troy-Book B_4 b:

"And than anone as Iason was in pes."

Pilgrimage, 83 b: "She stynte a whyle & was in pes."

Isle of Ladies 1008: "every wight there should be stille,
And in pees."

526. "femynyne of drede" occurs also in L. Lady a_7 a.

533, 534. Troy-Book Aa_1 c:

"Great was the prease that in the weye Gan Croude and shoue to beholde and sene."

536. shortli in a clause.] Frequent stop-gap; see Troy-Book Y_2 b; Pilgrimage 149 a; Rom. of the Rose 3725 etc.

536, etc. In the Troy-Book also, fol. H_4 a, Venus is honoured

"With gyftes bryngynge, and with pylgrymage,
With great offrynge, and with sacryfyse,
As vsed was in theyr paynem wyse."

Helen, Troy-Book H_3 a, makes

"hir oblacion . . . .
With many iewell, and many ryche stone."

537. Cp. Troy-Book X_4 b:

"To telle[n] all the rytes and the gyse."

Court of Love 244:

"They . . . . did here sacrifice
Unto the god and goddesse in here guyse."

539. Story of Thebes, fol. 377 d:

"Nor how the women rounde aboute stood,
Some with milke, and some also with blood . . .
When the asshes fully were made cold."

540. floures.] Fulgentius, ed. Muncker, p. 71: "Huic [Veneri] etiam rosas in tutelam adjiciunt. Rosæ enim & rubent & pungunt, ut etiam libido."

soft as silk.] Occurs also in Lyndsay's Ane Satyre, l. 341.

541. sparrows and doves.] Troy-Book K_4 b:

"And enuyron, as Poetes telle,
By dowues whyte flyenge and eke sparowes."

Parl. of F. 351: "The sparow, Venus sone;" see Skeat's note, who quotes Lyly's well-known song on Cupid in Alexander and Campaspe. See also Peele, Arr. of Paris I, 1:

"Fair Venus she hath let her sparrows fly,
To tend on her and make her melody;
Her turtles and her swans unyoked be,
And flicker near her side for company."

Further, see Tempest IV, 100, and Sappho's famous song on the "ποικιλόθρονος Ἀφροδίτη." See further, Troy-Book G_3 b:

"Aboute hir hede hadde douues whyte (Venus)
With loke benyngne, and eyen debonayre;"

Digitized by Google

we are also told that these doves mean

"very Innocence
Of them in loue that but trouthe mene."

Fulgentius is again given as the source; he, however, explains this symbol very differently, see Muncker's edition, p. 71: "In hujus etiam tutelam columbas ponunt, illa videlicet causa, quod hujus generis aves sint in coitu fervidæ."

Knightes Tale 1104:

"Above hire heed hire dowves flikeryng."

Parl. of F. 237: "And on the temple, of doves whyte and faire Saw I sittinge many a hundred paire."

Past. of Pleasure, Chapter XXXI (ed. Wright, p. 155):

"A turtle I offred, for to magnefy Dame Venus hye estate, to glorify."

Venus's doves are also mentioned in Hous of F. 137.

Cp. further Reason and S. 224 a:

"Ther was gret novmbre of dowes white, Rounde about hyr hede fleyng" . . . .

Assembly of Gods e_2 b says of "Doctrine:"

"Ouer her hede houyd [Wynken honyd] a culuer fayre & whyte."

544. desire, viz., desire to be released from.

545. shortli to conclude, another stop-gap; see Knightes Tale 1037; Story of Thebes, fol. 356 a; 366 d, etc.

552. This solitary walk is in accordance with the 6th Statute of the Court of Love (see that poem, l. 338). Cp. also Black Knight, l. 587.

554, etc. Compare with this the description of the "Black Knight" (l. 155, etc.); with line 554 in particular, cp. also Troy-Book Dd_3 c:

"And if I shall shortly hym descryue" (Chaucer).

558. Have we to read: The mostë passing? See line 292.

559. "Man is here used emphatically," says Prof. Skeat, in his Note to a similar passage in the Leg. of Dido (l. 251):

"For that me thinketh he is so wel y-wroght,
And eek so lykly for to be a man" (Æneas).

Cp. also Falls of Pr. 180 c:

"Them to chastise toke on hym like a man."

Halliwell, M. P., p. 4:

"How lyke a man he to the Kyng is gone" (the Lord-Mayor of London);

cp. ib. p. 207, l. 2: "But lyk a man upon that tour to abyde";

and Generydes, ed. Wright, ll. 2243, 2244:

"Generides ayenward lik a mañ
With-stode his stroke, and smote hym̃ so ageyn̄."

532. Ewrous.] Exactly corresponding to French heureux. The word occurs also in Troy-Book P_3 b:

"For no wyght may be aye victoryous
In peas or werre, nor ylyche Eurous;"

Reason and S., fol. 216 b, and 275 b, "ewrous and fortunat;" "ewrous and happy," fol. 272 b; "ewrous," fol. 274 a; Edmund I, 1057 and II, 177; Falls of Pr. 5 a: "Most ewrous, most mightie of renoume."

Ib. 121 d: "The same day not happy, nor Eurous."

Pilgrimage 62 a: "Happy also & ryht Ewrous;" similarly "happy And Ewrous," ib. 260 b.

Magnus Cato: "As to be eurous, mighty, stronge, and rude" (eurous stands in Caxton's print; MS. Hh. IV. 12 has virous instead). We have the word also twice in the English translation of Alain Chartier's Curial, ed. Furnivall, 5/15, and 15/21 (again the same phrase "ewrous and happy"). The corresponding noun (e)ure (= augurium) is in common use; so is another ure = Lat. opera, O.F. uevre (still in Mod.-Engl. inure); an adjective urous is also derived from this second ure: Story of Thebes 363 b (or rather, 362 b):

"Urous in armes, and manly in werking."

Digitized by Google

567. The poet's complaint in the Flour of Curtesie, l. 53, begins similarly: "alas what may this be."

568. Chorl and B. 89: "Now am I thral and sume tyme I was free." Clerkes Tale I, 91: "Ther I was fre, I mot ben in servage."

572. For the omission of the article, see l. 132.

574. of nwe.] Occurs again in l. 615; see note to l. 1319.

575. enbraced.] The word may here also have the meaning of French embraser, as it no doubt has in l. 846. Cp. Pilgrimage, fol. 281 a:

"And with the flawme he kan enbrace [Satan] Folkys hertys,"

a translation of the French line:

"Fait tous fumer et embraser" (Barthole and Petit, fol. 76 c).

Pilgr. of the Soul, fol. 50 b: [they shall ben . . .] "al enbracyd with brennyng brondes;" French original:

"Et de feu tous les embrasez" (ib. fol. 115 d).

578, etc. See l. 279, etc.; 267, etc.

591 etc. Cp. Rom. of the Rose 3529 etc.

596. yold.] Reminds one of expressions like "serf rendu" in the French love-poetry.

604. pantire.] See for this word, Skeat's note to the Leg. of Good W., Prologue 130, and his Etym. Dict. (under painter). The word occurs also in Rom. of the Rose 1621; Remedie of Love (1561), fol. 323 c; Chorl and Bird, ll. 77, 174, 268; Troy-Book G_2 a; Falls of Pr. 66 c; Reason and S. 291 b; Pilgrimage, fol. 227 a; ib. fol. 208 a: (Lyk a byrd . . . wych . . . .)

"for dred begynneth quake,
Whan she ys in the panter take,
Or engluyd with bryd lym."

[French original: "Tant com loisel va costoyant,
Et ca et la le col tournant,
Souuant aduient quau las est pris," etc.]

606, etc. Troilus I, 415: "thus possed to and fro,
Al stereles withinne a boot am I
Amyd the see, betwexen windes two,
That in contrarie standen ever mo."

Leg. of Phyllis 27: "and posseth him now up now doun."

Falls of Pr. 69 d: "They be so possed with windes in thy barge."

"Forpossyd" occurs in Compleynt 530; Troy-Book Q_1 a; Falls of Pr. 3 b; L. Lady e_1 b: "As in balaunce for-possyd vp and doun."

Troy-Book I_2 b: "Now vp now downe, forcast and ouer throwe Theyr shyppes were with tempest to and fro."

Edmund II, 100: "With sondry tempestis forpossid to and fro."

609. Perhaps the reading sturdy in F. B. G. S, for a sondri, is right; cf. Troy-Book I_2 b: "The see gan swelle with many sturdy wawe;"
Pilgr., fol. 297 a: "Boyllyng with many sturdy wawe."
Ib., Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 54 a: "Amonge the sturdy wawys alle."
And see the 2nd quotation from the Troy-Book in note to l. 53.

614. ouershake.] Troy-Book H_6 d:

"Wherfore I rede to let ouershake
All heuynesse."

614, etc. This is a difficult passage to construe. The anacoluthon seems to begin with "for who," in l. 615, unless we may be allowed to assume that the expression "for who is hurt of newe" may mean "being one who is newly hurt," parallel to "for astoneid," etc. (see note to l. 632). your, in l. 620, is very peculiar. Can it mean "Venus's war" = love? It is more likely that the monk thought that he—or his knight—had apostrophized Cupid, so that your refers to Cupid: "no one, warring with you (Cupid), may vaunt himself to win a prize, except by meekness." For the comparison of love to war, cp. the "Militat omnis amans" of Ovid, Amores I, 9.

Digitized by Google

615. of nwe.] See the notes to ll. 574 and 1319.

618. kouþe.] We should expect the reverse construction of couth: the harms of Cupid are known to him, not he to them. Thus couth comes to have the meaning of "acquainted with." An instructive instance of this transition is Liflade of St. Iuliana, ed. Cockayne, p. 22: "ȝef þu cueowe ant were cuð wiþ þe king."

619, etc. For the might of Cupid, which neither gods nor men can withstand, see especially Reason and S. 235 b, etc., where the instance of Phœbus and Daphne is quoted at length (see Temple of Glas, ll. 111—116); and again, folio 275 b, etc. Cp. further, Troilus III, 1695 etc.; Cuckoo and Night. 1—20; Court of Love 92 etc.; Rom. of the Rose 878 etc., 4761 etc. See also note to l. 322. With l. 620 cp. Isle of Ladies 2112:

"Against which prince may be no wer."

622. Troilus III, proem, l. 38:

"That who-so stryveth with yow (Venus) hath the worse."

Ib. I, 603: "Love, ayeins the which who-so defendeth Him-selven most, him alderlest availleth."

Cp. also ib. III, 940; V, 166.

631. Drede and Daunger, Personifications from the Rom. de la R., see note to l. 156. For "Drede" see Rom. of the Rose 3958, etc.; Court of Love 1034; Troilus II, 810. In the Bowge of Court, l. 77, Skelton introduces himself as "Drede."

632. for vnknowe.] This construction of for with the p.p. occurs also in l. 934 and 1366, and is in general of frequent occurrence. We even have "for pure ashamed," Troil. II, 656; for pure wood, Rom. of the R., 276; for verry wery, Black Knight 647; for very glad, Generydes 1255.

634. These exaggerations are as common as they are absurd; see Introduction, Chapter XI, p. cxxxix. Cp. further on, l. 724; Black Knight 512:

"And thus I am for my trouthe, alas!
Mordred and slayn with wordis sharp and kene."

Menelaus, Troy-Book I, c, falls into "a swowne . . . .
Almoste murdred with his owne thought."

In the Court of S. a, a, man is also represented as being doomed to "dye at the lest." For similar exaggerations see Troilus II. 1736; Anelida 291; Squieres Tale II, 128; Frankeleynes Tale 97, 112, 352, 613; Knightes Tale 260, 474, 709; Merciless Beaute, 1; Isle of Ladies, 520; Compleynt 437. The least thing that these unlucky lovers do, is to swoon constantly; once, twice, three times, according to the intensity of their feeling; in Generydes, ed. Wright 4099, Clarionas swoons fifteen times running.

637. wisse.] To teach, = O.E. wissian. Common in Lydgate. See Troy-Book N, c (to guye and to wysse); S, b (wysshe me or teche); Assembly of Gods d, a: "axed yf ony wyght Conde wysshe hym the wey to the lord of lyght."

Reason and S. 250 a; L. Lady K, a (wysse: blysse: mysse); ib. K, b:

"And like a prophete to wisshen vs and rede";

similar expression in Falls of Pr. 9 c; 42 d. See also Troil. I, 622; Freres Tale 117; Morte Arthure, ed. Brock, 9, 671, 813.

641. Cp. Black Knight 563: "That lye now here betwexe hope and drede;" Troilus V, 1207: "Betwixen hope and drede his herte lay."

643, 644. A similar allegorical battle between Hope and Drede (or Daunger and Dispeyr) is found in the Court of Love 1036—1057; see also Black Knight 12, 13. Compare further the conflict in Medea's breast, between "Love and Shame," in the Troy-Book; particularly folio C, c:

"For whan that loue of manhode wolde speke . . .
Cometh shame anon, and vtterly sayth nay."

Very similar to our passage is also Falls of Pr. 217 a.

648. Falls of Pr. 178 d: "Nowe liest thou bound, fettred in prison."

650. Cf. Knightes T. 368, 379.

Digitized by Google

651. were.] = doubt; occurs several times in Chaucer, very frequently in Lydgate, and in the northern poets. See Duchesse 1295; Hous of F. 979; Legend 2686. The word occurs again in the T. of Glas, l. 906, and in the Compleynt 261; cp. further Troy-Book $U_2 d$:

"And thus he stode in a double weer."

Similarly Falls of Pr. 67 c; Legd. of St. Giles 367; Guy of Warwick 27, 5; Reason and S., 232 b, 242 a, 244 a; Lancelot of the Laik 84. A very common phrase is "withoute were," so in Reason and S. 202 b, 206 b; Flour of Curt. 223; Pilgrim. 147 b, 252 a, 252 b, etc.; Rom. of the Rose 1776, 2568, 3351, 3452, 5488, 5660, 5695; Lyndsay's Dream 613, 642; also "but weir," ib. 485, 496; Dunbar, ed. Laing, I, 89, l. 70. In Skelton's Bowge of Courte, l. 31, we find a p.p. enwered, evidently derived from were.

656. Despair, frequently personified: see ll. 895, 1198; Black Knight 13; Troil. II, 530; Court of L. 1036, and especially the Assembly of Gods. Cp. also Troy-Book $T_1 c$ (love-complaints of Achilles similar to those of our knight):

"Anone dispeyre in a rage vp sterte,
And cruelly caught hym by the herte."

666. Troil. II, 385: "That of his deth ye be nought for to wyte."

673. Wanhope, similarly repeated in l. 895.

678. De duob. Merc., fol. 65 a: "My lyfe, my deth, is purtred in ȝowre face."

678, 679. Common sentiment in poems of the time; cf. again l. 749, 763. Similarly Isle of Ladies 815:

"He said it was nothing sitting
To voide pity his owne leggyng."

684. Similar idea in Skeat, M. P., p. 216, l. 93:

"I am so litel worthy, and ye so good."

689. dumb (still) as (any) stone, is a very common expression in Chaucer and Lydgate: still as any stone, Milleres Tale 286; Temple of Glas 689; Troy-Book $H_1 c$; L. Lady $k_2 b$; Kingis Quair 72, 6; as stille as eny stoon, Squieres Tale I, 163; Troilus II, 1494. still as stone, Life of Edmund III, 1212; Story of Thebes 372 b; Isle of Ladies 583. as still as stone, Clerkes Tale I, 65; March. T., 574; Troil. III, 650; V, 1743. doumb as any stone, T. of Glas 1184. dome as a stoon, Rom. of the R. 2409. dome and styll as any stone, De duobus Merc., fol. 72 b. as dowmb as stok or ston, Pilgrim. 271 a. muet as a stone, Troy-Book $Dd_1 d$; Story of Thebes 369 d; Compleint 50; Reason and S. 244 b, 289 b. as hard as is a stone, March. T. 746. trewe as stone, Rom. of the R. 5251. stable as any (a) stone, Falls of Pr. 190 c; St. Ursula 6; Albon II, 1009. deffe as stok or stoñ, Reason and S. 291 b; (as) blynd as (ys) a ston, Pilgrim. 149 a, 152 b; March. Tale 912; similarly Rom. of the Ro. 3703; deed as (eny) stoon, Squ. T., II, 128; Pite 16; Court of L. 995.

691. withoute more sermon.] So also Troy-Book, $H_3 c$.

696. oratorie.] See the Introduction, Chapter X, p. cxxxvii, and cp. note to l. 460. Mention is made of an oratory of Venus, Troy-Book $D_4 c$, $H_3 d$; Knightes Tale 1047; Compleynt 549; of Apollo at Delos, Troy-Book, $K_3 c$; of Diana, $L_1 a$; Knightes Tale 1053, 1059. We have the expression "oratory" often, of course, in the Life of our Lady, namely on folios $b_8 a$, $c_1 a$, $e_7 a$, $g_8 b$. Troy-Book $H_3 d$ speaks of "the chapell called Citheron"; Reason and S. 252 b of the chapel of Venus, in which the Sirens do their service day and night!

700. (anon) as ȝe shul here.] So again l. 1340; also Black Knight 217; Albon II, 176; March. T. 623; Doct. T. 177; Pard. Prol. 40; Isle of Ladies 70, 948, 1437; Generydes 2002, 3899, etc.

701, etc. This is the passage quoted in Skeat's M. P., p. xliv, and in Wood-Bliss, Athenæ Oxonienses, I, 11, note.

701. Citheria, common for Venus; for instance, Parl. of F. 113; Knightes Tale 1357; Troy-Book $P_1 d$; L. Lady $d_2 a$; Court of Love 50, 556, etc. The name comes, of course, from Cythere; the author of the Court of Love, however, evidently confuses the island of Cythere and the mountain Cithæron; see ll. 49, 50, 69 of that poem.

Digitized by Google

Redresse.] In the Court of Love, l. 591, Venus is similarly addressed:

"Venus, redresse of al divysion."

703. Compare with this line Knightes Tale, 1365:

"Thou gladere of the mount of Citheroun."

Cirrea.] See Anelida 17: "By Elicon, not fer from Cirrea."

Ten Brink, Chaucer-Studien, p. 181, note 35, and Skeat, in the note to this line of Anelida, point out the occurrence of Cirra in Paradiso I, 36, whence Chaucer may have taken the name. Lydgate mentions Cirrea often; twice in the beginning of the Troy-Book, fol. A_1 a:

"And for the loue of thy Bellona, [Pynson belloua]
That with the dwellyth, beyonde Cirrea,
In Libye londe vpon the sondes rede"; and again, fol. A_1 b:
(the Muses) "that on pernaso [Pynson pernasa] dwelle
In Cirrea, by Elycon the welle."

Troy-Book L_2 b, speaks of the rape of Helen as perpetrated

"In the temple of Cythera,
That buylde is besyde Cirrea."

Ib. Aa_2 d: "Nor the Muses that so synge can Atwene the Coppys of Nysus and Cyrra,
Upon the hylle, besyde Cyrrea."

Falls of Pr. 17 d: (Apollo) "Which in Cirrha worshipped was y^e^ tyme."

We meet again with our Cirrea in a complete muddle of geographical names, in Lydgate's Letter to Lord-Mayor Estfeld, MS. Addit. 29729, fol. 132 b:

"towardes Ierusaleme,
Downe costynge, as bokes makyn mynde,
By Lubyes londes, thrughe Ethiope & Ynde,
Conveyed downe, wher Mars in Cyrria
Hathe bylt his palays, vpon y^e^ sondes rede,
And she Venus, callid Cithera,
On Parnaso, with Pallas full of drede . . .
Where Bacus dwellethe, besydes y^e^ Ryver
Of ryche Thagus, y^e^ gravylles all of gold," etc.

The further context tends to make it probable that Lydgate has here confused Syria with Cirrea. Who is "Cyrrha y^e^ goddesse," Falls of Pr. 147 a?

705. Perhaps we have to scan: "wásshen and óftë wéte."

706. Here, for once, our MS. T alone has made a glaring mistake, in writing eleccion instead of Elicon. Or did the scribe object to the "riuer of Elicon"? Lydgate has "Elicon the welle" again in the beginning of the Troy-Book, fol. A_1 b (see above, note to l. 703), and speaks of it as

"Rennynge full clere with stremys cristallyn,
And callyd is the welle Caballyn,
That sprynge (!) by touche of the pegase," having, of course, Hippocrene in his mind. See further Troy-Book B_6 c: Medea had drunk, the monk tells us, "at Elycon of the welle"; so did Chaucer, as Troy-Book N_3 a tells us.

The note to line 703 will have sufficiently shown that Lydgate's geography is, in general, rather shaky; but here he may have been misled by Chaucer, Hous of F. 521:

"that on Parnaso dwelle
By Elicon the clere welle."

See Skeat's note to Anelida 15. As an excuse for Chaucer we must add that Helicon is frequently called a well or fountain about this period. Skelton, Garland of Laurel, l. 74, speaks of "Elyconis well"; in the Court of Love, l. 22, we read of the "suger dropes swete of Elicon;"

Lyndsay, in the Prologue to the Monarche, l. 229, says:

"Nor drank I neuer, with Hysiodus,
Off Hylicon, the sors of Eloquence,
Off that mellifluus, famous, fresche fontane."

In the notes to Spenser's Shepherd's Calendar, we even find it expressly stated that "Helicon is both the name of a fountain at the foot of Parnassus, and also of a mountain in Bœotia, out of which floweth the famous spring Castalius," etc. The mediæval poets evidently applied the name Helicon, which properly belongs to the mountain, also to the famous springs on it, Aganippe and particularly Hippocrene, having also in their mind the Castalian fount on Mount Parnassus.

Digitized by Google

743. March. Tale 934:

"Ye ben so deep emprinted in my thought."

749. Cp. above, ll. 678, 679. Similarly we have in a small poem by Lydgate (MS. Add. 29729, fol. 157 b):

"I see no lacke but only y^{t} daunger Hath in you voyded mercy and pyte;"

further, Court of Love 831:

"There was not lak, sauf daunger had a lite
This godely fresh in rule and governaunce."

750. sad demening.] Secreta Secretorum, fol. 121 b, we are told that a king must be:

"Sad of his Cheer, in his demenyng stable."

Sad, of course, meant "serious, grave." Cp. also March. Tale 360.

"Hir wommanly beryng, and hir sadnesse."

754. Mirrour, see l. 294.

governaunce] = discreet, well-controlled behaviour; the poets of this period often make mention of, and commend, this quality in woman. See Duchesse 1008; March. Tale 359; further, Henryson's Garment of good Ladies, l. 31; Troy-Book N$_{1}$d (Hector's gouernaunce praised). In a characteristic passage in the Court of S. sign. e$_{4}$a, "good Socrates" is called the "fyrst founder of gouernaunce" (= ethics). "Governance" is one of the two allegorical greyhounds at the beginning of Hawes's Pastime of P. The verb "governe" is used similarly; cp. Secreta Secretorum, fol. 99 b: (Aristotle wrote "Epistelys" to Alexander)

"By cleer Exaumple by which he myght[e] knowe
To governe hym, bothe to hih and lowe."

755. This is not the worst line in our T. of Glas. We have similarly in the Troy-Book H$_{5}$a:

"Within the cerclynge of hir eyen bryght (of Helen)
Was paradys compassed in hir syght."

761. pride.] Rom. of the Ro. 2239: "Loke fro pride thou kepe thee wele," etc. Similarly in l. 2352. Comp. further Man of Law's Tale 64:

"In hire is hye bewte, withoute pryde."

Sec. Nun's Tale 476:

"We haten deedly thilke vice of pryde."

Pride is the first sin in Gower's Confessio, and in the Persones Tale, p. 294: Lydgate also often warns against it. Pride characterizes herself in a very amusing way in the Pilgrim., fol. 217 b:

"And offte tyme I boste also Off thyng wher neuer I hadde a do,
My sylff avaunte off thys and that,
Off thynges wych I neuer kam at . . .
Vp with my tayl my ffothrys shake,
As whan an henne hath layd an Ay,
Kakleth affter al the day;
Whan I do wel any thyng,
I cesse neuere off kakelyng,
But telle yt forth in euery cost;
I blowe myn horn, & make bost,
I sey Tru tru, & blowe my ffame,
As hontys whan they fynde game," etc.

In the Assem. of Gods, fol. b$_{7}$b, Pride is introduced among the seven deadly sins, sitting on a lion.

Digitized by Google

778. I believe we must read the line:

"To bén as trwe as éuer was Ántonyús," and l. 781 with trisyllabic first measure, "Thăt wăs feiþ-." The readings of G and S, which present no metrical difficulty, are not borne out by F and B. See the Introduction, pp. LII and LIX.

Antony and Cleopatra.] Their history is told in the Falls of Pr. VI 16, and in Chaucer's Leg. of Cleopatra. See also Black Knight 367; Flour of C. 195; Troy-Book $X_2 d$; Parl. of Foules 291; Court of Love 873, and Gower's list at the end of the Confessio (ed. Pauli, III, 361). Cp. also MS. Ashm. 59, fol. 53 a:

"And Cleopatre, of wilful mocyoun, Lyst for to dye with hir Anthonius."

780. Pyramus and Thisbe.] See l. 80.

782. Antropos.] This is a common form of the name at that time. It occurs often in the Assembly of Gods and in the Troy-Book; for instance, $U_3 a$:

(Antropos) "That is maystresse & guyder of the rother
Of dethes shyp, tyll all goth vnto wrake."

See ib. $Y_1 a$, $Cc_8 c$; and L. Lady $g_5 b$, where all the three Fates are mentioned; Reason and S. 219 a, etc.; Story of Thebes 359 d; Albon II, 764.

785. Achilles and Polyxena, see above l. 94.

787. Hercules and Dejanira.] This is not a well-chosen example; Chaucer, more in accordance with classical mythology, has (Hous. of F. 397, 402):

"Eek lo! how fals and reccheles Was . . . Ercules to Dyanira;"

and see again, Wife of Bath's Prol. 724.

The Story how Hercules won Dejanira, is told in the Confessio Amantis, Book IV (ed. Pauli, II, 70 etc.); how he deserted her for Iole, in the same work, Book II (ib., I, 232 etc.). See also Heroides, epistle IX; Metam., Book IX. Lydgate, however, seems to have believed that Hercules was faithful to Dejanira throughout, see the Falls of Pr. I, 14, and Black Knight 357. Hercules' exploits are narrated in detail in the Troy-Book $A_6 d$, etc., and $E_6 b$ etc.; in the Falls of Pr. I, 14; in the Monk's Tale 105—152; the Garland of Laurel 1284—1314, and they are also mentioned in the Black Knight 344—357; his name occurs further in Parl. of F. 288. In the Falls of Pr., fol. 28 d, Lydgate calls Hercules a philosopher! "The great[e] Hercules" he is also called, Troy-Book $A_6 d$; "the worthy conquerour," ib. $D_6 b$. Cp. also Reason and S., fol. 240 a:

(Hercules) "That was of strengthe pereles, Rounde and square and of gret height."

788. shottes kene.] We have the same expression in Troil. II, 58.

792, 793. Troil. III, proem 31, 32:

"Ye (Venus) know al thilke covered qualite
Of thynges, which that folk on wondren so."

799, 800. Similar sentiment in l. 979. Cf. also Troy-Book $Dd_1 a$:

"More of mercy requerynge, than of ryght,
To rewe on me whiche am your owne knyght."

Frankel. Tale 588, 589:

"Nat that I chalenge eny thing of right
Of yow, my soverayn lady, but youre grace."

It is the 10th Statute in the Court of Love, ll. 368, 369. Compare also Flour of Curt. 106, 107:

"What euer I saye, it is of du[e]te,
In sothfastenesse, and no presumpcion."

806. þe guerdon & þe mede.] Occurs elsewhere in Lydgate; for instance L. Lady $i_7 b$.

808. I think we had better leave out your, and let the line pass as acephalous; your stands only in G and S, not in the two other MSS. F and B of group A.

823. A mouth I haue.] This graceful expression occurs again Troy-Book $Q_5 d$:

"He had a mouthe, but wordes had he none" (Troilus).

Digitized by Google

Falls of Pr. 38 d: "A mouth he hath, but wordes hath he none."
See also Complaynt 49: "A tunge I haue, but wordys none."
In the Falls of Pr., fol. 26 a, our roguish monk says of women:
"Thei mai haue mouthes, but langage haue thei none," and similarly Reason and S. 289 b:
"A mouthe they han, her tonge ys gon."

829. Almost word for word in Troil. V, 1319:
"With herte, body, lyf, lust, thought, and alle."

838, 839. Cp. Troy-Book C_2 c:
"Loue hathe hir caught so newly in a traunce,
And I-marked with his fury bronde."
Ib. H_3 a: "Cupides darte . . . hath hym marked so."
Ib. H_3 b: "And venus hath marked them of newe
With hir brondes fyred by feruence."
Ib. X_1 b: "He was so hote marked in his herte."
Reason and S. 258 b:
"And even lyke shaltow be shent,
Yif Venus Marke the with hir bronde."
Cp. also March. Tale 483 and 533.

863. hasti.] Often censured as a fault, whereas the contrary is commended as a virtue. See above, l. 245; cp. also Falls of Pr. 24 d, and the whole chapter I, 13; the same idea expressed negatively, Leg. of Margaret 148:
"She, not to rekel for noon hastynesse,
But ful demure and sobre of contenaunce;"
Edmund I, 1001: "Koude weel abide, nat hasty in werkyng."
Ib. II, 514: "nat rakel . . . Lyst for noon haste lese his patience."
Cp. further l. 1203, and note. See also Troy-Book B_2 c (Jason); Melibe, p. 152, and Troilus IV, 1539, 1540. Compare further a beautiful passage in the Pilgrim., fol. 54 a:
"Al thyng that men se me do, (Nature)
I do by leyser by & by,
I am nat Rakel, nor hasty;
I hate in myn oppynyouns
Al sodeyn mutacyouns;
My werkys be the bettre wrouht
Be cause that I haste nouht."
The passage reminds one strangely of the creator of the "Erdgeist," and his dearly-cherished belief in the tranquil, grand, silent working of Nature, as she weaves the "living garment of the godhead."

866. true as (any) steel.] Very frequent formula: Hypermnestra 21; Squire's Prol. 8; Reason and S. 297 a; Rom. of the R. 5149; S. of Thebes 363 a; Troy-Book I_2 a, I_3 d, R_4 a; several times in Shakspere, etc.

869, etc. Compare Minerva's admonitions to the poet in the Kingis Quair, stanza 129.

877. dilacioun.] Cp. ll. 1091, 1193, 1206. Both meaning and metre require this reading.

878. Resoun.] Personification from the Rom. de la R.; see Rom. of the R. 3034, 3193, etc.; cp. also Reason and S.; and Assem. of Gods C_7 a; Pilgrim. 25 a, etc.; Dunbar, Golden Targe 151. Similar to our line is Troil. IV, 1650:
"And that youre reson brideled youre delite," etc.;
further Halliwell, M. P., p. 219:
"Lat reson brydle thy sensualite."
Cp. also Troil. IV, 1555: "And forthi, sle with reson al this hete."

879. This line is exactly the same as l. 424.

881, 882. Cp. again, l. 1090; further Troil. IV, 1556:
"Men seyn, the suffraunt overcomth, parde!"
See further, Frank. Tale 43—50; Rom. of the Rose 3463-5.

Digitized by Google

892. hope.] See ll. 641 etc., and further on l. 1197. "Good Hope" is King James's guide to Minerva; see the Kingis Quair, stanza 106, 5: "and lat gude hope the gye." Cp. also Rom. of the R. 2754, 2760, 2768 etc., 2941; further Pilgrim., fol. 108 a:

"Good hope alway thow shalt yt calle:
Thys the name off thy bordoun."

897, etc. All these personifications are quite in the style of the Rom. de la R.

904. riȝt of goode chere.] The text-criticism is for this position of the words; "of right good chere," as F. B. L. b have it, occurs again Falls of Pr. 183 b, Edmund III, 493; with right good cheere, Sec. Nun's Tale 304; Rom. of the Rose 3617.

913—917. Cp. Troil. I, 857, 858:

"For who-so liste have helynge of his leche,
To hym behoveth first unwre his wounde."

Pilgrim. of the Soul, Caxton, fol. 21 a (chapter 23):

"What helpyth it thus for to telle and preche,
But shewe thy sore to me that am thy leche."

See further Lancelot of the Laik, ed. Skeat, l. 103:

"And It is weil accordinge It be so
He suffir harme, that to redress his wo
Previdith not; for long ore he be sonde,
Holl of his leich, that schewith not his vound."

Fairy Queen I, 7, 40:

"Found never help who never would his hurts impart."

Fletcher, The Faithful Shepherdess II, 2:

"that man yet never knew
The way to health that durst not show his sore."

Boethius, De consol. philosophiæ I, prose 4: "Si operam medicantis exspectas, oportet vulnus detegas."

915. oute of his hertis graue.] Curious expression. I suppose it means "out of his heart's grave" = out of his innermost heart. We constantly hear that these love-wounds are most dangerous when near the heart, and especially if they close up. See note to l. 862.

937. pale and wan.] Exceedingly common formula; cp. Miller's Tale 640; Generydes, ed. Wright, 752, 1297, 4703, 6760; Black Knight 131; Troy-Book A_1 d, A_2 c, D_2 a, Cc_4 c, Dd_1 d; De duobus Merc., fol. 65 a; Troil. II, 551; IV, 207. "deadly pale and wan" occurs in Falls of Pr., fol. 196 a. "Dead, pale & wan," ib. 123 b. The formula was still very common in Elizabethan times; see, for instance, Shepherd's Calendar, January, l. 8; Fairy Queen I, 8, 42; Com. of Errors IV, 4, 111; Tit. And. II, 3, 90; Tamburlaine 985, 2235, 3555, 4458. Perhaps we must consider "deedli" as an adjective, and then put a comma after it; cp. Knightes T. 224:

"That art so pale and deedly on to see;"

Black Knight 132: "And wonder dedely also of his hiwe;"
Kingis Quair 169, 2: "thy dedely coloure pale;"
S. of Thebes 371 c: "Dedly of looke, pale of face and chere;"
Albon III, 684: "Theyr doedly faces."

939, 940. Cp. Troy-Book S_6 c:

"Of lyfe nor deth that he rought[e] nought."

Falls of Pr. 95 d: "By manly prowesse of deth he rought[e] nought."
Troil. IV, 920:

"As he that of his lif no lenger roughte."

Cp. also the 6th Statute in the Court of Love, l. 340.

941. Most likely we have to read: "So mychë fere"; mychë corresponding to O.E. mycel.

947. Mi penne I fele quaken.] A favourite expression of Lydgate's. Cp. Troy-Book E_6 a:

"I wante connynge, and I fele also My penne quake, and tremble in my honde."

Digitized by Google

Ib. Bb$_3$ a: "For whiche, alas, my penne I fele quake.
That doth myn ynke blott-[n] on my boke."
L. Lady e$_8$ a: "And though my penne be quakyng ay for drede."
Similarly Troy-Book R$_8$ c: "that for wo and drede Fele my hande both[e] tremble and quake";
and Black Knight 181.
Secreta Secretorum (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 103 b):
"With quakyng penne my conseyt to expresse."
Falls of Pr. 30 c: "O Hercules! my penne I fele quake,
Mine ynke fulfilled of bitter teres salt,
This piteous tragedy to write for thy sake."
Ib. 39 b: "In her right hand her penne gan to quake" (Canace).
Ib. 46 b: "Whose deadly sorow in English for to make
Of piteous ruth my penne I fele quake" (Lucrece).
Ib. 67 d: "Mine hand gan tremble, my penne I felt[e] quake."
Ib. 89 c: "My penne quaketh of ruth and of pitie."
Ib. 119 d: "With quaking hand whan he his pen[ne] toke" (Boccaccio).
Ib. 136 c: "My penne quoke, my heart I felt[e] blede"
(in rehearsing the tragedy of Hannibal).
Ib. 161 a: "Myne hand I fele quakyng whyle I write."
Ib. 217 a: "In which labour mine hand full oft[e] quooke,
My penne also, troubled with ignorannce" . . .
Edmund III, 89: "That hand and penne quake for verray dreed."
Leg. of Margaret 57: "my penne, quakyng of verray drede."
Albon I, 928: "But now, forsothe, my penne I fele quake."
Cp. ib. I, 27, 28.
Application for Money 4 (Halliwell, p. 49):
"this litel bille,
Whiche whan I wrote, my hand felt I quake."
Other affections of, and manipulations with, his pen are mentioned, Troy-Book Z$_3$ d: (to describe their woe)
"My penne shulde of very routhe ryue."
Ib. Cc$_8$ c: "For I shall now, lyke as I am wonte, Sharpe my penne, bothe rude and blont."
Chaucer has the expression in Troil. III, 1784, 1785:
"And now my penne allas, with which I wryte, Quaketh for drede of that I most endite."
It occurs also in Mother of norture, l. 50 (Morris's Chaucer VI, 277).
Similarly, Gawain Douglas has (Small I, 48, 7):
"Now mair to write for feir trimblis my pen."

The following amusing lines from Bokenam's Leg. of Margarete (ed. Horstmann, I, 659—669) should also be compared with our present passage, and ll. 962, 963 of the T. of Glas:

"My penne also gynnyth make obstacle
And lyst no lengere on paper to renne,
For I so ofte haue maad to grenne
Hys snowte vp-on my thombys ende
That he ful ny is waxyñ vnthende (!)—
For euere as he goth, he doth blot
And in my book makyth many a spot,
Menyng therby that for the beste
Were for vs bothe a whyle to reste,
Til that my wyt and also he Myht be sum craft reparyd be."

950. Cp. De duobus Merc., MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 65 a:
"For with my self thowh I euermore strive."
wel unnepe = not at all easily; scarcely; with great effort; Monkes Tale 431; Frank. T. 8; Clerkes Tale V, 108; Chaucer's Boethius, ed. Morris, 1515; Troilus V, 31, 399; Flower and Leaf 46:
"That well unneth a wight ne might it se."

Digitized by Google

952—956. Cp. Black Knight 176:

"But who shal now helpe me for to compleyne?
Or who shal now my stile guy or lede?"

Falls of Pr. A_2 b:

"But O alas, who shal be my muse,
Or vnto whom shall I for helpe call?
Calliope my calling will refuse,
And on Pernaso her worthy sustern all,
They will their suger temper with no gall;
For their swetenes and lusty freshe singing
Ful ferre discordeth from maters complaining."

De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 66 b):

"But now, alas! who shall my stile guye,
Or hen[ne]s-forth who shall be my muse?" . . .

954, 955. Cp. Falls of Pr., fol. A_3 d:

"Dities of mourning and of complayning
Doe not pertayn vnto Calliope . . . . .
And vnto maters of aduersitee,
With theyr sugred aureat licour,
They been not willye for to don fauour" (the Muses).

955. þei delite.] I think we must omit þei, following MSS. F. B. G. S. The construction of delite, which we should get by adopting the reading of the other texts, would be very unusual.

958. This invocation of the Furies is very common in Lydgate, whenever he has woe or horrors to relate. Chaucer started it in Troil. I, 6 and 7:

"Thesiphone, thou help me for tendite
This woful vers, that wepen as I write."

Ib. III, 1793 etc.:

"O ye Herynes! nyghtes doughtren thre,
That endeles compleynen evere in pyne,
Megera, Alecte, and ek Thesiphone! . . .
This ilke ferthe book me helpeth fyne."

Lydgate has it often; for example in the Troy-Book R_4 c:

"O who shall now helpe me to endyte,
Or vnto whom shall I clepe or calle? (l. 952)
Certys to none of the Musys alle, (l. 953)
That by accorde synge[n] euer in oon
Upon Pernaso besyde Elycon . . . .
It sytte them noughte for to helpe in wo,
Nor with maters that be with mournyng shent. (l. 954)
To them, alas! I clepe dare nor crye,
My troublyd penne of grace for to guye, (l. 956)
Nouther to Clyo, nor Callyope,
But to Allecto and Thesyphone, (ll. 958 and 959)
And Megera that euer doth complayne."

De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV, 12, fol. 67 a):

"Alas, Meggera! I most now vnto the
Of hert[e] call, to help me to complayn;
And to thi sustur eke, the Siphone, (sic)
That aftyr ioy goddessys ben of payñ."

Similar to these passages are stanzas 2 and 3 of Spenser's Daphnaida; Lyndsay's Prologue to the Monarche, ll. 216, etc., 237, etc.; Remedie of Love (1561), fol. 322 b:

"Aspire my beginnyng, O thou woode furie Alecto with thy susters" . . ., and fol. 322 d.

Somewhat different is Falls of Pr., fol. 67 d:

"Me to further I fond none other muse,
But hard as stone Pierides and Meduse."

See on this passage Koeppel, Falls of Pr., p. 72. Further L. Lady c_8 a:

Digitized by Google

"Nether to clyo ne to calyope
Me list not calle for to helpe me,
Ne to no muse, my poyntel for to gye;
But leue al this and say vnto marie."

He says, however, elsewhere that Alecto hinders him (Troy-Book N_8 a):

"Cruell Allector (sic) is besy me to lette,
The nyghtes doughter, blynded by derkenesse."

By these constant invocations of the Furies, King James (Kingis Quair 19, 3) was misled into believing that Tisiphone was a Muse.

The Furies appear also in a different function in the S. of Thebes, fol. 360 b, and similarly, Falls of Pr. 198 b (cp. also Æsop 7, 27). These passages may be imitated from Chaucer's Leg. of Philomela, ll. 22—25, itself an imitation of Ovid's Met. VI, 428—432.

961. Compare Black Knight 178:

"O Nyobe, let now thi teres reyne
Into my penne, and eke helpe in this nede,
Thou woful Mirre!" . . .

Similarly, Troy-Book R_6 d:

"Wherfore helpe now, thou wofull nyobe,
Some drery tere in all thy peteous payne,
Into my penne dolefully to rayne."

De duobus Mercatoribus (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 67 a):

"O wepyng mirre, now lett thy terys reyñ
In to myñ ynk, so clobbyd in my penne,
That rowght [rowthe, Harl. 2255] in swagyng a-brod make it renne."

Falls of Pr. 38 c (Canace writes a letter):

"The salt[e] teares from her iyen clere
With piteous sobbing fet from her hert[e]s brinke
Distilling downe to tempre with her ynke."

962. blot.] See Falls of Pr. 115 b:

"But to declare the vicious liuyng . . . (of Agathocles)
It would through perse & blot[te] my papere."

Ib. 120 b: "O cursed Ceraunus, I leue thy story here, Thy name no more shal blot[te] my papere,"

Troy-Book Aa_8 b:

"And though my style be blotted with rudenesse."

Ib. Bb_2 a: (my penne) "That doth myn ynke blotte[n] on my boke."

Douglas, Palice of Honour (Small I, 54. 7):

"It transcendis far aboue my micht
That I with ink may do bot paper blek."

Cp. also the quotation from Bokenam, in the note to l. 947.

963. To paint with fresh colours, with gold and azure, etc., is a phrase of common occurrence; Lydgate often modestly says that he can only paint in black and white—"aureat colours," etc., being denied to him —; here the turn for black has come (as also in ll. 551, etc.), and he must "blot" and "spot" his paper, instead of "illumining" it.

967. evil fare.] Also in Troy-Book Cc_4 a; Falls of Pr. 2 b; Story of Thebes 360 c, etc.

970. Princess of youth, etc.] We have similar addresses in Garland of Laurel 897, 904:

"Princes of yowth, and flowre of goodly porte."

See also Bowge of Court 253, and Court of Love 843.

978. The natural position of the words would be: with hert quakyng of drede. Similar constructions in Gorboduc, see Miss Toulmin Smith's edition, note to l. 433, where we are referred to Abbott's Shakespearian Grammar, § 419 a. Compare also Court of Love, l. 1:

"With tymeros hert and tremlyng hand of drede;"

further, Melibe, p. 193:

"these trespasours and repentynge folk of here folies"; etc.

Digitized by Google

979. See l. 800, and note.

996. feyne seems here to mean "to be slack, idle;" like O.F. feindre (and its Participle feignant, in modern French made into fainéant). Cf. Troilus II, 997; Duchesse 317; Rom. of the Rose 1797, 2996; Pilgrimage 189 a:

"To don thy labour & nat ffeyne,
And myghtyly thy sylff to peyne."

999. chaunge for no newe.] See again further on, l. 1128; Leg. of Dido 312; Leg. of Lucrece 196; Anelida 219, etc.

1011. bi god and be my troupe.] Not unfrequent formula; see, for instance, Troilus III, 1464; Court of L. 648, etc.

1025. There is hardly a doubt that we must scan "hennës."

1026. inouȝ suffise.] This expression, which now appears pleonastic, was very common; see Falls of Pr. 13 c, 77 a; Æsop 7, 50; Albon II, 695; Pilgrimage 52 b, 64 a, 77 b, 78 a; March. T. 296; Pard. Prol. 148; Shipm. T. 100; Monk's Prol. 94; Monk's Tale 468; Manc. T. 232 etc.

1029. Are we to leave the second as in the line, and read the line with a trisyllabic first measure?

Comp. with this line, Story of Thebes 367 b:

"And as ferforthe as it lith in me;"

further, Troil. IV, 863: "As ferforth as my wit kan comprehende."
Man of Lawes T. 1001: "As ferforth as his connyng may suffise."
Chan. Yem. Tale 76: "Als ferforth as my connyng wol strecche."
Frankel. Prol. 34: "As fer as that my wittes may suffice."
Parl. of F. 460: "As wel as that my wit can me suffyse."
Both, "as ferforth as," and "as fer as" are frequent constructions.

1036. Comp. Black Knight 517:

"And to youre grace of mercie yet I preye,
In youre servise that your man may deye."

1037. This is.] Read This; see l. 496.

1042, 1043. Parl. of F. 442—445:

"Right as the fresshe, rede rose newe
Ayen the somer-sonne coloured is,
Right so for shame al wexen gan the hewe
Of this formel" . . .

Troilus II, 1198: "Therwith al rosy hewed tho wex she."
Ib. 1256: "Nay, nay," quod she, "and wex as rede as rose."
Court of L. 1016:

"And softly thanne her coloure gan appere
As rose so rede, throughoute her visage alle."

1045. femynynite.] The proper form of the word in Chaucer and Lydgate seems to be femininite; cp. Man of Lawes Tale 262:

"O serpent under femininite."

The MSS. of Chaucer and Lydgate, however, frequently have the shorter form feminite, which we find in Spenser; cp. Colin Clout:

"And only mirror of feminity."

F. Queen III, 6, 51: "And trained up in trew feminitee."
Our line is indecisive; the full form makes it of the regular type A, the shorter form of type C.

1049. Troy-Book C_2 d:

"Ne lette no worde by hir lyppes pace" (Medea).

1052. Cp. Troy-Book N_4 d: [in Hector was]

"gouernaunce medlyd with prudence,
That nought asterte hym; he was so wyse & ware;"

and again S_4 b: "Unauysed / for no thynge hym asterte."
Ib. X_4 d: "Of womanhede, and of gentyllesse,
She kepte hir so that no thynge hir asterte." (Penthesileia.)

1060. Cp. Court of Love 890:

Digitized by Google

"Truly gramercy, frende, of your gode wille,
And of youre profer in youre humble wise!"

1061, 1062. Cf. Kingis Quair 144, 1 and 2:

"Now wele," quod sche, "and sen that It is so,
That in vertew thy lufe is set with treuth" (. . . I will help thee).

1074. Troilus III, 112:

"Receyven hym fully to my servyse."

1078. Witnes on Venus.] Nonne Prestes Tale 416:

"Witnesse on him, that eny perfit clerk is."

Troy-Book Aa$_1$ d: "Wytnesse on you that be inmortall."

The construction with on occurs further in March. T. 1038; Pard. T. 172; Monkes Tale 735; Pers. T., p. 289; also in the poem by the "Dull Ass" (see the Introduction, p. cxlii, and note to l. 110), MS. Fairfax 16, fol. 308 b:

"Wytnes oñ Ambros vppoñ the bible."

We find also the construction with of, and at; cp. Flower and Leaf 530: "Witnesse of Rome," and Falls of Pr. 16 a:

"I take witnes at (off Digby 263) Ieroboall."

A similar frequent expression is: Record on, vpon, or of.

1081. Perhaps we ought to read: "þe trouthë" in spite of the hiatus.

1082. unto þe time.] The omission of þe, as in MSS. G and S, makes the metre smooth. The article is often omitted before time; cp. further on, l. 1377; also Falls of Pr. 114 a:

"For vnto time that she gaue vp the breath."

See further Generydes, ed. Wright, ll. 4228, 6012, 6755.

1083. To shape a way.] Frequent expression; cp. Secreta Secretorum, fol. 108 a; Story of Thebes, fol. 358 a, 361 b, etc.

1085. To take at gre, to accept (receive) in gre, are frequent phrases.

1089. See l. 1203.

1090. Whoso can suffre.] This parenthetic, brachylogic construction is very frequent in Lydgate; Chaucer has it also; for instance, Cant. Tales, Prol. 741:

"Eek Plato seith, whoso that can him rede" . . .

Cp. further, for the maxim expressed in ll. 1089, 1090, above, ll. 881, 882, and note.

1094. Troy-Book C$_1$ b:

"And what I saye, to take it for the beste."

1106—1108. Troy-Book N$_3$ b:

"That theyr hertes were locked in a chayne" (Achilles and Patroclus).

Albon II, 756: "So were theyr hertes ioyned in one cheyne."

1110. blisful.] Common epithet of Venus; see l. 328, and note.

1117. Your honour saue.] See note to l. 342.

1136. recorde.] See the Introduction, Chapter X, p. cxxxix, and again, l. 1234. Cp. also Gower, in the passage on Chaucer towards the end of the Confessio:

"So that my court it may recorde" (Pauli III, 374).

Scogan 22: "Thou drowe in scorn Cupyde eek to record
Of thilke rebel word that thou hast spoken."

1138, 1143. Cp. Troil. II, 391, 392:

"That ye hym love ayeyn for his lovynge,
As love for love is skylful guerdonynge."

Edmund I, 479: "Bounte for bounte, for loue shewe loue ageyn."

1146. "Lowliness" to his mistress is the 7th Statute for the lover; Court of Love 349.

1152, etc. With these admonitions of Venus to the Knight, compare the Statutes in the Court of Love; see the Introduction, p. cxxxi.

1153. constant as a wall.] So also Clerkes Tale 109; L. Lady e$_3$ b. Similar expressions are common:

Digitized by Google

stable as a wal, Edmund I, 211 ; III, 390.
sturdy as a wall, Troy-Book $U_4 d$.
close as any wall, Troy-Book $U_2 c$.
stedfaste as a wall, Troy-Book $Cc_3 a$; Falls of Pr. 75 b, 128 a ; Reason and S. 288 a ; Rom. of the R. 5253 ; Albon II, 91.
stylle as a walle, Troy-Book $Cc_1 a$.
vpright as a wall, Falls of Pr. 142 c.

1154. Cp. Court of L. 315 ; Troil. III, 92 : "humble, trewe, Secret." Kingis Quair 132, 1 : "Be trewe, and meke, and stedfast in thy thoght." secre.] See note to l. 295.

1157. Tempest.] Rare verb ; compare Chaucer, Truth 8 :

"Tempest thee noght al croked to redresse."

Chaucer's Boethius, ed. Morris 1060 : "so þat þou tempest nat þe þus wiþ al þi fortune" (te tuae sortis piget).—See further the Century Dictionary.

1159, 1160. Rom. of the Ro. 2229, 2230 :

"And alle wymmen serve and preise,
And to thy power her honour reise."

1161—1165. Rom. of the Ro. 2231, etc.:

"And if that ony myssaiere
Dispise wymmen, that thou maist here,
Blame hym, and bidde hym holde hym stille."

1163. slepe or wake.] Absurd use of a common formula, which occurs in the Sec. Nun's Tale 153 ; Rom. of the Rose 2730 ; Flour of Curtesie 95, etc.

1164. champartie.] Lydgate seems to have got this word from Knightes T. 1090, 1091 :

"Beaute ne sleight, strengthe, ne hardynesse,
Ne may with Venus holde champartye."

Champartie means "a share of land," and, generalized, "a share, or partnership, in power." But Lydgate was reminded, by the "champ parti," of the tilting ground, and "to holde champartie with" (or against) means with him "to fight against," "to hold the field against." This is rightly pointed out in the N. E. Dictionary. The word is very common in Lydgate, and may even serve as an evidence for the genuineness of doubtful writings. See Reason and S. 229 a, 246 b ; L. Lady $g_7 b$; Troy-Book $K_2 b$, $K_4 a$, $P_3 b$, $Y_6 a$; Story of Thebes 366 d ; Bycorne 41 ; Pilg. of man, fol. 59 a, 91 a, 128 b, 148 a, 299 a ; Falls of Pr. 6 a, 16 b, 26 d, 34 (or rather 35) b, 69 c, 70 d, 148 d, 159 b, 195 b, 204 c.

1166, 1167. Rom. of the Ro. 2351, etc.:

"Who-so with Love wole goon or ride,
He mote be curteis, and voide of pride,
Mery and fulle of jolite."

Troil. III, Proem 26 : "Ye (Venus) don hem curteis be, fresshe and benigne."

The 18th Statute of the Court of Love commands the lover to eschew "sluttishnesse," to be "jolif, fressh, and fete, with thinges newe, Courtly with maner . . . and loving clenlynesse."

1167. fressh & welbesein.] So also Troy-Book $I_1 c$, $Cc_4 c$; Macabre (Tottel, fol. 223 d) ; Pilgrim. 176 a ; similar expressions occur in Story of Thebes, fol. 363 c : "riche and wel besein" (so also Generydes 1978) ; "richely biseye," Clerkes Tale VI, 46 ; Troy-Book $C_1 c$: (Medea) "was bothe fayre and well besayne" ; ib. $C_2 b$: "Full royally arayed and besayne" (chambers) ; "fresshely besene," Troy-Book $Cc_2 b$; "ryally beseen," Court of Love 121 ; "ffull ryally and wel beseyn," Pilgrim. 14 a ; "goodely byseyn," Troil. II, 1262 ; "ille byseye," Clerkes Tale, VI, 27.

1168—1170. Similar expressions are not unfrequent in the love-poetry of the time, and betray a very brotherly feeling among these fellow-sufferers. Cp., for instance, Kingis Quair 184, 1 :

"Beseching vnto fair Venus abufe
For all my brethir that bene In this place,
This Is to sevne that seruandis ar to lufe,

Digitized by Google

And of his lady can no thank purchase,
His paine relesch, and sone to stand In grace." . . .

Troil. III, 1741—1743:

". . . esen hem that weren in distresse,
And glad was he if any wight wel feerde
That lover was, when he it wiste or herde."

Comp. also Court of L. 468, 469, which gives it a jocose turn.

1172. auaunte.] Compare for "avauntours" particularly, Troil. III, 240, 259, 269; further, Pastime of Pl., Chapter XXXII:

"make none aduaunt
When you of loue haue a perfite graunte."

And see the amusing description of the "Avaunter" in the Court of Love 1219, etc.; also Compl. of Mars 87.

1173—1175. Compare with this sentiment the Provençal Poem on Boethius, l. 221, where "tristicia," together with "avaricia," "perjuri," etc., is enumerated as a sin:

"contr' avaricia sun fait de largetat, contra tristicia sun fait d'alegretat" (the rungs of the ladder).

Dante puts the "tristi" into Hell; comp. Inferno VII, 121:

"Fitti nel limo dicon: tristi fummo
Nell' aer dolce che dal sol s' allegra,
Portando dentro accidioso fummo:
Or ci attristiam nella belletta negra."

So does Deguileville, Pèlerinage de la vie humaine, fol. 119 c (Barthole and Petit):

"Ce sont dist les filz de tristesse, Gens endormiz en leur paresce";

in the English translation (Caxton, fol. 55 b): "these ben . . . the children of tristesse that slepyn in slouthe and lachesse." In consideration of the promises of the Faith, "tristesse" was accounted a great sin. Compare also the quotation from Matthew VI, 16: "Nolite fieri sicut ypocrite, tristes," in Piers Plowman B XV, 213, and Dante's "collegio degl' ipocriti tristi" (Inferno XXIII, 91). Similar to our passage is Secreta Secretorum 126 b:

"Be nat to pensyff, of thought take no keep."

Pastime of Pl., p. 96: "And let no thought in your herte engendre."

See further the passage from the Rom. of the Ro., quoted above in the note to l. 1166; and ib., ll. 2289, etc.:

"Alwey in herte I rede thee,
Glad and mery for to be,
And be as joyfulle as thou can;
Love hath no joye of sorowful man."

Compare also Kingis Quair, stanza 121; further the picture of "Sorrow," Rom. of the Ro. 301—348, and the figure of Sansjoy in the Faerie Queene.

1176. sadness = earnestness. See Magnus Cato:

"Nat alway sad ne light of contenaunce," and again: "It is a good lesson . . .

to be glad and mery eft sones" (quoted in Jack Juggler, beginning).

Edmund I, 693—695:

"Sadnesse in tyme, in tyme also gladnesse,
With entirchangyngis off merthe and sobirnesse
Affter the seasouns requered off euery thyng."

Duchesse 880: "She nas to sobre ne to glad."

1177—1179. We must not fail to put it down to our monk's credit that, amongst so many commonplaces, he gives us at least one moral which has a manly ring. The same sentiment also forms the kernel of Agamemnon's discourse to Menelaus in Troy-Book I, 2 c and d. Cp. also Wanderer, ll. 11—18:

"Ic tô sôðe wât,
þæt bið on eorle indryhten þêaw,
þæt hê his ferðlocan fæste binde,
healde his hordcofan, hycge swâ hê wille;

Digitized by Google

ne mæg wêrig môd wyrde wiðstondan, nê se hrêo hyge helpe gefremman:
forþon dômgeorne drêorigne oft in hyra brêostcofan bindaþ fæste."

1177. It is best for the metre to read myrþe.

1180, 1181. Cp. l. 450, and note.

1182. tales.] See note to l. 153; the whole Chapter I, 13 of the Falls of Pr. inveighs against such indiscreet "tales." In the Secreta Secretorum, fol. 98 b, the monk tells us that Aristotle hated "fforgid talys"; ib. 121 a we hear that a king must not be

"lyghtly credible
To talys that make discencioun."

The 14th Statute in the Court of Love is to believe no "tales newe" (l. 412).

1183. Word is but wind.] This simile occurs also Troy-Book $I_2 d$; $Aa_4 c$: (he is) "but worde and wynde."

Ib. $U_4 b$: "For lyke a wynde that no man may areste, Fareth a worde discordaunt fro the dede."

Falls of Pr. 216 a: "Worde is but wind brought in by enuye."

Pilgrim. 218 a: "Wynd and wordys, rud and dul,
Yssen out fful gret plente."

Secreta Secretorum (Ashm. 46, fol. 125 a):
"Trust On the dede, and nat in gay[e] spechys:
Woord is but wynd; leve the woord & take the dede."

In Magnus Cato the Latin hexameter, "Contra verbosos noli contendere verbis" is paraphrased by:

"Agayns tho folkes that ay ben full of wynd, Stryue not at all, it may the nat profite."

In the same poem we have the lines:

"Of thy good dede clamour nat ne crye;
Be nat to wyndy ne of word[es] breme."

"Word is but wind" occurs also in Kyd's translation of Garnier's Cornelie, Dodsley-Hazlitt V, 216; in Calisto and Melibœa, ib. I, 69; Ingelend's Disobedient Child, ib. II, 301; Skelton's Magnificence 584; Wyatt, Aldine edition, p. 138; Comedy of Errors III, 1, 75; Much Ado V, 2, 52.

1184. dovmb as eny ston, see l. 689.

1185. This childish maxim reminds one of the philistine rules drawn up by the monk for children. Cp. also Burgh's part of the Secreta Secretorum, fol. 159 a:

"Whoo spekith soone Or ony man hym Calle,
Is vnresouñable, as philisophres expresse."

1188. myne.] Cp. Falls of Pr. 41 c:

"The vnkynd worme of foryetfulnes,
In his heart had myned through the wall."

Ib. 67 b: "Let this conceit aye in your heartes mine."

Ib. 79 b: "That grace none myght in his heart[e] myne" (Coriolanus).

Ib. 150 d: "Under al this there did his heart[e] mine
A worme of auarice, his worship to declyne" (Marius).

Ib. 183 b: "Royal compassion did in hys heart[e] mine."

Testament 33: "In amerous hertys brennyng of kyndenesse
This name of Jhesu moost profoundly doth myne."

Edmund II, 447: "And heer-upon a werm most serpentyne
Of fals enuye gan in his herte myne."

S. of Thebes 372 b: "The rage gan mine on him so depe."

Pilgr. 65 a: "Thys mortal werm [of conscience] wyl neuere fyne
Vp-on hys mayster for to myne,
And gnawe vp-on hym day & nyht."

1191, 1192. L. Lady $e_3 a$:

"As golde in fyre fyned by assaye,
And as the tryed syluer is depurid."

Digitized by Google

1197. See above l. 892. Cp. also Falls of Pr. 3 b:

"And thus false lust doth your bridell lede."

Ib. 6 c: "Pride of Nembroth did the bridell lede."

Rom. of the Ro. 4935:

"Delite so doth his bridil leede" (of youth).

Ib. 3299: "Take with thy teeth the bridel faste,
To daunte thyne herte."

Cp. also l. 878, and note.

1203. Abide a while.] Rom. of the Ro. 2121:

"Abide and suffre thy distresse,
That hurtith now; it shal be lesse" . . .

Kingis Quair 133:

"All thing has tyme, thus sais Ecclesiaste;
And wele is him that his tyme wel abit:
Abyde thy time; for he that can bot haste,
Can noght of hap, the wise man It writ."

March. Tale 728: "For alle thing hath tyme, as seyn these clerkis."

Melibe, p. 146: "He hastith wel that wisly can abyde."

In the Secreta Secretorum, fol. 104 b, "tretable abydyng" is enumerated as a virtue.

1208. Similarly Troy-Book $T_8 b$:

"That was this worldes very sonne and lyght" (Hector).

1210. crop and rote, see l. 455.

1220. his langour forto lisse.] The same expression occurs in Albon II, 658.

1224, 1225. Cp. Rom. of the Ro. 2087, etc.; 3320; Anelida 131:

"Her herte was wedded to him with a ring;
So ferforth upon trouthe is her entente,
That wher he goth, her herte with him wente."

Falls of Pr. 38 c: "Under one key our hertes to be enclosed."

Troy-Book $N_8 b$:

"That theyr hertes were locked in a chayne" (Achilles and Patroclus).

Ib. $R_8 c$: "She locked hym vnder suche a keye" (Cressida and Diomed).

1229. L. Lady $g_8 a$: "Eternally be bonde that may not fayle."

Reason and S. 230 a: "To han hir knyt to him by bonde," and again similarly 233 b.

1230. Troy-Book $I_1 d$:

"For euer more to laste atwene them tweyne,
The knotte is knyt of this sacrament" (Marriage of Paris and Helen).

De duob. Merc., Hh. IV. 12, fol. 65 b:

"and hath a day I-sett
Of hyr spousage to se the knott I-knett."

1231. alliaunce.] Cp. the quotation from the Kingis Quair in note to l. 388.

1234. record.] See note to l. 1136.

1234, 1235. Cp. Chaucer's Legd. of Ariadne, ll. 6 and 7:

"For which the goddes of the heven above
Ben wrothe, and wreche han take for thy sinne."

"To be wreke" (on) is a common construction in Lydgate: Black Knight 663; Troy-Book $Q_3 d$, $T_2 c$, $U_3 c$; Falls of Pr. 59 a, 101 c; Macabre (Tottel 224 d); Pilgrim. 62 a, 63 b, 65 a (in that place we have the form wroke rhyming with spoke; cp. Compleynt 605, 606). Shirley and Caxton read bewreke; but "to be wreke" is not to be mixed up with "to bewreak"; the latter word occurs, for instance, Troy-Book $K_2 a$:

"On Troyans our harmes to bewreke."

Chaucer has not unfrequently "to ben awreke," see Frank. Tale 56; Manne. Tale 194; Mill T., 564.

1238. Cp. Falls of Pr. 169 d:

"If that I might, I wolde race his name
Out of this boke that no man should it rede" (Nero).

Digitized by Google

1250. Cp. Troil. I, 642:

"Ek whit by blak, ek schame by worthynes,
Ech sett by other, more for other semeth."

Falls of Pr. 160 d:

"Two colours seen that be contrarius,
As white and blacke—it may bee none other—
Eche in his kynd sheweth more for other."

Skelton, Garl. of L. 1237: "The whyte apperyth the better for the black."

Pastime of Pl., p. 56:

"As whyte by blacke doth shyne more clerely."

1251. See ll. 403, 404.

1252, 1253. Similarly, Edmund II, 592:

"For alwey trouthe al falsheed shal oppresse."

S. of Thebes, fol. 366 d:

"Ayens trouthe, falshode hath no might."

Albon II, 1915: "Trouthe wyll out, magre fals enuie."

The reverse is found in Black Knight 325:

"He shal ay fynde that the trewe man
Was put abake, whereas the falshede Yfurthered was."

1257. deinte = value, estimation, liking; see Anelida 143; Troil. II, 164; Frank. T. 275; Frank. Prol. 9. "To have (hold) in deinte" is a frequent expression; so, Falls of Pr. 9 a, 127 b; Rom. of the Rose 2677; Dunbar, ed. Laing, I, 75, l. 376, etc.

1266. suffrable.] The suffix -able in an active sense (i. e. inclined to do or undergo something) is very common in Lydgate, in cases where in Modern-English it would have a passive sense; Lydgate has deceivable, partable, defensible, credible (see quotation in note to l. 1182), etc.; suffrable occurs again Reason and S. 289 b (also in Wife of Bath's Prol. 442); and cp. Pilgrim. 154 a:

"Thy body . . . . insensyble,
Wych muste with the be penyble.—
Sustene also & be suffrable;
For he wyl also be partable
Off thy merytes & guerdouns."

In Shakspere we find still "a contemptible spirit" = a contemptuous, scornful spirit (Much Ado II, 3, 187), and "an unquestionable spirit" = an unquestioning spirit (As You Like It III, 2, 393).

1271. Troy-Book B_8 a:

"What shulde I lenger in this mater dwell?"

1272. Comeþ off.] MSS. T. L, and the Prints omit off; that the majority of MSS. are right, is made probable by the following passages: Troil. II, 310: "com of, and tel me what it is"; similarly, ib. 1738, 1742, 1750; Miller's Tale 540; Freres Tale 304; Court of Love 906; Assembly of Ladies, fol. 258 c.

Troy-Book L_4 b: "Wherfore come of, and fully condescende."

Ib. Q_3 a: "Come of therfore, and let nat be prolongued."

De duobus Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 64 a):

"Tel on for shame; cum of & lat me see."

Pilgrim. of the Soul, Caxton, fol. 66 a:

"Come of, come of, and slee me here as blyue."

1275. haþ, and shal, obeid], i. e. hath obeyed and shall obey. For this shortened form of construction see Troil. II, 888, 998; III, 1558; IV, 1652; V, 833; Clerkes Tale IV, 36; Frank. Prol. 16; Hous of Fame 82; Rom. of the R. 387; Generydes, ed. Wright, 4906; Court of Love 922; Æsop 8, 1:

"An olde proverbe haþe beo seyde and shal."

1279. wele is here used as an adjective; its opposite woo often occurs so also; see Knightes Tale 68; Prol. to the Canterbury T., 351, and Skeat's note; further Abbott, A Shakespearian Grammar, § 230; Zupitza's notes to Guy of Warwick, ll. 1251 and 3474; Einenkel, Streifzüge, p. 112.

Digitized by Google

1283.]rifti] = well-ordered, becoming, seemly; cp. Troil. III, 162:

"She toke hire leve at hem ful thriftily,
As she wel koude," . . .

Frank. Tal: 444: (a clerk) "Which that in Latyn thriftily hem grette." Cp. also the use of "thrifty" in Prol. to the Cant. T., 105; Chan. Yem. Prol. 50; Shipm. Prol. 3; Chan. Yem. Prol. 340: unthriftily = slovenly.

1290. For the omission of the relative, cp. Kingis Quair 61, 3:

"To here the mirth was thañ amang."

Nonne Prestes Tale 355: "he had found a corn lay in the yard."
Duchesse 365: "I asked oon, ladde a lymere."
Peele, David and Beths. III, 2:

"And muster all the men will serve the king."

See Abbott, § 244; Mätzner, Engl. Transl. by Grece, p. 524 etc.

1295. The same as l. 385.

1297. Troil. II, 1622: "What sholde I longer in this tale taryen?"
Man of Law's Tale 276: "What schuld I in this tale lenger tary?"
Chan. Yem. Tale 210: "What schuld I tary al the longe day?"
Troy-Book S, d: "what shulde I lenger tarye."

1303. Calliope.] See Hous of F. 1400; Troil. III, Proem 45; Court of Love 19; L. Lady e, a, quoted in the note to l. 958, etc. Lydgate is particularly fond of saying that Calliope never took him under her patronage. Calliope plays a very prominent part in Douglas's Palice of Honour.

1307. The same expression occurs Pilgrim. 270 b:

"Doth hym honour and reuerence."

1308. Orpheus.] Son of Calliope and Apollo; see the beginning of the Troy-Book (fol. A, b):

"And helpe also, o thou Callyope,
That were moder vnto Orpheus,
Whose dytees were so melodyous
That the werbles of his resownynge harpe
Appese dyde the bytter wordes sharpe
Bothe of parchas, and furyes infernall." . . .

Again, in the Falls of Pr. 32 a, he is called

"Sonne of Apollo and of Caliope"; further
"Orpheus, father of armonye," ib. 32 b;

so also Duchesse 569: "Orpheus, god of melodye."

Orpheus is also mentioned Assem. of Gods b, a, as a "poete musykall"; further in the Hous of Fame 1203; in Douglas's Palice of Honour, ed. Small, I, 21, 15; in MS. Ashmole 59, fol. 64 a:

"And Orpheus with heos stringes sharpe Syngeþe a roundell with his temperd herte"

(herte, in the MS., is evidently a mistake for harpe).
Iicason and S. 279 b:

"the verray heuenly soun
Passed in comparisoun
The harpis most melodious
Of Dauid and of Orpheous."

Orpheus and Eurydice are mentioned together in Lydgate's Testament, Halliwell, p. 238; in Albon, ed. Horstmann, p. 37, note, stanza 4; and Henryson wrote a poem Orpheus and Eurydice. Orpheus is not unfrequently mentioned together with Amphion, as in our passage; see note to l. 1310.

1309. strengis touch.] We find "touchen cords" in the Isle of Ladies 2153.

1310. Amphion.] How he built the walls of Thebes, is related in the S. of Thebes 357 a; see also Falls of Pr., fol. 8 a, 145 b, 163 d; Mauncyples Tale 12; Knightes Tale 688; Douglas's Palice of Honour, ed. Small, I, 21, 2 and 3. Orpheus and Amphion are mentioned together in March. Tale 472, and Skelton's Garland of Laurel 272 and 273.

1312. queme and please], frequent phrase; see Troy-Book T, b; De duobus

Digitized by Google

Merc., fol. 60 b; Falls of Pr. 72 b; Reason and S. 242 b; queme or plese, Troy-Book B_3 b.

1319. of hard.] This way of forming an adverbial expression occurs also in l. 574 and 615: "of newe"; in Troil. II, 1236:

"That ye to hym of harde now ben ywonne."

Falls of Pr. 72 a: "of olde, and not of newe"; Compleint 159, 198; Reason and S. 283 a. Troy-Book M_3 a presents even a comparative:

"Ne came none hoost of more harde to londe."

1325. þer is nomore to sein.] Exceedingly common formula in Chaucer and Lydgate; cp., for instance, Squieres Tale I, 306; Frank. Tale 862; Maunc. Tale 162; Pite 21, 77.

1328. Troy-Book U_1 a:

"That fynally, as goddes haue be-hyght,
Thorugh prescyence of theyr eternall myght
To victorye that ye shall attayne."

"Prescience" is a personification in the Assem. of Gods.

1331. "by iuste purveiaunce" occurs also Troil. II, 527. "providence" is, of course, only the learned doublet of "purveiaunce."

1334. enviroun is used as a post-position; the sentence is thus to be construed: In consequence of this grant, a new ballad was straightway begun throughout the temple, by reason of the great satisfaction of all present.

1348. Willy planet.] The same as "welwilly" in Troilus III, 1208:

"Venus mene I, the welwilly planete!" and

Black Knight 627: "O feire lady, wel-willy founde at al!"

1348, 1349: Black Knight 612, etc.:

"Esperus, the goodly bryghte sterre,
So glad, so feire, so persaunt eke of chere,
I mene Venus with her bemys clere,
That hevy hertis oonly to releve
Is wont of custom for to shewe at eve."

See also ib., ll. 5, 6 and Temple of Glas, ll. 253, 254, and 328—331; further Kingis Quair 72, 5 and Skeat's note.

1355. daister.] Cp. Albon II, 1749: "Venus, called the daysterre."

1362. There is always some contrivance or other to wake these dreamers. Here—and it is a good idea, I think—it is the heavenly melody of the lovers' song; Chaucer, Duchesse 1322, is waked by the castle-bell; in the Parl. of F., by the song of the birds; so also Dunbar, in the Thrissill and the Rois, and the poet of Cuckoo and Nightingale; Deguileville, by the sound of the matin-bell; King James, by Fortune taking him by the ear to place him on the top of her wheel; Alanus (De Planctu Naturæ), by the light of the candles going out; Octavien de St. Gelais, at the end of the Vergier d'Honneur, by the noise the people make in uttering their opinions; the writer of the Assembly of Ladies, because water "sprang in her visage"; Skelton, in the Bowge of Court, by imagining he was leaping into the water; Douglas, at the end of the Palice of Honour, by falling into a pool; Lyndsay (Dream), by the sound of cannon, etc.

noise.] Cf. Albon II, 1943:

"Heuenly angels, that made noyse and sowne";

further Edmund II, 911:

"This heuenly noise gan ther hertis lyhte."

Of course, we need not substitute uoise, as Horstmann thinks. We have again a "heavenly noise" in the Fairy Queen I, 12, 39, and in Painter's Palace of Pleasure (ed. Haslewood II, 272); a "sweete noyse" occurs Maunc. Tale 196.

1366. Cf. Rom. of the R. 3859:

"I was a-stoned, and knewe no rede."

1372. With similar regret Deguileville awakes from his vision:

"Bien dolent que si tost auoye
Perdu mon solas et ma ioye;
Iesu le me doint recouurer" (Barthole and Petit, fol. 148 a).

Digitized by Google

1374. auisioun.] See Hous of F. 7; Duchesse 285; Sompnoures Tale 150; Persones Tale, p. 268, etc. The word occurs often in the Troy-Book, in Albon II, 521, 561, 589. Compare also Falls of Pr. 59 d:

(consider . . .) "Howe dremes shewed by influence deuine
Be not lyke sweuenes, but like auisions."

1380. The "treatises" mentioned in the following lines are not clearly defined; I suppose ll. 1378—1383, and again ll. 1388—1392, allude to a "treatise," with which the world has not been favoured; the "simpil tretis" in l. 1387 must mean the Temple of Glas. Similar to our passage is the conclusion of the Flour of C., to which, consequently, a "ballad" of three stanzas is appended.

1380. processe.] = progress; progress of a story, or narrative; the story or treatise itself. Very common in the latter meaning. Cp. Leg. of Ariadne 29; Troilus II, 268, 292, 424; III, 421; Leg. of Austin, Halliwell, p. 149:

"Doth your deveer this processe to corecte."

Falls of Pr. 112 c: "In this processe briefly to procede."

Ib. 218 d: "And pray al tho that shal thys processe see."

Story of Thebes, fol. 360 d:

"and gan a processe make,
First how he was in the forest take."

Troy-Book Aa$_6$ c: "And shortly here Guydo doth forth pace,
And lyst of them no lenger processe make."

Ib. Cc$_5$ c: "Of them can I none other processe make."

Ib. Cc$_8$ b: "Fro hensforth I can no processe rede."

De duob. Merc., fol. 66 a:

"I will entrete thys processe forth in playn."

Secreta Secretorum (MS. Ashmole 46, fol. 97 a):

"Excellent prynce, this processe to compyle Takith at gree the Rudnesse of my style."

1392. Who is "my ladi?" Does the monk represent himself as a lover, in the conventional style of the period, or does my lady mean the lady of the "amoreux," at whose request, according to Shirley, the monk composed the poem? The first assumption is made more probable by the Envoy of the Black Knight.

1393, etc. Similar Envoys occur in Black Knight 674: "Go litel quayre" (so also Skelton, Garl. of Laurel 1533); Chorl and Bird 379: "Go, gentille quayer;" Troy-Book Dd$_1$ d: "Go lytell boke," etc.; L. Lady m$_4$ b: "Goo lityl book" (this however seems to be added by Caxton); Edmund: "Go, litel book!" Falls of Pr., fol. 218 c: "With letters and leaues goe litle booke tremblyng;" Kingis Quair 194, 1: "Go litill tretise;" Pastime of Pl.: "Go, little boke;" Belle Dame, the last stanza but three: "Go litile booke;" Troilus V, 1800: "Go, litel boke, go, litel myn tragedie."

1400. correcte.] See the Introduction, p. cxli. Cp. Boccaccio, De casibus, at the end: "ut suppleatur quod omissum sit, & superfluum resecetur;" further Troilus V, 1872; Persones Prol. 55, etc.; Sec. Nun's Tale 84: "And pray yow that ye wol my werk amende." The Falls of Pr. ask the readers "to correct where as they se nede" (fol. 217 b), and, again (fol. 217 c):

"I pray them y^t they would Fauour the Miter and doe correccion."

At the beginning of the Falls of Pr. (fol. A$_1$ c), Lydgate commends Laurent for his

"entencion to amende, correcten and declare,
Not to condemne of no presumpcion."

Dance of Macabre, fol. 224 c:

"Lowely I pray with all myne heart entere
To correct where as ye se nede."

Reason and S. 202 b: "Besechinge him for to directe
Al that ys mys, and to correcte."

L. Lady b$_8$ a: "I put hit mekely to hir correccion."

Æsop, Prol. 46: "I me submyt to theyr correccioun."

Digitized by Google

Flour of C. 109: "it is al vnder correction,
What I reherse in commendacion."
Guy of Warwick 74, 1: "Meekly compiled under correccyoun."
Chorl and Bird 385: "Alle thing is saide vndre correccioun."
Similarly Secreta Secretorum, fol. 97 b.
Pilgrimage of the Soul, end (Caxton 1483):
"and goodly correcten
where that it nedeth oughte to adden or withdrawen;"
in the original French: . . . "doulcement corrigeront,
Se riens y a a corriger,
A amender ou retracter."
Troy-Book E$_3$ a: "Prayeng the reder where my worde myssyt, Causynge the metre to be halte or lame,
For to correcte, to saue me fro blame" . . . .
Ib. E$_3$ b: "And where I erre, I praye you to correcte."
Ib. Dd$_2$ b: "To correcte rather than disdayne."
Ib. Dd$_4$ d: "And the submytte to theyr correccyon."
See also ib. E$_4$ b.
Edmund: "Meekly requeryng, voyde off presumpcioun, Wher thow faylest, to do correccioun."
The word correccioun forms here the burden of five stanzas.
Albon II, 1993: "I wyll procede vnder correction."
Pur le Roy 63: "For to correcte where as thei see nede."
Pilgrimage 4 a: "For my wrytyng, in conclusioun, Ys al yseyd vnder correccioun."
Leg. of Austin (Halliwell, p. 149):
"By cause I am of wittis dul and old,
Doth your deveer this processe to corecte."
Belle Dame: "Where thou art wrong . . .
Thee to correcte in any parte or all."
Cf. also Lancelot of the Laik, Prol. 184, 185; fur'her Skelton's Phil. Sparrow 1246, and his Envoy to the Garland of Laurel, l. 1533, etc.

1402. Perhaps we ought to adopt the reading of MSS. T. P. F. B. I., and scan the line:

"I méne þat bénygne || & góodli óf hir fáce."

COMPLEYNT.

19—21. The same simile occurs in the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales, ll. 179—181; further Troil. IV, 787:
"How shold a fissh withouten water dure?"
Departing of Th. Chaucier (MS. Ashm. 59, fol. 46 b):
"What is a fisshe oute of þe see,
For alle heos scales (MS. seles) silver sheene, Bot dede anoone as man may see."

42. ȝoue me swich a pul.] The same expression occurs in the Falls of Pr., fol. 140 b.

125. "noun-suffysaunce" occurs also in the Pilgrim., fol. 197 a. Chaucer translates impotentia by nounpower, Boethius 2074.

136. myn swete fo.] Very frequent expression; it occurs Troilus I, 874; V, 228; Anelida 272; poem XXI in Skeat's edition of Chaucer's M. P., p. 214, l. 41; De duob. Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 62 a): "My swete foo is hard as any stele." See again l. 296 of the Compleynt.

196. Read mworeke. Shirley's reading is vnwrek, not buwrek, as given, on p. 61, in the various readings.

198. Many allusions to the two casks containing sweet and bitter liquor (represented as attributes of Fortune or Jupiter) are to be found in contemporary poetry. See particularly Gower, Confessio Amantis, book VI (Pauli III, 12, etc.); similar to this passage is Reason and S., fol. 202 b:

Digitized by Google

(Fortune) "Had throgh hir subtil gyn be-gonne
To yive me drynke of her tonne,
Of which she hath, with-oute where,
Couched tweyñ in hir celler:
That ooñ ful of prosperite,
The tother of aduersyte,
Myd hir wonderful taverne . . . . .
And of this ilke drynkes tweyne
Serveth fortune in certeyne
To alle foolkys eve and morowe,
Some with Ioye and some with sorowe."

Cp. further Pilgrim., fol. 4 b:

"Nor I drank newer of the sugryd tonne
Off Jubiter, couchyd in hys celer;
So strange I fonde to me hys boteler,
Off poetys callyd Ganymede."

De duob. Merc. (MS. Hh. IV. 12, fol. 70 b):

"As Iupiter hath cowchid tunnys too
With-in hys celar, platly, and no moo:
That ooñ is full of ioy and gladnes,
That other full of sorow and bitternes.
Who that will entyr to tamen on the swete,
He must as well takyn hys auenture
To taste the bytter, or he the vesell lete."

Comp. also ib., fol. 65 b; further Legend of Good W., Prol. 195; Wife of Bath's Prol. 170. We have the fiction further in extenso in the Roman de la Rose, ed. Méon 6836, etc., and read also in Boethius, De consol. philos., book II, prose 2: "Nonne adolescentulus δύο τοὺς πίθους, τὸν μὲν ἕνα κακῶν, τὸν δὲ ἕτερον καλῶν, in Jovis limine jacere didicisti?" The whole fiction goes back to Iliad xxiv, 527, etc.:

"Δοιοὶ γάρ τε πίθοι κατακείαται ἐν Διὸς οὐδεῖ δώρων, οἷα δίδωσι, κακῶν, ἕτερος δὲ ἐάων," etc.

202. eysel or venegre.] Cp. Troy-Book E, c:

"Of bytter eysell, and of egre wyne."

203. enbrace.] See note to Temple of Glas, l. 575.

300. We find Judith often mentioned; see, for instance, Man of Law's Tale 841; March. Tale 122; Melibe, p. 150; Albon, ed. Horstmann, p. 37, note, stanza 5, and particularly, the Monk's Tale 561—584. Nowhere, however, is any emphasis laid on her "doublenesse" to Holofernes, as in our passage.

304, etc. Cp. Falls of Pr., Book VI, beginning.

335. dangerous.] Cp. the note to l. 156 of the T. of Glas; see also Chaucer's Prologue 517. "Dangerous" is a woman, in whom "Daunger" has his abode; it means thus "unapproachable, inaccessible." The word occurs thus in the Wife of Bath's Prol. 151, 514, Tale 234; further Court of Love 901; Rom. of the Rose 490, 591, 1492, 2312, 3727, etc.—Has "Large in refuse," in the main, the same meaning as "dangerous to take," or have we to adopt Shirley's "Large yiving"? "Large in yeuyng" occurs also Edmund I, 1006.

336. Does streyt mean here "straightforward," "ready"? Falls of Pr. 170 a has the word in the opposite meaning:

"Streyt in keping, goin liberalite" (Galba).

Similarly Pilgrm. (MS. Cott. Tib. A. VII, fol. 94 b):

"They seyne eke they be lyberal,
Though they be streyte and ravynous."

379. Similarly Falls of Pr. 146 c: "laugh & make a mowe."

Pilgrm. 169 b: "gruchche & mowhes make";

Ib. 225 b: "Scornyng off the Iewes alle, (of Christ)
Ther mowyng & derysioun" (similarly Pers. Tale, p. 279);

Digitized by Google

further Troilus III, 1778:

"Than laugheth she, and maketh hym the mowe" (Fortune).

Rom. of the Ro. 4355:

(Love and Fortune) "Which whilom wole on folke smyle,
And glowmbe on hem another while."

395, etc. This is a distinct allusion to the worship of the daisy-flower; cp. note to l. 70 of the T. of Glas.

476. We have lyeth as a dissyllable in the Pilgrim. 174 a:

"Shal lete the way that ly[e]th wrong."

477. This line occurs word for word in Rom. of the Ro. 1971.

494—515. The writer was evidently highly pleased with this interminable litany of antitheses and oxymora. His model may have been Rom. of the Ro. 4706, etc.

529. Both MSS. read "hete of cold." Being perfectly sure that this must be nonsense, I changed of into and. Nevertheless of seems to be right; cp. Black Knight, 237, 238:

"So that my hete, pleynly as I fele,
Of grevouse colde ys cause every dele;"

further Troil. I, 419 and 420:

"Allas, what is this wonder maladye?
For hete of cold, for cold of hete I dye."

This example shows what even "obvious" emendations may be worth. Nevertheless, to die for heat of cold, and for cold of heat, is indeed a "wonder maladye."

539, etc. Our author probably derived his information with respect to this wonderful lamp from Bartholomæus, De Proprietatibus Rerum XVI, 11 (MS. Harl. 4789), who says of the stone "Albeston": "For in a temple of Venus was made a candyll sticke: on whyche was a lantern so brennynge that it myght not be quenched wyth tempeste nother with reyne: as Ysider sayth. li°. XV°., Capitulo de Gemmis." In Isidore's Etymologiæ, Book XVI, Chapter IV, No. 4, we find: "Denique in templo quodam fuisse Veneris fanum (dicunt), ibique candelabrum, et in eo lucernam sub dio sic ardentem, ut eam nulla tempestas, nullus imber exstingueret" (Migne, Patrologia, vol. 82, col. 565). The earliest mention, however, of this lamp, seems to be in Ampelius, Liber memorialis, cap. 8 (shortly after the passage on the Pergamenian sculptures): "Argyro est fanum Veneris super mare; ibi est lucerna super candelabrum posita, lucens ad mare sub divo cælo, quam neque ventus aspergit, nec pluvia exstinguit" (Thomas Munckerus, Mythographi Latini 1681, II, 283, note b, conjectures dispergit for aspergit). For the stone asbestos, see Pliny 37, 54; Solinus 7, 13; Augustine De civ. Dei 21, 7, 1, and a note to Krasinski's Irydion; further Court of S. c_8 b; Falls of Pr. 183 c, stanza 4; Reason and S. 297 b; Intelligenza 43, 2. Cp. with our present passage also the following lines from the Pilgrim., fol. 134 b:

"And the name off thys dredful ston
Ys ycallyd Albeston,
Wych, whan yt receyveth ffyr,
To hete yt hath so gret desyr
That [MS. Than] when with ffyr yt ys ymeynt, Affter neuere yt wyl be queynt."

The lamp is again mentioned, in 1567, by John Maplet, A greene Forest, fol. 2: "Isidore sayth in his .XVI. booke, that in a certaine temple of Venus there was made and hoong vp such a Candlesticke, wherein was a light burning on that wise, that no tempest nor storme could put it out, & he beleueth that this Candlesticke had somewhat of Albeston beset within." The name Albeston instead of "asbestos" is due to a perverse etymology from lapis albus.—For many particulars in this note I am indebted to Dr. von Fleischhacker. See also the N. E. Dictionary under "Albeston."

575. Cp. Anelida 211:

"So thirleth with the poynt of remembraunce
The swerde of sorowe . . . Myn herte."

Digitized by Google

The quotations in the Notes are, as a rule, taken from the following texts:

Falls of Princes, from Tottel's print. 1554.
Troy-Book, from Pynson's print, 1513.
Story of Thebes, from Stowe's Chaucer, 1561.
Court of Sapience, from Wynken de Worde's print, 1510.
Pilgrimage of Man, from MS. Cotton Vit. C. XIII and Tib. A. VII.
Pilgrimage of the Soul, from Caxton's print.
Life of our Lady, from Caxton's print.
Reason and Sensuality, from MS. Fairfax 16.
Assembly of Gods, from Wynken de Worde's print (British Museum, press-mark C. 18. a. 21).
Secreta Secretorum, from MS. Ashmole 46.
De duobus Mercatoribus, from MS. Hh. IV. 12 (Cambridge).
Guy of Warwick, from Zupitza's edition.
Aesop, from Sauerstein's edition (Anglia IX).
Horse, goose, and sheep, from Sykes's reprint for the Roxburghe Club (1822).
Chorl and Bird, from Halliwell (Minor Poems), and MS. Longleat 258.
Edmund and Fremund, from Horstmann's edition.
Albon and Amphabel, ,, ,, ,,
Legend of St. Margaret, ,, ,, ,,
Dance of Macabre, from Tottel's Falls of Princes.
Flour of Curtesie, from Stowe's Chaucer, 1561.
Chaucer, from Skeat's annotated texts, and the Aldine edition.
Kingis Quair, from Skeat's edition.

The abbreviations used in the Notes will be easily understood by means of the above list.

Digitized by Google

GLOSSARY.

[For the more interesting or rare words, the Notes should also be compared.]

TEMPLE OF GLAS.

abaisshed, abashed, dumb with confusion 1046.
abraide, to start, break forth abruptly 1054.
accesse, see axcesse.
accoye, see akoye.
acordid, reconciled 110.
againward, again, back, in return 644, 1401.
akoye, to calm, quiet, appease 409.
al, although 365.
alderlast, last of all 247.
aldernext, nearest of all, next 70.
amate, dismayed, daunted, cast down 401.
and, if 1002, 1289.
apaid, satisfied, contented; wele apaide 1195, 1274; euel apaied 1399.
aquarie, Aquarius 5.
arace, to eradicate, tear away 894, 1141.
as, expletive, before adverbs: as fast 39; as þo 525, 1366; as nov 956.
assay, test, proof 1192.
astert, p. t., escaped 1052.
astonied, astonyed, astounded, benumbed, dismaid 24, 1044, 1366; astoneid 876, 934.
atones, at once 458.
atte, at the 13, 30, 405.
atwixen, between 348.
auaunce, to advance, further, help 660.
auaunte, to vaunt oneself, boast 1172.
auisioun, vision, dream 1374.
auters, altars 473.
avowe, avowal, solemn promise 771.
axcesse, access, attack of fever 358.
axen, to ask 672, 725, 765, 800, 1178.

bataile, battle 592, 1246.
bawme, balm 258.
behest, bihest, promise 1036, 1057, 1322.
bemys, beams, rays 272, 329, 718.
bentaile, = be entaile 37.
bet, bette, adv., better (312), 1063.
bie, buy 719, 1351.
bihest, see behest.
bihote, vb., promise 383, 418.
bise, busy 535, 1146; bisie 1168.
biseme, to beseem, become 1143.
bole, bull 119.
borow, surety, pledge, bail 1145.
bote, relief, remedy 457.
bowzis, boughs 510.
brace, to brace, strengthen 1290.
brenne, burn 356, 362, 842; p. t. brente 840.
brid, bird 603.
buxumnes, obedience 878.

can, know 688.
cercled, circled, made circular 716.
champartie, see note to l. 1164.
chere, cheer, countenance, face 52, 290, 298, 315, etc.
chese, to choose 214, 336.
clepe, call 804.
compas, circle; in compaswise 37.
compassid, encompassed, enclosed 755; compast 1053.
compassing, designing, plotting 871.
conning, knowledge, skill 951.
contune, to continue 1333; p.p. contuned 390, contynued 374.
coupe, known 200. See also koupe.

Digitized by Google

crop, protuberance; top, fruit 455, 1210.
croude, to push 534.
curen, to cover, hide 205.
curteis, courteous 1166.

daister, day-star 1355.
daliaunce, speech, conversation 291. See note to this line.
daunte, to subdue 482, 619, 1171.
debate, strife 399.
dedeli, deadly 14, 937, 945.
deinte, value, worth, esteem 1257.
demening, demeanour 750.
demeyned, behaved 1051.
departid, separated, divided, parted; p.p. 354; p.t. 781.
depured, purified 1225.
deuyse, to devise 471, 927, etc.; to tell 538, 698.
deroider, dispeller 329.
differring, deferring, delay 1206.
dilacioun, delay 877.
discure, to discover 161, 629, 916.
dispitous, spiteful 761.
dole, dolefulness 551.
dome, sb., doom 1079.
donne, adj., dun, dark 30; vb., to darken 252.
doublenes, duplicity 441, 1158, 1245, 1253; stanza 25 c, l. 5.
dul, vb., to become dull, feel dull 407.
dures, roughness 515.

eft, efte, again 41, 1400.
efter, eftir, after 233, 1251.
egalli, equally 277.
eke, also 77, 97, 108, etc.
elde, eld, old age 182, 187.
emprise, undertaking; teaching, lore? 421, 1073. See note to l. 421.
enbrace, to set on fire, inflame 846. See note to l. 575.
enbracen, to embrace 1107, 575.
enbrouded, embroidered 301, 309.
endite, tell, describe 946, 1378.
ennuyd, renewed, made fresh and new 275.
entaile, shape, form 37.
entendep, is given to, inclined to 189.
ententif, attentive 470.
entere, (entirely) devoted 220.
enviroun, adv., round about 283, 505; postposition 1334.
er, ere, before 13, 572, etc.
estres, apartments, inner parts of a house 29, 549.
euer in one, at all times, continually 25, 1333.
eueredel, adv., every deal, throughout 1058.
euerich, every 535.
ewrous, happy 562.
examplaire, exemplarie, pattern, model 294, 752.
expoune, to expound 304, 1389.
eysel, vinegar, stanza 3 b, l. 5.

fadur, father 389.
falsed, deceived 63.
fantasie, phantasy, mind 513.
fasoun, fashion, shape 35.
feine, to feign 204, 522, 762, 911; to be slack 996 (see note to this line).
femynynite, womanliness 1045.
fer, ferre, far 345; ful fer 17.
ferforþ, far forth, far 1327; as ferforþe (as) 1029.
ferse, fierce 1256.
fest, feast 464; festival 101, 473.
fine, fin, sb., end 411, 692, etc.
(fine), fyne, vb., to end (intrans.) 372; (trans.) 910.
(fine), fyne, vb., to refine 1191.
fire, adj., fiery 574.
flaumed, inflamed 843.
fleting, floating 53.
flitten, to remove 1248.
for, on account of, because of, out of 1, 2, 10, 11, 29, etc.; in spite of 59, 124, 823; with the participle 632, 934, 1366; conj., because 68; for þat 408, for cause þat 953.
forcasten, fordriven, to drive out of the right way, to toss about; forcastep 606; fordriue (p.p.) 609.
forseid, afore-said 1389.
forth bi pace, to pass by 230.
fortune, vb., to favour, make fortunate 903, 1101; p.p. fortuned 1347, 1361.
for-wrynkked, crooked 84.
foule, bird 139.
freshli, adj., fresh 273.
fyne, see fine.

Digitized by Google

gan, began 10, 13, 23, 26, etc. (often merely paraphrastical).
garnement, garment 303.
gentilles, gentilesse, gentleness 287, 970.
gie, guie, to lead, guide 973, 1093.
gif, to give 597.
ginneþ, begins 656.
glade, to gladden 1211; gladest 703; glading 1356.
graue, p.p., buried 239, 1039.
gre, to take at (in) gre, to accept in good part, graciously 1085, 1387.
gru(c)ch, to grudge, murmur 592, 1086.
guerdon, sb., reward 806.
guerdone, vb., reward 1139.
guie, see gie.

halowe, hallow, celebrate 100.
hatter, hotter 362.
hauteyn, haughty 323.
hest, promise 498; plural hestis 59 (promises); 853 (commands).
het, p.p., heated, inflamed 842.
hole, hool, whole, entire 97, 364, 488, 497, 857, 1227, 1317.
holi, wholly, entirely 1076, 1330; hoolly 630; hoolli 722; holli 1134.
homagere, one who pays homage 571.
hool, see hole.
hwe, hue 48, 454, 616, 937.

Iblent, blent, mingled 32.
ich, Iche, each 748, 1007.
Iewise, judgment, pain, torment 238.
Ifrore, frozen 20.
iliche, equally, equably 1202.
I-mevid, moved 669.
inli, inwardly, deeply 765, 1087.
inspeccioun, examination 278.
I persid, pierced 987.
Istellified, changed into a star, glorified 136.
I voide, void, devoid 413.
Iȝolde, yielded, surrendered 586.

kepe, sb., heed 13.
kiþe, to make known, show 194.
kouþe, acquainted with 618. See note.
kunnyng, knowledge, skill 538.
kynd, nature 177, 224, 279, 343.

laiser, leisure 393.
lak, lack, defect 150, 564, 749, 791, 820, 1137.
lase, snare, net 423.
laurer, laurel 115.
lech, leech, physician 916.
ledue, language, speech 139.
lenger, longer 390, 1297.
lere, to teach 656; to learn 297, 1021.
leuyr, liefer, rather 1012.
lich, like 46, 272, 603, 628, 784, 798, 813, 1030; liche 850.
liklynesse, likeness, semblance 18.
lisse, to ease, relieve 1220.
loft, on l., aloft 645.
longiþ, belongs 875.
loureþ, looks sullen 218.

male bouche, wicked tongue, stanza 25 b, l. 7. maseþ, amazes, bewilders 682.
mede, meed, recompense 353, 415, etc.
meint, mingled 276.
meruaile, sb., marvel 267.
meruaile, mervaile, vb., to marvel, wonder 279, 585.
meve, to move 1245.
modir, mother 321.
mot, must 357.

ne, not 27, 68, 184, 240, 399, etc.
ne, nor 161, 178, 403, 508, 594, etc.
neueradele, in no way, by no means 426.
noise, sound 1362.
nvfangilnes, newfangledness 1243.
nyl, will not 956.
nys, is not 794.
nyst, knew not 17, 1371.

obeissaunce, obedience 324, 864.
of, of grace, in grace 490; of right, by right 954, 1063. See also note to l. 1319.
offencioun, offence 429, 801, 884.
ones, onys, once 675, 725, 925, etc.
oþer, oþir, or 943, 1038.
oþer next, next following 209.
ouerdrawe, to pass over 610.
ouershake, to pass away, abate, stop 614.

Digitized by Google

overslake, to abate, slacken 614 (reading of L. S. Pr.).

pantire, snare 604.
pensifhede, pensiveness 2.
peping, crying, screaming 180.
peraventure, peradventure, perhaps 233, 241.
percaas, perhaps 237.
perre, jewelry 301, 310.
persant, piercing 328, 756, 1341.
ple, plea 681.
plein, plainly 1265; in plein 1390.
plete, to plead 686.
port, bearing 266, 291, 745, 901, 975.
possid, pushed 608.
prefe, sb., prove 1254.
prese, pres, sb., press, crowd 533, 545, 547.
pris, esteem, highest reputation 259, 621; value 1258; praise 1345, 1381.
purid, purified 1192.
purueaunce, purveyance 862.

queme, to please 1312; stanza 3 b, l. 7. quite, to quit, requite 1186.

race, to run, rush 756.
raced, erased, cancelled 1238.
recch, care, mind 982.
recounford, comfort 330.
recured, recovered 1226.
rede, sb., counsel, advice 642, 688, 1366.
rede, vb., to advise 1151.
regalie, supremacy, first rank 261.
reherse, to relate 560, 949.
remue, change, remove 1182.
rouȝt, cared 850, 939.

secrenes, secrecy 295.
seld, seldom 212.
semlyhed, seemliness 290.
shene, shining, bright 1101.
sikirnes, security, certainty 1254.
siþ, since 369, 423, 478, etc.; siþin 482; siþen 735.
siþe, ofte s., ofttimes, often 193.
skil, reason 1116, 1382.
skyes, skies, clouds 30, 611.
somwhile, sometimes 655.
sonnyssh, sunny 271.
sote, soote, sweet 458, 540, 1264.
soþefast, true 974.
sound, to cure, heal 602, 1200.
soune, sowne, sb., sound 197, 1336.
spere, sphere, globe 272, 396, 716, 1344.
spill, to destroy, kill 439.
stere, to steer, guide, direct 1349.
stert, to escape 584.
sterue, sterve, to die 435, 791.
stile, writing instrument, pen 956.
stoneiþ, astounds 683.
stremes, rays 32, 252, 263, 326, 582, 702, 815, 1101, 1342.
strengis, strings 1309.
suffrable, suffering, enduring 1266.
suppriséd, overpowered, overcome 765, 938.
swelt, feel sultry 844.
sweltre, feel sultry 358.

tast, takest 602.
tempest, vb., to worry, disquiet 1157.
thouȝt, heaviness 1, 1174, 1260, 1370.
tofore, before 32, 198, 249, 251, etc.; toforn 883; toforne 994, 1281, 1284.
togedir, together 276.
transmwe, to transform 120.
trete, treaty 214.
twyn, to part, separate 1360.
þilke, the same, that 81; stanza 25 a, l. 7.
þo, adv., then 370, 525, 1366, 1369.
þo, dem. pr., those 1165, 1337, 1351.
þrifti, see note to l. 1283.

vaileþ, avails 622.
verre, verrai, verrey, very, true 571, 980, 1001.
viage, voyage, journey 900.
vnfortuned, unfortunate, luckless 389.
vnwarli, unawares 95, 105, 617.
voide, to chase away 253, 1158, 1357; to voide oute of, to empty of, free from 331.
vppermore, higher up 137.

walk, walked 34, 247, 552, 565. See welk.
waloing, turning restlessly 12.
wanhope, despair 673, 895.

Digitized by Google

waped, dismayed, dejected 401.
wawe, wave 609.
weddir, weather 395.
weke, week 1201.
welbesein, seemly, comely, of good appearance 1167.
welk, walked 140; welke 550.
were, wire 271.
weymentacioun, lamentation 949.
wiȝt, person, creature 360, 398, 403, 553, etc.
willi, willing, ready, propitious 1348.
wirship, worship, dignity 342, 399.
wisse, teach 637.
wite, sb., blame 166, 208.
wite, vb., to blame 666.

COMPLEYNT.

acordyn, agree 231, 545.
aforne, before 582.
alayene, to allay 273.
albiston, 540. See note to l. 539.
amasid, amazed, bewildered 518.
a-mong, sometimes 171.
apeyrid, impaired, injured 519.
aryete, Aries, the Ram 250.
astert, to escape 12.
astonyd, stunned 109.
a-tamyd, broached 198.
attemperaunce, temperance 339 (Shirley reads attemporaltee).
a-tweyne, between two people 234.
avise, opinion 354.

baume, balm 431.
bedynge, bidding 468.
brend, burnt 560.
brenne, to burn 543, 547, 552.
bromys, broom 417.

chere, countenance 26, 75, 180, etc.
cheuere, shiver 532.
cheuyrfoyl, honey-suckle 429.
clepe, to call 149.
commyxtyoun, union, uniting 253.
contune, to continue 361.
crop, top, fruit 397.

dalyaunce, conversation 340.
del, part 45.
demyn, deem 169.
departycyoun, separation 254.
depeyntyd, portrayed 79.
despitous, spiteful, contemptuous 346.
deynte, liking 107, 170.
dol, dole, grief 245, 317.
donne, dun, dark 366, 372.
dotous, doubting, mistrustful 343.
duresse, hardship 588.
effi, again; effi sones, soon again 620.
egre, sharp, acid 201.
ek, also, likewise 70, 349, 452, etc.
empryse, undertaking 160.
enbrace, to burn 203. See note to T. of Glas, l. 575.
euery-chon, every one 44.
eysel, vinegar 202.

feer, fer, fyr, fire 541, 544, 607.
feere, in f., together 271.
fel, strong, biting, sharp 201.
femynynytee, womanliness 326.
feyntyse, feigning 477.
flaumbe, sb., flame 542.
forderkyd, darkened 26.
for-nome, taken from, deprived 56.
forpossid, pushed about, tossed 530.
frounynd, frowning 368.
fyne, to end 280.

ȝaf, gave 179.
ȝan, began 220.
ȝate, gate 446.
ȝeve, give 135; gave (=O.E. geâfon) 177.
gilt, committed 115.
glede, burning coal 525.
ȝoue, given 42.
gouvernaunce, discreet behaviour 328.
grevis, groves 428.

herdegromys, herd-grooms, herdsmen 418.
heyle, to hail 309.

Iferede, fired, inflamed 556.
I-wis, I-wys, certainly 119, 338.

Digitized by Google

I-wreke, revenged 358.

large, sb., liberty 177.
lasse, less 616.
leche, leech, physician 55.
lemys, rays 263.
lere, to learn 333.
lyssyn, to ease, relieve 401.

mede, reward 624.
mo, moo, more 135, 143, 564.
mot, must 390, 442, 568.
mowe, grimace 379
mut, mute 50.

naþe, has not 577.
ne, not 40, 85, 92, 101, 127, etc.
ne, nor 85, 113, 216, 279, 291.
newfongylnesse, newfangledness 562.
non-suffysaunce, insufficiency 125.

onbit, abideth 67.
othyr, or 116.
out-shede, to pour out 431.

parte, to divide, share 236.
peersand, piercing 574.
pensyfhed, pensiveness 510.
pes, peace 508.
pete, pity 69, etc.
pleyne, to complain 51.
plonchyn, to plunge 376.
porte, bearing, demeanour 328, 334.

queme, to please 553.

recorderys, flutes, flageolets 421.
recure, to recover 93.
row, rough 374.

seeld, seldom 311.
seyne, to, to say 99, etc.
shene, bright 225.
sithe, sithen, sythe, etc., since 4, 14, etc.
skyis, clouds 372.
slen, sloo, to slay 139, 295.
sonde, to make sound, heal 407.
sote, sweet 398, 431.
sothefastnesse, truth 92, 493, 587.
spere, sphere 241.
sperys, rede sp., reed-spears 422.
spraulynge, sprawling 21.
steer, to stir 542 (or, to manage, control? see Leg. of G. W., 935).
stere, to steer, guide, restrain 6.
stilly, quietly 308.
stoundemel, hourly 524.
streytest, most straightforward (?) 336.
sumdel, somewhat 197.
swow, swoon 188.
sykurnesse, security, reliableness 327.
syþes, offte s., ofttimes, often 596.

tene, grief 226.
tho, then 198.
thought, trouble, heaviness 1.
to-brest, to burst 450.
to-rent, rent asunder 611.
to-tore, torn 610.
trist, sad 285.
tweye, two (things) 530.

vndyrfong, to undertake 172.
vn[w]reke (?), to unfold 196.

weene, doubt 267.
were, doubt 261.
worshepe, dignity 341, 550.
wroke, revenged 606.
wynke, close the eyes, sleep 64.

yede, went 205.

Digitized by Google

LIST OF PROPER NAMES.

TEMPLE OF GLAS.

Achilles 94, 785.
Addoun (Adonis) 64.
Admete 72.
Alceste 71.
Almen 123.
Amphioun 1310.
Amphitrioun 122.
Antonyus 778.
Antropos 782.
Britayne 410.
Caliope 1303.
Canace 138.
Cartage 55.
Chaucer 110.
Cirrea 703.
Citheria 701.
Cleopatre 779.
Crete 85.
Cupide 114, 321, 444, etc.
Daphne 115.
Dedalus 84.
Demophon 87.
Diane 8.
Dianyre 788.
Dido 56.
Dorigene 410.
Elicon 706.
Emelie 106.
Eneas 58.
Esperus 1348.
Europe 118.
Grisildis 75, Grisilde 405.
Heleyne 93.
Hercules 787.
Ianuari 185.
Iason 63.
Ioue 117, 1232.
Isaude 77.
Iubiter 136, 465.
Lucifer 253.
Lucina 4.
Lucresse 101.
Mars 126, 1232.
May 184.
Medee 62.
Mercurie 130.
Minatawre 83.
Musis 133, 953.
Orpheus 1308.
Palamoun 102.
Pallas 248.
Paris 92.
Penalope 67, 407.
Phebus 5, 112, 272.
Phillis 86.
Philologye 130.
Philomene 98.
Piramus 81, 780.
Policene 94, Polixene 786.
Progne 99.
Rome 101.
Sabyns 100.
Saturne 389, 1232.
Tesbie 80, Tesbe 780.
Theseus 82, 109.
Thesiphone 958.
Titan 32.
Tristram 79.
Troie 95.
Venus 52, 64, 127, 194, etc.
Vulcanus 127.

COMPLEYNT.

Cupidis (gen.) 556.
Dyane 250.
Fortune 42, 362, 391, 452.
Heleyne 268.
Iudith 300.
Phebus 240.
Polixene 268.
Venus 549.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

ADDENDA.

Page XIII. To Prof. Zupitza's contributions to Lydgate-literature, add his paper Zu Lydgates Isopus, in his Archiv für das Studium der neueren Sprachen, vol. 85, pp. 1—28. We find in it the version of the Trinity College MS. R. 3. 19, and the fragment in MS. Ashmole 59, besides valuable notes, and important additions to Sauerstein's edition.

Page XXIX. Thanks to the kindness of Mr. Gordon Duff, I am in a position to give a more accurate date for the fragments of Pynson's print. Mr. Gordon Duff believes its date to be about 1502—6, for the following reason. The border of the device used in Pynson's print was cut in metal, and was first used about 1500. It very soon began to get damaged, owing to the bending of the metal, and about the year 1510, the lower part broke away altogether. In the Temple of Glas the lower margin is slightly bent, and thus Mr. Gordon Duff is inclined to put it nearer 1502 than 1506.

Page LXXIII, note. I am sorry that I was not sooner acquainted with Wischmann's Dissertation Untersuchungen über das Kingis Quair. It would have been interesting to compare Lydgate's treatment of the final e with that of King James.

Page XCVI. In the last volume of the Dictionary of National Biography, the article on John Hoveden notices the poem in MS. Calig. A. II, entitled "The Nightyngale," and says that it is an imitation of Hoveden's shorter version of the Philomela. Through Prof. Napier I have become acquainted with another copy of the Caligula version, contained in MS. No. 203 of Corpus Christi College. From it, my supposition that the British Museum copy must be deficient at the beginning, has been confirmed. Two stanzas, addressed to Anne, Duchess of Buckingham, are missing at the beginning in the London MS., so that this poem has altogether 59 stanzas (see p. xcv, note 3). The stanza on the death of Henry of Warwick occurs in this MS. on page 17. An entry at the beginning of the MS. rightly points out that the poem must thus have been written between 1444 and about 1446, as the title "Duchess of Buckingham" was not conferred upon Lady Anne till 1444. Both MSS. are mentioned by Tanner, p. 491, l. 11 from top.

Page XCVII. We find further information concerning John Baret in a publication of the Camden Society: Wills and Inventories from the registers of the Commissary of Bury St. Edmund's and the Archdeacon of Sudbury, ed. by Samuel Tymms, 1850. The will of John Baret is given in that work on pp. 15—44. It was drawn up in 1463, and proved May 2nd, 1467. Thus John Baret doubtless outlived Lydgate, whose share in the pension granted to them jointly must then have fallen to Baret. Some account of Baret and his tomb in St. Mary's Church, Bury St. Edmunds, is given on pp. 233—238 of Tymms's book.

Page XCIX. Through Mr. Peskett's renewed kindness I have been able to identify the "War between Cæsar and Pompey" which Skeat (Academy, Oct. 3, p. 286) inclines to believe is identical with the "Tragedye of Rome" in MS.

Digitized by Google

Ashmole 59. Mr. Peskett has very kindly sent me a transcript of the beginning and end which, as he rightly points out, leaves no doubt that the piece is identical with Lydgate's Serpent of Division (issued together with the 1590 edition of Gorboduc). The Ashmole MS. is not available to me at present, but judging from the Catalogue of the Ashmole MSS., the "Tragedye of Rome" seems to be nothing else than the Envoy to the Falls of Princes II, 31 (Tottel's print, fol. 66 d—67 b), followed by that to Falls of Princes III, 5 (Tottel, fol. 77 a and b).

Page CIX. From the new (printed) Catalogue of the British Museum I see that Lydgate's Assemble de Dyeus had already been printed in 1498 by Wynken de Worde, at the end of an edition of the Canterbury Tales. See also Hazlitt's Handbook, p. 97, col. 2. This print is particularly interesting as assigning the authorship of the poem to Lydgate. —If I can trust an old note taken some time ago at Cambridge, the poem is also found in the Trinity College MS. R. 3. 19, fol. 68 a—97 b.

Page CXVII, note. Add, as two other important treatments of the Pleading between Mercy, Truth, Right and Peace, the Salutation in the "Coventry" Plays, and the Castle of Perseverance. Cp. also Rothschild, Mystère du viel Testament I, p. LXI.

Page CXLIII. I forgot to add that in E. K.'s introduction to the Shepherd's Calendar, Lydgate's name is mentioned in a very laudatory manner, and that he is introduced with Gower and Chaucer in G. Harvey's Letterbook (ed. Scott, p. 57). Ben Jonson quotes him frequently in his English Grammar. Lydgate is further mentioned in the translation of Terence's Andria (see Collier II, 364); again, in a Latin poem before Alcida Greene's Metamorphosis (Grosart's Greene IX, p. 13), and by Whetstone, in a poem on Sir James Dier (see Köppel, Studien zur Geschichte der italienischen Novelle, p. 31, note 1); further by T. Nashe in his Letter to the Gentlemen Students, before Greene's Menaphon (ed. Grosart, VI, 24); also in John Lane's Continuation of Chaucer's Squire's Tale, ed. Furnivall, III, 330:

"Don Chaucer, Lidgate, Sidney, Spencer dead!"

No bad company for our monk!

Note to ll. 86—90. Phyllis is also represented as having hanged herself on a filbert-tree in Lodge's Rosalind, signat. K_1 a.

Note to l. 271 (see also p. cxxxii). I am sincerely sorry that I have after all come across an earlier instance of the expression, "hair like gold wire," namely, in Layamon's Brut, ll. 7047, 7048, which read (Cotton Calig. A. ix):

"Seoððen com a king þe hæhte Pir:
his hæð (read hær) wes swulc swa beoð gold wir;"

the reading of Cotton Otho C.xiii is:

"Suþþe com Caper. and Pir:
þat [hadde] heer so gold wir."

Note to l. 510. The Merry ballad of the hawthorn-tree, attributed to Peele, illustrates well why this tree was chosen as a symbol of constant love. See Dyce's edition of Greene and Peele, 1874, p. 604 sq.

Note to l. 1272. Come off.] This phrase occurs further in the Salutation in the Coventry Plays, ed. Halliwell, p. 113; in Mary Magdalene, ed. Furnivall, ll. 379 and 739; in Skelton's Magnificence 103 and 977 (cp. Dyce's notes); in Heywood's Four P's, Dodsley-Hazlitt I, 352, l. 7; in Thersites, ib. I, 421; in Ingelend's Disobedient Child, ib. II, 272, 283, 305; in Marriage of Wit and Science, ib. II, 376; in Bale's Kyng Johan, ed. Collier, p. 66; in Marriage of Wit and Wisdom, ed. Halliwell, p. 17, l. 7. There remains thus little doubt that, by the insertion of off, we get the correct reading.

R. CLAY & SONS, LIMITED, LONDON & BUNGAY.

Digitized by Google

May 1892. For this year and 1893 the Original-Series Texts are now ready, and so are the Extra-Series Texts for 1892, and the first of those for 1893, while the second will be ready in a few months. Members are askt to send their two-years' subscriptions for both Series at once.

The second Extra-Series book for 1891 is also ready. It is No. LX, Dr. J. Schick's edition of Lydgate's Temple of Glass, with a full discussion and classification of its MSS., a chronological arrangement of all Lydgate's chief works, and some account of his best poem, still in MS., 'Reason and Sensuality.'

The Original-Series Texts for 1892 are:—No. 98, The Minor Poems of the Vernon MS, Part I edited by Dr. Horstmann, and No. 99, Part VI of the Cursor Mundi,—the Preface by the Rev. Dr. R. Morris; an Essay on the Sources of the Poem by Dr. Haenisch; and a Glossary by Dr. Max Kaluza.

The Original-Series Texts for 1893 are:—No. 100, Capgrave's Life of St. Katharine, the text edited by Dr. C. Horstmann, with Forewords, side-notes, and a discussion of Chaucer's gh and Shakspere's long i, by Dr. F. J. Furnivall; and No. 101, the Cursor Mundi, Part VII and last, an Essay on the MSS. of the Poem, their Dialects and Relation, &c., by Dr. H. Hupe.

The Extra-Series Texts for 1892 are:—No. LXI, Hoccleve's Minor Poems I, from the Phillipps and Durham MSS., edited by Dr. F. J. Furnivall; No. LXII, the Chester Plays, Part I, re-edited from the MSS. by the late Dr. Hermann Deimling.

Those for 1893 are—1. Thomas à Kempis's De Imitatione Christi, englisht: the first three books from the MS, in Trinity College Dublin, about 1440 A.D., and from Dr. Wm. Atkynson's version, printed by Wynkyn de Worde in 1502; and the fourth book by Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Derby, Mother of Henry VII; the whole edited by Prof. J. K. Ingram, LL.D. 2. Dr. Mary N. Colvin's edition of Caxton's Godfrey of Bologne, or Last Siege of Jerusalem, A.D. 1481. This is all printed but the Notes and Glossary, and they are in the hands of the printers. Dr. Furnivall's edition of the Lichfield Gilds is also all printed, and waits only for the Introduction, which Prof. E. C. K. Gonner has kindly undertaken to write for the book.

The Original-Series Texts for 1894 and 1895 will be chosen from books already at press: Part II of the Minor Poems of the Vernon MS., edited by Dr. J. Kail; Richard Misyn's—he was Prior of Lincoln—englishings in 1434 and 1435 of Richard Rolle of Hampole's Fire of Love and Mending of Life, edited by Robert Harvey, M.A., Headmaster of the Cork Grammar School; Lydgate and Burgh's Secrees of Philosoffres, c. 1440, edited by Robert Steele, B.A.; Mr. Gollancz's re-edited Exeter-Book—Anglo-Saxon Poems from the unique MS. in Exeter Cathedral—Part I, of which the Text, with a modern englishing, has been long in type. Dr. R. von Fleischhacker has also in the press—333 pages of text stereotyped out of 352—a treatise perhaps more valuable for Dictionary purposes than any yet issued by the Society, an englisht Lanfranc's Cirurgie, about 1400 A.D., which takes up to Chaucer's death the whole class of surgical and medical words (besides many others of common speech) which we before had only from the black-letters of Queen Elizabeth's time. The Editor has collated the English text with its Latin; and he shows how largely our first printed Anatomie (Vicary's) is borrowd from it. Dr. Fleischhacker's illness drove him to the South last winter, but he hopes to be in England again in the summer, and then to finish his edition. Miss Pemberton has also sent to press her edition of the fragments of Queen Elizabeth's englishings (in the Record Office) from Boethius, Plutarch, &c. Prof. Napier has nearly ready a 12th-century Homily on the Legend of the Holy Rood, with an Introduction on the different Legends about it, together with an incomplete Chester Hymn to the Virgin of the 13th century, and a short Paper on the soft and hard g's of the Ormulum MS., with a facsimile. Prof. Mead has sent to press the completion of the prose Merlin, for which the Society has been looking in vain from its Treasurer since 1870. Mr. Utley is home from Roumania, and promises to finish Lyndesay's Works this year.

The Texts for the Extra Series in 1894 and 1895 will be chosen from the Parallel-Text of the only two MSS. of the Owl and Nightingale, edited by Mr. G. F. H. Sykes; the prose Romance of Melusine, edited from the unique MS. by Mr. A. K. Donald; Hoccleve's englishing of De Regimine Principum, 1411-12, edited by Dr. Furnivall; Deguilleville's Pilgrimage of the Life of Man, three prose versions—two English, one French—edited by G. N. Currie, M.A. Some of these Texts will be ready in 1892. Members are therefore askt to send Advance Subscriptions in 1892, for 1893, 1894, and 1895, in order that the 1893-5 books may be issued to them as soon as the editions are finisht. The Society's experience has shown that Editors must be taken when they are in the humour for work. All real Students and furtherers of the Society's purpose will be ready to push on the issue of Texts. Those Members who care only a guinea a year (or can afford only that sum) for the history of our language and our nation's thought, will not be hurt by those who care more, getting their books in advance; on the contrary, they will be benefited, as each successive year's work will then be ready for issue on New Year's Day. Members are askt to realise the fact that the Society has now 50 years' work on its Lists,—at its present rate of production,—and that there is from 100 to 200 more years' work to come after that. The year 2000 will not see finisht all the Texts that the Society ought to print.

Digitized by Google

Mr. G. N. Currie is preparing an edition of the 15th and 16th century Prose Versions of Guillaume de Deguilleville's Pilgrimage of the Life of Man, with the French prose version by Jean Gallopes, from Mr. Henry Hucks Gibbs's MS., Mr. Gibbs having generously promist to pay the extra cost of printing the French text, and engraving one or two of the illuminations in his MS.

Guillaume de Deguilleville, monk of the Cistercian abbey of Chaalis, in the diocese of Senlis, wrote his first verse Pelerinaige de l'Homme in 1330-1 when he was 36.[1] Twenty-five (or six) years after, in 1355, he revised his poem, and issued a second version of it, and this is the only one that has been printed. Of the prose representative of the first version, 1330 1, a prose Englishing, about 1430 A.D., was edited by Mr. Aldis Wright for the Roxburghe Club in 1869, from MS. Ff. 5. 30 in the Cambridge University Library. Other copies of this prose English are in the Hunterian Museum, Glasgow, Q. 2. 25; Univ. Coll. and Corpus Christi, Oxford[2]; and the Laud Collection in the Bodleian, no. 740. A copy in the Northern dialect is MS. G. 21, in St. John's Coll., Cambridge, and this is the MS. which will be edited by Mr. Sidney J. Herrtage for the E. E. Text Society. The Laud MS. 740 was somewhat condenst and modernised, in the 17th century, into MS. Ff. 6. 30, in the Cambridge University Library:[3] "The Pilgrime or the Pilgrimage of Man in this World," copied by Will. Baspoole, whose copy "was verbatim written by Walter Parker, 1645, and from thence transcribed by G. G. 1649; and from thence by W. A. 1655." This last copy may have been read by, or its story reported to, Bunyan, and may have been the groundwork of his Pilgrim's Progress. It will be edited by Mr. Currie for the E. E. T. Soc., its text running under the earlier English, as in Mr. Herrtage's edition of the Gesta Romanorum for the Society. In February 1464,[4] Jean Gallopes—a clerk of Angers, afterwards chaplain to John, Duke of Bedford, Regent of France—turned Deguilleville's first verse Pelerinaige into a prose Pelerinage de la vie humaine.[5] By the kindness of Mr. Hy. Hucks Gibbs, as above mentiond, Gallopes's French text will be printed opposite the early prose northern Englishing in the Society's edition.

The Second Version of Deguilleville's Pelerinaige de l'Homme, A.D. 1355 or -6, was englisht in verse by Lydgate in 1426. Of Lydgate's poem, the larger part is in the Cotton MS. Vitellius C. xiii (leaves 2-308). This MS. leaves out Chaucer's englishing of Deguilleville's A B C or Prayer to the Virgin, of which the successive stanzas start with A, B, C, and run all thro' the alphabet; and it has 2 gaps, of which most of the second can be fild up from the end of the other imperfect MS. Cotton, Tiberius A vii. The rest of the stopgaps must be got from the original French in Harleian 4399,[6] and Additional 22,937[7] and 25,594[8] in the British Museum. Lydgate's version will be edited in due course for the Society.

Besides his first Pelerinaige de l'homme in its two versions, Deguilleville wrote a second, "de l'ame separee du corps," and a third, "de nostre seigneur Iesus." Of the second, a prose Englishing of 1413, The Pilgrimage of the Sowle (perhaps in part by Lydgate), exists in the Egerton MS. 615,[9] at Hatfield, Cambridge (Univ. Kk. 1. 7, Caius), Oxford (Univ. Coll. and Corpus), and in Caxton's edition of 1483. This version has 'somewhat of addicions' as Caxton says, and some shortenings too, as the maker of both, the first translator, tells us in the MSS. Caxton leaves out the earlier englisher's interesting Epilog in the Egerton MS. This prose englishing of the Sowle will be edited for the Society after that of the Man is finisht, and will have Gallopes's French opposite it, from Mr. Gibbs's MS., as his gift to the Society. Of the Pilgrimage of Jesus, no englishing is known.

As to the MS. Anglo-Saxon Psalters, Dr. Hy. Sweet has edited the oldest MS., the Vespasian, in his Oldest English Texts for the Society, and Mr. Harsley has edited the latest, c. 1150, Eadwine's Canterbury Psalter. Dr. Logeman then raised the question of how the other MSS. should be treated; and he was authorised to prepare a Parallel-Text edition of the first ten Psalms from all the MSS., to test whether the best way of printing them would be in one group, or in two—in each case giving parts of all the MSS. on one page—under their respective Roman and Gallican Latin originals. If collation proves that all the MSS. cannot go together on successive pages, there will be two Parallel-Texts,

1 He was born about 1295. See Abbé Goujet's Bibliotheque française, Vol. IX. p. 73-4.—P. M.
2 These 3 MSS. have not yet been collated, but are believed to be all of the same version.
3 Another MS. is in the Pepys Library.
4 According to Mr. Hy. Hucks Gibbs's MS.
5 There were printed in France, late in the 15th or early in the 16th century.
6 15th cent., containing only the Vie humaine.
7 15th cent., containing all the 3 Pilgrimages, the 3rd being Jesus Christ's.
8 14th cent., containing the Vie humaine and the 2nd Pilgrimage, de l'Ame: both incomplete.
9 Ab. 1430, 106 leaves (leaf 1 of text wanting), with illuminations of nice little devils—red, green, tawny &c.—and damnd souls, fires, angels &c.

Digitized by Google

one of the A.Sax. MSS. following the Roman version, and the other, of those glossing the Gallican; but every effort will be made to get the whole into one Parallel-Text. This Text will be an extravagance; but as the Society has not yet committed one in Anglo-Saxon, it will indulge in one now. And every student will rejoice at having the whole Psalter material before him in the most convenient form. Dr. Logeman and Mr. Harsley will be joint editors of the Parallel-Text. The Early English Psalters are all independent versions, and will follow separately in due course.

Through the good offices of Prof. Arber, some of the books for the Early-English Examinations of the University of London will be chosen from the Society's publications, the Committee having undertaken to supply such books to students at a large reduction in price. The profits from these sales will be applied to the Society's Reprints. Five of its 1866 Texts, and one of its 1867, still need reproducing. Donations for this purpose will be welcome. They should be paid to the Hon. Sec., Mr. W. A. Dalziel, 67 Victoria Rd., Finsbury Park, London, N.

Members are reminded that fresh Subscribers are always wanted, and that the Committee can at any time, on short notice, send to press an additional Thousand Pounds' worth of work.

The Subscribers to the Original Series must be prepared for the issue of the whole of the Early English Lives of Saints, sooner or later. The Society cannot leave out any of them, even though some are dull. The Sinners would doubtless be much more interesting. But in many Saints' Lives will be found interesting incidental details of our forefathers' social state, and all are worthful for the history of our language. The Lives may be lookt on as the religious romances or story-books of their period.

The Standard Collection of Saints' Lives in the Corpus and Ashmole MSS., the Harleian MS. 2277, &c. will repeat the Laud set, our No. 87, with additions, and in right order. The differences between the foundation MS. (the Laud 108) and its followers are so great, that, to prevent quite unwieldy collations, Dr. Horstmann decided that the Laud MS. must be printed alone, as the first of the Series of Saints' Lives. The Supplementary Lives from the Vernon and other MSS. will form one or two separate volumes.

Besides the Saints' Lives, Trevisa's englishing of Bartholomæus de Proprietatibus Rerum, the mediæval Cyclopædia of Science, &c., will be the Society's next big undertaking. Dr. R. von Fleischhacker will edit it. Prof. Napier of Oxford, wishing to have the whole of our MS. Anglo-Saxon in type, and accessible to students, will edit for the Society all the unprinted and other Anglo-Saxon Homilies which are not included in Thorpe's edition of Ælfric's prose,[1] Dr. Morris's of the Blickling Homilies, and Prof. Skeat's of Ælfric's Metrical Homilies. Prof. Kölbing has also undertaken for the Society's Extra Series a Parallel-Text of all the six MSS. of the Ancren Riwle, one of the most important foundation-documents of Early English. Mr. Harvey, too, means to prepare an edition of the three MSS. of the Earliest English Metrical Psalter, one of which was edited by the late Mr. Stevenson for the Surtees Society.

In case more Texts are ready at any time than can be paid for by the current year's income, they will be dated the next year, and issued in advance to such Members as will pay advance subscriptions. The 1886-7 delay in getting out Texts must not occur again, if it can possibly be avoided. The Director has in hand for future volunteer Editors copies of 2 or 3 MSS.

Members of the Society will learn with pleasure that its example has been followed, not only by the Old French Text Society which has done such admirable work under its founders Profs. Paul Meyer and Gaston Paris, but also by the Early Russian Text Society, which was set on foot in 1877, and has since issued many excellent editions of old MS. Chronicles &c.

Members will also note with pleasure the annexation of large tracts of our Early English territory by the important German contingent under General Zupitza, Colonels Kölbing and Horstmann, volunteers Hausknecht, Einenkel, Haenisch, Kaluza, Hupe, Adam, Holthausen, &c. &c. Scandinavia has also sent us Dr. Erdmann; Holland, Dr. H. Logeman; France, Prof. Paul Meyer—with Gaston Paris as adviser;—Italy, Prof. Lattanzi; while America is represented by Prof. Child, Dr. Mary Noyes Colvin, Prof. Mead, Prof. Perrin, &c. The sympathy, the ready help, which the Society's work has cald forth from the Continent and the United States, have been among the pleasantest experiences of the Society's life, a real aid and cheer amid all troubles and discouragements. All our Members are grateful for it, and recognise that the bond their work has woven between them and the lovers of language and antiqnity across the seas is one of the most welcome results of the Society's efforts.

[1] Of these, Mr. Harsley is preparing a new edition, with collations of all the MSS. Many copies of Thorpe's book, not issued by the Ælfric Society, are still in stock.
Of the Vercelli Homilies, the Society has bought the copy made by Prof. G. Lattanzi.

Digitized by Google

ORIGINAL SERIES.

Half the Publications for 1866 (13, 14, 15, 18, 22) are out of print, but will be gradually reprinted. Subscribers who desire the issue for 1866 should send their guineas at once to the Hon. Secretary, in order that other Texts for 1866 may be sent to press.

The Publications for 1864-1893 (one guinea each year, save those for 1866 now half out of print, two guineas) are :—

1.	Early English Alliterative Poems, ab. 1360 A.D., ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 16*s.*	1864
2.	Arthur, ab. 1440, ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A. 4*s.*	,,
3.	Lauder on the Dewtie of Kyngis, &c., 1556, ed. F. Hall, D.C.L. 4*s.*	,,
4.	Sir Gawayne and the Green Knight, ab. 1360, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 10*s.*	,,
5.	Hume's Orthographie and Congruitie of the Britan Tongue, ab. 1617, ed. H. B. Wheatley. 4*s.*	1865
6.	Lancelot of the Laik, ab. 1500, ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat. 8*s.*	,,
7.	Genesis & Exodus, ab. 1250, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 8*s.*	,,
8.	Morte Arthure, ab. 1440, ed. E. Brock. 7*s.*	,,
9.	Thynne on Speght's ed. of Chaucer, A.D. 1599, ed. Dr. G. Kingsley and Dr. F. J. Furnivall. 10*s.*	,,
10.	Merlin, ab. 1440, Part I., ed. H. B. Wheatley. 2*s.* 6*d.*	,,
11.	Lyndesay's Monarche, &c., 1552, Part I., ed. J. Small, M.A. 3*s.*	,,
12.	Wright's Chaste Wife, ab. 1462, ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A. 1*s.*	,,
13.	Seinte Marherete, 1200-1330, ed. Rev. O. Cockayne.	1866
14.	Kyng Horn, Floris and Blanchefleur, &c., ed. Rev. J. R. Lumby, B.D.	,,
15.	Political, Religious, and Love Poems, ed. F. J. Furnivall.	,,
16.	The Book of Quinte Essence, ab. 1460-70, ed. F. J. Furnivall. 1*s.* [In print.]	,,
17.	Parallel Extracts from 45 MSS. of Piers the Plowman, ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat. 1*s.* [In print.]	,,
18.	Hali Meidenhad, ab. 1200, ed. Rev. O. Cockayne.	,,
19.	Lyndesay's Monarche, &c., Part II., ed. J. Small, M.A. 8*s.* 6*d.* [In print.]	,,
20.	Hampole's English Prose Treatises, ed. Rev. G. G. Perry. 1*s.* [In print.]	,,
21.	Merlin, Part II., ed. H. B. Wheatley. 4*s.* [In print.]	,,
22.	Partenay or Lusignen, ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat.	,,
23.	Dan Michel's Ayenbite of Inwyt, 1340, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 10*s.* 6*d.* [In print.]	,,
24.	Hymns to the Virgin and Christ; the Parliament of Devils, &c., ab. 1430, ed. F. J. Furnivall.	1867
25.	The Stacions of Rome, the Pilgrims' Sea-voyage, with Clene Maydenhod, ed. F. J. Furnivall. 1*s.*	,,
26.	Religious Pieces in Prose and Verse, from R. Thornton's MS. (ab. 1440), ed. Rev. G. G. Perry. 2*s.*	,,
27.	Levins's Manipulus Vocabulorum, a ryming Dictionary, 1570, ed. H. B. Wheatley. 12*s.*	,,
28.	William's Vision of Piers the Plowman, 1362 A.D.; Text A, Part I., ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat. 6*s.*	,,
29.	Old English Homilies (ab. 1220-30 A.D.). Part I. Edited by Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 7*s.*	,,
30.	Pierce the Ploughmans Crede, ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat. 2*s.*	,,
31.	Myrc's Duties of a Parish Priest, in Verse, ab. 1420 A.D., ed. E. Peacock. 4*s.*	1868
32.	Early English Meals and Manners: the Boke of Norture of John Russell, the Bokes of Keruyage, Curtasye, and Demeanor, the Babees Book, Urbanitatis, &c., ed. F. J. Furnivall. 12*s.*	,,
33.	The Knight de la Tour Landry, ab. 1440 A.D. A Book for Daughters, ed. T. Wright, M.A. 8*s.*	,,
34.	Old English Homilies (before 1300 A.D.). Part II., ed. R. Morris, LL.D. 8*s.*	,,
35.	Lyndesay's Works, Part III.: The Historie and Testament of Squyer Meldrum, ed. F. Hall. 2*s.*	,,
36.	Merlin, Part III. Ed. H. B. Wheatley. On Arthurian Localities, by J. S. Stuart Glennie. 12*s.*	1869
37.	Sir David Lyndesay's Works, Part IV., Ane Satyre of the Three Estaits. Ed. F. Hall, D.C.L. 4*s.*	,,
38.	William's Vision of Piers the Plowman, Part II. Text B. Ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 10*s.* 6*d.*	,,
39.	Alliterative Romance of the Destruction of Troy. Ed. D. Donaldson & G. A. Panton. Pt. I. 10*s.* 6*d.*	,,
40.	English Gilds, their Statutes and Customs, 1389 A.D. Edit. Toulmin Smith and Lucy T. Smith, with an Essay on Gilds and Trades-Unions, by Dr. L. Brentano. 21*s.*	1870
41.	William Lauder's Minor Poems. Ed. F. J. Furnivall. 8*s.*	,,
42.	Bernardus De Cura Rei Familiaris, Early Scottish Prophecies, &c. Ed. J. R. Lumby, M.A. 2*s.*	,,
43.	Ratis Raving, and other Moral and Religious Pieces. Ed. J. R. Lumby, M.A. 3*s.*	,,
44.	The Alliterative Romance of Joseph of Arimathie, or The Holy Grail: from the Vernon MS.; with W. de Worde's and Pynson's Lives of Joseph: ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 5*s.*	1871
45.	King Alfred's West-Saxon Version of Gregory's Pastoral Care, edited from 2 MSS., with an English translation, by Henry Sweet, Esq., B.A., Balliol College, Oxford. Part I. 10*s.*	,,
46.	Legends of the Holy Rood, Symbols of the Passion and Cross Poems, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 10*s.*	,,
47.	Sir David Lyndesay's Works, Part V., ed. Dr. J. A. H. Murray. 3*s.*	,,
48	The Times' Whistle, and other Poems, by R. C., 1616; ed. by J. M. Cowper, Esq. 6*s.*	,,
49.	An Old English Miscellany, containing a Bestiary, Kentish Sermons, Proverbs of Alfred, and Religious Poems of the 13th cent., ed. from the MSS. by the Rev. R. Morris, LL.D. 10*s.*	1872
50.	King Alfred's West-Saxon Version of Gregory's Pastoral Care, ed. H. Sweet, M.A. Part II. 10*s.*	,,
51.	The Life of St Juliana, 2 versions, A.D. 1230, with translations; ed. T. O. Cockayne & E. Brock. 2*s.*	,,
52.	Palladius on Husbondrie, englisht (ab. 1420 A.D.), ed. Rev. Barton Lodge, M.A. Part I. 10*s.*	,,

Digitized by Google

53. Old-English Homilies, Series II., and three Hymns to the Virgin and God, 13th-century, with the music to two of them, in old and modern notation; ed. Rev. R. Morris, LL.D. 8*s.* 1873
54. The Vision of Piers Plowman, Text C: Richard the Redeless (by William, the author of the Vision) and The Crowned King; Part III., ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 18*s.* ,,
55. Generydes, a Romance, ab. 1440 A.D., ed. W. Aldis Wright, M.A. Part I. 8*s.* ,,
56. The Gest Hystoriale of the Destruction of Troy, in alliterative verse; ed. by D. Donaldson, Esq., and the late Rev. G. A. Panton. Part II. 10*s.* 6*d.* 1874
57. The Early English Version of the "Cursor Mundi"; in four Texts, edited by the Rev. R. Morris, M.A., LL.D. Part I, with 2 photolithographic facsimiles. 10*s.* 6*d.* ,, 58. The Blickling Homilies, 971 A.D., ed. Rev. R. Morris, LL.D. Part I. 8*s.* ,,
59. The "Cursor Mundi," in four Texts, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part II. 15*s.* 1875
60. Meditacyuns on the Soper of our Lorde (by Robert of Brunne), edited by J. M. Cowper. 2*s.* 6*d.* ,, 61. The Romance and Prophecies of Thomas of Erceldoune, from 5 MSS.; ed. Dr. J. A. H. Murray. 10*s.* 6*d.* ,,
62. The "Cursor Mundi," in four Texts, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part III. 15*s.* 1876
63. The Blickling Homilies, 971 A.D., ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part II. 7*s.* ,, 64. Francis Thynne's Emblemes and Epigrams, A.D. 1600, ed. F. J. Furnivall. 7*s.* ,,
65. De Domes Dæge (Bede's De Die Judicii), &c., ed. J. R. Lumby, B.D. 2*s.* ,,
66. The "Cursor Mundi," in four Texts, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part IV., with 2 autotypes. 10*s.* 1877
67. Notes on Piers Plowman, by the Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. Part I. 21*s.* ,, 68. The "Cursor Mundi," in 4 Texts, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part V. 25*s.* 1878
69. Adam Davie's 5 Dreams about Edward II., &c., ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A. 5*s.* ,, 70. Generydes, a Romance, ed. W. Aldis Wright, M.A. Part II. 4*s.* ,, 71. The Lay Folks Mass-Book, four texts, ed. Rev. Canon Simmons. 25*s.* 1879
72. Palladius on Husbondrie, englisht (ab. 1420 A.D.). Part II. Ed. S. J. Herrtage, B.A. 15*s.* ,, 73. The Blickling Homilies, 971 A.D., ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. Part III. 10*s.* 1880
74. English Works of Wyclif, hitherto unprinted, ed. F. D. Matthew, Esq. 20*s.* ,, 75. Catholicon Anglicum, an early English Dictionary, from Lord Monson's MS. A.D. 1483, ed., with Introduction & Notes, by S. J. Herrtage, B.A.; and with a Preface by H. B. Wheatley. 20*s.* 1881
76. Aelfric's Metrical Lives of Saints, in MS. Cott. Jul. E 7., ed. Rev. Prof. Skeat, M.A. Part I. 10*s.* ,,
77. Beowulf, the unique MS. autotyped and transliterated, edited by Prof. Zupitza, Ph.D. 25*s.* 1882
78. The Fifty Earliest English Wills, in the Court of Probate, 1387-1439, ed. by F. J. Furnivall, M.A. 7*s.* ,
79. King Alfred's Orosius, from Lord Tollemache's 9th century MS., Part I, ed. H. Sweet, M.A. 13*s.* 1883
Extra Volume. Facsimile of the Epinal Glossary, 8th cent., ed. H. Sweet, M.A. 15*s.* ,, 80. The Early-English Life of St. Katherine and its Latin Original, ed. Dr. Einenkel. 12*s.* 1884
81. Piers Plowman: Notes, Glossary, &c. Part IV, completing the work, ed. Rev. Prof. Skeat, M.A. 18*s.* ,,
82. Aelfric's Metrical Lives of Saints, MS. Cott. Jul. E 7., ed. Rev. Prof. Skeat, M.A., LL.D. Part II. 12*s.* 1885
83. The Oldest English Texts, Charters, &c., ed. H. Sweet, M.A. 20*s.* ,, 84. Additional Analogs to 'The Wright's Chaste Wife,' No. 12, by W. A. Clouston. 1*s.* 1886
85. The Three Kings of Cologne. 2 English Texts, and 1 Latin, ed. Dr. C. Horstmann. 17*s.* ,, 86. Prose Lives of Women Saints, ab. 1610 A.D., ed. from the unique MS. by Dr. C. Horstmann. 12*s.* ,, 87. Early English Verse Lives of Saints (earliest version), Laud MS. 108, ed. Dr. C. Horstmann. 20*s.* 1887
88. Hy. Bradshaw's Life of St. Werburghe (Pynson, 1521), ed. Dr. C. Horstmann. 10*s.* ,, 89. Vices and Virtues, from the unique MS., ab. 1200 A.D., ed. Dr. F. Holthausen. Part I. 8*s.* 1888
90. Anglo-Saxon and Latin Rule of St. Benet, interlinear Glosses, ed. Dr. H. Logeman. 12*s.* ,, 91. Two Fifteenth-Century Cookery-Books, ab. 1430-1450, edited by Mr. T. Austin. 10*s.* ,,
92. Eadwine's Canterbury Psalter, from the Trin. Cambr. MS., ab. 1150 A.D., ed. F. Harsley, B.A. Pt. I. 12*s.* 1889
93. Defensor's Liber Scintillarum, edited from the MSS. by Ernest Rhodes. B.A. 12*s.* ,,
94. Aelfric's Metrical Lives of Saints, MS. Cott. Jul. E 7, Part III., ed. Prof. Skeat, Litt.D., LL.D. 12*s.* 1890
95. The Old-English version of Bede's Ecclesiastical History, re-edited by Dr. Thomas Miller. Part I. 18*s.* ,,
(With Reprints of No. 16, The Book of Quinte Essence, and No. 26, Religious Pieces, from R. Thornton's MS.)
96. The Old-English version of Bede's Ecclesiastical History, re-edited by Dr. Thomas Miller. Pt. II. 15*s.* 1891
97. The Earliest English Prose Psalter, edited from its 2 MSS. by Dr. K. D. Buelbring. Part I. 15*s.* ,,
98. Minor Poems of the Vernon MS., Part I., ed. Dr. C. Horstmann. 20*s.* 1892
99. Cursor Mundi. Part VI. Preface, Notes, and Glossary, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 10*s.* ,,
100. Capgrave's Life of St. Katharine, ed. Dr. C. Horstmann, with Forewords by Dr. Furnivall. 20*s.* 1893
101. Cursor Mundi. Part VII. Essay on the MSS., their Dialects, &c., by Dr. H. Hupe. 10*s.* ,,

Digitized by Google

EXTRA SERIES.

The Publications for 1867-1893 (one guinea each year) are:—

I. William of Palerne; or, William and the Werwolf. Re-edited by Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 13*s.* 1867
II. Early English Pronunciation with especial Reference to Shakspere and Chaucer, by A. J. Ellis, F.R.S. Part I. 10*s.* ,, III. Caxton's Book of Curtesye, in Three Versions. Ed. F. J. Furnivall. 5*s.* 1868
IV. Havelok the Dane. Re-edited by the Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 10*s.* ,, V. Chaucer's Boethius. Edited from the two best MSS. by Rev. Dr. R. Morris. 12*s.* ,, VI. Chevelere Assigne. Re-edited from the unique MS. by H. H. Gibbs, Esq., M.A. 3*s.* ,, VII. Early English Pronunciation, by A. J. Ellis, F.R.S. Part II. 10*s.* 1869
VIII. Queene Elizabethes Achademy, &c. Ed. F. J. Furnivall. Essays on early Italian and German Books of Courtesy, by W. M. Rossetti and Dr. E. Oswald. 13*s.* ,, IX. Awdeley's Fraternitye of Vacabondes, Harman's Caveat, &c. Ed. E. Viles & F. J. Furnivall. 7*s.* 6*d.* ,, X. Andrew Boorde's Introduction of Knowledge, 1547, Dyetary of Helth, 1542, Barnes in Defence of the Berde, 1542-3. Ed. F. J. Furnivall. 18*s.* 1870
XI. Barbour's Bruce, Part I. Ed. from MSS. and editions, by Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 12*s.* ,, XII. England in Henry VIII.'s Time: a Dialogue between Cardinal Pole & Lupset, by Thom. Starkey, Chaplain to Henry VIII. Ed. J. M. Cowper. Part II. 12*s.* (Part I. is No. XXXII, 1878, 8*s.*) 1871
XIII. A Supplicacyon of the Beggers, by Simon Fish, 1528-9 A.D., ed. F. J. Furnivall; with A Supplication to our Moste Soueraigne Lorde; A Supplication of the Poore Commons; and The Decaye of England by the Great Multitude of Sheep, ed. by J. M. Cowper, Esq. 6*s.* ,, XIV. Early English Pronunciation, by A. J. Ellis, Esq., F.R.S. Part III. 10*s.* ,, XV. Robert Crowley's Thirty-One Epigrams, Voyce of the Last Trumpet, Way to Wealth, &c., A.D. 1550-1, edited by J. M. Cowper, Esq. 12*s.* 1872
XVI. Chaucer's Treatise on the Astrolabe. Ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 6*s.* ,, XVII. The Complaynt of Scotlande, 1549 A.D., with 4 Tracts (1542-48), ed. Dr. Murray. Part I. 10*s.* ,, XVIII. The Complaynt of Scotlande, 1549 A.D., ed. Dr. Murray. Part II. 8*s.* 1873
XIX. Oure Ladyes Myroure, A.D. 1530, ed. Rev. J. H. Blunt, M.A. 24*s.* ,, XX. Lonelich's History of the Holy Grail (ab. 1450 A.D.), ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A., Ph.D. Part I. 8*s.* 1874
XXI. Barbour's Bruce, Part II., ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 4*s.* ,, XXII. Henry Brinklow's Complaynt of Roderyck Mors (ab. 1542): and The Lamentacion of a Christian against the Citie of London, made by Roderigo Mors, A.D. 1545. Ed. J. M. Cowper. 9*s.* ,, XXIII. Early English Pronunciation, by A. J. Ellis, F.R.S. Part IV. 10*s.* ,, XXIV. Lonelich's History of the Holy Grail, ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A., Ph.D. Part II. 10*s.* 1875
XXV. Guy of Warwick, 15th-century Version, ed. Prof. Zupitza. Part I. 20*s.* ,, XXVI. Guy of Warwick, 15th-century Version, ed. Prof. Zupitza. Part II. 14*s.* 1876
XXVII. Bp. Fisher's English Works (died 1535), ed. by Prof. J. E. B. Mayor. Part I, the Text. 16*s.* ,, XXVIII. Lonelich's Holy Grail, ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A., Ph.D. Part III. 10*s.* 1877
XXIX. Barbour's Bruce. Part III., ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat, M.A. 21*s.* ,, XXX. Lonelich's Holy Grail, ed. F. J. Furnivall, M.A., Ph.D. Part IV. 15*s.* 1878
XXXI. The Alliterative Romance of Alexander and Dindimus, ed. Rev. W. W. Skeat. 6*s.* ,, XXXII. Starkey's "England in Henry VIII's time." Pt. I. Starkey's Life and Letters, ed. S. J. Herrtage. 8*s.* ,, XXXIII. Gesta Romanorum (englisht ab. 1440), ed. S. J. Herrtage, B.A. 15*s.* 1879
XXXIV. The Charlemagne Romances:—1. Sir Ferumbras, from Ashm. MS. 33, ed. S. J. Herrtage. 15*s.* ,, XXXV. Charlemagne Romances:—2. The Sege off Melayne, Sir Otuell, &c., ed. S. J. Herrtage. 12*s.* 1880
XXXVI. Charlemagne Romances:—3. Lyf of Charles the Grete, Pt. I., ed. S. J. Herrtage. 16*s.* ,, XXXVII. Charlemagne Romances:—4. Lyf of Charles the Grete, Pt. II., ed. S. J. Herrtage. 15*s.* 1881
XXXVIII. Charlemagne Romances:—5. The Sowdone of Babylone, ed. Dr. Hausknecht. 15*s.* ,, XXXIX. Charlemagne Romances:—6. Rauf Colyear, Roland, Otuel, &c., ed. S. J. Herrtage, B.A. 15*s.* 1882
XL. Charlemagne Romances:—7. Huon of Burdeux, by Lord Berners, ed. S. L. Lee, B.A. Part I. 15*s.* ,, XLI. Charlemagne Romances:—8. Huon of Burdeux, by Lord Berners, ed. S. L. Lee, B.A. Pt. II. 15*s.* 1883
XLII. Guy of Warwick: 2 texts (Auchinleck MS. and Caius MS.), ed. Prof. Zupitza. Part I. 15*s.* ,, XLIII. Charlemagne Romances:—9. Huon of Burdeux, by Lord Berners, ed. S. L. Lee, B.A. Pt. III. 15*s.* 1884
XLIV. Charlemagne Romances:—10. The Four Sons of Aymon, ed. Miss Octavia Richardson. Pt. I. 15*s.* ,, XLV. Charlemagne Romances:—11. The Four Sons of Aymon, ed. Miss O. Richardson. Pt. II. 20*s.* 1885
XLVI. Sir Bevis of Hamton, from the Auchinleck and other MSS., ed. Prof. E. Kölbing. Part I. 10*s.* ,, XLVII. The Wars of Alexander, ed. Rev. Prof. Skeat, Litt.D., LL.D. 20*s.* 1886
XLVIII. Sir Bevis of Hamton, ed. Prof. E. Kölbing. Part II. 10*s.* ,, XLIX. Guy of Warwick, 2 texts (Auchinleck and Caius MSS.), Pt. II., ed. Prof. J. Zupitza, Ph.D. 15*s.* 1887
L. Charlemagne Romances:—12. Huon of Burdeux, by Lord Berners, ed. S. L. Lee, B.A. Part IV. 5*s.* ,, LI. Torrent of Portyngale, from the unique MS. in the Chetham Library, ed. E. Adam, Ph.D. 10*s.* ,, LII. Bullein's Dialogue against the Feuer Pestilence, 1578 (ed. 1, 1564). Ed. M. & A. H. Bullen. 10*s.* 1888
LIII. Vicary's Anatomie of the Body of Man, 1548, ed. 1577, ed. F. J. & Percy Furnivall. Part I. 15*s.* ,, LIV. Caxton's Englishing of Alain Chartier's Curial, ed. Dr. F. J. Furnivall & Prof. P. Meyer. 5*s.* ,,

Digitized by Google

LV. Barbour's Bruce, ed. Rev. Prof. Skeat, Litt.D., LL.D. Part IV. 5*s*. 1889
LVI. Early English Pronunciation, by A. J. Ellis, Esq., F.R.S. Pt. V., the present English Dialects. 25*s*. ,, LVII. Caxton's Eneydos, A.D. 1490, coll. with its French, ed. M. T. Culley, M.A. & Dr. F. J. Furnivall. 13*s*. 1890
LVIII. Caxton's Blanchardyn & Eglantine, c. 1489, extracts from ed. 1595, & French, ed. Dr. L. Kellner. 17*s*. ,, LIX. Guy of Warwick, 2 texts (Auchinleck and Caius MSS.), Part III., ed. Prof. J. Zupitza, Ph.D. 15*s*. 1891
LX. Lydgate's Temple of Glass, re-edited from the MSS. by Dr. J. Schick. 15*s*. ,, LXI. Hoccleve's Minor Poems, I., from the Phillipps and Durham MSS., ed. F. J. Furnivall, Ph.D. 15*s*. 1892
LXII. The Chester Plays, re-edited from the MSS. by the late Dr. Hermann Deimling. Part I. 15*s*. ,, LXIII. Thomas a Kempis's De Imitatione Christi, englisht ab. 1440, & 1502, ed. Prof. J. K. Ingram. 15*s*. 1893
LXIV. Caxton's Godfrey of Bologne, or Last Siege of Jerusalem, 1481, ed. Dr. Mary N. Colvin. 15*s*. ,,

---

EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY TEXTS PREPARING.

Besides the Texts named as at press on p. 12 of the Cover of the Early English Text Society's last books, the following Texts are also slowly preparing for the Society:—

ORIGINAL SERIES.

Thomas Robinson's Life and Death of Mary Magdalene, from the 2 MSS., ab. 1620 A.D. (Text in type.)
George Ashby's Poems, 1463-75, ed. from unique Cambridge MSS. by Miss Mary Bateson. (At Press.)
Vices and Virtues, from the unique MS. ab. 1200 A.D., ed. Dr. F. Holthausen, Part II. (At Press.)
Anglo-Saxon Poems, from the Vercelli MS., re-edited by I. Gollancz, M.A.
Anglo-Saxon Glosses to Latin Prayers and Hymns, edited by Dr. F. Holthausen.
An Anglo-Saxon Martyrology, edited from the 4 MSS. by Dr. G. Herzfeld.
Aelfric's Metrical Lives of Saints, MS. Cott. Jul. E 7, Part IV, ed. Prof. Skeat, Litt.D., LL.D.
All the Anglo-Saxon Homilies and Lives of Saints not accessible in English editions, including those of the Vercelli MS. &c., edited by Prof. Napier, M.A., Ph.D.
The Anglo-Saxon Psalms; all the MSS. in Parallel Texts, ed. Dr. H. Logeman and F. Harsley, B.A.
Beowulf, a critical Text, &c., ed. Prof. Zupitza, Ph.D.
Byrhtferth's Handboc, edited by Prof. G. Hempl.
Early English Homilies, 13th century, ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris.
The Rule of St. Benet: 5 Texts, Anglo-Saxon, Early English, Caxton, &c., ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris.
The Seven Sages, in the Northern Dialect, from a Cotton MS., ed. Rev. Dr. R. Morris.
The Master of the Game, a Book of Huntynge for Hen. V. when Prince of Wales, ed. Mr. T. Austin.
Ailred's Rule of Nuns, &c., edited from the Vernon MS., by the Rev. Canon H. R. Bramley, M.A.
Lonelich's Merlin (verse), from the unique MS., ed. by Miss Mary Bateson and Prof. E. Kölbing, Ph.D.
Merlin (prose), Part IV., containing Preface, Index, and Glossary. Edited by Prof. W. E. Mead, Ph.D.
Early English Verse Lives of Saints, Standard Collection, from the Harl. MS., ed. Dr. C. Horstmann.
Early English Confessionals, edited by Dr. R. von Fleischhacker.
A Lapidary, from Lord Tollemache's MS., &c., edited by Dr. R. von Fleischhacker.
Early English Deeds and Documents, from unique MSS., ed. Dr. Lorenz Morsbach.
Gilbert Banastre's Poems, and other Boccaccio englishings, edited by Prof. J. Zupitza, Ph.D.
Lydgate's Life of St. Edmund, edited from the MSS. by Dr. Axel Erdmann.
William of Nassington's Mirror of Life, from Jn. of Waldby. (Editor Wanted.)
A Chronicle of England to 1327 A.D., Northern verse (42,000 lines), ab. 1400 A.D., ed. M. L. Perrin, B.A.
More Early English Wills from the Probate Registry at Somerset House. (Editor Wanted.)
Early Lincoln Wills and Documents from the Bishops' Registers, &c., edited by Dr. F. J. Furnivall.
Early Canterbury Wills, edited by William Cowper, B.A.
Early Norwich Wills, edited by Walter Rye, and F. J. Furnivall.
The Cartularies of Oseney Abbey and Godstow Nunnery, englisht ab. 1450, ed. Rev. A. Clark, M.A.
The Three Kings' Sons, edited from the unique Harl. MS. 326, ab. 1500 A.D., by Dr. Leon Kellner.
The Macro Moralities, edited from Mr. Gurney's unique MS., by Alfred W. Pollard, M.A.
A Troy-Book, edited from the unique Laud MS. 595, by Dr. E. Wülfing.
Alliterative Prophecies, edited from the MSS. by Prof. Brandl, Ph. D.
Miscellaneous Alliterative Poems, edited from the MSS. by Dr. L. Morsbach.
Bird and Beast Poems, a collection from MSS., edited by Dr. K. D. Buelbring.
Scire Mori, &c., from the Lichfield MS. 16, ed. Miss Rosa Elverson, LL.A., and Miss Florence Gilbert.
Nicholas Trivet's French Chronicle, from Sir A. Acland-Hood's unique MS., ed. by Miss Mary Bateson.
De Guilleville's Pilgrimage of the Sowle, edited by G. N. Currie, M.A.
Stories for Sermons, edited from the Addit. MS. 25,719 by Dr. Wieck of Coblentz.
A 15th Century Treatise on Arithmetic, edited by Robert Steele, B.A.
The Finding of the Holy Rood, from a 13th-century MS., ed. Prof. Napier, Ph.D.

Digitized by Google

EXTRA SERIES.

Vicary's Anatomie, 1548, ed. 1577. edited by F. J. & Percy Furnivall. Part II. [At Press.
Bp. Fisher's English Works, Pt. II., with his Life and Letters, ed. Rev. Ronald Bayne, B.A. [At Press.
A Parallel-text of the 6 MSS. of the Ancren Riwle, ed. Prof. Dr. E. Kölbing.
Trevisa's Bartholomæus de Proprietatibus Rerum, re-edited by Dr. R. von Fleischhacker.
Bullein's Dialogue against the Feuer Pestilence, 1564, 1573, 1578. Ed. A. H. and M. Bullen. Pt. II.
The Romance of Boetus and Sidrac, edited from the MSS. by Dr. K. D. Buelbring.
The Romance of Clariodus, re-edited by Dr. K. D. Buelbring.
Sir Amadas, re-edited from the MSS. by Dr. K. D. Buelbring.
Sir Degrevant, edited from the MSS. by Dr. K. Luick.
Robert of Brunne's Chronicle of England, from the Inner Temple MS., ed. by Prof. W. E. Mead, Ph.D.
Maundeville's Voiage and Travaile, re-edited from the Cotton MS. Titus C. 16, &c., by Miss M. Bateson.
Arthour and Merlin, re-edited from the unique MS. by Dr. K. D. Buelbring.
Guy of Warwick, Copland's version, edited by Prof. Zupitza, Ph.D.
The Sege of Jerusalem, Text A, edited from the MSS. by Dr. F. Kopka.
Liber Fundacionis Ecclesie Sancti Bartholomei Londoniarum: the 15th century englishing in the Cotton MS. Vespasian B ix, ed. Norman Moore, M.D.
Awdelay's Poems, re-edited from the unique MS. Douce 302, by Dr. E. Wülfing.
William of Shoreham's Works, re-edited by Professor Konrath, Ph.D.
The Wyse Chylde and other early Treatises on Education, ed. G. Collar, B.A.
Caxton's Dictes and Sayengis of Philosophirs, 1477, with Lord Tollemache's MS. version, ed. S. I. Butler, Esq.
Caxton's Book of the Ordre of Chyualry, collated with Loutfut's Scotch copy of it, ed. F. S. Ellis, Esq.
Lydgate's Court of Sapience, edited by Dr. Borsdorf.
Lydgate's Reason and Sensuality, edited by Dr. J. Schick.
Jn. Hart's Orthographie, MS. 1551; black and fonetic letters, 1569, ed. Dr. F. J. Furnivall.

The Society is anxious to hear of more early Dialect MSS. Misyn's englishings, in the Lincoln dialect, 1434-5, of two of Hampole's Tracts, are in type. Orders have been given for the copying of John Lacy's copy, in the Newcastle-on-Tyne dialect, 1434, of some theological tracts in a MS. of St. John's College, Oxford. Prof. Napier will reprint his copy of a bit of a Hymn in the Chester dialect late in the 13th century. More Hampoles in the Yorkshire dialect will follow. The Lincoln and Norfolk Wills, already copied by or for Dr. Furnivall, unluckily show but little traces of dialect.

More members (to bring money) and Editors (to bring brains) are wanted by the Society.

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

Digitized by Google

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
3 9015 00363 6217

Reprinted from Commercial Reprint
1997

DO NOT REMOVE OR MUTILATE CARDS

V F
A 6

Digitized by Google